The Future Life—(Easter Lesson) ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matt. 25:31-46; Mark 12:26, 27; Luke 24:1-12; John 14:1-4; 1 Cor. 15:3-20, 50-58; 1 Thess. 4:13-18; Rev. 22:1-5.

To teach his disciples the reality of the future life beyond the grave, Jesus reminded them of God's speaking to Moses out of the burning bush: "I am the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob." They had died centuries before and yet they were living still with God.

Our hope of the future life and the resurrection of our own bodies rests chiefly upon Christ's bodily resurrection from the grave and his appearance to his disciples. He first appeared to Mary Magdalene, then to other women and to the apostles.

As the other women came to the tomb they found it empty and saw two angels who said to them, "Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here but is risen." They rushed back to report the glad news to the apostles.

Paul used Christ's resurrection as the proof of the Christian's resurrection, calling him "the first-fruits of them that are asleep." This faith was made clear to John in a vision of heaven as a place of beauty in the presence of Christ. (GOLDEN TEXT—John 11:25)

THE WARRIORS' BALL.

One of the most enjoyable and most popular social events of the year will undoubtedly be the annual Warriors'-Ball, which is to be held on Monday night, and which it is expected will be very largely attended.

There is every reason why this should be the case, for the Warriors' Ball is more than a social happening, more than a mere evening of enjoyment, inasmuch as the proceeds are to be turned over to the Canadian Legion, which means that patronage of this most happy annual event will enable that organization of ex-service men to continue unabated their work on behalf of Canada's veterans and their families.

As a matter of fact, every dollar realized from the sale of tickets will go to this most worthy cause, the money required to meet the expenses of the occasion having been already raised.

It may be that there are citizens who will find it impossible for them to attend the ball in person; in view of the fact that the proceeds are to be devoted to an excellent purpose, it is suggested that in any event such citizens should purchase tickets and thus do their share in helping the Canadian Legion.

The Examiner, in calling the attention of its readers to this gala event, would remind them that the legion has done, and is doing, a most excellent service to the community in its activities on behalf of all ex-service men who are in distress; it is a work that men who have already done more than their share by fighting for the Empire in the Great War might well have been excused for leaving to others to look after, but the members of the legion are not built that way and they have been manfully "carrying on."

THE MESSAGE OF EASTER.

Awake, thou wintry earth—
Fling off thy sadness,
Fair vernal flowers, laugh forth
Your ancient gladness;
Christ is risen!

Thus Thomas Blackburn in his Easter hymn linked up the annual resurrection that nature demonstrates each spring with the risen Christ, the keystone of our Christian faith.

In any reference to this joyous festival it is indeed almost impossible not to do so, for the re-birth of a new life that is seen on every hand at this season of the year after that winter sleep that is so closely akin to death, so clearly symbolizes the resurrection of our Saviour that it is most naturally the two should be associated in our minds.

True, in this vigorous Canadian climate of ours it is not our fortune at Eastertide to see "the full-blossomed trees" that Longfellow described as filling "all the air with fragrance and with joy" on Easter Sunday, but nevertheless there are signs everywhere of nature's awakening; early flowers are sending their tender shoots into the air, trees are beginning to bud, grass is green again, and the "wintry earth" is indeed flinging off its sadness.

And so to-morrow in a thousand churches the joyous message of the risen Christ will bring fresh hope, and the magic of the Easter season will strengthen the faith of the people of Canada as they unite in observing the resurrection of our Saviour, as their pioneer ancestors did a hundred years ago.

MR. BENNETT REMAINS.

Apparently it is too early to write of Premier Bennett's farewell from politics, for the statement issued by him on Thursday before leaving Ottawa en route for the royal jubilee made it clear that it is his intention to take an active part in Parliament on his return, and to lead the Government when it goes to the country later on in the year.

While earlier reports from Ottawa indicated that the Premier's health condition made it unlikely that he would again actively participate in the political hurly-burly, nevertheless his decision to continue at his post will occasion no surprise.

It is characteristic of Mr. Bennett's whole career, for whatever else may be said about him no one has ever accused him of sparing himself, and since the responsibilities of office became his five years ago he has worked at a pace that has amazed everybody.

As Hon. George P. Graham's paper, the Brockville Recorder and Times, expressed it, "he has devoted himself more intensively to the conduct of public affairs during a particularly difficult period than possibly any other statesman in history," which is a particularly glowing tribute from a political opponent.

The Premier's statement has to a considerable extent cleared the air, but the ultimate fate of Mr Stevens remains to be seen. There is a very strong pressure from the rank and file of the Conservative party that the former Minister of Trade and Commerce must be reinstated in the Cabinet, and another but probably numerically weaker section seems to be just as determined that Mr. Stevens must remain out.

The developments of the next few weeks will be awaited with much interest by the whole country.

RESURGAM.
(I Shall Arise.)

(An Easter Message by Dr. Dyson Hague, Toronto.)

Passing through one of our cemeteries the other day my eye was arrested by a word upon a grave stone. It was just one word in Latin: "Resurgam," or, in English, "I shall arise." It brought to my mind that striking incident in the life of Sir Christopher Wren when he wanted a stone to mark the centre of the great cathedral he was about to build, and a workman brought to him a discarded stone. He looked at it with a feeling of surprised wonder, for on it were carved the letters: "Resurgam—I shall rise again." It was at once an inspiration and a prophecy. And from that centre rose the great cathedral that stands today the centre of England's capital. And as I saw this grave stone I thought what a beautiful faith and eloquent! It seemed to say: Do not sorrow for me as those that have no hope. I have gone to be with Christ, which is far better. I shall awake in the presence of my Lord. I shall pass from tears and sorrows and struggles to where there is no death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain. (Rev. 21:4.)

After all, is not this Easter faith, so simple and so clear, a glorious faith? It is so strong. For it is rooted and grounded in the word and life of Christ, the Son of God. Its guarantee is His own resurrection. "I am He that liveth and was dead, and behold I am alive for evermore." It is the guarantee of His eternal word: "I am the Resurrection and the Life." It is the guarantee of a new body like the body of His glory, a spiritual, incorruptible, dynamic, immortal body. I do not know what that means. But I know it is something glorious, infinitely above all that we can understand in our present state of knowledge. We do know this, that the bulb that is interred in the hard, cold earth in the days of winter bursts into a beautiful flower. The grain of wheat is buried in the cold, cold ground and seems to die, and yet there arises from it the life-giving harvest of wheat. So somehow, we know not how, the body that is buried is the seed of the future body of glory, and, though sown in dishonor, corruption, mortality, it will be raised in incorruption, power and glory. (1 Cor. 15:42-44; 49.)

And more. It is the guarantee of our re-union with Him and with the loved ones gone before. We are sure of that. I remember meeting an old Irish woman down on Queen street who was telling me about her brothers and sisters. "There were ten of us in old Ireland," she said. "They are all gone now but me." Then, with a smile I shall never forget, she said: "But we'll meet again; we'll meet again." No wonder she smiled, dear old soul. She had the faith that illumines the future and the hope that sees "the morn when those angel faces smile, which we have loved long since and lost awhile."

Resurgam! I shall arise! Christians cannot sorrow as those who have no hope. We dare not. We have through His resurrection the blessed hope of perpetual light, of endless life, of toil without weariness, everlasting joy. We know that Christ has abolished death. Perhaps you will remember how the great American preacher, Moody, in his last sermon, uttered these wonderful words: "Some day you will read in the papers that D. L. Moody is dead. Don't you believe a word of it. At that moment I shall be more alive than I am now. I shall have gone up higher, that is all." Resurgam!

We thank God for Good Friday and all the glory of the Crucified who bore our sins in His own body on the tree. But, thank God, Good Friday was the prelude of Easter. Out of that great doom and death came the glorious resurrection. Its stone was rolled away, and the angel declared: "He is risen!" Once more the Easter triumph is sweeping over a stormy world. Let us Christians realize its gladness and rejoice in its power. O come, all ye believers, ye sons and daughters of the Father of every name and church, and with one eye see with the Apocalyptic See: the majestic form of the Risen Son of God and hear the voice to the realizing heart: Fear not! I am the Living One. I was read, but behold I am alive for evermore. (Rev. 1:18.) O rise into newness of life, as dead to sin, but alive to God, victors indeed, yea more than conquerors through Him who loved us, who died for us, who rose again for us and who one day will come again in His glory with the encircling clouds of angels to take us back to be with Him through the eternal ages. Hymns of praise then let us sing, unto Christ our heavenly King, for now above the sky He's King where the angels ever sing. Alleluia. Resurgam!

NOT WORTH TWO CENTS.

Mayor Simpson of Toronto was making an address to the C.C.F. in Galt recently, and among other things he advocated that editorial articles in newspapers should be signed by the people who write them. Mr. Simpson said if he were ever in a position to do so he would pass a law making it necessary. We read that Mr. Simpson said "that if some of these men who write editorials discrediting men in public office were as well known as some of the subjects of their attacks their opinions would not be considered as worth two cents."

And that is about the value we would put on Mr. Simpson's suggestion that people who write editorials should sign their names to them. The thing would become monotonous, particularly on smaller dailies where in most cases the same person turns out the editorial page day after day. There is no sound logic behind the suggestion. The paper is the institution which is giving expression to its views. If the paper gets itself into libel action, for instance, it is the paper, and not the editor of the paper, which must stand for the results. Editors come and they go, but the paper itself remains.

Nor have we ever been convinced that newspaper articles attack public men as vigorously as public men attack each other. The whole trend of public life is that the men in one political party are seeking always for the opportunity to drag down the men in another political party. If one has any doubt about this it would be well to await the coming of the general election and make observations. — Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Toronto's tunnel to the Island has been held up for the present, and there would be few regrets throughout the country if the project were to be dropped permanently.

Hon. W. A. Gordon's million dollar mineral survey scheme might fittingly be described as a scientific gold hunt, backed by the whole country.

It would be well for all trout fishers to take note of the fact that the season does not open until May 1, despite rumors to the contrary.

The first session of the present Legislature is not likely to be soon forgotten. The cancellation of the Quebec power purchase contracts would in itself make the proceedings memorable.

NEWS OF OUR OWN VILLAGE

All and sundry is reminded the Warriors' hop is going to be held on Mon. nite and 1 of the chickest and most enjoyable social shindigs of the season is on the cards, so to speak.

Walt Stocker was manicuring the village parks this week in spite of a chilly breeze most of the time and the Keep off the Grass signs should be out any day now, we surmise.

Ed. Peck is home from Ottawa, east of us, and Perce Lancaster is back from Toronto, to the west, owing to the Federal Parliament and the Legislatures of this fair province having wound up their proceedings. Welcome home, lads, say we.

What with 1 thing and another the village waterworks is meeting with a lotta competition these days, the latest being a wine emporium run by a firm from St. Catharines in the grape belt, southwest of here.

Geo. Lee, our baseball expert, expects to get the village team practising next week and the lads may celebrate the King's Jubilee with a game down in Smith's Falls, east of here. Geo. opines he'll have a stronger team than last year, which same will be good news to all and sundy, note we in passing.

Softballers from far and near was in the village for their annual meeting Fri. and a good time by all was reported, with a little business thrown in and there, so to speak.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

O GLORIOUS CHANGE!

Do you sigh because the world flies past so swiftly? Are you melancholy because time will not stay, because the lovely moment departs, because the flower fades, and joy does not stay forever on the peaks of ecstasy?....You grieve for the lines in the face, the sudden gray hairs in the head, you resent the change that is a part of all things that live?

Look, then, at that small child playing on the floor at your feet.

You have watched her since she was a new-born baby, known her nearly every hour since her birth. ....Lived in her growth and change, guarded her first steps, delighted in her first words, found her fascinating, loved her laughter, chuckled when she smiled, been proud of her small wisdom.

Would you trade her for any other little girl in all the world? Would you go back to those smug lost days when there was no child in your house? How silly such questions sound!

And though you may worry about the future and wish you could guard her from all the care that may come to her, you would not dream of keeping her the baby that she is today.....You would not cheat her of growth and change!.....You love those tumbling steps, that broken speech, those little ways of hers. At 18 months you hold them dear; but if she stopped, remained just as she is, gurgling and soft and just a baby forever and forever—what then? What a heavy burden that sweet thing would be upon your mourning heart!

You love that baby because she is growing, changing, BECOMING! She is no unchanging portrait, she is a living creature, going some place, moving ahead through life! Toward joy, toward trouble, toward peace and pain and experience! And you would not have her otherwise.

Yes, time flies and the world moves and the flower fades. But the seed breaks open the dark earth and the bud becomes a flower and out of all change comes new life and the little girl becomes the strong, brave woman—and who would wish for more?

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

A woman approached me breathless as I stepped from the elevator the other day, and spoke somewhat as follows:

"Are you Dr. Clendening? You are. Well, for heaven's sake, please tell me the name of a doctor who will treat my arthritis. I've been to goodness knows how many of them and they all look at me in a blank way. Not one has been interested enough even to examine my painful joints. I don't expect to be cured, but I want some sympathy and relief."

There is a great deal of sound philosophy in what she said.

An Average Reasoning

From the average doctor's standpoint, the idea of chronic arthritis is about like this: "Chronic arthritis —there it is. It doesn't take any skill to make the diagnosis. The patient usually does that for you. As to the exact kind of arthritis it is, even the experts quarrel about the classification. Far as treatment is concerned, the disease runs a certain course and you can't do much about it. Most of the treatment is carried on by somebody else— the masseur of the physiotherapist — and he gets all the credit. Even if I go to work on the case, the patient probably will get tired of me and go to somebody else. What's the use?"

It is too bad that such a skeptical attitude should be held, but it must be admitted that the treament of chronic arthritis demands a great deal of care, of attention to minutiae and of patience on the part of both physician and patient.

As a contrast to the pessimism expressed abovve, there is the case I heard described by a physician interested in the care of these patients. He told of a patient who had taken many fruitless treatments before she came to him. She was in good financial circumstances, which makes some difference, but not as much in this disease as in many others: the only reason it need be emphasized is because it must be plain that she had, especially, time and also resources to attend to every aspectof the situation.

A Constitutional Disease

Now, arthritis is the new society name for the old disease of rheumatism. And the source of the word 'rheumatism' is the Greek root 'reuma' which means to flow'. It flows all through the body—such must be our conception of chronic rheumatism or chronic arthritis. In other words, it is a constitutional disease and in its treatment all parts of the body must be considered.

That, at least, was the conception this physician had of his patient's case. He found that throughout the whole system there were changes. She had some anemia. There were digestive troubles—in the stomach, the gallbladder, and the large intestine. The general rate of nutritional exchange—metabolism — was low. Most of her localized points of infection had been removed but something along this line still remained to be done. And she was in pain. And she was fatigued.

So he treated her along all these lines. And to do so, he put her to bed.

And in that last sentence there is a whole sermon.

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

EASTER CUSTOMS IN ENGLAND

Easter comes but once a year, but when it comes, be it early or late, according to the vagaries of the full moon by which its date is determined, it brings thoughts of spring and all its beauty. We in the northern climate can not realize the beauty of an English Easter with its first flowers and, to the mass of the people, its first holiday. Over there the Easter holiday is a real thing; it begins on the Thursday night and business is not resumed until the Tuesday morning. If the weather is propitious everybody who can get away from the cities does so. In the old days the excursion trains were crowded. Now I am told the traffic is mostly by motor, though the bicycle has its share of devotees and the hikers are much in evidence. Half a century ago there used to be always Easter camps for the volunteers and reviews on Easter Monday. What times we had then we young fellows proud of our first soldier's uniform. And sometimes we were allowed an opportunity of looking on at some of the quaint Easter customs which have come down through the ages.

Americans make much of the egg rolling on the lawn of the White House at Washington on Easter Monday, but how many of them know that this is but an American perpetuation of an old English custom, yet observed in a few places? One of these is at Preston, Lancashire, where hundreds of children gather in Avenham Park with brilliantly dyed hard boiled eggs and roll them down the glassy slope until the shells are broken and then the contents are eaten, such at least, as have escaped the dirt and sand.

At Biddenden in Kent the people eat "Biddenden cakes' hard boiled rolls stamped in the image of twin sisters This custom perpetuates the memory of Eliza and Mary Chalkhurst, who were the precursors of the famous Siamese twins. Born early in the 12th century these women lived for 35 years joined together by two ligaments. When they died, within six hours of each other, they bequeathed certain annuities to provide for the poor, hence these cakes.

At Hallston, Leicester, the people indulge in an annual scramble for "hare pie", or rather a pie containing a meat substitute, hare being out of season. After the pie is dismantled and the pieces thrown at folk in the crowd, the men commence the bottle kicking. A wooden bottle, hooped with iron and containing ale, is used as a football. The men of the village try to kick the bottle over a stream at the foot of Hare Pie Bank while the men of the next village, Melbourne, try to prevent them. There are a good many sore ankles and grazed shins before the goal is reached, the bottle opened and the contents quaffed amid cheers for both losers and winners.

These are but a few of the Eastern customs that survive in England.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People Column must be received at The Examiner Office by 5 p.m. on the day before insertion. All letters must be signed by the writer, although a pen-name may be used when inserting non-controversial subject matter. Letters over 400 words will be cut down at discretion of the Editor.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,— Being a constant reader of The Examiner and a Peterborough man lately removed to the country I would like you to publish the following letter. According to the statement of Chas. W. Holland to the city council on April 1, 1935, he was perfectly satisfied with his present relief. This statement after his supposed fight for better conditions seems to be very suspicious. If C. W. Holland is receiving enough relief will he enlighten the unemployed by publishing the amount he is receiving or is he getting more than he is justly entitled to. Many unemployed would like to know how he manages and why his change of attitude toward the administration of relief. It will be remembered that Holland and Childs were linked together fightnig against the relief board and council, claiming relief was inadequate, yet both these leaders suddenly remove their support of the U. W. P. and appear to be satisfied with all conditions. Mr. Holland always claimed he would answer all just criticism. That time has arrived and we would like to hear what he has to say in reference to the above. I notice Mr. Editor, that the U. W.P. and others have not accepted Mr. Child's challenge to the Market Square. This meeting I think would prove just how far communism has crept into the ranks of the unemployed. Possibly this might be the secret surrounding the desertion of Holland and Childs from the leadership of the unemployed. If this were the reason then I would likewise be justly entitled to call myself another. Champion of the Heroic Deeds, but I always prided myself as receiving shortly after my birth a name that I am not ashamed of. Thanking you, Mr. Editor in anticipation.

Respectfully yours,
JOHN BOWERS,
R.R. No. 4, Lakefield.

P.S.—Would like to see Holland and Childs in harness again so that things might be better for the unemployed and worse for the U.S.S.R.

REPUDIATION
5010 Sherbrooke West,
Montreal, P.Q.

The Editor Examiner,

Dear Sir,—The Province of Ontario has repudiated its pledged word to purchase power from Quebec. There is only one honorable way for a government to modify the terms of its obligations to its creditors: that is by a public declaration of inability to pay accompanied by definite evidence establishing that inability in the minds of reasonable men. This Ontario has not, and can not do.

The repudiation is the more disgraceful because the majority of creditors of the province are benefiting at the expense of the small minority who hold the securities of the Quebec power companies, for actually and morally there is no difference between a contract for power and a contract to pay interest on government bonds. Ontario's repudiation thus parallels the selfish attitude the province has long displayed towards the rest of the Dominion.

For years the Canadian Manufacturers Association has advocated the purchase of Made-in-Canada goods. Probably 90 per cent of the manufacturers who have used this emotional appeal are located in the Province of Ontario. The products of Ontario are no better than those manufactured elsewhere. Indeed, many of them are inferior in quality to the industrial production of the other provinces, and often inferior to imported articles.

The moral issues in Ontario's repudiation are clear cut and well defined. The desire for fair play, a quality inherent in our people, will not permit Ontario to benefit at the expense of the other provinces.

I venture to suggest, therefore, to those who do not live in Ontario that they refuse to purchase goods manufactured in a province which has never hesitated to point out to the rest of Canada its moral obligations. And I would suggest further, that when goods from Ontario are not purchased, the reasons for refusing them be clearly stated.

It is only the importance of the issues involved which tempts me thus to trespass on your valuable space, and also to forward this letter to several papers in each province.

Faithfully yours,
A. E. Light.

NORWOOD I.O.D.E. VOTES RELIEF

ANNUAL MEETING

NORWOOD, April 20.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. A. Weir was hostess to the local chapter of the I.O.D.E. on Wednesday afternoon, with eighteen members present.

It was voted to send money to the relief board and treats to ex-soldiers who are ill. Mrs. R. E. Birdsall gave the report on the provincial annual meeting of the chapter held in Hamilton. Mrs. Birdsall gratefully thanked the society for the life membership and pin on her fiftieth wedding anniversary.

It was decided that Mrs. Goheen, the regent, would go to Ottawa as a delegate to the national annual convention on May 12.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. Weir served a very delightful luncheon.

FERNIE, BRITISH COLUMBIA

Fernie, the centre of the coal mining industry in British Columbia, owes its existence to Michael Phillips, an old Hudson's Bay man, who first learned of the coal deposits. He imparted this information to William Fernie and Lieutenant-Colonel Baker.

A romantic story is woven around Fernie and the daughter of an Indian chief. Fernie saw the Indian maiden wearing a necklace made from beads of coal. He promised to marry the girl if her father would show him where the coal deposits were. The old chief furnished the information, but Fernie reneged, so the girl's mother put a curse on the whole valley.

Local residents profess to believe the curse of 1887 has worked. The valley thrived for some time and then a series of misfortunes, which began with the great fire in 1908, and then continued in the form of strikes, etc., have practically paralysed industry in the district.

A Thought

FORGIVE

Forgive us all for every thot that flatters,
Forgive us all for thots unloyal, mean,
Forgive us all for every thot that's selfish,
Help us to keep thots helpful, pure and clean.

Forgive us when we have a thot most foolish,
Forgive us when we have a thot that lowers,
Forgive us when we have a thot that jowers,
Make us to have thot's noble, true and wise.

UNIVERSITY FEES GO UP

TORONTO, April 20. (CP). — Three universities—Queen's, Toronto and Western Ontario, have agreed to increase fees in all faculties by not less than $25 per annum. The increases will come into effect in all universities for the coming session, beginning at the end of September. When the Ontario Government announced reductions in grants to the institutions, a conference was held here at which it was decided to raise the fees to meet the situation.

3 ROBBERS GET 19 YEARS.

TORONTO, April 20 (C.P.). — A toy gun used in a hold-up to-day resulted in sentences totalling 19 years on three Toronto men who appeared in magistrate's court. John Robinson and Robert Adams received six-year terms each and Albert Webb seven years on charges of robbery while armed. The trio robbed Peter Dalianis of $78.

FOUR QUINTS ILL

CALLANDER, Ont., April 20 (CP) —The sick ward at the Dafoe Hospital to-day held four young patients, two more of the Dionne quintuplets, Annette and Cecile, joining Emilie and Marie, suffering with slight head colds. Yvonne "took the air" on the verandah alone to-day and enjoyed a healthful sleep.

Marie became ill yesterday and like Annette and Cecile her temperature hovers around 100 degrees.

$1,300,000 LOST IN CRASH

PARIS, April 20. (C.P.-Havas)—Jewels insured for $1,300,000 were lost or stolen in the Belgian Congo airplane crash last month which cost the lives of Edouard Renard, Governor-General of French Equatorial Africa, his beautiful wife, the former Mrs. Michael Winburn, and five officers. It was reported to-day as imposing funeral services were held for the victims.

STRONG TONE MINE SECTION

Pioneer, Lake Shore and Teck Hughes All Show Small Advances.

PICK-UP IN SILVERS.

TORONTO, April 20. — (CP) — Coming between two holidays, today's session of the Toronto Mining market could have sold off without occasioning much surprise but instead it displayed firming tendencies in considerable volume.

Turn bids were posted for Dome, Pioneer, Lake Shore and Bralorne and Teck Hughes, Wright Hargreaves and Hollinger had small advances.

McWatters Gold sold up 5 to 7 cents to finish close to the 1.60 mark while Macassa closed around 1.42 for a gain of about 10 cents.

Pick-up in volume in the silvers advanced Eldorado 8 cents to 1.80 while Bear closed around 38, Castle 92 and Nipissing 2.65. There were gains from 2 to 3 cents for Bear and Castle and 15 cents for Nipissing.

Noranda, Sherritt and Falconbridge were steady to strong.

FINANCIAL NEWS BRIEFS

SILVER

The silver group scored another triumph last week when the price of the metal made its sharpest gain in years to the best level since 1926. But the rise brought fears that speculative excesses and the attempt to "do something" for the metal in too much of a hurry might result in again discrediting is as a sound and stable basis for currency.

Operations of the United States Government in silver, it was apparent, have created a delicate technical position in the world market which makes price manipulation comparatively easy. For almost a year, the United States Government has been scouring the world for silver, and through the accumulation of some 400,000,000 ounces in that time it has virtually stripped the world market of its immediately available supplies. At the same time an unwelcome speculative following has been attracted.

CANADIAN CANNERS

The shareholders of Canadian Canners Limited would be well advised to peruse the Price Spreads Commission's report on their company. A change in management would appear to be in order if the conclusion arrived at is correct. The largest registered shareholder on June 15, 1934, was the firm of Avern Pardoe and Company, the stock broking firm of the President of Canadian Canners Limited. Many of these shares would, in the ordinary course, be held for clients.

"The presence in security markets of the company's president with a large number of shares registered in the name of his stock broking firm, throws a sinister light on the evidence regarding a misstatement of the company's profits and assets in reporting to shareholders as at February 29, 1932."

The report said the basis of valuation for inventories was charged at that date. "Had the inventory values not been so inflated, the company would have shown, instead of an operating profit of over $500,000, an actual operating loss of approximately $700,000, and a loss after all charges except dividends in excess of $1,250,000." The next year, the report said, a transfer of $1,200,000 was made from the reserve fund.

"Having regard to all these facts", the report continued, "we are led to the conclusion that the profits were deliberately misstated and that the directors' report failed entirely to appraise the shareholders of the true facts. The financial statement in question, to say the least, departs from common principles of rectitude in company policies. This appears, therefore, to combine not only the elements of unsound promotion, but is an illustration of faulty stewardship exercised by a board of directors largely influenced by promoter interests."

LITTLE LONG LAC

Little Long Lac has lowered its average grade of ore by about 20 per cent. from an average of .75 to .60 ounces to the ton. In so doing, however, the stoping width has been increased to such an extent as to indicate about 50 per cent. increase in volume of ore. The suggestion is that the mine will operate on a grade of about $20 to the ton. Current output is at about $3,000 per day.

POLICE HALT STRIKERS.

LONDON, Ont., April 20.—(CP).—City police drew their clubs to-day to repulse a rush of London township relief workers on the office of Clerk Garfield Hudson in the market branch of the Bank of Montreal.

About a dozen of the more militant strikers attempted to gain access to the office in face of orders they remain outside after the township council this morning refused to dole out more relief.

LABATT RETURNS MAY 7.

LONDON, Ont., April 20 (C.P.).—John S. Labatt, kidnapped last August, will be back in London around May 7 to give evidence against "Pieco o Pete" Murray held here as one of the kidnappers, Crown Attorney Norman Nesbitt announced to-day.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP)—The stock market struck a fast upward gait to-day as traders returned from their Good Friday holiday in a decidedly bullish mood. Gains of 1 to nearly 3 points were numerous despite some late profit taking. The close was fairly strong. Transfers approximately 1,000,000 shares.

In the Canadian section of the list, McIntyre improved fractionally while Dome, Canadian Pacific and International Nickel held firm virtually even. On the curb, Lake Shore ruled steady. Dominion Government bonds were narrow and quiet. Canadian funds were unchanged at 99 9-16 cents.

Among the most active share gainers were American Telephone, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Case, International Harvester, U. S. Smelting, Allied Chemical, Houdaille-Hersey, Santa Fe, Woolworth, Columbian Carbon and Westinghouse.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, April 20.—(CP). — Despite dull trading and the absence of many traders on week-end holidays, listings on Montreal stock exchange firmed perceptibly during to-day's short session and the market had a bright appearance at the close of the two-hour session.

Steel of Canada rose steadily to hold a gain of 1½ points at 44½. National Steel Car advanced ¾ at 16¾ and Canadian Car ½ at 10⅝, while Dominion Steel was up ½ at 4.

International Nickel climbed ½ at 27, Hollinger 30 cents at 17.45 and National Breweries ½ at 32⅞. Consolidated Smelters lost 1⅛ at 139⅝. Montreal Power gained ¼ at 28½.

UPWARD MOVE IS MAINTAINED

Nickel Shows Advance of 1-4 While Ford A Is Up Half Point.

C.P.R. REMAINS STEADY.

TORONTO, April 20 (C.P.).—The upward slant given industrial share prices in Thursday's market was maintained in to-day's short session following the Friday holiday.

Imperial Oil touched its high mark for the year at 17 to close with a gain of about ¼. International Petroleum and British American Oil trailed along to a higher close. Nickel closed at 26¾ for a gain of ¼ and Ford 'A' at 29, up a half point. Brazilian did a little better and C.P.R. remained steady.

Higher prices ruled for Steel of Canada and National Steel Car. Cockshutt Plow firmed moderately and small gains were noted for Consolidated Bakeries, Canners B and National Grocers. In the beverage group there was a firm to strong price tone.

the basement, striking his back on a standard in an effort to save himself.

His cries for help were heard by Charles R. Whinney, superintendent of the building, who went to his aid and called the police and ambulance. Neal was picked out of the shaft and rushed to the General Hospital where Dr. G. S. Barber made an X-ray examination.

Whinney told police that keys were kept in the elevator shaft as a convenience to office tenants on holidays.

Dr. and Mrs. Neal hurried from Peterborough to the bedside of their son yesterday. To-day his condition was reported as favorable. He was placed successfully in a cast and is resting easily. At least partial paralysis was feared, but no sign of such a development has yet manifest itself.

He was employed in the Sanagan-Pepler Advertising Agency located in the building where the accident occurred.

WRITER SUPPORTS CHURCH PROPOSAL

G. B. Shaw Comments on Suggestion to Return Cathedral to Catholics.

DUBLIN, April 20 (C.P.)—Signifying his approval of the proposal to return Christ Church Cathedral in this city to the Roman Catholic Church, George Bernard Shaw suggested: "Why not connect it with the King' Jubilee? It would be a sort of apology for the Coronation Oath." Mr. Shaw was the first to sign a petition to be laid before the representative body of the Church of Ireland by an unofficial committee working on the proposal. Christ Church Cathedral has been in Protestant hands since the Reformation.

The petition declares the restoration would have consequences which would redound to the credit of both religious sects in patriotism and education.

Advise Lawyers To Steer Clear

TORONTO, April 20. (CP).—During the hearing of one of three divorce actions by Mr. Justice Nicol Jeffrey in Supreme Court, his lordship took occasion to voice his criticism of the habit of solicitors for the plaintiffs using members of their firms or office staff as process servers.

"The English courts strongly object to such a practice, and I have done so before," said his lordship. "Nothing is more suggestive of collusion than that the plaintiff's solicitor should send his student to defendant's place of residence to make inquiries and get possible evidence. A sheriff's process-server should be used, and he can give his evidence freely. Solicitors should keep clear of any suggestion."

'DARKEST HOUR' IS PRESENTED AT ALL SAINTS'

Most Effective Rendering of Sacred Cantata is Given by Choir.

DRAMATIC SCENES.

During the Lenten season, the events of the Passion are recalled and commemorated in sermon, hymns, pageants and cantatas. Last night's presentation of "The Darkest Hour" (Harold Moore), by All Saints' Choir, under the direction of George E. Chandler, choir master was a work of high devotional beauty.

The opening service of worship was led by the Rev. J. D. Patterson, who read for the evening lesson the beautiful passage from Isaiah 52, from the 13th verse.

This is the second presentation of this impressive cantata, but the audience that gathered on Good Friday evening to hear "The Darkest Hour,' showed by their number and interested attention that the work still retains its hold. The music is undoubtedly a powerful factor in its continued attraction, and the words being not only significant, but also familiar, the listener is doubly affected.

In chorus, solos and quartette the choir was wonderfully effective and responded well to the fine training by Mr. Chandler.

Adding greatly to the beauty of the production was the organ and piano accompaniments, with Mrs. Logan as organist and Agnes Logan Green at the piano.

Opened With Chorus

The prologue opened with a chorus by the full choir with perfectly blending parts, and the story was taken up by the narrator, Miss Irene Howarth, whose clear soprano voice and diction were admirably suited to the part. T. H. Boddy, baritone, sang the Christus role with beautiful dramatic expression in tone, text and inflection.

The soprano soloist, Miss Ena Young, did exceptionally fine work and her first selection, "God So Loved the World," was one of the loveliest things in the cantata.

Scene I. depicts the sorrowful picture of Jesus as He prays in the Garden of Gethsemane. The opposite work of the two singers who took the scene—the sympathetic baritone of Mr. Boddy and Miss Howarth's charming soprano, was a sort of sacred duo-drama.

"In The Lord's Atoning Grief," was sung as an offeratory hymn by choir and congregation, closing this first scene.

Most dramatic was the second scene telling of the trials before Caiaphas and Pilate in solo and chorus. Jack Gibson's resonant bass voice was excellent in the part of the High Priest, while as Pilate, Frank Roberts in his lyric tenor gave a wonderfully faithful interpretation. Some of the finest work done in chorus was heard in this scene as the frenzied mob demanded that Jesus be crucified.

The processional march to Calvary with its adagio measures played by organ and piano was a fitting introduction to the scene on the Cross. The feeling throughout this act was unutterably sad, closing with the chorus "He was wounded for our transegressions".

The climax of the cantata was reached in the last scene portraying Christ on the cross. Outstanding in this part was the solo "My God Why Hast Thou Forsaken me?" with its infinite pathos. One of the most appealing numbers of the whole cantata was the male quartette "And Now Beloved Lord" sung by Douglas Weir, 1st tenor, Leslie Cavalier, 2nd tenor, Jack Gibson, 1st bass and Vic Chandler, 2nd bass.

Miss Ena Young's soprano was exquisite in the solo "O Perfect Life of Love" and blended in perfect harmony, with Mr. Roberts tenor in their closing duet " Saviour of the World" in which the full chorus joined.

The epilogue was sung by George E. Chandler, whose baritone was particularly effective and was supported by the entire choir in the grand finale "Let This Mind be in You". The singing of the hymn "At the name of Jesus" concluded "The Darkest Hour", one of the most successful cantatas presented in Peterborough this season.

Preceding the offertory, Rev. Mr. Paterson paid high tribute to the work of his choir not only for this special effort, but for their faithfulness throughout the year.

EQUIPMENT HELPS KEEP FOXX WARM IN THE COLD WEATHER

Harder Work at Home Plate in Aid Him in His Batting.

TWO HOMERS IN 3 GAMES.

(By Edward J. Neil)

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP). — James Emory Foxx, considerable of a first baseman at one time, likes catchnig for the Athletics much better, but one of the reasons is hard to guess.

"With all that equipment on me," he explains, I'm about the only one on the ball field able to keep warm in this cold weather. That helps a lot."

He has hit two home runs in three games, indicating the search for his successor as the home run king might be a bit premature.

Foxx likes catching better than first basing because he feels he's in the game more. He feels it's an ideal spot from which to captain the team, though he admits frankly there's no great mental gymnastics required of him.

"All I do is carry orders from the boss, Connie Mack."

"One of the troubles I've always had in hitting is over-swinging," he said. "There isn't a great deal of action around first base and when I get to the plate I'm too eager.

"I figure that catching is a lot harder work. It will take more out of me. I won't be so restless at the plate. I'm not liable to overswing so much, and so I ought to hit better."

Magistrate's Court

Three men appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., and upon pleading guilty to charges of intoxication to-day, were each fined $10 and $4.50 costs, and in default ten day's imprisonment.

The first two were transients who gave their names as John Johnson and John Burke, against whom it was alleged by the Chief Constable that they had been "guzzling" wine all day Thursday and on the evening of that day annoyed a west end resident.

The third occupant of the dock was a neatly dressed young man, who stated he was George S. Brown of Toronto. It was alleged against him that he was found on Simcoe street in the early morning in an intoxicated condition, and that he narrowly escaped facing a more serious charge of being drunk in charge of a car.

Maistrate Langley said he looked upon any drinking offences where an automobile was concerned with utmost gravity, and although he had decided to impose the minimum penalty, he said he had seriously considered dealing more severely with the case.

covery" in the United States was short-lived.

"Present indications are the general result of this much vaun'ed experiment," he said, "are increased unemployment, a lower standard of life for the workers and increased incomes for the extremely rich."

"Into the atmosphere of political filth engendered by the old-time parties, the entry of the C.C.F. was like a refreshing breeze," said the president.

The majority of the people in Ontario trusted the Liberals, he said, but what had the Liberals done to justify that trust.

"Their extensive firing of Government servants and hiring others drawn from the ranks of Liberalism would almost indicate a prefervid desire on their part for the spoils of office and lends color to the thought it was the chief motive of their campaign," he declared.

Blow At The Tories?

"With these things and Beauharnois in mind," he continued, "one might be excused for feeling that the exposure of the Hydro contracts and their repudiation has been calculated rather to discredit the Conservatives than to benefit the people of Ontario."

Mr. Mitchell said it would be no surprise if the Government entered into fresh contracts "which will prove to be, materially, not very different from those repudiated."

Referring to the broadcast addresses of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, Mr. Mitchell said earliest of the talks almost induced some people to believe he was ready to join the C.C.F.

"They knew better by the time he had finished," said the president.

St. John's Choir Goes To Cobourg

Roberts, Jack Branson, Albert Stephen, Leslie Dyer, Harold Wilson, Griffen Young and Arthur Bacon. Mr. F. G. Mann, organist at St. John's, directed the cantata which won many compliments from members of St. Peter's choir. Refreshments were served by the ladies of the church in the splendid parish hall after the choral service.

Neighbors were brought to the house by the servant, but Renaud and his seven children were trapped in the blazing wooden building.

Volunteer fire fighters could do nothing to subdue the fire, which was burned out in a little over an hour. Charred bodies of the victims were recovered from the embers of the fire, which totally destroyed the cottage.

VIOLENT SERVICE.

ATLANTA, April 20.—(AP).—Mrs. Mildred Wilson, 23, is indebted to a certain Atlanta man—whose name is not known — for recovering her pocketbook from a negro.

The unknown man was riding by in a car. He stopped, pursued the negro and caught him a short distance away.

Brown, the animal dropped dead. Mr. Carnrite had driven the team from his home, over a mile distant, and the animal showed no signs of illness, acting livelier than usual, and especially so when driven into the barn. Heart trouble was thought to be the cause. The horse was one of a fine team of heavy-weight light greys, valued at $150.

The attendance at the special week of meetings increases nightly. Rev. S. A. Kemp addresses more particularly the young people. The meetings closed Friday night.

INDIA THE HOME OF RELIGIONS

Annual Missionary Convention is Being Held in Bethany Tabernacle.

DENSELY POPULATED

At the opening meeting of the annual Missionary convention in Bethany Tabernacle, the speaker, Rev. J. F. Brabazon, who spent many years in India, as a missionary, stated that while in Canada there were four persons to the square mile and in the United States, about forty to the square miles. In India there are 196 to the square mile. For one-fifth of the world's poplation are crowded into that land of India, with its three hundred and fifty-three million souls. Furthermore, he said, it is hard to take in the vast numbers of the population, and he gave this illustration. Take all the population of Canada, United States, Mexico and Central America and the ninclude all the countries of South America and then take in France and Germany, with their vast populations and even then all combined together are not the equal of the population of India.

It is the land of religions. Religion enters into every phase of their every day life. It is said that from the time before they are born until after their death, there is some religious rite connected with every phase of their life. To illustrate this, the speaker told of the carpenter starting his day's work how that he would pick up one of the tools which he was familiar with and worship it, believing that he worshipped the spirit of the God who helped him in his work, and thus all through the different callings of life, this same spirit is manifested among the Hindu. From another argle, while the Hindus are vastly interested in religion, they are more slow to consider the adoption of a foreign religion. In fact, they are founders of religion. Hinduism, Budhism, Sikhism and Jainism, all have been founded in India. It is considered the greatest of sin to adopt an outside religion. The Hindu's Holy Books reveal that Hinduism has three hundred nad thirty million Gods, but not one of these Gods came to seek and to save that which was lost. There There are three things that form the backbone of Hinduism. Transmigration, Krma and Caste. REVIEW IS GIVEN GUILD'S WORK

Mrs. C. S. Thompson Addresses Meeting of Local Council of Women.

PLAN ANNUAL TEA.

An interesting review of the work accomplished by the Guild of Arts and Crafts of the Lyceum Club Women's Art Association was gvien by the convenor of the Guild, Mrs. C. S. Thompson, at the regular monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women, held on Thursday afternoon in the green room of the Young Women's Christian Association.

The president, Mrs. C. M. Scott, was in the chair for a well-attended meeting, which was featured by brief reports by several convenors of Standing committees, Mrs. G. A. Helson on Housing and Town Planning; Mrs. B. F. McNeely on Citizenship; Mrs. B. W. Harvey on the League of Nations, and Mrs. J. Mills on Trades and Professions for Women.

Mrs. Scott announced that convenors for two committees which were left without leadership, had been appointed, in Mrs. N. Stanger, for Public Health, and Miss Helen Anderson, for Mental Hygiene.

It was decided to hold the annual tea of the Local Council in May, in lieu of the regular monthly meeting. This will take place on May 16th and the vice presidents were asked by Mrs. Scott to make arrangements for the affair.

After the routine business was disposed of, Mrs. Thompson gave a brief but illuminating resume of activities of the Women's Art Association with especial mention of the affiliated club of which she is convenor, the Guild of Arts and Crafts. She outlined in some detail the various meetings of the Art Assocaition which have been reported as they transpired, mentioning exhibits which had taken place this season, including Oriental rugs, Mrs. Robson's talk on the Thackeray loom, an exhibit of the work of Katherine Wallis and Harold McCrae, a travelling exhibit of work done by Canadian artists, with a talk by E. Wyley Grier, and an exhibit of artistic work, in oil and water color paintings, pastels, etchings, pen and ink and chalk drawings, by local members of the association.

In encouragement of artistic endeavor among school pupils of the city, the society also gave prizes in four classes, for border designs, landscape, flower and pose drawings.

Passing to the Guild of Arts and Crafts, the speaker went on to define the difference bewteen a craft and an ordinary piece of hand work as being the differenc between a work undertaken through love of beauty, color and shape, from an endeavor entered into from a purely utilitarian point of view.

"Or, in other words, a craft must be a means of self-expression and something from the creator must have entered into it. To fully appreciate a craft, one must have put forth a little individual effort along that line."

Craft work heightens the worker's powers of observation, encourages appreciation of form and color and adds to the individual worker's enjoyment of life, declared the speaker.

KENTUCKY MAN PREACHES HOUR

as much as they did De Boe.

From the tirade against his accuser, De Boe turned to explain the cost of crime to "you boys and girls here."

"You can see what happens when you do things that are wrong. I robbed, yes, but I am no woman attacker. I robbed and I am being killed. Don't ever do wrong, because you have to pay."

De Boe, referring to Good Friday reviewed briefly the spirit of the day. "They are even putting me down on the day Christ died. Well, they are doing the same thing to me that they did to Him.

I've made peace with God. I've asked Him to forgive that woman to forgive all."

Throng Overwhelmed

Throughout the entire procedure, the crowd stood spellbound, by the overwhelming oration, by the morbidness of the occasion.

Among those standing on the scaffold with the doomed man was Chief Deputy Sheriff Gabriel McCandless of Livingstone County. He and Sheriff George H. Heater stood with the chaplain of the state prison, Walter Bailey, Jailer Jim Martin and Phil Manna, expert Illinois executioner.

As the time drew near for Sheriff Heater to spring the trap, De Boe was told he should prepare to go.

"Just let me smoke a cigarette, and then I'll be ready," he said.

He was handed a lighted cigarette by Martin. In silence he puffed and then nonchalantly tossed it down to the ground ten feet below.

De Boe turned to the sheriff and said: "I'm ready." He then surveyed the ground below the scaffold. He saw his father, M. T. De Boe of Paducah and his 19-year-old sister.

"Good-bye Dad," he said. "Good-bye Sis. I know you love me and would take my place if you could—that's the kind of love I hold for you, too. It's too bad things had to end this way, but I'll see you in Heaven, I hope."

Hanna adjusted the noose. The prison chaplain began to recite the Lords Prayer. De Boe's lips were set in a tight line as the black cap was placed over his face. Jailer Martin and McCandless stepped back to the edge of the platform.

"Are you ready," Sheriff Heater asked. There was no answer. The sheriff sprung the trap. De Boe plunged through. His body snapped to an abrup stap eight feet below the platform. His neck was broken. He was pronounced dead 11 minutes later.

Cafes Do Rush Business

The crowd began gathering from neighboring communities and states shortly after midnight. The to ne three cafes were crowded most o the night. One had to close because it sold out all of its food.

Likewise, the Smithland beer garden placed a rush order to nearby Paducah for additional beer as the town's supply ran low. The town resembled a Saturday night commercial centre.

One hundred special deputy sheriffs reinforced by six special police men from Paducah and six state officers patrolled the town's one main street.

The popular notion that snakes can jump off the ground is erroneous; no snake can leap entirely from the ground.

Tweed-Bannockburn Line To Be Closed

TWEED, April 20.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Despite the fact that the Tweed Board of Trade, together with deputations from the Townships of Lungerford and Elzevir, met railway officials here some weeks ago protesting against the abandonment of the Bannockburn-Tweed Canadian National line, the latest word from Ottawa, states that in all probability, the service will be discontinued on this particular branch in the near future. According to the Railway Commission, this is deemed necessary as an economy measure as the officials pointed out while here, that it has steadily been losing money for some time.

Most Newsworthy Figure In Canada Is H. H. Stevens

SOLDIER OF FORTUNE HAS COLORFUL CAREER, BEGAN AS EMIGRANT BOY

Born in Bristol Hon. H. H. Stevens Came to Peterborough at Age of Eight.

FORCED INQUIRY

School Teacher, Stage Driver, Prospector and Numerous Other Professions.

By WILFRID EGGLESTON
Central Press Canadian Staff Writer

OTTAWA, April 20. — Parliament boasts no more colorful figure than Hon. H. H. Stevens. His career has been a sequence of dramatic episodes. The spotlight turns on him to-day as it has repeatedly turned in the past quarter of a century. In a sense he is the Conservative "man of the hour." His eloquent defence and self-vindication in the House a few days ago was a signal for uproarious applause from the majority of his own party as well as from sections of the opposition.

"What is Harry Stevens heading for?" is a question on everybody's lips. One thing certainly is that his courage will carry him through: that he will neither turn back nor be silenced. He is an old crusader—and he will see this crusade through just as he did all the others.

Emigrant boy, rural school teacher, stage driver, prospector, soldier of fortune, accountant, municipal crusader, journalist, broker, member of parliament, minister of the crown in two governments, front bencher and debater par excellence—will he round out his record with something topping them all?

Colorful Career

After the tempest in the House the other day which was only made to subside when Sir George Perley arose and called attention of the Speaker to the fact that Mr. Stevens was out of order, the ex-minister, having served notice that he would move the adoption of the price-spread report, slipped away for a badly-needed and well-earned vacation. But when Parliament resumes on May 10, it is a safe bet that he will again be the storm-centre—that the debate concerning business abuses and their reform will see him crusading once more with his ancient courage and eloquence.

When the drive against alleged unfair practices in business was launched by means of a fighting address delivered to the Retail Merchants' Association of Toronto on Jan. 15, 1934—the spark which resulted in the "Mass Buying and Price Spreads" explosion shortly afterwards—the central figure was a man already widely known to the Canadian public. The high-lights of his career have been these:

Born at Bristol of Devonshire and Cornwall stock, 56 years ago.

At eight years came to Ontario with his parents. Educated at Peterborough schools. Taught school for a brief period.

A Soldier of Fortune

Went west to the romantic province of British Columbia, then in its crude, roust pioneer days. Drove stage along bandit-infested routes. Prospected for gold. Didn't find much.

Drifted down to Seattle and enlisted in the 9th Infantry Regiment, serving at the siege of Tsin Tsin, tramping with his colleagues the long march to Peking, later assisting Uncle Sam's forces to quell the Philippine revel, Auginaldo. Rounded out this Pacific episode with a long vagabondage around the South Sea Islands.

Returned to Vancouver and prepared for a business career. Trained for accountant. Worked with Gerry McGeer, now prominent Liberal and stormy mayor of Vancouver. Became active in the Board of Trade. Was enlisted in the Good Government League of Vancouver, where his first public crusade was launched—against saloons. Won the reputation of being a fellow who "got action" when he went after things.

Followed Meighen

The election of 1911 came along. He was sought as nominee, although he was just over thirty. At first refused to take the suggestion seriously, but decided to get in, finally, and fight. Did fight—and won! Won the reputation later of being the candidate who had never lost a battle, a record which stood until Ian Mackenzie beat him in 1930.

The House knew him for years as an industrious, sincere back-bencher. Soon won the warm friendship of Sir Robert Borden. Was keenly impressed by Arthur Meighen, and unconsciously modelled his own parliamentary style after him. First crusade was against Oriental immigration. When Meighen came to the leadership he picked the members from Vancouver as his minister of trade and commerce. When Meighen's party was riddled at the general election of 1921, Stevens was one of the few front-benchers to survive.

When Meighen wanted a big job done, shortly after the election of 1925, he knew a man who would do it for him. That man was Stevens; and the big job was the launching of an inquiry into lax practices of customs collections.

Though ill and tired and badly needing a rest, Harry Stevens plowed through hundreds of files, followed clues through mazes of evidence, accumulated a telling case. The time came when Meighen decided the trap should be sprung, and went in search of his lieutenant. Stevens had already put on his coat and was preparing to leave the House at 11 p.m. In those days the House sat on "far into the night." Meighen approached him, as he was leaving, and said that he wished the motion put at once. As the clock was striking midnight Stevens made his dramatic move in the House, stirring events followed, and before the vote of censure on the government which followed could be reached, parliament had been dissolved as a direct result of the crusade. That was the highlight of Mr. Stevens' career up to that time.

Recognized by Premier

He again emerged victor in 1926, and for the next four years was a powerful front-bencher critic on the opposition benches. In 1930 he went down fighting; but his merit was so completely recognized by Premier Bennett that he was the first man to be offered a cabinet seat; and a riding was opened for him in East Kootenay.

His career as minister of trade and commerce is familiar history. So is the amazing chain of circumstances beginning with his address at Toronto—given in place of Mr. Bennett, who was away at Calgary—moving along to the appointment of a parliamentary committee to investigate, to the sensational disclosures which rocked the country, the appointment of a royal commission to complete the work, the publication of the famous "pamphlet," the tense drama when he was requested to apologize for alleged inaccuracies in the pamphlet, and chose to resign rather than back down, and so along to the hectic three-quarters of an hour in the House on the 12th of April this year.

Forced Government Inquiry

No one will deny that the moving spirit of the price-spreads inquiry was Mr. Stevens. Indeed, he precipitated it on the heads of lukewarm or even hostile colleagues. So overwhelming was the flood of approbation from all over the country when he made his Toronto address that the government had no recourse but to hold the inquiry.

Even when he resigned from the chairmanship he continued to be dominating figure. The 500-page report, issued last week, has "Harry Stevens" writ large across its pages. Many of the proposed reforms were his own unaided suggestion. The federal trade and industry commission was running through his brain many months before the writing of the report was even begun.

Roses Spell Luck Of Lanark's Team

GLASGOW, April 20. (CP).— As Johnny Nelson's roses bloom this town's soccer team forges ahead. Johnny has been trainer of Third Lanard, first division Scottish club aspirant this year, for eight seasons. And here's where the fortune-telling roses come in.

During his eight-year term he's planted roses. Twice in those eight seasons the flowers bloomed as they had never bloomed before. Both times Third Lanark won promotion. This year Third Lanark is holding leadership of the second division and the way Johnny's roses are coming along it looks like the big-timers next season —according to Nelson.

WESTERN RAINS ONLY TANTALIZE DUST BOWL AREA

Considerable More Moisture Needed Before Crops or Pasture Will Thrive.

SNOW IN ROCKIES.

Kansas, Colorado, Texas Still Subject to Whirling Sand Blizzards.

KANSAS CITY, April 20 (A.P.).— They still are looking for more of those clouds with the wet lining out in the high plain states of the West. Clouds left downpours ranging up to two inches in sections of Oklahoma and Texas. They have favored Eastern Kansas, Missouri and sections of Nebraska with light showers, and left much snow in the Rockies of Coloralo.

But they have passed up most of the United States dust bowl with nothing more than tantalizing gestures. During the week hazy clouds of dust have moved over the area, comprising South-western Kansas, the Oklahoma panhandle, the Texas panhandle, North-eastern New Mexico, and South-western Colorado.

Ootside of this sector, especially to the north and east, more moisture is needed.

The Outlook by States.

Oklahoma — K. D. Blood, federal statistician, reports with the exception of the panhandle there are excellent prospects for pasture, wheat and oats.

Texas — Rains in Texas touched the panhandle section, but O. B. Martin, Texas extension service director, said indications were most of it fell in the eastern part, which has suffered the least from wind erosion.

Kansas — F. K. Reed, Federal crop statistician, said while light rains in Eastern Kansas resulted in some improvement in the crop outlook, prospects declined materially in some parts of Western Kansas due to dry weather and dust storms.

Colorado—Wind damage continues in the south-eastern part of the state and Hubert L. Collins, agricultural statistician, says no field work will be possible until it rains.

Nebraska — Wheat in the south-central section is reported dying, but A. E. Anderson, State and Federal statistician, said he was unable to tell why. He believes some of it will be saved by recent rains.

Red Dutton Expected Manage Americans

NEW YORK, April 20.—(CP) —Appointment of Mervin 'Red' Dutton as manager of New York Americans of the National Hockey league is expected to be announced shortly by William Dwyer, club owner; it was learned today from reliable sources.

Dutton, outstanding defenceman with the Amerks since he came down from the west via Montreal Maroons, will be given the assignment as soon as possible, it is reported, in order he may negotiate deals immediately for strengthening the club that finished in fourth position in the Canadian section race last season. It was Dutton who was chiefly responsible for assembling the Art Chapman, of Winnipeg, Lorne Carr and Dave Schriner of Calgary line, considered last winter on a par with the best in the 'Men 'on Her Mind" has been made under the direction of Alfred E. Green from a script by Charles Kenyon.

HOLLYWOOD GIRLS SET ALL TIME RECORD FOR BEAUTY

Roy Bel Ruth Asserts Ancients' Charm is Outclassed.

KNOWS HIS WOMEN.

HOLLYWOOD, April 20. — "If Helen of Troy, Cleopatra, Aphrodite or any other of the much publicized beauties of ancient days said by historians to have been 'tops' in any man's league should come to Hollywood they wouldn't have a chance," says Roy Del Ruth.

Del Ruth, noted director of "Follies Bergere," "Kid Millions," and other productions featuring beautiful girls, knows his subject.

"Why, most of these belles of the early Roman and Grecian days wouldn't be able to get to a casting director in Hollywood," says the director, who adds that practically any one of the 400 beauties of Hollywood could make poor Helen hang her head in shame, while Paris tossed a golden apple in the show girl's direction.

Any one of the lot would have caused Caesar to sail for Hollywood instead of Egypt, even if he did have poor equipment and a lot of rough water to cross.

NATURE, according to Del Ruth, is improving her product year by year. He bases his opinion on reports from Greece, Asia Minor and Egypt that recent discoveries of clay tablets and statuary reveal that "hotcha" ladies of that day had thick ankles, unshapely legs, beak-lish faces, large waists and hips and hair that would send a modern beauty shop proprietor to a sanitarium to recover from a nervous breakdown and hysteria.

"The most depressing thing about them was their feet," says Del Ruth. "They ran around without shoes a good bit of the time and the results were amazing to behold. They had very poor cosmetics—although they did have some — and their skins were terrible.

"All this is very disillusioning," adds Del Ruth, "for we have for many years been referring to 'statuesque' and 'classical' beauty. The Greek sculptors must have modeled what they thought women ought to look like, instead of using real life subjects."

Drastic Changes Urged In Report On Public Schools

SURVEY BASED UPON OPINIONS OF THOUSANDS

Training of Teachers in Recreational Instruction, Community Leadership Held Necessary.

CURRICULUM HIT.

Too Much Stress Placed on Teaching—Not Enough on Learning.

TORONTO, April 20. — Establishment of experimental schools, which are not merely laboratories, and investigation of the whole matter of educational administration in the province, are deemed necessary, according to the report made by the Elementary Educational Survey Committee to the minister of education.

The report released for publication Thursday morning, contains the conclusions reached after a two-year comprehensive study of educational conditions in Ontario, and is based upon opinions of thousands of people including teachers and others interested in education.

The principle is laid down that the motion picture theatre is as much a part of the community as the school or the church; that children should be taught appreciation of films, as well as of books, and that the motion-picture manager should not need to take a series of pictures because he desires one for his patrons.

Changes Recommended

The suggested changes outlined in the report, which are not expected can be put into effect over night but which it is hoped will be brought about gradually, and are felt consistent with the best interests of society, include the following:

Assistance should be given trustees in the selection of teachers. Little improvement can be made in rural schools until there is a larger unit of administration. Training of teachers in recreational instruction and community leadership is considered necessary. Vocational guidance in elementary schools should deal with removal of dislikes of certain subjects and with the development of acceptable social attitudes. Economy and efficiency go hand in hand. Rate of taxation varies from 0 to 31 mills. The whole matter of administration needs looking into. Economy should not destroy efficiency. The needs of teachers of junior grades should receive attention.

The segregation of pupils into groups should be carefully handled as the social consequences are sometimes bad on child and home. The curriculum is over-crowded and yet lacks richness of content. The school buildings are not furnished to permit the freedom of action necessary for self-expression. Self-expression does not mean the formless, the careless, or the selfish, but the disciplined. Discipline is the direction of activity.

Text-Book Revision

Too much stress has been placed on teaching, not enough on learning. Teaching is an art, as well as a science. Text-books need revision. Preparation of text-books should be made with a view to the child studying alone. Parents should meet teachers in congenial social surroundings, not only when trouble occurs.

There is not enough use of community resources, particularly of the church. Physical deficiency has much to do with delinquency. Crafts are a help to all children, to pupils of rare ability as well as to others. Teachers of special subjects such as music and agriculture are advocated for rural schools.

The experiment in radio broadcasting conducted by the committee, a report of which was sent to the department early in 1934, was a success. The department of education is to be congratulated on undertaking broadcasts during school hours. The committee has learned the value of recognizing the dramatic as a chief method of approach to instruction of children by radio.

Preamble

In a preamble to the suggested changes required in the educational system, the report states that the people of Ontario, as far as can be learned, are agreed that changes are necessary. Teachers and those who are not teachers, stress the development of the creative activity of the child. The report points out also that the people of the province believe that in an educated person the virtues have first place, and that honesty is the chief virtue.

The greatest incentive is a great teacher; without him equipment is useless. The training of the teachers must aim at preserving the activity of the teacher and interesting him in the activity of the child. Inspectors should aim at cultivating enterprise in pupils and in teachers, and teachers should have sufficient freedom to try out what to them is new, the report continues.

The report adds that the people of the province will continue to build society on the basis of creative effort of the individual.

Comments on the report, which is in readiness for the Easter meeting of the Ontario Educational Association, are expected to be made at the meeting. Two years ago an extensive questionnaire covering every phase of elementary education was sent out to all parts of the province. The report of the survey committee is the answer. The report has been presented to the Department of Education and is receiving its consideration.

Kay Francis Always Tops In Smartness

HOLLYWOOD, April 20.—With fashion dictating tailored clothes, Kay Francis is certain to retain her position as one of the best groomed women in films.

Orry-Kelly, fashion designer of the Warner Brothers studios, says:

"The vogue for tailored clothes has so extended in the last few years that it now dominates sport, afternoon and even evening models. And who can wear the tailored styles like Kay?

"She has the height, posture, figure and grace that tailored clothes demand. If smartness can be measured at all, I would say that tailored creations are her forte."

Miss Francis' new film, "Stranded," is largely a "tailored" picture from a clothes standpoint.

HIGHER SALES GEN. MOTORS

Eighty Per Cent. Increase in Factory Shipments During March.

SPIRITED DEMAND

OSHAWA, April 20.—All the indices of activity in Canada's motor car industry are now at satisfactory levels according to C. E. McTavish, General Sales Manager of General Motors Product of Canada, Limited. Heading the list is factory shipments, which according to Mr. McTavish, in an interview today, are beginning to reach the volume sufficient to supply normal replacements for Canada's car population of over a million. And even though factory shipments and retail orders are higher than for years, they are regarded not as phenomenal but rather as "normal and satisfactory", because executives believe the big replacement market that has been pyramiding for many years is now definitely open, and sales activity may be expected to continue indefinitely at this relatively high level.

Trainloads Each Week

Mr. McTavish said the carload shipments from the factory of General Motors here during March were eighty percent higher than during March of last year, and were even far ahead of the same month of 1930. April carload shipments give signs of being higher than those for March, which means that actually entire trainloads of automobiles are leaving the Oshawa plant each week in addition to the thousands of new cars that will be driven away by road.

"Pontiac and Oldsmobile particularly are breaking records," said Mr. McTavish, "and there is something significant in this spirited demand for cars in a price bracket above the lowest. At the beginning of the second week in April this year, we had already shipped from Oshawa more Pontiacs than were shipped for the full year of 1934. This was a better rate than for any corresponding period since 1931.

"Oldsmobile is even better. Our shipments for the first three months were greater than for 1932 and 1933 combined, and several hundred cars better than the year 1931.

Chevs. Forging Ahead

"Chevrolet passenger and commercial shipments are also well up, both being far ahead of shipments for the same period of 1934 and climbing to new levels daily."

While shopping with sixty-nine-year-old Mrs. Charlotte Edwards of Westminster, England, ran a splinter into her finger, causing her death.

Faster Way Now to Relieve Neuralgia

DISCOVERY ALSO EASES BAD HEADACHES MUSCULAR PAIN OFTEN IN FEW MINUTES

Remember the pictures below when you want fast relief from pain. Aspirin eases even a bad headache or neuralgia often in a few minutes!

An Aspirin tablet begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it. And Aspirin is safe. For Aspirin does not harm the heart.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. And, see that you get ASPIRIN, the method doctors prescribe. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet. Get tin of 12 tablets or economical bottle of 24 or 100 tablets.

Why Aspirin Works So Fast

Drop an Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches the bottom, it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH

An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach—ASPIRIN tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

When in Pain Remember These Pictures

Our King and Queen on their Silver Jubilee

The Funeral of Queen Alexandra

Biographers of Queen Alexandra, mother of King George, outdo themselves in painting a word picture of a beautiful, tender-hearted and sympathetic woman. For she was all of that.

Thrust as she was into the confusion and difficulties of court life while still in her 'teens, Alexandra, who came from Denmark to marry Edward VII., won her way into the hearts of the people of England in a day.

Almost from the day she became Queen—a day late in her fifties—she became known as Alexandra the Good, or Alexandra the Beloved.

She was not a clever woman in the sense that Queen Victoria was clever; she was a woman, a mother, a wife—one who could not bear to hear of the sufferings of others without doing all in her power to alleviate it. Her husband, King Edward, was an extravagant King in many ways; Queen Alexandra was extravagant in a different way. It was said of her that during the war, when parliament was voting on her income, that if they voted £10,000, she would live on two thousand and give the rest away.

Always youthful, slim and beautiful, the gracious Queen belied her age until a few months before her death on November 20, 1925, in her 82nd year.

King George, after the death of the Duke of Clarence, became the special care of the good Queen who with tender care brought him through two serious illnesses, one in early childhood and another after the war.

Our picture today shows the funeral cortege of Queeen Alexandra. The people of the whole Empire mourned her passing, but none more than those of lowly estate who had known her charity and goodness.

$8,000 GRANTED FOR RELIEF WORK

Ontario Government Makes Grant For Relief Work in North Monaghan.

OPERATE GRAVEL PIT.

A grant of $8,000 for relief work in North Monaghan Township was announced in the appropriations by the Ontario Government published yesterday.

Reeve Hy Wood told The Examiner that the township council had petitioned the government through the Hon. David Croll for assistance in carrying on projected work this summer.

"We were assured that our request would be favorably considered," Reeve Wood said, "but I wasn't aware that it had been finally approved. The council is planning more road work this year, and this grant will enable us to operate our gravel pit on the scale of last year. It will mean the improvement of more of our roads in the township, and we are hoping to get the job of crushing the gravel for Lock and McKellar street where the Suburban Area Commission is going to lay a permanent surface. Most of our labor is done by the men. We have no teams in the pit, and this feature appealed to the Minister of Public Welfare. Of the $8,000 the government is giving us, $6,000 will be paid to labor."

In the government's announcement it was stated that the total of the additional appropriations is $877,732, of which $592,578 will be distributed to the men who are given employment.

LIFFORD LINE

With the coming of spring and warmer weather our feet are demanding probably more attention than any member of the human body. For spring does aggravate the usual tenderness of the feet and in many instances cause them to feel twice the size of our shoes.

It is a stated fact that seven out of ten people have flat feet or fallen arches. As the feet are used more constantly at this season, it may be that one of the four arches of our feet need strengthening. The most important arch is that from the heel to the big toe on the inside of the foot and when that lays down on its job flat feet result. Then there is the well known one across the ball of the foot and when callus forms there it is a sure indication that the small bones have slipped from their moorings and the arch has been destroyed and you will know it because of the extreme pain. Another arch is that from the heel to little toe on the outside of the foot and still another is that through the instep in front of the heel. When shoes are worn continuously that cramp the tiny bones of the feet we cannot expect to keep the arches intact.

Stockings can give as much trouble as ill fitting shoes. They should be not only long enough in the feet but have also flat seams as thick seams will cause irritation. At the first indication of pain, a good chiropodist should be consulted for corrective treatment.

While there are many remedies on the market for corns, bunions and calli the main idea is to prevent having them. While a painful corn may be extracted, unless the undue pressure or rubbing is stopped it will certainly return. When callus spots occur on the toes, sides or bottom of the feet liquid cuticle remover will soften the hardened tough skin which can then be scraped off with the blunt end of a nail file. Shoes which cause the trouble should be promptly discarded. In this way corns may be kept at bay. When purchasing a new pair of shoes it is a good plan to wear them for a few hours, take them and stockings off and note where the surface of the feet is reddened by pressure. Cover such surfaces with mole skin plaster which is both soothing and protection when the feet are tender and swollen during the first days of spring they should be well massaged each night with a good cream.

There are powders and liquids that will prevent perspiration that so frequently causes cracks or soft corns between the toes. It may be that the toes are not properly dried after bathing. A piece of lamb's wool worn between the toes will separate them and prevent further irritation from the friction of the toes. A solution of boric acid will be found to relieve excessive perspiration.

The nails should be trimmed straight across to prevent ingrowing toe nails. A tiny V cut in the centre of the straight nail will relieve the pressure. When such a painful thing occurs it is wise to take an orange wood stick and gently lift the nail where it presses into the tender flesh and insert a tiny bit of lamb's wool beneath to prevent and relieve the pressure of the nail. Always after cutting the toe nails the edges should be smoothed to prevent nasty catches in fine silk stockings and holes in the toes caused by friction of the sharp nail against the shoe.

Blisters rubbed on the toes or the heel should be attended to at once. Spirits of camphor will help to dry up the blister if applied frequently. It is wise to search for the cause of the blister and remedy it at once. Often a fold or wrinkle in the stocking or a worn lining of the shoe will cause sufficient friction to form a blister. Worn or wrinkled lining of a shoe may be repaired by a soft suede or thin-rubber insert glued on the inside and pasted over the worn or wrinkled lining.

There are many exercises that will help to strengthen weakened arches and bunions. When a bunion is extremely painful one may wear a soft rubber protector over the toe joint during the day under a pair of old and comfortable shoes. At night a rubber toe separator should be worn between the big and second toe to hold them in their proper places. A bunion usually results when shoes are worn that throw the big toe out of place.

Mechanical arch supporters do help in an emergency to hold misplaced bones of an arch in place until they are strengthened by massages or exercises to function properly. It is considered far better to strengthen the ligaments by exercise than to have to depend always on artificial support.

Nothing is so disastrous to beauty as painful tender feet. They cause lines and wrinkles long before their time that are difficult to erase. If a person wobbles along on high-heeled shoes that do not fit properly, there will be lines on the face, a tense expression, an irritable disposition, and an uncompanionable specimen of humanity.

Stockings should be changed every day and it is wise for foot comfort not to wear the same pair of shoes every day. If one possesses two pairs they should be worn on alternate days to give the feet a rest from the pressure of each pair.

If the heels are worn down on either the inside or outside or the counters of well worn shoes are crooked, it will indicate that these shoes which were made for normal feet are showing the effect of pressure from feet in some abnormal condition. Worn shoes tell a very definite story of the foot. Shoes should be straight on the inside and not so pointed as to throw the big toe out of place. There should also be ample toe room so that the toes can, as they should, grip the ground at each step. The feet should point straight ahead and not be turned outward or inward as was taught many years ago. One of the best exercises for conditioning the feet is to walk on the outsides of the bare feet with the toes toeing in or to grasp a large marble with the toes.

The feet should receive especially tender care in spring when the weather grows warm and close confining shoes become a burdensome necessity of civilization. Shoes of light weight fabric instead of heavy leather that cause the feet to perspire or become swollen should be worn whenever possible. One should never fail to use an anti-perspiration preparation and a deordorant especially in spring and summer.

Patent leather shoes should not be worn in warm weather if there is the slightest tendency toward perspiration.

It should be remembered that the feet respond gratefully and promptly to tender care bestowed upon them.

Questions Answered By DR. WYLIE CLARK

Is it true we are making light of sin to-day and thus giving a false impression of its power? —D. R. S.

At times we humans do strange things. Along one line we will be very strict and exacting and along another we will be loose and let things slip.

Dr. Wylie Clark

During a number of years we have been paying much attention to the health of our bodies and progress has been made to overcome and prevent the ravages of diseases. We are still pushing at this and skilled men are seeking causes and cures. During the same period we seem to have been letting up on the power of sin and more or less discounting its destructive force. The old text, "The wages of sin is death," seems to have lost its grip. One of these days we will know better.

Why are our Sunday schools becoming nothing but a series of entertainments and sporting clubs for games? What should be done by the churches?—Sunday School Teacher.

Just now the Sunday school is being openly attacked and rightly so. Methods and results require to be carefully considered. We want to realize where we are going and what should be done about it. We must not froget that all schools and methods are being questioned and that it is much easier to call attention to weaknesses than it is to provide the remedies. Hope lies in the fact that the school is now out in the open and is being written about.

Is it the church business to record the history of the past or to make the history of to-day?—I. H.

Church history must be recorded somewhere or be forgotten. In the records of all the church courts of the different denominations there must be a fairly full story of the doings of the past and there is much to edify and give serious thought even in the minutes of an ordinary congregation. While that is all true, of course, the business of the church is to make the history of the future. Its work is to produce a membership fit to live before God and bring in the Kingdom of Righteousness. There should be no weeping over the past, but consecrated and determined efforts for to-morrow.

Would you kindly give me some information about Adramythium?—T. R.

It was and is a city of Mysia. It was formerly situated on the sea, but is now about six miles inland from the gulf of the same name. It is a prosperous place. Has olive groves and vineyards and timber can be had from the nearby mountains. It was founded by Adramys, brother of Croesus. Both the Athenians and the Romans occupied it. In going from Caesarea to Myra, Paul sailed in a ship of Adramythium.

What was the composition of the holy anointing oil?—P. F.

1, olive oil; 2, myrrh; 3, fragrant cinnamon; 4, fragrant calamus; 5, cassia.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

IN the Springtime all nature conspires to teach us the truth of God, that in Him there is naught but Life, that death is but a fantasy, a mere seeming that will presently pass away in the glorious resurrection of the new birth. Let us meditate awhile upon these things, for they are true both in their general sense and in their individual application.

Both the crucifixion and the resurrection are Cosmic happenings as well as having their place in time. From the foundation of the world has this been, and to the end will it continue, the Word made manifest and offered up. And about ourselves, are we so perfect, so blameless in our relation to God and our neighbors that by our injustices, hatreds and cruelties to one another, let alone to the rest of God's creatures, we ourselves have not betrayed and crucified the Christ, not once but many times? Or have we sincerely tried to follow the Great Exemplar and taken up OUR cross and denied our selves? For there are two crucifixions, that of the Higher to the lower, and in turn that of the lower so that the Higher may be made manifest. Thus only is the mystical marriage accomplished and thus does the mortal put on immortality, not of himself but of the Christ within the Bethlehem of his heart.

The path to Golgotha is the path that all who follow must tread, but the name of that path is Love, and the darkness and anguish of the dark night is lost in the wondrous radiance and joy of the morning.—Frater IX., Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.

A National Message

By REV. W. PASCOE GOARD, LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S.

THE state was established over three thousand years ago. It is older than the Christian church by about fifteen hundred years. The Christian church was founded in it. The Christian church is dependent on it. It is of importance to realize the Israel citizenship and kingship of Jesus Christ. He declared, "I am not sent save unto the lost sheep of the House of Israel."

It is also of importance to realize the national basis of the Christian church. The church is commissioned to send forth the gospel to all nations and to every creature. Nevertheless, the Christian church is Israelitic in its basis, in its centre, and in its administration.

It is said of Jesus that "After the flesh" He came of the seed of Israel. (See Romans.) It is said of Jesus, "Thou hast visited and redeemed thy people Israel." It is said of Jesus, "Rabbi, thou art the Son of God; thou art the King of Israel." The Kingdom of God is expanding as Israel expands its citizenship. This is clearly stated in the Scriptures. For instance, Isaiah in his great prophecy concerning the House of David says (chapter 9): "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon His Kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this.—Reprinted from "The National Message."

Peterborough's Possibilities

By HOMER MOORE

ARTICLE 21

By following the roadway which runs diagonally from Peterborough city to Glen Alda, a motorist could leave the city and in a few hours, be in a pine-scented region where nature holds sway, the stillness broken only by the sound of lapping waters or a splash as some big bass takes a turn in the air.

From Glen Alda there is a choice of roads by which Bancroft may be reached. The longest is via Ormsby but perhaps the extra mileage would be worth the sight of a heaver cutting down a tree on a lake shore. It was worth it to me. From a point near Bancroft, a very close resemblance to the biblical statement of there being "hills of brass," can be seen. What are those hills shining with a bronzy-brassy color? In some parts of the world, corundum has a bronze appearance. Perhaps these "hills of brass" are in reality corundum? Perhaps they are brass altho' it is said there isn't such a thing as natural brass! Perhaps there is! Anyway, whatever it is, that shiny hill is unusual. One elderly prospector-broker to whom I described the scene, said: "Homer, it's a hill of gold." But I think he was mistaken. He had hunted gold all over Canada so much that he was "gold conscious" and saw the possibility of gold everywhere. Another, on hearing the area described, said: 'The sun must have been shining on that hill which in the distance gave it the color of brass."

These views of experienced prospectors are interesting, even though not correct, taking into consideration the geological formation of the district and what such should produce. I have listened to many stories of deposits being at some mythical location. Such tales are like gossip, which grows with so many versions of it, until a different story has been made. I heard a few months ago such a mining story.... men got excited, looked up maps, inquired of officials who could not enlighten them! The place named by these men was not even on the map as they gave it. I listened and did not comment but I believed the statement of the old prospector when he said to me: "Gold gets in your blood....when you feel the grains of gold trickling through your fingers....that is a sensation never to be forgotten." It would be quite easy to write a story which would cause a stampede, but these articles are not of that class. There is enough hardships in this country to-day without causing men to suffer the hardships of blistered feet and tired muscles, as they searched for some mythical treasure. These articles in this column are facts, not fancies, and a "fact" cannot be frowned down or fought out of existence. The facts as herein set forth are in a readable form, not dry but palatable, so good may come from the assimilation thereof—these facts based on scientific laws gathered from all over the world are stranger than fiction and show to the thoughtful mind that nature has in her vaults, treasure of untold value.

Farther north, as far as Maynooth and circling west and south of that point, is a virgin territory, as far as great discoveries are concerned.

From all reports of any kind issued by any government, I have never read or heard of anyone seeking the kind of mineral the different formations should carry, besides what is commonly known. True they have searched and found some of them, but apparently others of value were overlooked or else the higher mineralogical science of combinations which produce another, had not been even heard of, therefore they were left securely hidden because not even suspected of being there. As we discuss these areas, we will see if we can enlighten those who know that area is there, but do not know what is in it, and which could affect city of Peterborough.

This area is devoid of roads and for that reason, whatever was ever there—is still there. Fishing parties have been in there and in their eagerness to fish, they just gave a cursory glance at the surrounding rocks —and while they secured fish worth a few cents, they passed up metals worth millions!

Trappers have been in there and as they set their traps to catch some animal with a hide worth a few dollars, they crouched over metals worth thousands of hides. Hunters have been in there and as they waited on the runway, they were so excited they forgot to look at the spot they were standing on and so missed any mineral indications.

These men were after sport and nothing else interested them. Many men have walked hundreds of miles in a lifetime, hunting only one kind of mineral and while doing so, they walked blindly over and by, other minerals more valuable.

It has been said that some men look for gold and cannot see anything else. They are blind to everything else in form of mineral. Some seek silver and go right by other minerals. It is a rarity to find a person who would mark some other kind than the one he was hunting but in my opinion that would be a good act for anyone to do. If gold not wanted, but formation recognized—mark it for the eye of someone hunting gold!

"Whatever good I may do for my fellow-man, let me do it now, I pass this way but once." Were such an attitude in every man's thoughts, many kinds of minerals would be quickly uncovered and it is "speed" in this search, we need.

Some notable discoveries have been made by people not in the prospecting business, who had no mineral knowledge but an alert mind and quick eye, perhaps thinking only to start a mineral collection. Some, I believe are destined to find it. Events, which are trivial in themselves, all fall into line in some lives, like the tumblers in the combination of a big vault, and then the treasure appears at their feet. People move from one district to another—they go for a car ride and return, go again and decide to walk a few hundred feet or yards over the rocks for a better view, then stoop down to tie a shoe-lace—then SEE a nugget of gold at their feet. The different moves in the journey was not a chance combination but were like the tumblers of a big vault taking their proper place at proper time to make the big door open. I know where there is silver ore which was found by that very same unplanned (unless by the directing force) group of movements. What was that but destiny? Another side of the picture is when a deposit was seen but could not be found again. This also was destiny to keep the wrong mind from posessing it or? A farmer was in his barn when it was raining. He looked out as the water surged down the hill on which his barn was built. The water and mud were color of red paint. Soon after, a stranger appeared at the house and taking out a check book and fountain pen wrote on the check. It was handed to the farmer with the question: "Will you accept this for your farm?" The farmer's eyes blurred....could he be seeing right....check was for eighty thousand dollars. Enough to take his family off the rocks forever. But greed got in command of his brain and he answered: "No, a hundred thousand dollars and no less."

The gentleman who wrote the check, tore it up and walking out was never seen by that farmer again. The farmer who owned the hill of iron told me the story and said: "There I had eighty thousand dollars in my mitt but I demanded a hundred thousand...and now I'll never get a hundred thousand cents." He had at last realised that visitors in that lonesome region were scarce, especially those with eighty thousand dollars to spend. He was destined to miss, through lack of fundamental business knowledge, the one big opportunity.

An experienced prospector but with no technical training was out searching for a mineral. He walked along a ledge for several yards, then with his hammer, cracked off a piece of silver ore. He went several more yards and still it was silver. In telling me about it he said: "Just think of it, three miles of solid silver and I could never find it again." The writer of this article was once walking along a sandy road when my boot-heel slid few inches in the sand. Scraping sand away I found a nail-head in boot-heel had cut a groove in lead. Many more instances could be told — and they were all in the northern districts to be later described.

MURRAY STREET CHOIR PRESENTS SACREDCANTATA

"Olivet to Calvary" Beautiful Presentation of City Choir.

CHORUSES EFFECTIVE.

"Olivet to Calvary," sacred cantata by J. H. Maunder, was beautifully presented by the choir of Murray Street Baptist Church last night.

This Good Friday cantata portrays the scenes surrounding the Passion of Our Lord. The theme progresses from the triumphal entry into Jerusalem, when "the people of the Hebrews with palms before Thee went," on to the scene in Pilate's judgment hall and the long march to Golgotha. The joyous note of the Palm Sunday episodes changes to a sombre recital that has its peak in the finale, "Droop, Sacred Head," the chorus which tells the tale of the last moments on the Cross.

Maunder's cantata, of reverent type throughout, abounds in melodious passages which were expressively rendered by the choir, under the expert direction of Arthur Collison, L.R.S.M., A.D.C.M.

The choruses were extremely effective, in a subdued, melodious tone that brought out all the beauty of the composition. Especially outstanding was the resounding volume of the chorus, "Crucify Him!" in which the scene is delineated in Pilate's hall, with the mob demanding the death of the meek and gentle Saviour.

Although the cantata is written mainly for solos of a baritone and tenor type, two very pleasing soprano solos were given by Miss Phyllis Rome, whose clear, sweet voice was heard to splendid advantage in both, with especial interest in the stanzas of the solo opening of the chorus, "Another temple waits Thee, Lord Divine, the temple of my heart, O make it Thine."

Walter Parr's very fine voice was at its best in the reverent rendition of various tenor solos, outstanding among them being the air, "Not of this world the kingdom of Our Lord." And the baritone numbers were capably handled by Grant Palmer, who, as repititor of the words of Jesus, in the recitative and air, "O Jerusalem, Hadst Thou but Known," was particularly good.

The first section of the cantata progresses from the entry to Jerusalem, on to the temple and the Mount of Olives, and ends with a hymn, "Just as I am," while another hymn, "The Will be Done," accents the Gethsemane episode in the second portion, and the favorite hymn, "Rock of Ages," forms an artistic conclusion to the Calvary scene which makes the final episode of the cantata. This inclusion of hymnal numbers seems to add an especial attraction to the beauty of these Lenten musical compositions. And a choral march, "The Saviour King goes forth to die," in the tone picture which portrays the march to Golgotha, has in it a hint of the resurrection which softens the harshness of the cruel memory.

A double quartet that was very effectively rendered was entitled "O Thou Whose Sweet Compassion," with singers in Mrs. J. Mann, the Misses Phyllis Rome, Elizabeth Webber and Margaret Eastwood, and Walter Cox, Grant Palmer, John Dundas and Sven Valentin.

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. BESSEY

The jubilee issue of Southern Rhodesia, consisting of four values, 1d, 2d, 3d and 6d, is of a distinctive design. The stamps will be about the same size as those common to most of the crown colonies, but the design should be much more attractive.

A portrait of King George appears at one side, while the famous Victoria Falls serves as a background for a giraffe, a lion and an elephant; a springbok is also included in the design. The stamps will be printed in two colors and will be released on May 6th.

Full details are not available of the Australian jubilee series, but as far as is known, there will be three values, 3d, red; 3d, blue; and one-shilling and fourpence, probably purple. The design of each will include a portrait of King George.

It is stated, unofficially, that the Silver Jubilee issue of New Zealand will be adapted for use in the Cook Islands and Niue.

An unofficial report states that a three-cent commemorative stamp for the Connecticut Tercentenary will apear late in April. The design selected is stated to consist of a map of the state, indicating the cities of Hartford, Windsor and Wethersfield, where the earliest white settlements were established three centuries ago.

Nigeria is soon to have a new pictorial issue of stamps, but details of the designs are not, as yet, available.

The rarest stamp in the world, British Guiana, 1-cent magenta of the 1856 issue has finally returned to London, England. Mr. Gordon Harmer (of Harmer, Rooke and Co., Ltd.), recently made a trip to the United States and was this time successful in taking back to England the world's most talked of postage stamp.

Just what the stamp will sell for this time is uncertain, but it is insured for £10,000 and several years ago when the late Mr. Arthur Hind bought it, he paid about $32,500 for it, and was prepared to pay as high as $50,000.

On this same trip, Mr. Harmer also secured a rare old stamp of Canada; the one-cent of the 1859 issue on laid paper, the only known copy to exist on laid paper. Just what this stamp will sell for is also uncertain, but will doubtless bring a good many hundreds of dollars.

This stamp ordinarily is worth from forty to sixty cents, used and about two dollars mint, but of course, the difference in the type of paper on which it is printed puts such a variety in a class by itself.

Laid paper might be described as being watermarked by a series of parallel lines in it. Should the frame, used in the manufacture of the paper consist of a series of parallel wires, the paper pulp will naturally settle thicker between the wires than on them. Thus, we find that the finished product if held to the light will show alternate dark and light lines running parallel to each other. These wires are usually paced quite close together, but may vary in different frames.

A mother's Day stamp along the lines of that issued by the United States is announced for release in Austria, this May.

U.S. Virgin Islands

For the first time in the history of the United States, a postage stamp is to be issued in these islands, with a low value of only one-quarter of one cent. This new stamp is for use in St. Thomas and the other Virgin Islands, bought in 1917, by the United States from Denmark. The native residents of the islands were granted full American citizenship on Feb. 25, 1927.

This means four hundred stamps to the dollar, rather an expensive printing and engraving proposition, but perhaps the old reliable stamp collectors will help out, through the purchase of large quantities of them duty.

Depression is a word that has entered into the vocabulary of everyone of recent years. It is a word which emphasizes low spirits, which has a tendency to drag down natural exuberance and set at naught a recuperative attitude. The wise are beginning to leave it out of their conversation and pluck it from their thoughts. It is a reasonable thing to do, not because of any hesitancy to face issues, but because these have been faced so long, that it is well to turn about and see what can be done by facing the other way.

Depressing thoughts lower vitality and weaken nerve tissues. They have done enough in this line. What is essential now is to get out from under the burden, drop it from our shoulders as we turn, right about face and see how we can rise thus relieved, and what we can discover from a higher mental attitude.

* * * * * * *

Someone said recently, "Mental depression is often the aching of an unused faculty." For more than a score of years a great deal of the world's thought has been put into the study of how the most can be extinguished in the shortest time, what to make to do it, and how to handle what is made to make it most effectual. This isn't a very happy consideration. It spells tragedy. Indeed it is nothing if not depressing. There must be an aching faculty longing for greater use on the side of making lives more abundantly beautiful, happy and more successful. How about stopping the ache of depressing considerations by using the faculties for betterment? What can we do to make the world more abundant in fine things?

* * * * * * *

We cant, at least try our faculties in this opposite way from depression. We may not be able to make such rapid strides in mass results as if we were dealing in destructive elements, for destruction is easy compared with construction. But we can make our own lives less trammeled by downcast ideas, and we can inculcate happy ideas in those about us.

* * * * * * *

While it would be absurd to act radiantly joyful when troubles assail us, we can meet them with a quiet confidence in whatever good we do have, and in the determination to add to the good by seeking it more abundantly.

BACK TO KITCHEN FUTILE ARGUMENT

Women Industry Now Blamed for Depression, Business Woman Says.

MONTREAL, April 20 (C.P.)—"Women have been responsible for a lot of things in the course of history. They have given birth to many great people, Shakespeare—and the quintuplets, and now the depression," stated Miss C. I. MacKenzie, principal of the Montreal High School for Girls, addressing the Business and Professional Women's Club here.

"We used to think it was the war debts and post-war speculation—but no, it is the women who have taken men's jobs. It is easy to start a depression, apparently," Miss MacKenzie commented.

The suggestion that the situation be remedied by sending women back to the kitchen was discussed by Miss MacKenzie. If women resumed all the various home-making occupations in their enforced return to the kitchen the baker, the dressmaker and all sorts of small shops would have to close their doors. The depression would become chronic.

"I cannot see that the kitchen movement would result in anything but the most futile finish of many things to which we are accustomed in the daily life of the community," Miss MacKenzie declared. "If men just stopped to think of the logical consequences of putting the industrial clock back they would realize how impractical and foolish the suggestion really is."

Women, Miss MacKenzie thought, were too modest about themselves, and should make the worth of their work better known. The fact that few women held executive positions in industrial firms did not mean they were not doing the work but they were not receiving the salary nor the credit for it.

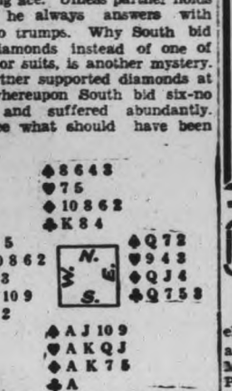
BAD BIDDING CAUSES NEEDLESS LOSS

Never attempt something about which you know nothing, as the dealer of this hand did last night. As his partner knew as little about the Sims' opening three-bid, they suffered a serious and wholly needless loss, being vulnerable at the time.

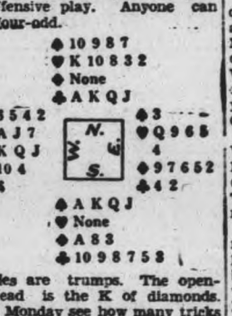
The first principle of that conventional opening bid is to require from partner no trump assistance. Another principle is never to make that call unless partner may hold a missing ace. Unless partner holds an ace he always answers with three-no trumps. Why South bid three-diamonds instead of one of his major suits, is another mystery. His partner supported diamonds at once, whereupon South bid six-no trumps and suffered abundantly. Let's see what should have been done.



Bidding should go: South, two-spades; North, two-no trumps; South, three-hearts; North, three-spades, merely expressing his choice; South, four-diamonds, to show his three-suiter; North four-spades, ending bidding.

West should lead his J of clubs. The Declarer is in. Lead off the ace and K of hearts, then lead a low trump. West dare not refuse to win with his K. He dare not lead a club as that will put dummy in to lead trumps through East, and allow the Declarer to discard a diamond, resulting in a small slam. West's return lead is his top diamond. Cover with the 10. East's J must go on. Win with declarer's K.

Lead the ace of trumps, leaving only the adversely held Q to win a defensive trick. Lead the Q of hearts. Discard one of dummy's diamonds. If East ruffs the rest of the tricks belong to the Declarer, as dummy can ruff a low diamond, after South leads his last good heart and ace of diamonds. Five-odd can be made at spades, by perfect offensive play. Anyone can make four-odd.



Spades are trumps. The opening lead is the K of diamonds. Before Monday see how many tricks South can win against the best subsequent defence.

TRANTER—McEACHERN

The marriage of Mary Florence, eldest daughter of Mrs. McEachern and the late Alex D. McEachern, to Mr. Herbert William Tranter of Peterborough, took place on Thursday, April 18th at 3.30 p.m. at the homeof the bride's mother.

An arch of evergreens, ferns and spring flowers formed the background for the ceremony which was performed by Rev. E. W. McKay.

Miss Catherine Moran played the wedding music and during the signing of the register, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Tranter sang.

The bride, given in marriage by her eldest brother D. G. McEachern, wore a gown of white muslin de soie. Her veil of tulle fell from a cap of matching lace and she carried a showe. bouquet of bridal roses and lily of the valley. Miss Anne McEachern sister of the bride acted as bridesmaid, wearing a gown of primrose crepe and carrying yellow and white carnations.

The groom was assisted by his brother Mr. Roy Tranter. A buffet luncheon was served to immediate friends and relatives after which the bride and groom left for a motor trip. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

CLARKE—FOULGER

A pretty wedding took place quietly at two o'clock this afternoon at St. John's Church, when Lillian Marie Foulger, of 201 King street, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Foulger, became the bride of Mr. Arthur Neil Clarke, second youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. James Clarke of Union street.

The ceremony was solemnized by Ven. Archdeacon Blagrave, D.D., Mr. F. G. Mann, L.Mus., was at the organ and played "I Love You Truly" during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her cousin, Mr John Sadler, wore a dainty gown of Venetian blue, with white accessories and a white hat finished with a small veil. Her bouquet was of Talisman roses.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. J. Paquette, cousins of the bride. The latter was in grey, with bouquet of deep rose carnations.

Following the ceremony, buffet refreshments were served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paquette, King street, where the immediate relatives and friends were received by the bridal party. The table was done with a cloth of Irish linen, decorated in orchid and mauve and centered by the bride's cake and a bowl of tulips and daffodils.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke left by motor at half-past four o'clock for Montreal, to visit relatives, the bride travelling in an ensemble of navy blue, with grey accessories.

On their return they will live at 211 Rubidge street.

St. Andrew's Choir To Present Cantata

One of the most interesting musical events of this Easter will be the singing of Charles Fontayne Manney's Cantata "The Resurrection," by the choir and soloist of St. Andrew's United Church on Easter Sunday evening. "The Resurrection" is one of the shorter Easter cantatas, as the complete work takes just thirty minutes to perform, but it is a work that has become exceedingly popular amongst church choirs the last few years. It will be entirely new to most people in Peterborough, and the work has not been given in this part of Ontario accompanied by organ and stringed instruments.

The Searles Instrumental Trio will accompany the cantata on Easter Sunday evening, and all the solo parts will be taken by local soloists. The soloists for the evening are Mrs. Ross Williamson, Mrs. Albert Radford, Mrs. Jean Davidson and Master Fred Fowler, sopranos, Mrs. Clifford Hall, tenor, Mr. James Johnson, baritone and Mr. Adam Hawley, bass. The Searles Instrumental Trio has earned the reputation of being one of the finest trios in the province, and Peterborough can be proud of the fact that these musicians belong to our city.

Besides the cantata at this musical service on Easter Sunday evening, the Searles Trio, with Cyril Rice at the organ will give a short recital before the service starting at six forty.

'Tis Spring And Tricky Suits Are Top o' World

By LISBETH

Happy days are here again and 'tis spring, 'tis spring! And the trick little suit is the season's favorite garment.

There is plenty of variety in both styles and materials, but the navy blue suit is undoubtedly the fashionable thing, both here and abroad. Tweeds are very good in two and three-piece suits, and grays and browns come next to blue in popularity. The suit shown at the extreme right of our illustration is newer in styling than the hip-length jacket. Notice the backward swing of the box jacket and the bell sleeves. It is a Molyneaux adaptation, and the blouse is navy with white dots, and ties in a smart bow in front.

Coats Also Navy

The costume next to it is also navy with white waffle collar and cuffs, white belt and gloves.

Centered is a brown and white paper taffeta ensemble for evening. It is delightfully simple with the huge collar of white pique. A Lanvin adaptation.

Maggy Rouff is responsible for the princess gown, left, which is done in lavender linen with a ribbed material forming the standing collar and revers.

One of the sheer black dinner dresses that are so well liked this year is worn underneath the gorgeous silver fox cape, shown on the girl seated on the railing. The cut of this cape is unusual and very effective withal. The dress has a rhinestone buckle.

Donstick Is Among Favored

Canadian Horses Rapidly Rounding Into Shape for Renewal of King's Plate.

WOODBINE AFTER T. CLARK

FOUR WEEKS from today and the bugle will sound and the familiar cry of "They're off" will be heard from thousands of racing fans at the historic old Woodbine. The King's Plate will be down from decision that day and from this distance it appears to be a very open event. The horses this year are about two weeks further advanced in their training than at this time last year. Listaro from the McLaughlin stable is the favorite but Eddie Seagram's Gay Sympathy and Harry Hatch's Donstick have a lot of public support. All three wintered in fine style and have been doing everything their trainers have asked so far. Goggles is another that is showing excellent form in his trials and a few wise acres around the track are boosting him to the skies. It looks to us as Eddie Seagram may carry off the coveted trophy but we will know more later as the workouts become faster.

The Woodbine people are making every effort to fashion a race that will attract Dr. Mooney's Ted Clark, the sensation of the winter tracks. If they can get him and Prince Fox, Khorasan and a few others of that calibre it will be a natural. Harry Giddings who handles the McLaughlin stable has a few two-year-olds that will make their debut at this coming meeting in the juvenile dashes and as he is known for his ability to get these baby racers ready, we will not be surprised if he cops quite a few purses in this division. Worcester from this same barn and last year's King Plate winner is reported as having entirely recovered from his foot injury, and he will sure make his presence felt in the older division handicaps. In fact if he is as sound as ever he may go in open company and show them all the way home.

WE SEE where Jockey Schaefer is doing a comeback this year and he sure will be a welcome addition to the Canadian riding colony as riders of his ability have become too scarce this past few years. When he used to ride for Walter J. Salmon he was classed with Earl Sande and the best of them. Dude Foden and Frankie Mann are out every morning limbering up and should be in their old time form when the Plate Day arrives. Nipper Rowe will again do the starting on all Canadian Racing Association tracks with Tom Clarke springing the latch on the Orpen controlled circuit.

Harry Hatch has his Canadian string quartered at Long Branch in charge of Billy Bringloe, the ex-Seagram conditioner, who is one of the smartest and wisest men with horses in American. It was he who conditioned and saddled Sir Harry when he won the hundred thousand handicap at Aqua Caliente a few years ago. This boy Young who does the riding for this establishment is also better than a green hand at booting them home the shortest way and we look to this pair to put over many a winner this coming season.

New Englander Wins Gruelling Boston Marathon

LEAFS EVEN SYRACUSE SERIES WITH 3-2 VICTORY ON HOLIDAY

Bisons Victorious in 10-inning Battle to Albany Grounds.

MONTREAL WINS 7-6.

(By the Associated Press)

If the first three days of the International league season can be taken as an accurate guide, the loop as a whole has become home-run minded to the nth degree.

The International always has been known as a hitter's league but not even in its palmiest slugging days has there been so large an early crop of home runs. Only 10 games have been played so far yet 24 wallops have sailed over the fences, 14 of them at Baltimore and eight at Newark.

28-Hit Slugfest

The Montreal Royals' 7 to 6 victory over the Orioles at Baltimore yesterday was a 28-hit slugfest in which 10 home runs were made, five by each team. Baltimore assumed a 6-5 lead with a four-run rally in the eighth but the Royals came back with two in the ninth to win their second decision in three games. Mayd, Bartkn, Sweeney, Puccinelli and Gibson were the home-run clouters for the Orioles; Stack, Fritz, King, Ripple and Dugas for the Royals.

Bears Get Close Win

After the batsmen had dominated the first two games, Newark and Rochester got together in a 10-inning pitching battle which the Bears won, 3-2, to hang up their second triumph in three starts. Dick Porter's single scored Nolen Richardson from second with the winning run. Jake Flowers contributed the only home run of the day.

The Buffalo Bisons went to the top of the standings with two victories and no defeats by taking Albany's Senators over the hurdles, 3-2, in another 10-inning duel. Bill Harris, who held the Senators to three hits, scored the winning run, nicking Jimmy Carithers for a double and coming home on a single by Greg Mulleavy.

Leafs Even Series

Toronto evened the series with Syracuse with a 3-2 victory gained by smart base running. Schulmerich scored the first Toronto run in a double steal in the second. In the fourth, after Crouch had scored the second run, Hanley stole second and came home with what proved to be the winning counter on Miller's single.

(Albany and Toronto will play a doubleheader at Albany Sunday. Secretary William J. Manley announced. The Monday game has been advanced one day.)

REGISTRATION FEE PROPOSAL IS LAID OVER

Would Charge 25 Cents Per Player, Foregoing O.A.S.A. Share of Playoff Gates.

SYSTEM INADEQUATE

Ernie Smith, Hamilton, Returned as Association President—Innes Still Treasurer.

Dave Leether, secretary of the Peterborough Softball League, was re-elected to the O.A.S.A. executive at the Association's annual meeting yesterday in the Empress Hotel. The election of officers, last item on the agenda, resulted as follows: Hon. President, S. H. Armstrong of Toronto; honorary vice-president, George J. Smith of Hamilton; president, E. B. Smith of Hamilton; first vice-president, G. H. Spooner of Galt; second vice-president, V. C. Collett of Toronto; secretary, Verne McIlwraith of Guelph; treasurer, W. J. Innes of Paris; auditors, W. J. Steele and R. Horning of Hamilton; A.A.U. of C. Governors, H. S. Briggs of Hamilton and P. H. Randall of Toronto; executive committee, W. L. Alguire of St. Catharines, D. Leether of Peterborough, H. H. Bowman of Owen Sound and W. Y. Shaw of Windsor.

Following a reading of the minutes and the correspondence, the president gave his address. This was followed by a complete report from the secretary. The treasurer's report was next and showed a balance on hand of $327. There was much discussion regarding the cutting down of expenses in future and a great deal of time lost over technical details. The auditors' report was read and again the discussion was prolonged this time over several recommendations. It was finally ruled that the auditors retire and prepare these recommendations in written form to be voted upon. A wire was sent to the O.A.L.A. convention in Toronto wishing them success. The A.A.U. of C. report was adopted.

The amendments were the next item of business to be presented. Hamilton's amendment that the O.A.S.A. form a commercial group for commercial teams only, separated from the O.A.S.A. group and with individual championships, with players allowed to play in both groups, was defeated. An amendment to this amendment that players in strictly industrial leagues be allowed to play in both classes—industrial and O.A.S.A.—but in different series and permitted to participate in championships in both, was also defeated.

An amendment reading: "That no amateur team or player or team be allowed to play against professional teams or players in any game where admission fee, collection, ticket sale or drawing is charged or held," was defeated after much discussion.

The Border Cities' delegate withdrew his proposal to have playoff dates within a time limit set and adhered to. An amendment to increase umpires' fees to a minimum of four dollars was lost, as was the proposal to have the official bat "not more than 36 inches in length." The first amendment to be carried was: "A baserunner who holds his base on a flyball may advance moment such flyball touches the person of a fielder with the risk of being put out."

The St. Catharines amendment, that if a player in an industrial and another series plays in 50 per cent of the league games in each series he be qualified to take part in the O.A.S.A. playoffs in both series, was defeated. And amendment to the amendment that a player in a strictly industrial league may play in both classes but in different series and take part in both playoffs was also defeated.

The executive's motion that in future Northern Ontario champions to be declared in all series in the O.A.S.A. carried. The amendment that a player desiring to play in a higher classification in another district must first secure permission of the district association he is leaving also carried after some argument.

The amendment regarding officers came up next and was: "Change to provide for equal representation of each zone district on the executive of the O.A.S.A. The officers shall be past president, president, life members, first and second vice presidents, secretary, treasurer, one A.A.U. governor (all to be elected at large at the annual meeting), six zone executive members (to be elected by their respective zone districts), and two executive members to be named by the incoming president'." It was defeated.

Treasurer Innes' amendment was that a registration bureau be established by the O.A.S.A. with a permament office in a central point and that a registration fee of 25 cents a player be charged with this fee entitling player to a certificate, registration card and a rule book, with the O.A.S.A. foregoing its share of playoff gates and the Association appointing umpires.

Present System Inadequate

Mr. Innes said the present system of collecting the O.A.S.A. share of playoff money was inadequate. He advised a thorough discussion and have the matter left in the hands of an executive committee to make plans for changes to be presented at the next annual meeting. After much discussion this was agreed to, and the amendment left over till a later date. The matter of changing the weight of the ball to not less than 6¾ ounces nor more than 7 ounces was carried.

Under "general business", the auditors' recommendations were read and voted upon as follows: 1. All cheques to be signed in future by the treasurer and one other officer; this was carried. 2. All accounts to accompany the financial reports when they are turned over to the auditors; this carried also. 2. All information in financial matters of the O.A.S.A. and all books to be available to the auditors; this was carried. 4. An itemized-in-detail financial report be sent to each league before the next annual meeting; this was defeated. 5. All books and statements be given to the auditors in connection with the financial report two weeks before the annual meeting; it was carried. 6. Convenors or reliable parties appointed by them enforce the O.A.S.A. rules on financial matters more strictly in playoff games; it carried. 7. Auditors submit their recommendations in writing at the same time they make their annual report; it was carried. the report adopted and the auditors thanked by the meeting.

A representative of the Lakeshore League—near Toronto—asked that his league be affiliated directly with the O.A.S.A. rather than having to get the permission of the T.A.S.A.—where his league operated the past several years. After some discussion, this request was voted upon and granted. A wire was received from the O.A.L.A. thanking the O.A.S.A. for its good will and wishing the softball convention every success. It was decided that the next annual meeting be held in Owen Sound, although Simcoe and Hamilton also asked for it. A vote of thanks to the Peterborough League for its hospitality was passed the officers elected and the meeting adjourned after a continuous sitting of five hours.

DAVE KOMONEN IS FORCED OUT BOSTON GRIND

Dick Wilding of Mount Dennis Club Finishes in Third Position.

PAT DENGIS SECOND.

Sudbury Mine Carpenter Forced to Fall From Competition at Halfway Mark.

BOSTON, April 20.—(CP)— The Marathon world hailed a new monarch today as youth and endurance wrested a coveted trophy from the slipping grasp of veteran Dave Komonen.

Johnny Kelley, 27-year-old Arlington, Mass., runner, won the Boston marathon yesterday. Kelley, who placed second to Komonen, Sudbury, Ont., mine carpenter, in 1934, led home the field of 190 by covering the gruelling 26 miles 385 yards over hill and dale into Boston in 2.32:07:4. Komonen failed to finish.

Second in the race was Pat Dengis of Baltimore. First of the 13 Canadians who finished the course was Dick Wilding of Mount Dennis, Ont. The Monarch A. C. runner from the Toronto suburb was clocked in 2:39:50, while Dengglis' time was 2:34:11.2. A crowd estimated at from 250,000 to 500,000 watched the race along its route.

Komonen Drops Out

Komonen, hailed a year ago as Canada's premier marathoner, appeared to have passed his prime. He dropped out of yesterday's grind at the halfway mark, recalling a similar performance in the British Empire games trials at Hamilton, Ont., last summer. On that occasion, a scorching day, the veteran Finn found the going too keen. Harold Webster, Hamilton's amazing old-timer won.

Placed In Money

Five of the Dominion's contingent placed in the money yesterday, besides Wilding. They were Vic Callard, of the Toronto Monarch A. C., ninth; Frederick Bristow of Mount Dennis, 14th; Jim Shaw of Monarch A.C. 15th; Fred Mowbray of Mount Dennis, 24th and Grant Hackley of Toronto 33rd.

The ageing Demar finished 18th while Leslie Pawson, of Pawtucket, R.I. who set the record time of 2:31:01.6 in 1931, ranked 28th. Jimmy Heninigan of Medford, Mass., another former winner, was 11th.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, in spite of weather that woulda been a bit too chilly for football, the ball season was got under way this week and the papers is once more full of dope about the doings of the big leaguers. I suppose it's about time for this here collyum to size up the prospects and sorta select the winners for the year, seeing the customers has been kinda putting it up to me to quit stalling and name my teams.

That's fair enough, old-timer, although I admit that's quite a job, for it looks like a coupla wide-open races, especially in the American loop. Right off the reel, however, I mighta as well put it down here that I can't somehow see them Detroit Tigers repeating. Mister Cochrane's lads done a grand job last season, but at that some of them birds was playing over their heads, especially on the attack, and it ain't hardly likely the whole crew will live up to their 1934 doings. I'm going to call the Yanks to stage a comeback in the jr. circuit this year, even without the mighty shillelagh of Mister Babe Ruth, for Mister Gehring's machine has got speed, good pitching and plenty of dynamite up at the plate.

As for the National, I'm going to make the world's series this year an all-New York affair by calling the Giants to cop the flag in the sr. loop. Mister Terry's gang look better than last year, and you gotta remember they was very much in the 1934 running until near the windup. Of course, the Deans is just goofey enough to make good that 50-win boast, and if so, the Cards will be tough onions.

The opening games, Mac, was notable because practically all the headlines went to the boys of the old brigade. It was the vets that copped all the gravy, and the best showman of them all, the venerable Geo. Ruth, advertising specialist for our own Quaker Oats plant, stole the show by cuffing out a homer that give the Braves an opening day win over their New York opposition. Next to Mister Ruth was that former Cleveland heaving star, Mister Wes Ferrell, who shut the Yanks out with the slender total of 2 hits and ruined the New Yawkers' start. On the second day of the doings Mister Jimmy Foxx, now Mister Mack's backstop, got his season off to a good start by clouting out a homer. Mister Gehrig of New York did the same, and so did the veteran Mister M. Bishop, so that so far the old boys has been serving notice that it will be some time yet before they is headed for the scrap heap.

Well, Mac, it won't be long now before the local talent takes to the field, and the present dope is this Central loop is going to have a real old sizzler of a race with plenty of excitement for the fans round the circuit. That's what makes horse racing, ain't it, old-timer?

Let's call it a day—it's too nice outside to go rambling on with this stuff.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

O.A.S.A. DELEGATES WELCOMED OFFICIAL CONVENTION BANQUET

Civic Officials and Representatives of Sister Sports at Gathering.

MANY ADDRESSES.

In the unavoidable absence of Mayor Denne, Alderman Max Sloan officially welcomed the O.A.S.A. delegates to Peterborough at the banquet at noon yesterday in the Empress Hotel. A big representation sat down to the tables, including O.A.S.A. executive members, delegates, civic officials, representatives of sister sports and a number of local players. George Nicholls and Curly Gibson sang solos accompanied on the piano by Mose Yekom.

Fred Scates, president of the Peterborough Softball League, was chairman. He welcomed the visitors and thanked the various donors who had helped the reception and entertainment end of the convention. Ald. Max Sloan then lauded softball as a sport and extended a hearty welcome to the visitors during their stay here and urged them to come again. He pointed out Bill Simmons, oldest active player in the game, and the latter responded.

J. E. Sullivan, past president here, was called upon next and he praised softball and went on to point out that every sport had its place and no one game need interfere with another. He introduced R. M. Glover, past president of the O.H.A. The latter stated softball was a fine game and certainly did its share to entertain people, particularly since the depression, when there were more people with more spare time on their hands. Mr. Glover advised strict adherence to rules and added that if possible the Association should stay with the Amateur Union.

Past President Fred Grant introduced George J. Smith, father of the O.A.S.A. president, who has been a keen follower of athletics for 60 years and a strong supporter of softball since its organization. On behalf of the Association, Mr. Grant presented Mr. Smith with a token of appreciation and respect, and the latter responded and boosted Hamilton as being the place the game originated.

Percy Bond, immediate past president of the O.H.A. and an A.A.U. of C. member, congratulated the O.A.S.A. for its remarkable growth, advised a Canadian association and spoke on amateurism in this country. He was applauded for his broadminded views on amateurism and his statement that Canadian athletes should be given as much freedom in international sports as those of other countries.

Max Swanston, C.O.P.L. president and member of the O.B.A.A., spoke briefly, followed by W. H. Taylor and J. J. Duffu.. President Ernie Smith of the O.A.S.A. thanked the Peterborough hosts for their reception of the delegates spoke strongly for the Ontario Association and invited everyone to the general meeting which followed. Russ Kitchen of the Girls' Softball League was among the guests at the banquet.

MORE FREEDOM FOR AMATEURS IN NEAR FUTURE

Important Question Dealt With Halifax Conference of C. A. H. A.

PERCY BOND RETURNS.

"The most significant matter discussed at the annual C.A.H.A. meeting in Halifax last week, I thought, was the request for the A.A.U. of C. to define an amateur in Canada." This was the most important point to Percy Bond, immediate past president of the O.H.A. and vice-president on the Central Ontario branch of the A.A.U. of C., as he stated to The Examiner recently upon his return from Halifax.

There were other decisions which drew more publicity, he said, but this request—which the Amateur Union will be asked to deal with—was of far-flung importance to all amateurs in this country. And it might affect Canadian athletes in international competition and in the Olympics. What an amateur was entitled to in the way of expenses, whether or not a professional in one port might compete with amateurs in another sport—something Mr. Bond favors—in a word just how far could an athlete in this country go and still remain an amateur. Mr. Bond believes still more freedom for amateurs is likely in the near future.

Rough Hockey Struggle.

Asked his impression of the Royals-Wolverines' semi-final Allan Cup series in Halifax, last year's O.H.A. president said it was a rough series with the Halifax defence being particularly bruising. He criticized the refereeing of the final game but added that he believed the Wolverines were the better team and would have won even with better refereeing. The fans in Halifax are extremely partial, he pointed out, and never cheered a visiting player under any circumstances. In fact, a team that wasn't from the Maritimes was regarded there as a foreign outfit!

Mr. Bond was high in praise of the hospitality of the people there. The hockey officials, the Premier and Mayor and the various provincial and civic authorities made the C.A.H.A. delegates royally welcome. The C.N.R. officials also did everything possible for the visitors from the various provinces. Percy Scott, formerly of Parkdale Canoe Club, who had often brought hockey teams to Peterborough from Toronto, proved a fine host. He is Atlantic Steamship manager for the C.N.R.. He had the delegates on board Capt. Clark's ship, the Lady Hawkins, and also sponsored a sight-seeing trip on the Bon Scot, a new Harbor Commission boat.

Jas. Wry and H. Tenet helped entertain the delegates and Chas. Gillespie, president of the A.A.U. of C. in the Maritimes, arranged a trip through Moncton where they saw the wonders of the Bay of Fundy tide. The weather east of Montreal is still decidedly wintry, Mr. Bond said, with plenty of snow and cold weather right to the Atlantic.

"President Gilroy was in a tough spot," the Peterborough representative stated, "but everyone conceded that he came through with flying colors this winter and the meeting showed his popularity." Mr. Bond discussed the various rulings passed by the delegates and said the O.H.A. decided against opening up the question of commercial hockey for another year as by that time there should be more of a demand for it throughout the country. He was more than pleased with the meeting and with the trip, and boosted Halifax as being a fine place to visit. He added that he had been delegated to represent the A.A.U. of C. at the O.A.S.A. convention here Good Friday.

ROOKIE BEATS CARDINALS 3-0

Cy Blanton With Pirates Holds World Champions to One Hit.

MORE ROOKIE WINS.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The first outstanding pitching feat of the 1935 major league season goes to the credit of a rookie, Darrell "C" Blanton, strikeout king of the International League who came up to Pittsburgh just in time for one losing appearance last season.

Making his second major league start yesterday, the 27-year-old right hander from Waurika, Okla., started throwing his fast one past the world champion St. Louis Cardinals just the way he used to do it for Albany when he once fanned 20 rivals in one game. He faced only 31 batsmen, granted only one puny hit a single by Spud Davis in the second inning—let only four runners reach first and none third, struck out six and wound up with a well-earned 3 to 0 triumph.

More Rookie Wins

Blanton, however, wasn't the only pitcher nor the only "Freshman" to perform brilliantly yesterday. Silas Johnson, who was charged with 22 Cincinnati defeats last season opened his new campaign by shutting out the Cubs 4 to 0 for the Reds' third straight triumph. John Whitehead, a first-year man from Dallas, outpointed the veteran Fred Marberry on the hill, limiting the Detroit Tigers to six hits to give Chicago's White Sox a 3 to 2 triumph and Lefty Grove, the lanky "if" man of the Red Sox, chalked up a victory in his first start although he was taken out for a pinch hitter in seven when Boston scored six of the runs that brought a 10 to 4 triumph over Washington.

FRED PERRY PLAYS FOR ENGLAND AGAIN

World's Greatest Tennis Player Rejects $100,000 Offer as Movie Actor.

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP).—Patriotism has ruled Frederck John Perry off the gold standard, and so the world's amateur tennis champion sailed home to Great Britain last night to play for King and country for one more season at least.

"Of course," he admitted frankly as he packed his trunks for the Berengaria, "they may say to me, 'You've been mucking around a lot, and we don't want you,' but until they do I'm going to remain an amateur.

"I'm entirely at the disposal of the British Lawn Tennis Association," he said again, as he has stated all the way across the country from Hollywood, where he finally tore himself away from motion picture and professional temptation after an exciting visit that included a "did-and-didn't" snarring match with Joe Benjamin former prize fighter, and a long-distance conclusion of the engagement to Mary Lawson, London actress.

GRADS SEEKING WORLD HONORS

Page's Famed Squad Defends North American Crown With New Line-up.

FEATURE SWIFT PASSING.

EDMONTON, April 20.—The new 1935 model of the famous Edmonton Commercial Graduates basketball team, present holders of the North American cage crown, and the Underwood Trophy since 1923, is on the road to another series of national and international tilts in defence of its present honors.

With Coach J. Percy Page at the wheel, the Grads have yet to lose the famed international trophy. At the end of 12 years perched atop the world's hoop heap, the Grads find themselves with three new recruits on the floor, and strength reduced from the usual roster of 12 players to nine members.

Of last year's championship lineup there remains Captain Margaret Macburney, Gladys Fry, Doris Neale, Noel MacDonald, Mabel Munton and Babe Belanger.

Recruits From Gradettes

Noel MacDonald, 20, rookie star of the Grad-Tulsa series in which the Canadian girls triumphed three straight, is the youngest of the veteran six, hold-overs from other Grad campaigns.

New on the Grad machine are Etta Dann, Sophie Brown and Helen Northup, who came up this year from the ranks of the Gradettes, a Grad "farm" team which operates in Intermediate basketball circles under the watchful eye of Coach Page himself. The three were hurried into senior uniforms to help fill the gaps made by the resignations last fall of Helen Stone, Edith Stone, Jessie Innes, Evelyn Coulson and Elsie Bennie.

The Dominion finals, in which the Black and Gold will attempt to defend the Canadian crown they now hold, will be played at Windsor, Ont., this year, with the western titlists travelling east for the deciding struggles.

First clash with an international team will come May 10 when the new Grad machine will go over a "proving ground" with the Des Moines Institute of Business hoopsters, at Edmonton. The Americans have never lost a state tourney, winning 57 straight games. They reached the quarter-finals in national tourney this year when they were knocked out by the winning Tulsa Stenogs. When they step on to the floor to meet the Grads they will be strengthened by the addition of Lucille Thurman, tower of strength as centre for the Durants, giving Des Moines three All-American players for action.

Unlike other teams from the U.S., they will not be handicapped by the fatigue of long travel. They will fly to Edmonton in a special aeropane.

Will Play in Olympics

The result of the Grad-Des Moines meeting will determine the success or failure of the new Page-coached quintet.

Should the Grads turn back the Des Moines threat, turning point to success or failure in the 1935 campaign, the Canadians will meet the challenge of Tulsa for the Underwood Trophy early in June. Tulsa is the official American titlist, winning that honor in national tourney in Oklahoma.

Coach Page has expressed his intention of adding further laurels to the Canadian sport world by invading Europe in 1936 to take part in the Olympics.

Despite all efforts of Canadian basketball fans and officials to have the game for ladies included with the men's game, which has been officially recognized on the program for the first time, the Olympic authorities turned a deaf ear to the proposals.

However, the Federation Sportive Feminine Internationale, headquarterers in Paris, France, will arrange an outstanding series of international games for the Canadians, and should the Grads win, they will be officially recognized as world lady basketball champions.

Canuck Succeeds Ruth

George Selkirk

With Ruth sojourning in Boston, George Selkirk, Canadian-born outfielder, steps into the right field berth with New York Yankees and his pre-season form indicates that the club would be strengthened rather than weakened by the change. Selkirk, born in Huntsville, Ont., will certainly cover more ground in the garden than the aging Babe and has shown plenty of power with the willow.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two.

(By C. J. P.)

And so Peterborough's first annual O.A.S.A. convention passes into sporting history. Nearly a hundred visiting delegates were here Good Friday, about half of them coming in Thursday evening. All they did at the executive session Thursday was to recommend the reinstatement to amateur ranks of Leo Girard of Windsor who played pro ball in Detroit in 1930, and to enforce a rule in 1936 to have all O.A.S.A. equipment in all games marked with an official stamp. Then the lads went out and had themselves a time. Friday a.m. about 50 of 'em toured the city in cars and shortly after noon the whole gang sat down to the banquet in the Empress Hotel. The general meeting followed.

• • • • • •

Well, folks, that was the longest meeting we've ever taken in. It started at 2.45 and closed at 7.45—just five hours without a break! There was a great deal of business on the books and these softballers are anything but "yes" men. They want to know the whys and wherefores of everything and will argue over details till your head is whirling. You've got to give them credit for being thorough, but we do think things could be speeded up considerably. Put a time-limit on orators who pop up two or three times on every question and spout out at great length—yeah, if you can't partially muzzle 'em, why not slip 'em a Mickey Finn?

• • • • • •

However, the O.A.S.A. accomplished a great deal and everyone left the meeting satisfied. Prexy Ernie Smith is an A-1 man for the job and proved impartial, fearless and thorough. Financial problems took up much of the time, the general feeling being—and right out loud, too—that more rigid economy should be practised in future. Most of the proposed amendments were defeated. The dope is published in detail in today's paper. Dave Leether of Peterborough was re-elected to the executive of the Association to represent the east again. Dave, Harley Weir, Fred Scates, Johnny Russell, Dick Cowan and George Dormer were the guys who did most of the work in putting the convention across here.

• • • • • •

And it was a huge success. The delegates all enjoyed themselves to the utmost and the local league was thanked both at the banquet and at the general meeting. Eastern Ontario wasn't as well represented as we expected but this was offset by a fine showing from the western part of the Province. The banquet went over okay with a number of representatives from other sports on hand as well as civic officials. The visitors were made more than welcome. It was softballers' day all right and they made the most of it. The officers and delegates proved to be keen sportsmen, ranging from young chaps to men of 70 years of age or so—all fine fellows working for the good of this lively game. And we think they left last night with a real appreciation of Peterborough and its place in the sporting sun.

• • • • • •

Probably the most important amendment at the main session was laid over for a year. That was the one calling for all players to kick in with a two-bit registration fee and for the O.A.S.A. to forego its share of gate receipts in playoffs. It was felt that this was a mighty big question and had better be left in the hands of an executive committee to study and bring in recommendations upon at the next annual gathering. No doubt, the players are glad they wont have to cough up that quarter for another season. Our congrats to the O.A.S.A. on the way it does business—even if it did keep us glued to a chair for five straight hours!

• • • • • •

Monday is the closing date for entries in the Southend Softball League, and the loop will meet that eve at eight in All Saints' Clubhouse. Anyone interested is invited. Looks like Nationals, Orioles, All Saints and Dinty's Inn are sure starters with Cogs and one other club likely to come in, also. Last year's City Loop players are barred in this circuit till the City League schedule starts. Then, one player from each of the Southend League teams may have his name put on a reserve list by the secretary which will entitle him to play in both circuits. Officers this year are: Prexy, J. Copping; secretary, D. Pearson; treasurer, N. Seabrooke; with two from each club on the executive.

A number of the Church Softball League teams were working out yesterday. All entries are to be in Monday and it looks like the older sections will be larger but the bantam and juvenile divisions maybe smaller than previously. This may be due to the fact that managers, when comparing teams with last year, think of the outfit in the autumn rather than their spring showing—and become discouraged needlessly. Anyway, we expect to see at least 25 teams in this valuable league with all of last year's churches, plus St. Luke's, back again.

Pete King attended the O.A.L.A. annual convention yesterday in Toronto to enter a local team from the Tri-County League. We didn't hear anything of Belleville's recommendation that a Central Ontario Association be formed. Prexy Fred Waghorne, Jr. and Secretary Gene Dopp had plenty of opposition but were returned to office. Despite a decrease in entries last year, there was in increase in financial returns, and the O.A.L.A. now has a bank balance of $839, which is not bay in these times. Oshawa surprised everyone by entering the senior division, probably having an eye on the '36 Olympics.

Grab-bag—No basketball at the 'Y' tonight as the Normal school players are away . . . . The 'Y' Hobby Show entries for athletics close this evening . . . . Keene gal softballers this year lose Jean Munro, the Gainor girls, Lois McCarthy and possibly Florence Wedlock . . . . A classy mantel lamp was presented by the O.A.S.A. yesterday to G. J. Smith, grand old veteran of sports, for his work in softball . . . . Some of the delegates didn't get away till this morning . . . . Most of our baseballers are loosening up outdoors with the Spalding these days . . . . Local lads have been spotted here and there around town taking an early swim the past week or more.

Southend Softball Loop Re-organized

J. Copping was elected president of the Southend League for 1935 at the recent annual meeting. D. Pearson is secretary and N. Seabrooke treasurer, and each team will have two representatives on the executive. April 22nd was set at the closing date for entries and a meeting will be held this date at 8.00 p.m. in All Saints' Clubhouse. Anyone interested in entering a team is invited to attend.

Four entries have been received so far: Nationals, Orioles, All Saints' and Dinty's Inn. Cogs were unable to send a representative owing to their own club meeting being held at the same time. The executive decided to ask permission to erect a net in the Exhibition Grounds for the softball diamond. The schedule will start May 6th. Art Pulling was appointed umpire-in-chief, with the home club of the previous game supplying the base umpire. O.A.S.A. rules were adopted.

Following a lengthy discussion, a resolution regarding City League players was adopted as follows: "All of last year's City League players are barred from playing in the Southend League until the City League schedule starts. After that date, one player from each of the Southend League teams may have his name put on a reserve list by Secretary D. Pearson, and these players only will be entitled to play in both the City and Southend Leagues." Further business will be handled at the next league meeting, April 22nd.

RESULTS OF

The Examiner League play-off show: Dugan first; Cullen, second; Taylor and Swanson split 3rd money as they rolled a tie on pinnage for three games. The consolation award went to Dunkley, as he defeated the other three teams. Reg Doubt was high man for the night, rolling 237, 274, 200 for 711.

O O O

THERE SEEMS TO BE

a revival of enthusiasm for ten ping and with a little careful promotion a good league may shape up for next season. A smart team of big ball trundlers from the local De Laval plant have been rolling a series of games against the pick of the Duffus aggregation and at present each team has a victory, with the roll-off next week, weather permitting. This weeks scores: De Laval, 737, 733, 842—2,312; Duffus' 816, 705, 857, 2,378. Vince Anthony was high man this week with 221, 179, 169 for 569. Tommy Holyman had 174, 238, 202 for 514 and Dick Galbraith 165, 150, 189 for 504.

O O O

from K. of C. league bowled an invitation game on Cobourg alleys last week and the scores were: Cobourg, 876, 893, 933, 896—3,588; Duffus' 1038, 967, 1001, 1261—4367. The Cobourg team are to return the visit in the near future.

THE ENGINEERS

administered a nice trouncing to the Main Office boys in a grudge battle this week, winning all three games. The scores: Engineers, 1084, 1113, 1050; Office, 1036, 959, 1013. "Shorty" Burgess was high man for the night, rolling 242, 239, 277 for 758.

FRED WAGHORNE IS RE-ELECTED

President of Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association For Third Term.

HOLMES AS TREASURER.

TORONTO, April 20. (CP)—Fred Waghorne, Toronto, was re-elected for a third term as president of the Ontario Amateur Lacross Association at the annual meeting to-day, defeating W. N. Dedrick, of New Toronto, 107-60. Gene Dopp, Toronto, was returned as secretary.

Other officers elected were: E. A. E. Kopas, Fergus, first vice-president, by acclamation; J. C. Smith, Thornhill, second vice-president; Dr. E. Courville, Cornwall, third vice-president; and members of the executive council: Jack Burrell, Brampton; W. J. Marriott, Hespeler; Ed MacGillivray, Alexandria; D. Miller, St. Catharines; F. Curran, Orillia; E. MacGillivray, Niagara Falls; C. Evans, Streetsville; and C. O. Woters, Islington.

Dr. Wendell Holmes was returned by acclamation as treasurer.

The meeting decided in future entries cannot be accepted from outside the province. To prevent a recurrence of last year's trouble when Orillia defied the Canadian association's edict and played after the championship games, a rule was passed that all players signing certificates do so on the understanding they come under the jurisdiction of the O.A.L.A. for one year ending with the annual meeting.

The No Surrender gang displayed their wares to an advantage, handing a severe whipping to Silverwood's cream.

The C.N.R. flier ran through Curtis's brick yards, upsetting pile after pile of those molds, resulting in an upset for Ed Heap's brick heavers.

Those Game Wardens are on the warpath again, and caught the Dummitt construction gang fast and loose in the woods, resulting in a double fine for the Dummitt gang.

After picking up the fragments left by the C.N.R. flier, the Brickyard gang made a raid on the Wood Peckers' nest, and after a hard tussle managed to steal home with a couple of new eggs.

Cooney's Transport ran into the Antique Shop recently, but found that Rumarys' glue and braces were a little too strong for their tires and came off second best.

The No Surrender squad want suggestions for a new name for next season, especially after their colors fell before the De Laval gang in two straight.

Regent Taxi gave Cridlands another lift towards first prize when they saved them four more points at the L.O.L.

The Dummitt Construction gang built up the foundation towards the holding of the President's cup when they eliminated the Fighting Parsons.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

By McDONALD FEADER

PICTORIAL

Read This First:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girls, longs to dance with all the world at her feet. In love with her are the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu, both members of her tribe. She has only hate for her mother. Anica, but is extremely fond of her father, Girtza. The father reprimands Anica for her treatment of Consuelo. When Anica finds Consuelo dressed in her own wedding skirt, she beats her with a whip. Marcu rescue the girl and her father then turns the whip on Anica. Consuelo's father slaps her when he catches her trying to hold back money she has made dancing at the county fair. Both the sheriff and Voda, trainer of the gypsies' bear, attempt to steal a kiss from Consuelo after she finishes dancing again, but she repulses them both.

(Now go on with the story)

CHAPTER 6

"YOU WERE a long time," Marcu said.

Consuelo took no notice of him. She unloosened the tambourine from her girdle and flung it to the ground. Then she sat cross-legged before the low burning campfire and stretched her arms.

"I'm tired now." She pulled the scarf from her hair and loosened the strand with her fingers. Reaching in her pocket she drew forth a five-cent candy bar. It was limp from the heat of her body. She unpeeled the silver wrapping and bit into the sweet stuff. She noticed him then. "Want a bite?" As he refused, she continued eating until it was gone. She licked her lips and after a moment looked up at him.

"What have you got for me?"

"Something nice."

She shrugged her shoulders.

"Well, give it to me now that I am here."

"We'll talk a minute first." He was standing, arms crossed, looking down at her. "Girtza nas promised that we marry. When will you be ready?"

"Never, ugly fellow. I hate you as I would hate a low crawling snake."

"Low crawling snakes are dangerous. They carry deadly poison with them."

"Now you are talking of great crawling snakes. I am talking of the little water snakes that hiss at your feet but cannot harm you. You are like that, annoying—but not dangerous."

"We will not talk longer of snakes. When will you marry me?" It was evident Marcu was holding his temper in check.

"Never!" She yawned. "I didn't come back here to talk with you. You said you had something for me but I guess it was another one of your big promises." She got to her feet. "I go back to the fair. There are plenty of men there to tell me how beautiful I am and who will give me things without my having to talk all night first."

"Go back to the fair. I have something—but I am wasting my time. I'll give it to Anica."

"Why give her anything? She is fool enough to adore your dark skin without you paying for it."

"Shut your mouth, little slut! She's your mother—"

"—and your sweetheart!"

"You lie! You lie! Theres only one sweetheart I want!" For a moment he held her at arm's length and looked down into her eyes. His hands trembled and he thrust her from him. "Are you made of stone? Can't you see I love you?"

"Fine way you have of showing it!" She spat down at his feet. "I'm going back to the carnival."

Marcu gritted his teeth.

"When you are my woman I will beat you for all of these words. Sit down!" His hand went to the opening of his blouse.

Instantly the girl was attention.

"Have you really something pretty for me?"

"Something better than you deserve, my pig." He drew forth a wadded bit of paper and unwrapped it.

"It's a ring!" cried Consuelo.

Marcu turned it in his fingers.

"A diamond!" gasped the girl. "A diamond as big as my thumb! It's —it's beautiful!"

The stone caught the reflection of the fire and glittered with unbelievable beauty.

"Its for you," Marcu said.

"Now you are my darling one." Her tan fingers reached for the ring, but it was withdrawn from her grasp.

"For you," Marcu repeated, "if—"

The girl did not take her eyes from the ring. She had never seen anything so lovely.

"If what?" she asked, scarce heeding the words. The diamond held her like a magnet, its fire drawing fire. Her fingers touched the stone lightly and a thrill raced through her body. "Oh heavens, I have never seen such beauty! And it is mine!" Again she reached for it. "Give it to me!" she cried.

Marcu held the jewel tighter.

"You may have it, if—" The perfume of her body rose to his nostrils; the satin smoothness of her throat was very close to him. The veins rose and swelled on his forehead. "Say, you're mine, little sweetheart, and you can have the ring."

"Yes, yes," breathed the girl. What was he saying? What was she saying? She didn't know. She didn't care. The ring! The beauty of the diamond was all that mattered—all that could ever matter. It was hers now. But no! The dark fingers did not release it. His words penetrated to her mind in a maze of meaningless jumble.

"Gypsy women lie!" He pushed the ring on his little finger. It scraped the skin from his knuckle and drew the blood. Then like a starving man his lips found the bare loveliness of her throat. His arms crushed her to him.

"Consuelo, breakfast!"

A sleepy voice answered from inside the van, "I don't want any breakfast, papa."

"Now it's the first time that pig has missed food," remarked Anica.

"Consuelo, come eat your breakfast!"

"I tell you, I don't want any!"

Marcu glanced up from the tin plate.

"Why don't you let her sleep, old one? It will be more than an hour before we're under way."

"When you are married to her you will have the right to say that. Now, I'm chief here!"

Significant glances went around the circle. A fight maybe?

The two men stared at each other and Marcu was the first to give way. Then Girtza crossed to the van and parted the ragged curtains.

"Consuelo, come out here!"

The girl, lying on a pile of old blankets, rose to her elbow.

"Let me sleep, papa, I'm tired," she pleaded.

"Get up this minute, you lazy good-for-nothing." And he went back to his breakfast.

Consuelo yawned, stretched, uncurled her body and got to her feet. She knew coaxing would get her nowhere with Girtza in a mood like this. She pushed back the tangled hair from her face and straightened the mussed wedding skirt. An ironical smile crossed her lips. A wedding skirt! Now maybe sometime she would marry Marcu. She held up her hand and looked long and lovingly at the diamond. How beautiful it was—ah, how very beautiful it was! She pressed her lips to it and a sob of joy choked in her throat.

"Yes, to-day I shall tell Marcu I will marry him. I have been the mad one to hate him so. His arms are a thousand times stronger than any other chav's and besides no other one has ever given me anything as beautiful as this diamond." She held it out and turned it in the light, and saw new beauty. "In it are pearls and rubies and sapphires and emeralds. The diamond is the mother jewel. The other stones lie under her heart ready to be born and—"

"Consuelo!"

"Oh now damnation, I say!

She jumped down from the van and stood for a moment looking deeply at the scene around the campfire and it seemed that she had never seen it before. She saw Marcu, his back toward her. How tall and strong he was, how wide his shoulders, how noble his head with its black curling hair.

Again a sob rose to her throat. He was her man now. Hers! She would go to him, throw herself at his feet and tell the tribe that no longer was she a wild gypsy girl but a woman subdued and in love.

As she stood there Marcu glanced around and saw her and because he was not, at this moment, as big and brave as he looked, he turned and, moving away from the circle mumbled that he would round up the horses. His arms were burning with passion for her. She was his now—no denying that. But because of what had happened last night he was a bit afraid of her and so instead of remaining and taking a chance of her anger or scorn, he ran away.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, April 21

Sunday's horoscope holds augury of an eventful and unsettled day, with possibly great issues at stake. This may be in connection with the death of an elderly person, whose going may affect the personal fortunes and interests.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden change, with new environs, interests and prospects, these possibly instigated by the illness or passing of an elderly person.

A child born on this day may be talented and skillful in unusual lines, adventurous and ambitious but kindly, sentimental and popular.

For Monday, April 22

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of eventual promise and good fortune, but seems to be beset by much confusion, anxiety and distress. Important change seems imminent in relation to a bereavement or the passing of an elderly person of affectionate regard.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves caught in the toils of a year of much commotion, perplexity and sorrow, but these, if met with wisdom, should eventually rebound to good fortune, personal happiness and welfare.

A child born on this day may have many talents but will be fond of change and adventure and probably will have an eventful life.

17TH ANNIVERSARY OF ZEEBRUGE RECALLS GREAT NAVAL EXPLOIT

TWILIGHT RECITAL IN TRINITY CHURCH

Splendid Sacred Musical Program Preseted by Church Choir.

Beautiful music, reverently rendered, marked the program of a Twilight Recital at Trinity United Church yesterday afternoon. Sacred in essence, the entire program was appropriate to the day and the observance of the Lenten season which reached its culmination yesterday in the commemoration of the Passion and death of the Saviour.

Under the auspices of the choir of Trinity United Church and direction of the organist and choir leader, Miss Mabel Clarry, the reverent atmosphere of the recital was heightened by the subdued lighting of the church. Each number in a well-planned and artistic program was beautifully rendered and each was in keeping with the occasion. It was a very well-received presentation of music culled from the works of the great composers.

The solos were lovely renditions. Clifford Hall's superb tenor was at its best in "There Is a Green Hill Far Away" (Gounod); Miss Alma Blanchard's rich contralto was heard in "O Man of Sorrows" (Poynton-Bower.; and Miss Trucie Pearson's very true, clear soprano was most pleasing in Gounod's beautiful composition, "O Divine Redeemer."

In duett, Mrs. R. Cowan and Clifford Hall made a tuneful combination in a very fine rendering of "The Lord Is My Light," by Dudley Buck.

And an outstanding instrumental selections that was one of the best of the afternoon's programs was a rendition of Schubert's immortal "Ave Maria," by a trio composed of Miss Mabel Clarry at the organ, Tom Smith playing the 'cello, and Cecil Searles, violinist. The trio also played Tshchaikowsky's "Yearning" (None but the Weary Heart).

The choral numbers, in keeping with the artistic quality of the entire program, were also beautifully sung, in subdued, reverent, harmonious tones. They included, "God So Made the World" (Stainer); a Bach chorale, "O Sacred Heart, Now Wounded," and "In Joseph's Lovely Garden." The choir retired, at the close of the program, to a processional, "As I Survey the Wondrous Cross."

Wellington South's political history since it was organized as at present in 1903 is as interesting as unique, for while three parties have won the riding, it has been continuously represented in the House of Commons at Ottawa by the same member. It was as a Liberal that Hon. Hugh Guthrie was first elected to represent the constituency, and it was in behalf of that party that he ran successfully in 1904, 1908 and 1911. With the coming of the war, he transferred his allegiance to Union... Government as in the subsequent elections it has been as a Conservative that he was returned. Altogether, Mr. Guthrie has won eight general elections and one by-election.

For a variety of reasons, midgets have attracted special interest since time began, although their eminence in many cases has been due to circus and allied notoriety rather than to more normal claims to fame. Notable exceptions were Sir Jeffrey Hudson and his friend, Richard Gibson. The former became prominent in the seventeenth century for his performances as a courtier and the second as a painter of beautiful miniatures. Sir Jeffrey, the only midget knight in history, stood three feet six inches when booted and spurred, and Gibson was just an inch taller.

The correct definition of midget is a correctly-proportioned person less than four feet six inches high when developed. Dwarfs are not midgets, being malformed.

When Canadian sporting editors undertook to select the Dominion's outstanding athletes during 1934, they included in the big five just one girl. They didn't choose a golfer, racquet wielder or sprinter, but went 25 to 15 for Phyllis Dewar, in recognition of her sensational work as a member of the Canadian swimming team at the Empire games in London.

"The mermaid from the plains" was comparatively obscure before she showed the way in the 100 and 440-yard events, then went on to demonstrate that she was equally at home in the relay races. By winning four gold medals, this Canadian girl demonstrated that mermaids can be products of the prairies as well as of poetic sea side caves.

The history of old Bibles bears witness to the fact that bookmen have a sense of humor, otherwise it would be hard to explain their pursuit of Big Bibles, Vinegar Bibles, Wicked Bibles and other volumes notable for typographical errors. The celebrated Bug Bible was published in 1551 and contained the misprint illustrated in Psalm XCI.

MRS. CHARLES LUNN.

MILLBROOK, April 20.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The death of Mrs Charles Lunn, in her seventy-sixth year, took place at St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, on April 15, following an operation for the removal of an eye from which consciousness was never regained.

Deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Moore, and came to Canada from Belfast, Ireland, with her parents when but an infant of six weeks of age. Their first home was at Bobcaygeon, and later at Peterborough. Following her marriage to the late Charles Lunn, which took place fifty years ago March first of this year, the rest of her life was spent in Cavan and vicinity, with removal to Millbrook when Mr. Lunn decided to retire from an active agricultural career.

Predeceased by her husband by eight years and by one son, the first born of their family, Mrs. Lunn is survived by four children, two sons, Archie of Orono and Wilbert of Cavan, and two daughters, Mrs. Fred. Winslow of Cavan and Mrs. James Hoy of Clarke, also by one brother, Mr. Archie Moore, of Peterborough, and by fourteen grandchildren.

After Mr. and Mrs. Lunn came to Millbrook to make their home they lived on the fine property at the south end of Maine street, which later Mr. Lunn sold to M. McDowell, the present occupant. Removal was then made to the former Hampton home on Anne street, where they lived until her husband's death, following which Mrs. Lunn, whose maiden name was Margaret Ellen Moore, lived for seven years with her daughter, Mrs. Hoy, coming to Cavan to reside with her youngest son, Wilbert, after the death of his wife less than one year ago, and assisting with the care of the four small children who had been left motherless.

Mrs. Lunn was brought up in the former Methodist Church, going with it into Union. She was a devoted mother and a good neighbor and friend to all with whom she came in contact. The funeral took place on Wednesday at 2.30 p.m. from the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Fred. Winslow, Cavan, the Rev. A. L. Sisco conducting the services. The pallbearers were six nephews: William and John Lunn, of Cavan; Wilbert Lunn, of Orono; David and Howard Lunn, of Millbrook, and Orval Moore, of Peterborough. Interment was at Gardiner's Cemetery, Millbrook. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

Among those from outside points who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. John Patton, Mrs. James Boyde and son, of Kendal; Miss Mabel Ticker, Mr. Robert Lunn and son, Percy, of Orono; Mr. and Mrs. H. Beggs, of Pontypool; Mr. and Mrs. H. Lowery, Mrs. William Allen, Mr. Robert Lunn, of Orono; Mrs. William Lunn, Mrs. Thomas Moore, Mrs. Marvin Winslow, Mrs. Church and son, Mr. A. Moore and son, Mr. Alex. Bristow and Charlie and Joe Rusk, of Peterborough.

MRS. THOMAS LEGROW

MARMORA, April 20. (Examiner Correspondence).—On Friday afternoon an old respected resident of Marmora village passed away in Belleville hospital, where she was a patient for only a day, in the person of Mrs. Thomas Legrow.

The deceased was born in Sheffield, Ont., on Dec. 28, 1855, the daughter of Robert McGarvey and Susan McEnally, pioneer residents in that district of Irish birth.

She was a faithful member of the Anglican Church and until the past few years when her health became indifferent scarcely missed a service at St. Paul's. She was also a highly esteemed member of St. Paul's Ladies Guild. She was always ready to help any deserving object. At the 12th of July dinners no one worked harder among the voluntary cooks and servers of tables than the deceased lady. In all heru ndertakings, she displayed a rare modesty which, mingled with a cheery disposition, assured her a large quota of friends.

he is survived by her husband, three sisters—Mrs. W. R. Gray, Marmora; Mrs. E. McGarvey, Toronto, and Mrs. A. Walters, Syracuse; and one brother, Allan McGarvey, Marmora.

The funeral will be held at St. Paul's Church at 3 p.m. on Monday with Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell officiating. Interment will take place in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

MRS. MATILDA GALLAGHER.

MARMORA, April 20 (Examiner Correspondence).—News was received by relatives in Marmora on Good Friday of the death in Toronto that morning of Mrs. Matilda Gallagher.

The deceased lady, who resided with a daughter, Mrs. James O'Brien, passed away at the age of eighty-three, after an illness of a few weeks' duration. She was twice married, her first husband being the late William McCoy, of Marmora Township. Four daughters survive of this marriage: Mrs. A. S. Robertson of Blairton, Mrs. James Downard of Marmora Township, Mrs. Jas. Brien of Toronto, and Mrs. John Broadworth of Saskatoon.

Her second marriage was to James Gallagher. For years she has lived with her daughter, Mrs. O'Brien, who before making her home in Toronto, resided at White River, Ont.

Upon arrival of the C.P.R. train at Bonarlaw on Monday, the cortege will proceed to St. Paul's Church, where from 1 p.m. to 1.15 p.m. friends will be allowed to view the remains. Service will be taken by Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell, and interment will follow in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

CAMPBELLFORD SCHOOL CONCERT

Literary Society Put on Special Program to Celebrate Easter Closing.

VOTED BEST OF YEAR

CAMPBELLFORD, April 20.—(Examiner Correspondence). — As an added feature to their list of programs already completed, the Literary Society of Campbellford High School chose an all-star cast for their entertainment to serenade the arrival of the Easter vacation on the last afternoon of school.

Lois Talling was chosen critic. The program was divided into two parts.

The scene was a broadcatsing studio with President Owens (who mistook himself for Ben Bernie) at the "mike."

The school's violin orchestra, with Raymond Wragg as soloist gave a dance number, "When the Sun Bids the Moon Good-Night." J. M. Kelly followed immediately with numerous current events, whcih he rendered in a humorous manner. A guitar solo by Paul Couglin, which received a hearty encore was next. With the holidays here, the orchestra and cast joined in "Happy Days Are Here Again." Franklin McKelvie and Don Bennett, with guitar and violin respectively played "Redwing." They responded to the encore with "The Stein Song." The orchestra completed Part 1 with a dance selection.

The second part opened with another orchestral selection entitled "Thank,"s Aileen Hall singing.

Humorous Reading

Mary Murphy's reading, "Driving From the Back Seat" kept the audience in an uproar, and she responded to the encore.

Raymond Wragg and Don Bennett gave a violin duet.

Owen Hoey gave a humorous reading entitled "The Statesman," in an impressive manner. The second form piano trio rendered "March Militaire." Sandy MacDonald drew loud applause with his lively solo, "'It Aain't my Fault I'm Handsome." A violin solo "Solitudes, was delivered by Clarke McKelvie. The program closed with the old favorite, "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnett,' played by the school orchestra.

Arnold Bates and K. Wilson presided at the piano. The entire cast was always on the stage. The critic proclaimed the program as "the best of the year."

"God Save the King" closed the proceedings.

ARSENAL RETAINS ENGLISH TITLE FOR THIRD SUCCESSIVE YEAR

GUNNERS HOLD 5-POINT LEAD OVER RUNNERS

1-0 Triumph Off Middlesbrough Gives Them Safety Margin Over Sunderland.

ROKER PARK IN 1-1 TIE.

Brentford Gains Promotion By 3-2 Victory at Bradford.

LONDON, April 22 (C.P. Cable).—Arsenal won the championship of the English Football League for the third year in succession to-day defeating Middlesbrough 1-0. Two games remain to be played by the leading clubs before the season closes, but the Gunners have a margin of five points over Sunderland, their nearest rivals.

The Roker Park eleven lost its chance to remain in the race by drawing 1-1 at Preston. Manchester City in third place again fell before Portsmouth at Fratton Park, the result being 4-2.

Arsenal made a clean sweep of its holiday games, defeating Middlesbrough twice and Huddersfield, while Sunderland won and lost with Preston North-End and drew with Birmingham. Manchester lost all the games played. Portsmouth accounted for two defeats and Preston North-End the other.

Middlesbrough's poor showing in the holiday games makes it extremely likely the club will accompany Tottenham Hotspurs in the Second Division next season. Leicester City drew 2-2 with Grimsby Town, and is now one point above Middlesbrough in the standing.

Gains Promotion Position.

Brentford is certain of promotion from the Second Division, winning 3-2 at Bradford. West Ham United and Blackpool battling hard for second place in the league, played a gruelling struggle at London, the Hammers winning 2-1.

Notts County and Oldham Athletic, who will be demoted to thte Third Division, won and lost. The County was successful 3-2 against Port Vale, while Oldham was beaten 2-1 at home by Burnley.

Swamp Aldershot.

Leaders in the Southern Section of the Third Division, Charlton Athletic swamped Aldershot 4-0. At the end of the table Newport County was beaten 4-1 by Luton Town.

Doncaster Rovers went into a clear lead in the Northern Section by defeating Rotherham United 3-1, while Chester drew 1-1 with Crewe Alexandra.

FIRE DESTROYS CORKERY HOME

Spark From Chimney Believed Cause of Ennismore Fire on Saturday.

PARTLY INSURED.

(Examiner Correspondence)

ENNISMORE, April 22.—Edward Corkery residing one mile west of the Chemong bridge on the Ennismore township highway suffered a heavy property loss on Saturday afternoon when his home was completely destroyed by fire. A spark from the chimney was believed to have been the cause and although a bucket brigade was formed from the crowd that quickly gathered, the blaze got beyond control and only a few articles of furniture were saved. The loss which is estimated to be about $2,000 is partly covered by insurance.

LANDS CRIPPLED PLANE AT NIGHT WITHOUT CRASH

PASSENGERS REMAIN CALM.

Ambulances and Fire Apparatus Stand By Expecting Tragedy at Field.

WASHINGTON, April 22. — (AP) — Making the late night run from Washington to the west with six passengers, J. H. "Slim" Carmichael, pilot of a transport plane, early today turned his ship back to the capital after one of its motors had dropped out some 85 miles away and negotiated safely the perilous feat of bringing it down without damage despite disabled landing gear.

After that, he took off again in another ship a few minutes later with three of his original passengers and landed them safely in Detroit.

One of the plane's three engines "exploded", tore out of the ship and plunged to the ground near Hancock, Md., shortly after midnight. Calmly taking stock of the situation while the other two engines, affected by the shock, sputtered, "Slim" decided to return to Washington rather than to attempt a "crash landing" in the mountainous country around Hancock.

Hepburn To Plant 35 Acres Of Onions

ST. THOMAS, Ont., April 22.—(CP) — Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn has turned his thoughts temporarily from legislation to onions. The first session of the legislature completed, the premier this week-end viewed the starting of construction of his new 2,000-crate onions warehouse and dry-storage plant on his South Yarmouth farm.

This year Mr. Hepburn plans a record planting of onions. Thirty-five acres will be devoted to the vegetable, 20 acres being sown in Spanish onions. Work on the farm this year also provides for the clearing of an additional 15 acres of black-muck-soil and extensive draining.

Eight-Year-Old Boy Drops Fifty Feet

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., April 22 (A.P.). — An eight-year-old boy, Douglas Dean, fell nearly 50 feet into the Niagara gorge at the foot of Lincoln Place to-day and escaped with a cut on the head and body bruises.

The boy was playing with other youngsters, including William Dean, his older brother, along the top of the bank and tumbled over the cliff when he lost his footing. He landed in a clump of shrubbery along the side of the cliff.

Patrolmen went down a pathway and worked their way back along the bank to the shrubbery and rescued the youngster.

Who for over forty years was a law enforcement officer in this city and county, is dead at his home in the township of Otonabee in his 75th year.

VETERAN OFFICER DIES NEAR KEENE

Joseph Stewart Was For Over 40 Years a Law Enforcement Officer.

RETIRED IN 1930.

KEENE, April 22 (Examiner Correspondent). — Law enforcement officer in Peterborough for over forty years, Joseph Stewart, who had lately been living in retirement on his farm in Otonabee Township, is dead. He passed away on Sunday evening in his 75th year.

For many years the late Mr. Stewart was a constable on the City Police Force, from which he was appointed to the position of license inspector under the Ontario Government. With the passing of the system of licensed hotels, Mr. Stewart was retained as special officer for the enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act, and subsequently the Liquor Control Act.

Those duties extended over a long period of years, and constituted a record upon which Joseph Stewart earned the well-merited confidence of his superiors and also of the public.

Retired in 1930.

He was retired from the Provincial Police, under superannuation, on June 1, 1930, upon he attainment of his seventieth birthday.

While he was license inspector and enforcement officer under the O.T.A., it used to be said that conditions in Peterborough were comparatively favorable in the extent to which the law was respected and obeyed. This was the general opin-

HAUNTED HOUSE YIELDS BONES MISSING WOMAN

Victim Vanished While Patient With Prisoner—Illegal Operation Charge Pends.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 22.—(AP)—District Attorney Paul A. Mueller announced today the broken skeleton of the missing Gladys Lawson has been found at the "Haunted House" of Dr. H. E. Zimmerly in Mechanic's Grove.

Mueller, in a statement said, "We have solved the whereabouts of the body of Gladys Lawson.

"At the suggestion of Dr. F. Mitchell Carroll of Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, and Dr. Louisa Keasby, Lancaster pathologist, we called in Dr. J. W. Rice of Bucknell University, who examined the bones found at the Zimmerly farm.

"Dr. Rice has reported they are those of a young female and we are convinced they are part of the body of Gladys Lawson." Mueller said charges against the doctor will be presented to the June grand jury and, if indicted, he will be tried immediately.

Mrs. Lawson, 26-year-old Galvert, Md., blonde and mother of two children, disappeared March 16 while a patient in Zimmerly's home. During a raid on the place April 3, police found 17-year-old Elsie Miller of Rising Sun, Md., writhing in pain after three operations. The girl, whose mother was at her bedside, was rushed to a Lancaster hospital and is recovering.

Doctor Held In Jail

Zimmerly is in the Lancaster county jail, held in $10,000 bail on charges of performing illegal operations and dealing in narcotics.

Mueller announced the investigators came upon the bones in ashpiles in the musty cellar and in dark nooks and crannies about the house, the unused modern tile garage and the mud-hued barn.

Zimmerly, stooped 67-year-old country doctor whose eerie home struck fear into the hearts of the thrifty, pious country people, is defiant in jail, insisting he took Mrs. Lawson to Lancaster, March 19.

The secret of his "House of Horrors" with its blood-stained floors, cob-webbed litter of medicine and strange potions and rusty surgical instruments, was uncovered as a result of the hunt for Mrs. Lawson.

Mrs. Beland was driving the car and Senator Beland was seized with the attack when they were five miles from here, near Eastview. The body was taken to a nearby farm house, and Dr J. F. Hon. Henri Severin Beland was in his 66th year. Born at Louisville, Que., October 11, 1869, he graduated in arts from Three Rivers College and from Laval in medicine.

Geese-Hooking

AMHERST, N.S., April 22.—(CP).—Hunting wild geese with a hook and line! It's the latest trick of the poachers in these parts, according to complaints made to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and the Mounties are investigating.

The hunters—or is it fishermen—lay out trawls, long lines with fish hooks attached at intervals. The hooks are baited with corn. It's illegal to shoot the geese now, and the hunters find the trawl method has the advantage of silence.

fastest cancer producing substance ever known, made artificially at Harvard Medical School in a search for the cause of cancer, was described by the American Chemical Society here to-day.

The cancer-making material is a hydrocarbon, a combination of hydrogen and carbon called methylcholanthrene.

This substance has been previously made from acids of the bile of human being and of animals and from other chemicals. When made in that manner it also produced cancer.

But the artificially-made chemical, although it appears to be exactly like the natural one, is more deadly in speed. Dr. L. F. Fieser, who described it, said:

"This substance when placed in the skin of a pure strain of mice, produces tumors (cancer) in 53 days, which so far as known is the quickest carcinogenic action on record.

"These induced tumors have been transplanted to other mice, to ten so far, and in every case the transplanted cancers have taken. They

Mrs. David Marshall Is In Earthquake Area

Relatives of Mrs. David Marshall, Peterborough missionary in the earthquake ridden area of Formosa, sought word of her welfare without avail to-day. It is reported, however, that all Canadian missionaries escaped uninjured.

Mrs. Marshall is a native of this city, formerly Maud Ackison. Through the efforts of the Young Men's Class at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, of which church she was a member here, she was sent to the Presbyterian mission on the island of Formosa in 1919. She has continued her work on the island up to the present, since church union under the jurisdiction of the United church.

Mrs. Marshall visited her brother, A. W. Ackison of Smith township, and a sister at Indian River, in 1935, at that time unmarried. On return to Formosa she married the Rev. David Marshall, a missionary from Nova Scotia. She visited this district again in 1930, and has been in frequent communication with her relatives here.

It was not known to-day how Mrs. Marshall's station is located in regard to the areas devastated by the earthquake and fire.

HUNT TORONTO SCULPTOR AS WIFE SLAYER IN ITALY

LUCCA, Italy, April 22.—(CP).—Guido Fabri, a sculptor of Toronto and Kansas City, who recently returned here, was sought by police to-day on a charge of slaying his former wife, Carolina Giannini.

Police said the couple separated some years ago and when Fabri went across the Atlantic and that he returned several years ago penniless and ill, pleading with his former wife to take him back.

She refused, and police declared Fabri lay in wait for her, stabbed her to death, and slightly wounded the woman's mother. Fabri escaped from the scene.

TOKYO, April 22 (A.P.). — Representatives of the newspaper Asahi who reached Toyohara, the district of Formosa in the centre of the earthquake-stricken area, related harrowing accounts to-day of loss of life and destruction of property.

One of the Asahi men found the town of Naiho laid waste.

"Eight hundred houses all crumbled in the first shock,' he informed his newspaper; "none was left standing. Of Naiho's 5,000 inhabitants at least 1,000 perished in the ruins, although at nightfall only 200 corpses had been recovered.

"There were too few able-bodied persons left to draw the victims from the debris. Cries frequently arose from the ruins showing living victims were imprisoned beyond immediate help. There were poignant scenes of women and child en lying upon the corpses of relatives and wailing.

"Forty army doctors and nurses reached Naiho and worked unceasingly, but still many of the injured were not tended. Night found Naiho's thousands of homeless without a single tent, nothing to eat, and little to drink.

"Overcast skies and intermittent showers deepened the atmosphere of tragedy."

Relief workers here estimated 20 000 destitute persons have thrown themselves upon the charity of this city alone.

Threatens to Hold Up Federal Taxes if Louisiana Funds Are Withheld.

TILT ENLIVENS SENATE.

WASHINGTON, April 22. (AP).—Speaking before jammed United States senate galleries, Senator Huey P. Long, of Louisiana, began a new attack on the administration to-day, directing his fire particularly at Secretary Harold Ickes of the Interior.

Describing the Secretary of the Interior as 'The chinch bug of Chicago' Long told a tittering gallery and an attentive senate "new calamities" were being thrust upon Louisiana by the administration spokesman, Ickes, and "Secretary Henry 'Almighty' Wallace" of Agriculture.

Long's attack was propoted by the recent decision of Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, to take over administration of relief in Louisiana, and of an announced intention of Secretary Ickes to withhold public works funds from the southern state if legislation proposed by Long should be put through the Baton Rouge legislature.

TAIHOKU, Formosa, April 23.—(Tuesday)—The Japanese government today sent 50 relief parties with doctors, water, and food to aid terror-ridden survivors of earthquakes which on Saturday and Sunday devastated 2,000 square miles of this "Island Beautiful."

(At 3.15 a.m. Tuesday the Rengo News Agency announced officially in Tokyo that 3,045 persons had been killed in the quakes). Over 12,000 are believed injured.

The scorching, tropical sun beat down pitilessly all day yesterday on the misery-torn survivors, inflicting new suffering as scarcity of water assumed grave proportions. Practically all pipelines and water reservoirs had been wrecked by the earthshocks.

Thousands Seek Water

Parched thousands stumbled among the ruins of their homes in the intense heat seeking the precious flued. Relief was expected hourly, however, as carrier pigeons—the only means of communication left—carried word the Japanese army battalion stationed at Taichu had dispatched 50 relief parties with equipment to the stricken areas.

An airplane survey disclosed the area worst affected extended from Shinchiku southward to Taichu and from the eastern seacoast where the Aborigine head hunters, "The Green Savages," dwell.

Taihoku, capital of Formosa, and Tainan, old capital where most of the European residents live, were not seriously damaged.

Early estimates of property damage ranged from $3,000,000 to twice that amount.

Hundreds of persons trapped in debris could be heard appealing for assistance. Franctic relief workers, their efforts handicapped by insufficient equipment, were able to reach only a small percentage of the injured.

Governor-general Kenji Nakagawa of Taiwan announced 16,000,000 yet (about $4,500,000) in Japanese

MOSCOW DEAL CONTINUES.

Report of German-Polish Alliance Draws Little Interest.

PARIS, April 22. — (AP) —France rejected all suggestions today of entering into direct negotiations with Reichsfuehrer Hitler to ease the strained European situation.

High authorities said the government was ignoring an obvious campaign to bring about separate German conversation with Great Britain, France, and Italy. They indicated they considered the effort a German move to break up the United three-power front formed at Stresa and at Geneva.

Pact To Go Through

PARIS, April 22 (AP)—French official circles felt confident to-day negotiations for a Franco-Soviet mutual assistant pact ultimately would be brought to a successful conclusion despite the difficulties that have caused their postponement.

Since France veiws Russia as her "natural friend against mutual dangers," Pierre Laval, Foreign Minister ,is expected to carry to Moscow a text of the proposed accord acceptable to the Soviet when he visits the Russian capital early next month.

Paris newspapers, meanwhile, evinced little interest in reports of a secret German-Polish military alliance published in the provincial press. The report published in the newspaper "Salut Public" of Lyons said the treaty was signed Feb. 25 1934 and pledged the two governments to "pool their military, economic and financial resources."

Rumor Denied

(The German Foreign Office in Berlin denied the report with the observation it had been "exploded so many times that we ought not to have to deny it again").

Some official sources were pictured as expecting an offer from Hitler to enter into direct negotiations with Great Britian, France and Italy. These quarters were said to regard the prospect without great enthusiasm since it was considered as a possible move to break up the tri-power front.

Moisture Talks In Tree Growth

TORONTO, April 20. (CP).—Precipitation and not the amount of sunlight determines the growth of a tree, Toronto experts reveal following a study of tree rings. "Trees respond to drought and rainfall," said Prof. R. B. Thomson, likening tree growth to that of wheat.

Prof. R. C. Hosie declares the rings are made up of two sections, one, porous, which shows the amount of moisture and a darker one, which shows the dryness. "If the porous one is wider, we know it was a wet year and vice versa," he said.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Eastward spread of drought in United States winter wheat territory together with a sharp rise of securities, did much to hoist grain values Saturday.

Corn jumped to above all high price records that May contracts have attained since last December, and to within a cent of the season's topmost level. Increased fears were expressed by traders that a price squeeze in May corn was threatened owing to scarcity of available supplies.

Wheat closed firm, 1¼c to 1¾c higher then Thursday's finish, May $1.01½ to $1.01¾; corn, 1¼c to 1¾c up, May 91¾c to 91½c; oats, ¾c to 1c advanced, and provisions showing 5c to 20c gain.

Augmenting the upward impetus of the wheat market was the fact that next week's forecast indicated but little relief from drought. Meanwhile, there was a persistent lack of moisture in dry sections, excepting parts of Oklahoma, and the most significant feature of the crop outlook, according to a comprehensive unofficial summary ,was deterioration east of the serious drought district.

The corn market acted tight from the start, notwithstanding enlarged receipts at principal centres. Oats followed wheat and corn. Provisions advanced owing mainly to action of corn.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 22. — Wheat prices advanced on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange on Saturday, coincidently with weather reports, which forecast no relief for the drought-stricken United States south-west. Values closed ¾c to ⅞c higher.

Moderate speculative buying ensued when it became apparent scattered showers had failed to alleviate the drought in the winter wheat belt. Prices closed near the session's highest levels, May at 89¾c and July at 90½c.

A 2c price rise at Chicago was partially followed up here and aided in offsetting the lack of foreign demand for Canada's wheat, temporarily dormant as United Kingdom and other European markets enjoyed an extended Easter holiday.

The advance here, however, was somewhat subdued. Prices rose shortly after the opening, but thereafter the session was quiet.

Cash and coarse grains idled. Market news was restricted owing to Liverpool's closing until Tuesday.

1911 MARRIAGE DENIED BY MAE

Certificate Issued in Milwaukee is Accidentally Discovered by Relief Workers.

HOLLYWOOD AGOG.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. April 22.—(AP). What? Not Mae West! Not Mae West, belle of the nineties, a blushing bride in 1911?

Why, Mae Herself, the world famous lobbyist for ourves, said not long ago that she had "never found a man I liked well enough to marry."

But yesterday Hollywood, agog, was hunting up the screen star, her relatives and friends and the West family Bible to learn whether a marriage certificate issused here April 11, 1911 to one Mae West and Frank Wallace, then showing at the "Gaiety Theatre" in an act-and-dance piece, was in fact the marriage bond of the film actress.

The certificate was turned up by accident by Wisconsin relief workers assigned to re-index public records.

Beverly West, sister of the actress, seemed certain it was two other people who got married. married. "Why, Mae never married! There's a mistake somewhere" she said.

Still, some of the data on the certificate tallied with family history written into the Mae West biographies. Her age, in 1911, was 18, Wallace was 21, from Brooklyn, N.Y.

The bride's father was John West—right. Born in New York; and her mother Matilda Dilker, a native of France. Again right!

Mae's Retort

HOLLYWOOD, April 22. (AP).—Mae West last night dispelled the story of a reported marriage, 24 years ago, to a Brooklyn actor named Frank Wallace, with the typically terse and equivical statement:

"I never heard of the guy."

"Well, this certificate seems to have considerable similitude with the known facts of your life," Miss West was told. "The names of the bride's father and mother were given as John West and Matilda Dilker. Those were the names of your parents, were they not?'

"Yes, but in this case, it must have been two other girls," Mae shot back, jokingly. "As a matter of fact, there were two other Mae Wests on the stage before I came along."

After a moment's silence, explaining that she was "doing a little figuring," suddenly she burst out:

"Besides, in 1911, I hadn't reached the marrying age. How old do you think I am?"

No guess was ventured. Mental note was reserved if Mae West was 18 in 1911, she would be 42 today.

At this point, Mae concluded the interview with the remark she had received several Easter gifts—colored eggs, flowers and chocolate rabbits, but this is the first time I ever got a husband for Easter."

W. H. Moore's Home Is Destroyed By Fire

TORONTO, pril 22.—Fire of undetermined cause completely destroyed the beautiful residence of William H. Moore, M.P., former chairman of the Canadian Tariff Board, near Dunbarton last night.

The blaze was discovered about 6 o'clock, shortly after Mr. Moore had left on a visit to Oshawa. It started in an upper storey, and spread with considerable rapidity. The Pickering and Brougham fire brigades were summoned, and fought the flames for three hours, but were unable to save the mansion. They did succeed, however, in saving one of the two valuable libraries owned by Mr. Moore, but the other was a complete loss. It will be some days before the total damage can be computed.

A Double Jolt

VAN NUYS, Calif., April 20. (C.P.). — Frank Jessner stopped on the highway to aid a man who waved a red oil can and appeared to be a fellow-motorist out of gas. The apparently distressed motorist waved a pistol and took Jessner's $16.00. "Then," related Jessner, "as I struck out for the police station I ran out of gas myself."

SIX MEN NABBED AS SUSPECTED COUNTERFEITERS

Toronto Salesgirl Given Fake Bill 'Phones Police Gang's Car Number.

87 BOGUS NOTES FOUND.

TORONTO, April 22. (CP).—Six men were in custody to-day while police tried to get at the source of a series of counterfeit United States $10 banknotes, some of which had been passed in Toronto last week. Eighty-seven fake bills were being held by authorities and a search was on for more.

Five of the prisoners, arrested in Toronto Saturday, were held on a charge of uttering a counterfeit United States $10 bill. The sixth, arrested at Hamilton, Ont., 40 miles from here, was charged with vagrancy. One of the bills had been found in his room.

The arrest of the five was effected after they drove up to a Toronto bakery in an automobile and one, the police say, went inside and ordered 30 cents worth of Macaroons, tendering a new U.S. $10 note.

Girl Takes Precautions

Miss Annie Gary, 20-year-old sales clerk, was suspicious, went to the window of the shop as the auto drove away and noted its license number. She then consulted a neighboring shopkeeper, who advised her to telephone the police. She gave the license number of the auto to detective headquarters. Police examined the bill, decided it was counterfeit and gave the license number to district stations.

A constable of Claremont street station spotted the auto, stopped it and arrested its occupants.

The five arrested here were: Dominick Belcastis, 37; Cosmot Carere, 25, former light-heavyweight prizefighters; and Sam Sorbora, all of Guelph, Ont.; Samuel Ronos, 24 and Dominick Poylaisse, 33, both of Hamilton. Patsy Puggleisse, Hamilton, was held there on a vagrancy charge.

Police to-day were checking the possibility the men arrested might be associated with a group whose engraving plant in New Jersey was raided by Federal agents some weeks ago.

CAMPBELLFORD

Auto Crashes Team On the Havelock Road

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 22. — Three Campbellford youths, Max Atkinson, Harry Dooker and Carl Nicholas had a miraculous escape from serious injury on Friday night last when the motor car in which they were driving crashed into a team of horses driven by Thomas Bright on the Havelock Road near the Marcus Curle farm.

The force of the impact turned the car over in the ditch, the boys sustaining only minor cuts and a severe shaking up, while Mr. Bright suffered body bruises and a badly wrenched right arm. One horse was injured and both car and waggon wrecked. Provincial Constable Gorden Campbell investigated. The car, a coupe was owned by Craig Beattie of Campbellford.

Federal Members Prepare For Oratorical Drive Across Canada.

HEALTH PARLEY COMING.

OTTAWA, April 22. (CP).—Canada waited to-day for news from political party headquarters that will send across the country advance guards in the oratorical battle for seats in the nation's 18th Parliament.

This capital remained quiet as most government and opposition members continued to enjoy the Easter holidays, but announcement of coast-to-coast speaking tours was expected within a day or so.

Observers attached importance to a conference next Thursday between health ministers from most of the province who will meet here for sessions that may last two days. The ministers are expected to discuss such subjects as health insurance and state medicine.

Medical men in particular, unable to reach unanimous opinion on care of the sick by the state, awaited the conservations with keen interest.

Several house members already have planned speaking tours for the Easter recess which will last till May 20 and it was expected a considerable amount of preliminary campaign work would be accomplished before Parliament reconvenes.

Mr. Bennett also talked with his Ottawa physician and made what was descriged as a satisfactory report on his condition.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT MARMORA

Easter Festival Draws Large Congregations at St. Paul's and Trinity.

MARMORA, April 22.—(Examiner Correspondence.) — The Easter festival was observed at St. Paul's Anglican church by bright services which were well attended. The church was prettily decorated with spring blooms such as daffodil and narcissus.

Celebrations of Holy Communion were held at 8 a.m. and 11 a.m., the latter being choral, Maunder's setting being used. The anthem was "All Hail the Risen King" by Alfred Wooler and the solo part was taken by Mrs. S. B. Wright.

The rector preached an appropriate Easter sermon on St. Mark's version of the resurrection. There were fifty-seven communicants and twenty at the earlier service.

At Evensong the anthem was Caleb Simper's "He Hath Done Wonders," with Mrs. S. C. Boyd as soloist.

At Holy Trinity in the afternoon Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell officiated at a celebration of Holy Communion. Bright Easter hymns were sung, with Mrs. William Jones at the organ.

Mite boxes brought in at the children's service at St. Paul's at 10 a.m. yielded approximately $24 for the missionary funds of the church.

COLUMBUS' FAME GOES UNDIMMED DUBLIN ADMITS

Fruitless Atlantic Trip by St. Brendan Nearest Irish Got to Discovering America.

STEFANSSON EXPLAINS.

Explorer Claims Irishman Located Iceland in 820 — First of Chain to Continent.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, April 22 (A.P.).—As much as they would like to see some Irishman get the credit, authorities here were forced to admit to-day Columbus' claim to fame by discovering America still stands.

(Dr. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, explorer, told the Pennsylvania Historical Association in Pittsburgh on Friday the Irish discovered America six or seven centuries before Columbus did).

Irish historical authorities said the nearest an Irishman got to beating Columbus was a fruitless Atlantic trip by a saint named St. Brendan in the sixth century.

It was believed here Vatican records referred to by Stefansson (which he said would corroborate his statement) probably are copies of tales dealing with St. Brendan's voyage. The historians said he was a fine saint but a poor explorer.

The saint set out to discover "the promised land of saints," which he believed existed to the west. Legend says during the trip the party actually landed on what they thought was a new island, but that it proved to be only a huge whale taking a nap.

Undeterred, Brendan continued, and when he eventually returned home, reported he had seen a large land somewhere. "St. Brendan's Island" was duly entered on a map, but after years and years of wrangling by dubious geographers, they decided there was no such place, deciding the saint perhaps was seeing a mirage.

Stefansson Is Surprised.

NEW YORK, April 22 (A.P.).—Sitting in his study surrounded by one of the largest collections in this country, Dr. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer, to-day expressed surprise at European comment on his statement an Irishman discovered America.

He said historical authorities apparently had misunderstood his statement.

Reiterating the statement which he originally made in Pittsburgh Friday in an address to the Pennsylvania Historical Society, Dr. Stefansson declared an Irishman discovered Iceland, and "the discoverer of Iceland is entitled to be considered the first European discoverer of America."

"This is true," he said, "because from Iceland you can see Greenland and from Greenland the next island and so on west until you see the mainland."

He paused here to exhibit a quotation from a book written by an Irish monk named Dicuil in 820, in which the monk said he had spoken with clergymen who were in Iceland 25 years earlier, or about 795. The Vikings, Dr. Stefansson said, did not reach Iceland until about 850.

Millbrook Societies Will Attend Service

MILLBROOK, April 22 (Examiner Correspondence) — The Golden Links Mission Circle met on Tuesday at 7.30 p.m., with the president, Miss Jean L. Burnham in the chair, and the Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group meeting with the Circle.

Beatrice McDowell, president of the group, conducted the C.G.I.T. business while Eleanor Bigelow filled the secretary's place. Owing to the illness of the leader's mother, Mrs. (Dr.) Burnham, the meetings have been discontinued for the current season. Marjorie Skitch took the place of the Circle secretary, Anna Rowland, who was absent, and announcement was made that the senior and junior societies, the Auxiliary and the Sunshine Mission Band, with the Circle, will attend divine worship in a body on Sunday, May 5, when the special Easter service will be held, and the thankoffering taken up.

Introducing the worship period the leader told the story of the battle in heaven which resulted in the expulsion of Satan and his angels, and carried the theme on to the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ, after which a number of Bible passages were read in unison, illustrating the study of the struggle between good and evil.

Madeline McDowell gave a reading on "A Northern Missionary and his Work," at Charlton, and Mary Burnham carried on with the mission study in a talk on the Church of All Nations, Toronto, and its founder, Rev. J. I. McKay. The study book, "Eastern Women of To-day and To-morrow," was covered by Jean Burnham who took up foreign missions among the women and girls, and the need of their continuance to direct the new liberty which has come to wives and daughters through the preaching of the gospel.

An Easter hymn and the benediction closed the meeting.

A large card with the inscription "Back Home," rests beneath a silver trophy in the News Room of The Examiner, this morning, a mute witness to the prowess of the News Room's bowlers, who captured the cup in a mighty battle on Saturday evening, waged at Duffus' Bowling Academy. It was won for the first time by the News Room and wrested from them last season by the Office bowlers. Members of the News Room team, which is captained by Walter Barringer, are Bob Pearse, Maurice Dunkley and Max Glover. The second silver trophy of the evening, the Duffus' cup, went to a team captained by Harry Dugan, with members in J. H. McCauley, Ron Taylor and Bert Gray. Just Between Us Women

This is the season of the year when those who have summer places near enough to be reached by motor cars are considering going down occasionally to get gardens started and to see what a house needs in the way of refurnishing. Also those who have cottages and camps at greater distances from winter residences, are considering what they can make in the way of new decorative necessities, that will add to the comfort and attractiveness of the places when the time is ripe for going to them.

* * * * * * *

The urge to get winter places ready for the summer, and summer places ready for occupation gets into the system. This is a good thing as, if acted upon immediately, the work will be done or, at least, well under way, before the hottest weather dampens the ardor.

Walls, floors, and windows are the architectural parts that require chief thought. In these, if the place is used in the two chief vacation months only, July and August, every effort should be made to have the effect cool. Blue, grey, lavender and white are actually cool colors with green as a favorite since its suggests the out-of-doors. Reds, yellows, and heavy colors, such as browns should be used sparingly. Occasional touches of them may accent the cool tones.

* * * * * * *

Draperies, gay with flowers, may still be cool in values, as for instance, when a light background is delicately sprinkled with bright flowers as in papers in English print style, or prints and chintz, cretonnes and linen textiles, of the same type.

* * * * * * *

Geometric patterns in modernistic style are in vogue, but for the most part they are rather brilliant, peasant colors being accented, such as reds and yellows, vivid greens, purples, etc. These are excellent in camp cottages in shady woods where glints of brilliance lend character to decoration. With crude furniture suited to some of these cottages with walls of hewn wood, the peasant colors are appropriate. In old farm houses and dwellings of settler days or their reproduction, the textile should be quaint, not modern in design.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. Shepard

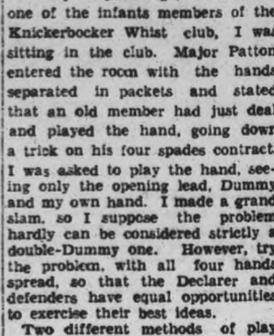
HOW MANY CAN SOUTH MAKE AT SPADES?

The declaration is six spades, doubled by West. The opening lead is the K of diamonds. How many can the Declarer make?



Nearly 25 years ago, when I was one of the infants members of the Knickerbocker Whist club, I was sitting in the club. Major Patton entered the room with the hands separated in packets and stated that an old member had just deal and played the hand, going down a trick on his four spades contract. I was asked to play the hand, seeing only the opening lead, Dummy and my own hand. I made a grand slam, so I suppose the problem hardly can be considered strictly a double-Dummy one. However, try the problem, with all four hands spread, so that the Declarer and defenders have equal opportunities to exercise their best ideas.

Two different methods of play will yield the grand slam. Here is the one I used, given below. Later on I saw Commander Liggett and George Kling make grand slams. One of them used the alternative method. About once in so often somebody sends in the hand (or one similar), stating that "it has just been dealt by some friend." How such hands do travel!

Have Dummy ruff the opening lead, to shorten its trumps, providing for subsequent strategy. Lead the ace of clubs. One round of that suit is necessary to later on rid Dummy of the blocking honors in clubs.

Lead a trump. Have Dummy ruff a diamond. Lead Dummy's last trump. Lead two more rounds of trumps. Upon them discard two of dummy's clubs. Trumps now are all down. Lead the ace of diamonds. Upon it discard Dummy's last blocking club. Spread Declarer's hand, as he holds five top clubs and must make a grand slam.

Instead of having dummy ruff the opening diamond lead, discard one of its blocking clubs and win the trick in the declaring hand. Dummy will ruff a return lead of diamonds. Lead a trump. Have Dummy ruff Declarer's last diamond. Lead one round of winning clubs. Lead Dummy's last trump. Upon them discard Dummy's two remaining clubs. Spread Declarer's hand for a grand slam. Declarer wins one diamond trick; Dummy ruffs two diamond leads; Dummy wins one club trick; declarer wins four spade tricks and he wins five club tricks.

Playing such hands properly is more than solving puzzles. It is practical drill, as every few months such a hand is dealt and must be played.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

That lovely brunette, Rochelle Hudson, believes that perfume is a most important beauty accessory. Rochelle usually applies her perfume behind her ears and on her wrists. I suppose that is a trick that she must have learned from Cleopatra, for back in that era, according to historians, Cleo used thousands of dineros just for perfume for her wrists and ears. And she had every bit as much skill in perfume application, I imagine, as Rochelle has.

Moderation is half the secret of success in using perfume. If you apply perfume too lavishly, it become blatant and overpowering, and marks you as uncultured in its use. More than that, the over-use of perfume has a hardening effect on a gal. Perfume should be undefined, mystifying. It should be used with a discreet and sparing hand, so that the resultant fragrance that emanates from you is a subtle, alluring one.

Use French Method

If you are not well-versed in the proper method of applying perfume, I can suggest nothing better than that you follow the procedure used by most French women today. For the average French woman always does a thorough job of her perfuming. And she does it so cleverly, that only a subtle fragrance results.

The smart French woman always bathes first, before using perfume, so that her body is clean and fresh. Then, with a fine atomiser, she sprays her chosen scent over her entire body. This insures even distribution. Next, before she dons her undies, she sprays them also with the perfume. She does this lightly, so that no stain remains. In like manner, she perfumes her silk stockings and the hems of her frocks. And when she walks about or dances, the motion of her skirt frees the perfume and doubles her charm and allure.

After she has dressed, the French woman then does her surface perfuming. She place a bit of her perfume in the palms of her hands and smooths it lightly over her neck, shoulders and arms. She dabs a bit of the scent behind her ears. And with perfumed fingertips, she smoothes down her eyebrows. Follow this method when applying your perfumes, and you'll find that the delicate fragrance that resultsof will greatly enhance your attractiveness and charm.

Survivor Of Titanic Lady Duff Gordon Dies

LONDON, April 22 — Lady Duff Gordon, one of the last of the dwindling survivors of the ill-fated Titanic, daughter of Douglas Sutherland, and formerly of Toronto and Guelph, and elder sister of Elinor Glyn, the novelist, died yesterday at a Putney nursing home.

With her husband, the late Sir Cosmo Edmund Duff Gordon, Lady Duff Gordon figured as a witness in the inquiry conducted in England into the 1912 disaster. Both had escaped the sinking ship in a lifeboat.

Formerly a well-known modiste Lady Duff Gordon urged adoption and maintenance of the short skirt.

EVANGELIST MILLER OPENS UP CAMPAIGN

Capacity House at Full Gospel Pentecostal Church Greets Evangelist.

The centre of religious attraction in the city seems to have changed now to be the Full Gospel Pentecostal Church, Water street. A full church greeted Evangelist Asa Miller of Kalamazoo, Mich., who is conducting a series of gospel services nightly except Monday.

Evangelists, like all other professional men differ considerably even in their own profession. Some preachers have beeen referred to as weeping prophets, cyclone prophets, sharp shooters and such like. Mr. Miller could well be termed the happy whirlwind prophet. He frequently bursts out into a spell of laughter of a manner not repulsive but to the contrary, the congregation of happy faces responding with shouts of Amen, Hallelujah and Praise the Lord.

The text for Sunday night was taken from John 20:21; Luke 24:49; with Acts 1:4. The subject being, "A Promise, A Request, A Command." "Most people do not expect anything from God, though He has given us His promise. Their conception of being Christians is just going through forms and never realize anything definite; they are even told by the preachers not to expect anything from God but just in a hazy sort of faith believe they receive something upon coming to the front, raising the hand, joining the church or playing some part in the service, whereas God who made the promise wants to make real to the soul the fulfillment of the same. When people seek God they do so expecting to have Him demonstrate the gospel in them."

Mr. Miller went on to say that unless the church would get back to where it would really believe God for a mighty demonstration of His power through the preaching of the gospel, the whole church would go to monkey religion."

The evangelist said: "We do nothing short of making a fool out of God when we, after Him making promises, declare He is unable to fulfill them, or else He did not mean what He said."

Mr. Miller urged those who were stumbling over some problem relative to their Christian experience or God's word and promises to write their questions and send in to the service and an honest endeavour would be made to answer them satisfactorily.

The lively song service was led by Mr. Jean Ayton of Toronto after which the Evangelist rendered several southern melodies accompanied with his guitar.

At the close of the service many responded to an appeal and retired to the lower auditorium for prayer and instruction from the workers.

FINDS MOTHERS BETTER TRAINERS

Fathers Seem Less Able to Adjust Selves to Ways of Growing Son.

YOUTH MORE FRANK.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 22 (CP).—Fathers are less able to adjust themselves to the ways of their growing sons than are mothers, Miss Marie Judge, executive secretary of the Travellers' Aid Society, has observed.

Scores of boys who have run away from home have been under the care of Miss Judge and her workers. Although eight out of every 10 of the boys have stepmothers, still the fathers are frequently the cause of the boys' vagrancy, she finds. And while the stepmothers usually can correct whatever there is in their own behavior which has caused the stepson to be unhappy the fathers often remain obdurate.

Fathers lose sympathy with the ways of young people sooner than mothers, Miss Judge observed. When they see their boys straining to be "on their own," to be independent, "to lead their own lives" they are often irritated and insist on keeping their sons under their thumbs.

Young people mature more quickly now than they once did, Miss Judge believes, and this is another thing that many fathers cannot understand and will not tolerate. When their boys have a growing wish to go to dances and have girl friends it is the father more often than the mother who objects. The mother usually is tolerant, but the father frequently insists that the boy is wrong in his desires and cannot be made to change his point of view.

Fathers as young as 40 or 45 often show this inability to adjust themselves to the interests of the young. Yet the same fathers might have been very affectionate and considerate when their boys were young children and they could understand them.

As to the changes in the young, Miss Judge feels that there has been a "repeal of reticence," a tendency to utter frankness. This is not always to be deplored, she believes, since in intelligent families "the parents can give splendid direction to their frank impulses." In families of lower type, however, this new lack of reserve has very unpleasant results.

Discord between parents is a frequent cause of the unhappiness of boys or girls which prompts them to leave home, the social worker said.

BUT HOW IS IT TO BE DONE?

When a politician or a newspaper says, as did the Vancouver Sun recently, that Canada must expand her markets, develop new business, open up all her resources and put her entire manpower to work, many a man who has been on relief or who has found his business dwindling must experience a feeling of exasperation at the futility of such a statement.

It amounts to about the same thing as saying to the man on relief, "What you need is a steady job at $35 a week," and to the business man, "What you need is profits of $400 a month," for everybody knows that Canada's problems would be solved if she could do the things the Sun has outlined.

Doing them, of course, is the trick.

When the total world trade has dropped to somewhere near a third of what it was in normal times, and when practically every country has built up economic barriers against foreign goods, how in the name of common sense is Canada going to expand her markets and "find new business," except as has already been done in this direction by virtue of the Empire trade agreements?

And if she cannot expand her markets in the face of the world conditions, how in turn is she going to "put her entire manpower to work"? No other country has been able to solve that problem, and if the Sun or some of the politicians who talk in the same vein as the Vancouver paper have found the way out, won't they, for the sake of all the depression victims in Canada, give the country the benefit of their wisdom?

MAKING A FEEBLE EFFORT.

The conviction held by The Examiner that Ontario is not as a province doing enough to stimulate tourist trade and to give her people the financial advantage that would follow an increased influx of summer visitors is strengthened by announcements of large appropriations made by several states across the border to finance campaigns to capture dollars from vacationists.

As a matter of fact, state agencies are spending more money for this purpose than is the Canadian Travel Bureau in its function as a tourist promotion medium for the whole Dominion, and the grants that are being made to bring visitors to their own particular section of the United States makes Ontario's appropriation look like pin money.

The state of Minnesota, for example, has voted a fund of $50,000, which is to be supplemented by $150,000 raised by interested business organizations; the New England states have agreed upon a $150,000 advertising schedule, and there are bills before the New York, Georgia and other state legislatures to provide funds up to $100,000 annually for promoting tourist trade.

That is the competition Ontario is up against in seeking to increase tourist traffic, and it must be admitted that we are making a rather feeble effort to stay up with the parade, for the intensive advertising by various districts in the United States is bound to have some effect upon the Ontario situation, attracting to some other part of their own country many Americans who otherwise might have crossed the border into this province.

Tourist traffic means large sums of fresh money put into circulation, and it is a pity that we are doing so little to capture some of this revenue for Ontario.

SAFETY CAMPAIGNS.

While much has still to be done in this respect, there are some indications that the public in the United States is awakening to the seriousness of the automobile accident record and to the necessity of action to cut down the highway toll.

Many cities are conducting their own campaigns, and while the methods that are being used may appear extreme in some instances, the mere fact that a real drive for safer driving conditions is the most encouraging feature of the whole situation, for it shows that public opinion is being aroused, and without that development it would have been idle to have looked for any worth-while improvement.

Los Angeles is the scene of perhaps the most drastic campaign for in the City of the Angels drunken drivers and other motorists involved in serious accidents not only find themselves clapped into jail on on conviction but their cars are impounded, which is a still more grievous penalty. In addition, Los Angeles has adopted the plan proposed some time ago by the Sault Ste. Marie Star, and every driver convicted of a traffic offense is required to wear on his windshield for thirty days a sticker with the legend, "I am a traffic violator." The fact that in the first three months of this year Los Angeles has had 3,000 motor accidents with 145 killed and 4,000 injured, may explain the severity of the penalties for recklessness in that city.

St. Louis has chosen a Macabre method of emphasizing the results of careless work at the wheel, for the Mound City erects a cross hung with crepe at every place where a fatal accident has occurred.

In Indianapolis ten extra motorcycle policemen have been put on duty to check up on the traffic, and the Columbus (O.) police have since the first of the year issued summons or arrested 25,000 traffic offenders in 1935, stung to action by reason of the fact that in this city of some 275,000 people there have been over 30 persons killed and over 500 injured since January 1.

NO SURPRISE IN THIS REDUCTION.

The action of the Ontario Government in reducing provincial grants to the universities of the province is in line with the general trend throughout the country, for, according to a recent statement issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, expenditures on education have been materially curtailed.

The figures show that while the expenditures for schools, colleges and universities reached their peak in 1931 with a total of $178,700,000, there was a drop to $163,945,000 in 1932 and to $146,922,000 in 1933, and while the figures for last year are not yet complete, there is reason to believe that Canada's total expenditure on education in 1934 will not exceed $130,000,000, which while still a large sum is a long way below the total four years ago.

The record shows that there has been little capital expenditure in the last three years, and the three-year decrease in teachers' salaries has been about one-third, with reductions much greater in rural schools than in the towns and cities.

After a long period of depression it is not surprising to find that educational appropriations have shrunk, for it must be admitted that in prosperous years our attitude toward such expenditures was liberal almost to the point of prodigality, and the biggest item in every municipality's budget was education.

Each community in the boom years went in lavishly for new schools and better equipment, and while the cost of these things was more or less easily assured when municipal revenues were bouyant and everybody from Hydro commissioners to the night watchman at the industrial plant was spending as if there was not the slightest possibility of a halt in the march of prosperity, the budget looks quite different when investments dry up, and jobs are scarce, and incomes disappear and large numbers of taxpayers cannot meet their obligations.

Under these conditions it is inevitable that educational expenditures must be decreased, and the only surprising feature about this particular report that the country has found it possible to spend as much as $130,000,000 on education in one year.

HOW MUCH DO WE EAT?

These scientific chaps get us all tangled up sometimes with their statistical calculations and deductions, but we believe we have caught one of them red-handed. Dr. Ralph P. Baker, of the Pennsylvania Board of Osteopathic Examiners, is credited with the statement that in a life span of fifty years the average person eats more than fifty tons of food. That is one ton of food per annum.

Just contemplate that all at once. Picture to yourself your lifetime's supply of food loaded on trucks. Taking 70 as the allotted span, that means fourteen trucks arriving at your door with five tons of foodstuffs aboard each for you to stuff yourself with from birth to death. The picture is appalling.

But Dr. Baker must be talking through his hat. Assuming he means 'short' tons, 2,000 pounds, not tons of 2,240, that means that for every day of his life a man consumes more than six pounds of food. That is two pounds weight at each meal with a bit over before going to bed. We defy any human being to do that consistently. We defy a man to do it once a day, even if he went to a chicken supper where he could have all he could eat for a quarter. We are not authorities on the subject, but we believe that Pennsylvania man is at least fifty per cent. too high in his calculations.

But we agree with him when he says the average human being eats more than is necessary and more than is good for him. Any doctor will say that half the cases that come under his notice are due, in the final analysis, to overeating, mild or serious, and he prescribes a "diet" for the sufferer.

As a matter of fact, a livestock breeder takes far more care of the feeding and the exercising of his animals than the average man does of himself.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

CAPITALISM AND GOVERNMENT INTERFERENCE.

"What is this thing called Capitalism?" is the question asked in an article in "The Maple Leaf," published by the Montreal Life Insurance Company.

The writer of the article answers his own question by saying that the capitalistic system is not a shrewd and cunning artifice by which wealth and power may be concentrated in the hands of a small group, while all others remain subservient and penniless. The capitalistic system is one that gives to the individual the right to save out of his earnings by self-denial or refraining from extravagance, and to invest such savings in property that will be his; to combine his efforts or his property with others in order to accomplish by co-operation that which he would be powerless to do alone. The twin pillars that support the capitalistic system are the right of private property and the sanctity of contracts. The capitalistic system means individualism instead of communism. It gives to the individual the means to rise from obscurity to prominence, from petty doings to great affairs. It promotes and encourages initiative, determination, endeavor. Any great enterprise is made possible only by the accumulated savings of thousands of individuals, directed by men of courage and vision and executed by technical experts.

"Our country will work out of the depression through the initiative, self-reliance, resourcefulness and industry of its individual citizens," the writer proceeds. "We are slowly accomplishing this. The low point of the depression was reached in the summer of 1933 and there has been steady improvement since that time. The more governmental interference the slower will be the recovery. There is a hesitancy on the part of corporations and individuals to embark on a program of expansion or to institute new enterprises, solely by reason of the uncertainty regarding governmental experimentation."

There is a good deal in what the writer of this article says regarding capitalism. On the other hand, when it comes to government interference in business it is evident that business and capitalism have brought on themselves much of the interference that exists to-day. There appears to be nothing wrong with the capitalistic system itself. It is the way in which some people have abused it that has brought criticism upon it. All will agree that government interference in business is undesirable, but when some interests seek a great deal of interference in tariffs and similar matters for their own benefit they cannot complain if other interests also advocate government control in certain ways for their benefit. In other words, there must be moderation in all things. —Monetary Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

As Jim Hunter would put it, "Good Easter Monday, everybody!"

Don't forget the Warriors' Ball to-night, one of the big social events of the season and a fine opportunity to assist the local branch of the Canadian Legion.

With the cutting down of Ontario Government grants to the universities comes the announcement that university fees will be increased next term. Thus the general taxpayer is going to save at the expense of the students.

The announcement that Denton Massey is coming to Peterborough on Saturday to address a Conservative organization meeting is the first sign from the local Government forces that a general election is in the offing.

Before going to bed each night I lift the cat that sleeps before the fireplace, carry him to the door that opens to the basement and dump him for the night...He turns on the top step and gives me the most disgusted look any creature ever gave another. I tell him it is very bad to go to sleep with hatred in your heart, but every night I get that dirty look.

I have read many success stories and some of them sounded true, but the most comforting one is Charles M. Schwab's — even though he wasn't telling the truth....He said his success was mostly luck.

Only very foolish or insincere men and women deny that they enjoy the company of handsome and beautiful members of the other sex.

You asked your friend for frank criticism?....O witless lad, you waste your breath! The world learned in bitterness, long ago, to sugar its criticism....You are not strong enough to take so harsh a medicine from a friend....See you an enemy.

Three centuries ago a poet, Lord Greville, wrote: "I have often thought that the nature of women was inferior to that of men in general, but superior in particular"....Such nonsense! And yet many men will agree with that today, believing that individual women may be superior to all men, but that the sex is inferior.

After months of vain search around the house I found that precious pipe I thought I had lost.... It was just where I had left it—in the pocket of an old coat.... Women may not understand my delight. Men will.

What's in the Name of Counties, Cities and Towns?

PARRY SOUND, ONTARIO

The first settlement here was about the year 1862, when Peter Gibson and his brother began building a sawmill at the mouth of the Seguin river. In 1863 William Beatty, on his way to the Magnetawan river to look over some timber limits there, stopped at the mouth of the Seguin for shelter. He bought the partly completed sawmill and really became the founder of the town.

The village was named Parry Sound by Mr. Beatty in 1863 after the bay on the shore of which the village is located. The bay was named Parry Sound some time previously, after Commander Parry.

In the heart of the 30,000 Island district of the Georgian Bay, Parry Sound is noted chiefly as a famous summer resort.

A Thought

PATIENCE

Truth wondered once if sweet thoughts
Had left her mind to stay,
Or if she had misused them
In any sort of way.

She found she needed patience
To bring them back sublime,
Sometimes in sweet, sad story,
Sometimes in simple rhyme.

Your Health

By DR. LOGAN CLENDENING

Although fundamentally, according to modern conceptions, of infectious origin, chronic arthritis always has a nutritional factor involved. Some consideration as to what the patient should eat is, therefore, inevitably a part of the treatment.

As in everything else in medical practice, what this diet should be differs with every individual case. There is no single diet that is good for all cases. There is no such thing as a diet for arthritis.

Most patients are thin and undernourished and need plenty of food of all kinds. Others are elderly and overweight and the arthiritis is probably of a degenerative nature, an expression partly of the overweight, a result partly of years of stuffing all kinds of edibles and non-edibles into the system. Such patients will require exactly the opposite kind of a diet from the first group.

Diet Foods

During the modern era of medicine various kinds of diet have been supported with more or less enthusiasm. The first was the removal of uric acid idea. What it amounted to was a no meat, no eggs, no milk diet. It still has a vogue. There are plenty of people who are saying right this minute to their husbands, wives, sisters or brothers, "Well, your rheumatism is back. You better stop eating meat for a while. Remember what Dr. Robinson told father in 1884."

Then, a few years ago, studies on the matobolism of cases of rheumatoid arthritis in young people seemed to indicate that too much sugar and starch was not a good thing. So the "low carbohydrate" diet came into vogue. Here was exactly the opposite of the old "no meat—low protein diet"—it was the low carbohydrate diet.

It is still used in many clinics and many observers speak well of it.

A Suggested Diet

But of late there has been a reaction against it. The last discussion I have noticed protests against dietary restrictions for arthritic patients and calls attention to the fact that they are usually anemic and undernourished and need a full, rich, balanced diet.

Along the same line, the work of Fletcher and Rinehart indicates that a high-vitamin diet, particularly one high in Vitamin B, may be of intensive value in arthritis.

The diet which is suggested as the result of the best modern opinion for arthritis is as follows:

Breakfast: Fresh fruit, average serving; orange or grapefruit juice, one glass; eggs, two; bacon, three slices; rye bread toast, one slice; butter, two squares; coffee with 40 per cent cream.

Dinner: Clear soup or broth; meat or fish, average serving; vegetable, average serving; fruit or vegetable salad with mayonnaise; extra vegetable, average serving; milk or buttermilk, one glass; rye bread, one slice; butter, two squares; fruit dessert.

Supper: Tomato juice, six ounces; liver, chicken or lamb chop, average serving; vegetable, cooked, average serving; fresh vegetable, as lettuce, tomatoes, celery, etc.; rye bread, one slice; milk or buttermilk, one glass; fruit dessert.

Sugar, bread and other desserts would be allowed in this dietary if the patient were not overweight.

In addition to the above, cod liver oil or one of the cod liver oil concentrates, as well as some one of the Vitamin B concentrate preparations, are usually prescribed.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

"THE CANADIAN ROB ROY"

On this date (April 22) in 1889 Donald Morrison, the "outlaw of Megantic", was taken prisoner by a trick, and one of the most sensational man hunts in Canadian history was ended. Donald was the son of Highland parents who had settled at Marsden on Lake Megantic. When he reached early manhood he went to the western states, both as an adventure and to gain money for his parents. While he was away the old folk were forced to leave their humble home as the result of the foreclosure of a mortgage. Donald came home to find his parents homeless. He swore vengeance upon the "persecutors" of his parents. Shortly afterwards a barn on this old homestead, which had been bought by a French Canadian for a trifling sum, was burned. Donald was accused of arson and a warrant was issued for his arrest. Protesting his innocence Donald went into the woods, coming out now and then to visit friends who hid him from the police.

On one occasion he was driven to safety in a "wedding party" in which, with his face hidden, he acted the bridegroom and made his getaway into the bush again. The police gave up the case, but one Warren, a self-styled "bad man" from Maine, declared he would get his man. He threatened to shoot Donald at sight. They came face to face, Warren drew first, but Donald was quicker on the trigger and fired. Warren dropped in his tracks. Morrison cooly walked back into the woods. For weeks he eluded his pursuers who were armed with a warrant for murder as well as for arson.

Months passed. Morrison evaded all the search parties. Provincial police, Montreal police and even a company of militia from Quebec city combed the country without success. Easter neared. Silas Carpenter of Montreal got Judge Dugas to announce an Easter armistice; the troops and most of the police were withdrawn, and seemingly the hunt was off for the time. Donald heard of this, went to his parents' cottage to get a change of clothes, was surprised by the police and got away, but only a few yards when he was brought down by a bullet in his thigh. He was taken to Sherbrooke jail heavily ironed and lay there until October, when he was tried and found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to 18 years' imprisonment.

He did not serve his full term. He withered away in the penitentiary and died a few years later. His body was taken back to his birthplace and given a great funeral attended by hundreds of sympathisers who regarded him as the victim of a miscarriage of justice and a monument over his grave in the cemetery at Gisla, Hampton township, Megantic county, tells his story. Many Scots of the Eastern townships even today regard Donald Morrison as a martyr killed by violation of a flag of truce.

SPRING FARM WORK HALTED BY BAD WEATHER CONDITIONS

First Seeding of Burnbrae District Takes Place on April 10.

GRASS IN FAIR SHAPE

BURNBRAE, April 22 (Examiner Correspondence) — After getting away to one of the earliest starts in local farming history, spring work is at a temporary halt here owing to backward weather. A week of spring sunshine encouraged a rush with tillage implements and a few farmers actually sowed a field of grain with the first seeding done about April 10th.

Grass and fall grains are showing fair signs of growth, though the frost danger is not past yet, but indications of a good hay yield are to be seen. Feed is not as scarce, generally, as was expected earlier in the winter, and the situation was reflected at the auction sale held by Miss Eva Milne, Menie, on Monday last when oats of good quality sold for 32 cents a bushel with hay and straw almost begging for a bidder. Grade cows sold at the same auction up to $40 each, with several around the $30 mark. A good draught horse, well along in years, realized $103, hens and pullets from 45 to 55 cents each.

Increased activity in the cattle market has been noticeable here this spring with several loads of purebred being picked up, many for the U.S. markets. Good young purebreds cows have been bringing from $60 to $85 each, being from 25 to 40 per cent higher than last year. The demand for cattle in the United States is undoubtedly the promoting factor in this increase as the price of cream and other dairy products here does not encourage higher cattle prices.

There has also been an unprecedented activity in the horse sales locally this year, with several farmers selling good individuals and buying from other districts to replace them. There is unquestionably a revival in the horse market as good heavy horses are bringing real money from $175 up, while those of average quality sell from $135 to $160 each.

The hog situation is also improving with prices up to $8 cwt. f.o.b. and $11 on the rail in the offing. Young pigs and feeders are in greater demand than at any time since the war year with weaned pigs from $3.50 to $5 each.

In spite of the extremely low egg prices, there must be a confidence in the poultry industry as evidenced by sales of baby chicks. Ernest Eagleson, local hatchery operator whose leghorns have long been noted for high production cannot supply the demand for chicks from the large electric incubator with over 1000 chicks weekly.

BEWDLEY

Among those from this vicinity who attended the funeral of the late Mr. Thomas Perrin, Peterborough were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Buttar, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Will Benson, Mrs. Frank Halligan, Mr. Wilbur Cole, Mrs. W. Sackville, Mrs. C. Manley, Miss Clara King and Mr. Eurah King.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Sidey were Sunday guests at the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Strong, Peterborough on Sunday.

Mrs. Cole and Mrs. Pilchard have returned to their homes in the village after spending the winter in Port Hope.

City Churches Thronged With Eager Worshippers

LENTEN OBSERVANCE IS BROUGHT TO A CLOSE WITH EASTER SERVICES

City's Churches Are Thronged With Eager Worshippers on Sunday.

SPECIAL EASTER MUSIC.

Cantatas Are Rendered by Many of the Choirs—Special Messages.

Easter services and music yesterday in the churches of the city were appropriate to the season and the triumphal close of the period of Lenten observance.

"The Resurrection" was the very appropriate cantata chosen by the choir of St. Andrew's United Church directed by the organist, Cyril Rice, for presentation at the service last evening. Soloists for the occasion included Mesdames Ross Williamson, A. Radford, J. Davidson, and Messrs. Clifford Hall, James Johnson, Adam Hawley. The Searles Instrumental Trio (Mrs. Searles, pianist, Cecil Searles, violinist, Tom Smith, 'cellist) played accompanying music, and Cyril Rice gave a short organ recital prior to the presentation of the Easter cantata.

Numbers by the Searles Trio included Gounod's "Ave Maria" with organ accompaniment; Braga's "La Serenata"; the Adagio from Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata"; and Tschaikowsky's "Andenta Cantabile."

Mr. Rice, in his organ recital, played Rossini's famous "Cujus Animam," from the "Stabat Mater"; Brahms' Waltz No. 15, and Adams' "Marche Religieuse." Mrs. Ross Williamson sang "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth."

All Saints' Church.

At All Saints' Church, the rector, the Rev. J. D. Paterson, preached very appropriately on "The Renewal of Hope," at the evening service, while the morning and afternoon sermons were delivered by the Rev. Professor Horan of Wycliffe College, Toronto.

At St. George's Church, the Easter services were of the usual type, with Mrs. R. King, organist, directing the music.

Cantata Rendered.

A cantata entitled "The Holy City," was another appropriate musical interpretation of the Easter message, presented last evening at George Street United Church, under the direction of the organist, David R. Howat. Soloists were Mr. and Mrs. R. Rowe, Miss Dorothy Sager, Messrs. A. V. Lillow and Max Gordon. Duets were also sung by these singers. Miss Sager sang "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" from Handel's "Messiah," at the morning service, and an Easter pageant was presented at the afternoon session of the Sunday School.

Challenge of the Cross.

A sacred drama, entitled "The Challenge of the Cross," was enacted by seven members of Murray Street Sunday School, assisted by a double quartette, at the Easter service yesterday.

Mrs. Earl Armstrong, as the evangel, called for disciples for the Master, and when responses were made, each wanted a cross of his own idea and not of the nature of the one the evangel desired them to have.

The first disciple was not anxious for a cross at all, although seemingly ready to serve, the second wanted to select her own, while the third accepted a small cross, but immediately began worshipping it, and the evangel took it away from her. The fourth disciple was willing to bear a cross but didn't want the public to see it, and while the fifth was very desirous of carrying a cross, the evangel was very doubtful as to her fitness for the high calling of Christ Jesus. "The Master seeks for the contrite heart and the broken spirit for the humble and lowly in heart."

The sixth disciple offering herself accepts the largest cross of all, but finds it so heavy, has to rest awhile but finally on a plea from the evangel rises and with each of the other disciples returning take up the crosses rejected and accept them to follow after Christ.

Between each disciple's entrance, a double quartette composed of Mrs. James Mann, Misses Eastwood, Webber, Rome and Messrs. Cocks, Clark, Palmer, and Dundas, with Arthur Collison at the piano, sang suitable hymns.

The disciples in order of entrance were Misses Isabel Scott, Marjorie Jackson, Freda Rickey, Florence Lascelles, Marion Armstrong and Elizabeth Webber. At evening service the sacred cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," was repeated, with soloists in Miss Phyllis Rome, Walter Farr and Grant Palmer, and a double quartette sung by Mrs. J. Mann, the Misses Phyllis Rome, Elizabeth Webber, Margaret Eastwood, and Messrs. Walter Cox, Grant Palmer, John Dundas, Sven Valentin. Arthur Collison, L.R.S.M., A.D.C.M. organist and choirmaster, was in charge of the musical services.

The Bishop Speaks.

At St. Peter's Cathedral, the solemnization of the great feast of Easter was commemorated by a Pontifical High Mass celebrated by His Excellency Rt. Rev. Denis O'Connor, D.D., LL.D., Bishop of Peterborough, who also spoke briefly. The Bishop was assisted by Rev. P. Costello, Rev. C. Carroll, Rev. J. T. Finn, and by three young men from St. Augustine's Seminary: Rev. Gilmour Kay, Rev. Harold Snider and Rev. Kenneth Malane.

The choir, directed by J. Minicolo, with Miss Veronica Scollard, A.T.C.M., at the organ, rendered M. E. Downe's Mass of the Blessed Sacrament, and the "Regina Coeli" at the offertory. They also presented for the first time a new "Ecce Sacerdos" sung at the entrance of the Bishop. The regular Holy Hour service was held in the evening.

At the Church of the Sacred Heart, the High Mass was solemnized by the Rev. J. J. O'Brien, and the choir, led by the organist, J. Armstrong, sang Rosewig's Mass in F and Lamballotte's "Regina Coeli." The Holy Hour was held in the evening.

At the Church of the Immaculate Conception, High Mass was solemnized by the Rev. C. Bagley. The choir, which is led by Father Begley, with Miss Leona Hummel as organist, rendered Weigland's Mass, the "Regina Coeli," and a closing hymn, "The Dawn is Purpling O'er the City." In the evening, Benediction was held.

At St. Johns Church, the morning Eucharistic Office was held to Adlam's music, Key of F, ending with the seven-fold Amen, with the organist and choir leader, F. G. Mann, L.Mus., in charge of the music of the day, which included a morning anthem by Maunder, "This is The Day," and in the evening, two compositions arranged by Smart; "Ye Choirs of New Jerusalem" and a choral Magnificat and Nunc Dimittus.

At St. Luke's Church, Woodward's Communion Service in E flat, was sung in the morning, with Miss Margaret Flowers, choir leader, at the organ. The music included the regular Easter chants, canticles and anthems; also a special anthem by Turner, with Harry Flowers as soloist.

At St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, the morning subject by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, was "Why Accept the Easter Faith?" and the sacrament of Baptism was administered to ten children at the morning service. Special music in charge of the organist and choir leader, M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., included Stainer's anthem, "They Have Taken Away My Lord," and a solo by Mrs. Bruce Munro, "The Conqueror." In the evening, the sermon was entitled, "He Is Risen," and music included an anthem of the same title; Cooke's "This Is the Day," and Stainer's anthem, "Awake, Thou That Sleepest," with a glorious conclusion in the "Hallelujah' chorus from "The Messiah."

At Mark Street United Church, the choir, with Harry Northrop, A.T.C.M., as orangist and director, presented a sacred cantata, "The Promise of Easter," at the evening service, with soloists in Mrs. R. Mitchell, Mrs. Hepburn, Mrs. Max Pomeroy, Miss Margaret Agnew, and Messrs. Allan Stevens, Rufus Payne, Len Agnew and William Smith. "What Does Easter Mean to You?" was the title of the morning sermon by the pastor, the Rev. C. D. Daniel.

"An Easter Message"

At Park Street Baptist Church, the pastor, the Rev. G. K. Tyler, B.Th., gave "An Easter Message" in the morning, and the choir, led by the organist, Stanley Northrop, A.T.C.M., presented an Easter cantata entitled "The Thorn-Crowned King," in the evening, after which the ordinance of baptism took place. Soloists for the cantata included Mrs. L. P. Campbell, Miss Marion Pilling, Miss Martha Sands, Messrs. Adam Sands, Clarence Corbett, George Batley, Maurice Dunkley, George Tranter.

At St. James' United Church, the pastor, the Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, spoke in the morning on "The Resurrection at the Crucifixion," and in the evening on "Jesus Himself drew near and went with him."

The music, led by the organist, F. Stevens, was appropriate to the day, with an anthem in which Mrs. Cecil Searles was soloist. Solos were also sung by Mrs. H. F. Doig and Mrs. E. Kitney.

At Knox United Church, the subjects chosen by the pastor, the Rev. W. McDonald, B.A., B.D., were "If Not—Then What? But Now!" for the morning service, and "On the Road of the Risen Lord", in the evening. Miss Marion Ralston sang "How Shall I Sing that Majesty?" and J. Donaldson's solo was "The Resurrection Morn." The anthems were Handel's "And the Glory of the Lord" Omnipotent Reigneth." Musical services were in charge of the organist and choir leader, W. R. Potter.

At Trinity United Church, the music was especially appropriate to the occasion, led by the organist, Miss Mabel Clarry. It included a 16th century French melody, "Hallelujah! Hallelujah!" a ladies' chorus "The Bells of Easter Morn"; a ladies' carol, Alleluia"; and a carol-anthem, "In Joseph's Lovely Garden". The Anthem, "Christ the Lord is Risen Again" was sung at both services, and Clifford Hall had a tenor solo, "Were You there when they Crucified My Lord?" The Rev. H. Seymour of Springville preached at the morning service, with the pastor, the Rev. F. M. Wootton, in charge.

At the Salvation Army Temple, Adjutant and Mrs. Neil Warrander were in charge. Guests who took part in the Easter-day services were Adjutant Haynes of Toronto and ten cadets from the Training College.

"The Doctrine of Atonement" was the special Easter Sunday subject at the Christian Science Temple, where services were held in the morning and evening and Sunday School at half past nine o'clock in the morning.

Flower Shades Seem To Be Chief Vogue For Spring Wear

By LISBETH.

FLOWER SHADES seem particularly appropriate for spring wearing apparel. And flower shades are blooming all over the sartorial world, even while chilly weather still holds sway in many parts of the continent.

What could be springier, so to speak, than a daffodil yellow and sapphire blue evening frock of moire, as shown, left, worn by young Catharine Williams, daughter of that favorite of the silent pictures, Kathryn Williams?

The skirt has a petal flare, and broad shoulder line, which combines the two shades. The sash is blue.

Catharine is appearing in a talkie with her famous mother.

Another lovely evening gown is worn by Rochelle Hudson, right. It is silver shot velvet of rosy hue, with square decolletage and scarf collar. It is one of those "simple but elegant" gowns.

Now for sportswear. The sweater still holds first place in the heart of this type of costume. Anne Darling's vacunna sweater of yellow and brown has an attached scarf for throat protection and side buckles for adjusting the fit. With a beige skirt, yellow and brown hat and chamois brougues, Anne is as smart as possible for spring sports, be they what they may.

ATHENS, April 22.—(A P)—Guests at a popular Greek restaurant thought today another revolution had broken out when they heard a voice shout "Cheers for Venizelos; down with his political opponents."

An investigation disclosed the cries came from a parrot—trained before former Premier Kleutherios Venizelos fell from Grace as a result of his unsuccessful revolt.

All a Mistake

SYDNEY, N.S., April 22.—(C P)—Frank McDonald was in an indignant mood when he stalked into the police station. His overcoat pockets had been rifled, he said, and in a hospital at that.

He named a suspect. "That fellow had a guilty look," he confided as he and an officer went to the hospital.

There they found McDonald's pockets untouched. It was no wonder, though, he couldn't find his belongings in the coat he wore, for it belonged to someone else. He had taken it by mistake as he left the hospital.

BUCK WINCH IS UNDER ARREST

Charged in Police Court With Illegal Possession of Revolver.

REMANDED ONE DAY.

Recently granted suspended sentence on a charge of vagrancy, after undertaking to leave the city, Reginald "Buck" Winch was re-arrested here on Saturday.

Appearing before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., he was remanded until to-morrow morning, without election or plea on a charge of illegal possession of a revolver.

Informed by the bench that he was to be remanded owing to the fact that to-day is a statutory holiday, the defendant readily agreed and requested that he be allowed to communicate with a lawyer.

When Winch was formerly in custody on March 28, Chief Newhall refused to divulge the reasons for bringing the charge of vagrancy against the accused. He said that Winch had been out of the city for about seven years, and, according to reports, had been living in Montreal.

The Examiner learns that Winch is believed to have some interest in property here, and that he returned to the city a week ago Sunday in connection with business matters affecting the estate in which he is interested.

LANDS CRIPPLED PLANE AT NIGHT

condition of their ship, all the lights of which had gone out when the engine tore loose, reassured their passengers, and set about making arrangements for what they had every reason to believe might be a bad crash when they attempted to land in Washington.

They decided their chances would be better at Bolling Field than at Washington Airport, because of the better facilities at the army post for handling crashes. They communicated their decision by wireless to Washington and asked that preparations be made for a crash.

Landing Gear Smashed.

They could see the missing engine, in its plunge, had struck the left landing wheel, the tire of which was badly torn. They could not tell how much damage had been done to the landing gear itself.

During the flight back to Washington Taylor went among the passengers testing and tightening safety belts. While all the passengers realized the seriousness of the predicament, it was said they all remained calm.

At Bolling Field the boundary and flood lights were turned on, fire apparatus and ambulances brought out in readiness and crash and medical parties formed.

Between 12.30 and 1 o'clock this morning the disabled plane appeared and passed low over the field. Observers said he made a magnificent landing, keeping the damaged side high until most of the speed had been lost. The plane then made a fast 180-degree ground loop and came to rest without any damage due to the landing.

Did Rudy Vallee Sock Heckler On The Jaw?

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., April 22.—(CP)—Rudy Vallee has gone back to New York, as have most of the week-end's Easter paraders, so no one knows for certain whether the orchestra leader did 'sock' a heckler on the jaw as reports have it.

The story that went the rounds on the boardwalk depicted Vallee as the artist whose patience was exhausted by a critic who threw pennies on the stage of the steel pier. When the pennies gave out, the heckler resorted to harsh words.

Then, the story goes, Vallee deserted his orchestra, vaulted into the audience and planted a neat right uppercut on the heckler's jaw.

The Institute decided at their March meeting to give three dollars as prize money for the rural school fair next fall. Mrs. C. Smith and Mrs. R. A. Sutton arranged the contests for which the money will be awarded.

The girls will be asked to work a button-hole of stated size on print, and the boys to darn a grain bag with cord; each contestant to furnish the material with which to work, and the work to be done at the fair. Prizes of 75, 40, 20 and 10 cents will be awarded in each class.

Conference in Guelph

A girls' conference was announced to be held at Guelph from May 7 in the evening until May 11 a.m. The sum of three dollars will be charged for board for that period.

The garden club for girls was also announced.

It was decided to hold a garden party during the summer; the place and date to be set later.

At the May meeting which will be in charge of Group II., the annual election of officers will be held, and the roll call will be answered by paying the fees.

Mrs. Hunter was in charge of an interesting program, during which Mrs. Ray Syer read a good paper on "The application of business methods in our meetings." Mrs. Syer also read interesting current events which had been prepared by Mrs. Albert Tinney. Mrs. Hunter read a paper on "Jack Miner."

Group II., of which Mrs. Hunter is convenor, served lunch and a short social time was enjoyed.

There was an exchange of slips and seeds.

Mrs. Milton Carr sponsored a vote of thanks to the hostess and committee in charge, which was heartily clapped.

SUPREME COURT OPENS TUESDAY

Mr. Justice Kelly Will Preside at Non-Jury Sessions.

LIGHT DOCKET.

Litigation of varied flavours will be brought to the attention of Mr. Justice Kelly when the Spring non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario are opened here Tuesday. One automobile accident case, suits for payment of sums from a bonding company and an insurance company and a financial dispute between a Toronto beverage firm and a local man are among the cases on the light docket.

John D. McIsaac, for his seven-year-old son, Michael McIsaac, both of this city, is seeking $4,500 damages from Bruce Parker of Peterborough as the result of an accident on October 17, 1934. The plaintiffs claim that Parker was driving negligently and ran down Michael McIsaac while proceeding south on Reid street north of the Dublin street intersection, causing a broken hip, facial and back injuries and leg injuries. In defense, Parker will maintain that the boy ran out suddenly from behind a bread wagon and disclaim responsibility. E. F. Sheehy is acting for the plaintiffs and Fasken, Robertson, Aitchison, Pickup and Calvin of Toronto for the defendant.

A suit by Kuntz Beverages of Toronto, now Consolidated Beverages Limited, against Roy Legan of Peterborough for $4,009.49 is on the list. The company names the sum as one owing them from Logan in accordance with a contract with him for the sale of their beverages in Peterborough. Maintaining that he was associated with the company as an agent rather than a purchaser, Logan is counter-claiming $7,000 as a sum justly owing him from the company. The legal representatives in the case are Jennings and Clute of Toronto for the plaintiffs and W. J. Arthur Pair for the defendant.

Insurance Suit

Fred Varty is demanding payment of $3,500 insurance by the Farmers' Central Mutual Fire Insurance Company to cover loss he claims he suffered from a fire at his Belmont township home. The defendants deny that they had undertaken to insure the plaintiff's property. G. N. Gordon, K.C., is acting for the plaintiffs and Campbell Grant of Walkerton for the defendants.

Claiming that the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company is responsible for a loss suffered through the default of one of its employees by reason of a bonding contract, the Canadian Woodmen of the World firm is asking $3,509.93 and an additional reimbursement of $800 from the Guaranty Company. The bonding company asserts that the plaintiffs did not adhere to the conditions of the bonding. G. N. Gordon is acting for the plaintiffs and Phelan and Richardson for the defendants.

Large Congregations At Easter Services

CAMPBELLFORD, April 22 (Examiner Staff Correspondence. — Easter services in all the churches drew large congregations on Sunday. Simpson Black preached both services, Miss Margaret Dickson of Peterborough singing the solo "With Verdure Clad," and an anthem by the choir, "Christ Is Risen" (Maunder). The morning sermon was "Christ Is Risen," and for the evening, "If Easter Be Not True—" Anthems for the evening were: "They have Taken Away My Lord" and "King of Kings"; solo, "Easter Days," by Mrs. J. Cowell.

At Christ Church, Rev. T. H. Floyd conducted both services, Mr. Hilton Beatty giving an address at the special children's service in the afternoon. There was special music by the choir. Mrs. F. de F. Free was soloist at the morning service and Miss Margaret Dickson of Peterborough for the evening.

Our King and Queen on their Silver Jubilee

The King and Queen Enjoying a Sideshow

Despite the seriousness of the work they had to do, the King and Queen enjoyed a brighter side of life. It was not a case of all work and no play.

Our pictures today, for instance, show an informal snapshot of King George and Queen Mary as they set out in a miniature train at Wembley Exposition. It clearly illustrates the fact that the rulers of the Empire were not haughty rulers, not incapable of being "human."

Biographers record many occasions when the King and Queen forgot, seemingly, their position. One such occasion was during the war when the King was visiting the trenches in France. When lunch time came, there were no canteens nearby, and the King ate a box lunch, along with the other members of his staff, standing up, using a flat car as a table.

There are occasions when the Queen, whom one is always told is so formal, relents and forgets that she is a queen and really enjoys herself. One such picture shows her at a table, quite unconscious of the fact that she is waving her fan, keeping time to the music of a children's chorus.

The interest of the entire royal family in the affairs of the people is not just motivated by a sense of duty, but by a real personal interest—they like to take part and be one of the people.

Step out into the SUNSHINE

How many days of your life are lost in feeling under par? How many hours which might be bright are dull and dispirited?

Half-hearted days are frequently due to common constipation. It clouds your waking hours, takes the sunshine out of living. Yet it can be overcome so easily by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also a fine source of iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Isn't this "cereal way" pleasanter than risking patent medicines?

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. With each meal, in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal or use in muffins, breads, omelets, etc. In the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

"Costly new motor roads between Chikunan and Koryu are ruined," he reported. "Wide fissures are everywhere. Of Koryu's 3,600 house not 10 are left habitable.

'I reached Koryu at nightfall and found the survivors mostly gathered in the railway station lying on thin mats or huddled around a few candles. Night-long sleep was impossible because of terror engendered by constant aftershocks.

"Only two physicians were at Koryu to minister to hundreds of injured. Throughout the night crowds of persons wandered about seeking missing relatives and calling names in the darkness.

"I saw many men carrying injured women and children. Many have gone insane."

12,000 INJURED

government funds were available to aid the victims of one of the worst castastrophies in modern Oriental history.

It was understood that Emperor Hirohito also was to make a donation from the privy purse.

Recurring after-shocks combined with the outbreak of fires and the wailing of the injured and homeless made the hours after the two main quakes a period of continual terror.

Men, women, and children wander through the debris shouting the names of lost relatives. The correspondent for the Rengo (Japanese News Agency) told of seeing long rows of injured persons lying on mats along the roadside screaming with pain.

250,000 Without Homes.

Early official estimates placed the number of homeless at 250,000 and the number of dwellings destroyed at 16,493. At least 20,000 othetr structures were damaged.

Most of the victims of the catastrophe were of Chinese racial origin, since Formosa was taken from China by Japan in the war of 1895.

The destruction centred in a district of approximately 40 miles in diameter, including scores of populous villages in Taichu and Shinchiku Provinces.

Especially stricken were the towns of Naiho, where 581 died, including the "head-man" (corresponding to the mayor); Kamoika, with 445 killed; Taiko, where fires added to the destruction; Byoritsu, which saw a majority of its houses levelled; Kori, Chikunan, and Taianko.

The epicentre of the earthquake was near Toyohara only six miles below the surface, accounting for the unusually heavy damage.

Rain Adds to Discomforts.

The entire main street of Taichu was destroyed. Intermittent rains following the quakes added to the discomforts of the homeless.

Alarming rumors were circulated concerning imaginary tidal waves and aboriginal uprisings causing police to arrest several persons suspected of disseminating the false reports.

The shocks opened fissures three and four feet wide in modern highways, twisted the rails of railroad lines and shattered oil pipe lines and gas mains.

With all normal transportation sytems out of commission, the most primitive means, including makeshift litters and bullock carts, were employed to carry the injured to the first aid centres.

The disaster was the worst to afflict Japanese territory since the earthquake of 1923, which devastated Tokyo and Yokohama with a loss of approximately 100,000 lives.

Formosa, meaning "beautiful," was the name conferred on this island by early Portuguese explorers. The Chinese name for it is Taiwan.

Camphor, rice, sugar and tea are its principal products. Much of the island's terrain is mountainous, the ranges on the eastern coast fronting on the Pacific rising to a height of 7,000 feet, forming what has been called the highest cliffs in the world.

Formosa is about 220 miles long and from 60 to 80 miles wide, its area roughly corresponding with that of Ireland.

Missionaries Escape.

Although there are many North Americans and Europeans residing in the island's larger centres, none was believed to have been among the victims of the disaster. Most of them live outside the earthquake zone where many are stationed at missionary posts.

Airplane surveys of the stricken area indicated the devastation extended over an area of approximately 2,000 square miles from Schinchiku city on the north and Taichu city on the south from the sea coast on the east as far as the mountains where the Aborigine headhunters dwell.

Official reports, however, said the Aborigines' flimsy villages escaped with comparatively slight damage.

Clearing weather after the night of rain enabled the army, navy and Red Cross to accelerate their relief efforts. Rescue crews turned to the grisly task of searching for additional dead in the wreckage of thousands of homes.

Early estimates of the damage totalled 20,000,000 yen (approximately $5,500,000). The figure was relatively small in view of the wide extent of the catastrophe, because the striken area is largely agricultural.

RUMOR KIPLING TO BE HONORED

"Forgotten Man of English Letters" Expected to be on Jubilee List.

NEAR 70TH BIRTHDAY.

LONDON, April 22. — To Rudyard Kipling, often referred to as "the forgotten man of English letters," may come at last some measure of official homage which his legion of admirers has thought is long overdue.

Now approaching his 70th birthday, the writer is being mentioned as an almost certain recipient of garlands from the King's Jubilee honors list.

Strong representations, it is understood, have been made in behalf of the "soldiers' poet," who was the first Englishman to receive the Nobel Prize for poetry almost 30 years ago. Although his famous "Recessional" was chosen to be read at Queen Victoria's second jubilee in 1897, he has been given no official part on the program of celebrations this year of King George's 25 years on the throne.

For more than 30 years Kipling has been living quietly at his home near Burwash, in Sussex, in which he has not permitted a telephone to be installed.

It was recalled Kipling was a close friend for many years of Mark Twain. Speaking once in London, Twain remarked Kipling even then enjoyed the distinction of "being the only living person of the head of a nation whose voice is heard around the world."

OCCUPANTS ESCAPE CAR TURNS TURTLE

Stouffville Couple Have Narrow Escape From Injury While on Way to Hastings.

HASTINGS, April 22 (Examiner Correspondence). — While motoring from Stouffville on Saturday night to spend Easter with A. M. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. H. Quibel had a miraculous escape from serious injury. In making the turn at the Dutch Line corner, the driver turned just a little too far, hitting a piece of sod, causing the heavy car to go in the ditch and turn on its side. Fortunately neither of the occupants were injured, but the car was badly damaged.

Firms Fight On Brand Syrup Fed To Quints

MONTREAL, April 22.—(CP)—The Dionne quintuplets are to be leading figures in a court battle here as two companies join issue as to which brand of corn syrup was used to feed the famous sisters during the early days of their lives at Callander,Ont.

Mr. Justice F. J. Curran in Superior Court Saturday ordered the dispute to go to trial here, dismissing the defendants' claim they were outside jurisdiction of Montreal.

Suit was taken by Canada Starch Company, Limited for $10,000 damages and an injunction to restrain advertising of the St. Lawrence Starch Company's corn syrup as the product given the infants.

Defendants are the St. Lawrence Company, the St. Lawrence Starch Company, W. H. Alderson, one of the original official guardians of the babies and two advertising agencies.

Date of the opening of the case has not been announced.

Lad Loses Both Legs, Has Chance Of Life

LONDON, Ont., April 22 (CP) — With both legs amputated after he slipped beneath the wheels of a freight train on the Canadian Pacific Railway Saturday, Robert Gay, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gay, was reported as resting as comfortaby as could be expected in Victoria Hospital to-day. Blood transfusions have been given in a desperate attempt to save his life.

Bravery of the child won the hearts of everyone at the hospital as he sat up and watched the doctors put the tourniquet on his legs in preparation for the amputations.

A house doctor at Victoria Hospital gave his blood to save the child. Nearly a pint of the young doctor's blood was injected into the boy's arteries and to-day Dr. A. S. Duncan reported the boy as showing improvement.

"Providing complications do not arise I think he should survive," Dr. Duncan said.

ABOLITION OF INCOME TAX IS STRONGLY URGED

Federal Levy Must be Abolished Capt. W. C. C. Innes Argues Before Rotary Club.

ECONOMIES SUGGESTED.

Unification of the Railways and Fewer Provincial Governments Would Save Millions.

Abolition of the Federal income tax was strongly urged before the Peterborough Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon to-day by Capt. W. C. C. Innes of the Commercial Bureau of Canada, who declared that there must be some relief from the present burden of taxation or business men would be simply taxed out of business.

The income tax could be eliminated, the speaker submitted, by means of a program of economies, including the unification of Canadian railways and the amalgamation of the provincial administrations in the Prairie Provinces and the Maritimes, thus wiping out four of the present provincial governments. No political party would have courage to carry out the reforms or to abolish the income tax, Capt. Innis admitted, so that the solution lay in the formation of a national government.

The speaker, who was introduced by President J. Fred Reed, said that he represented an association of 1,000 Canadian business men who were vitally interested in taxation. They were in favor of the abolition of the Federal income tax which they submitted had only been imposed as a war measure, was a violation of the British North America Act, and should have been abandoned at the end of hostilities. Whereas Great Britain had only one income tax, Canada had two and in some province three income taxes, and in this connection, Capt. Innes predicted a provincial income tax for Ontario before the end of the present year.

Admittedly under present conditions the revenue from the Federal income tax was needed, but the speaker said that economies could be effected that would do away with that need. The most pressing problem, he submitted, was the railway situation. The Canadian National Railways were costing the taxpayers of the country some ninety million dollars a year and since 1919 had increased the national debt by two and a half billion dollars. Co-operation, as recommended by the Duff Commission, had proved a failure, the ruining of the C.P.R. railway would be a national calamity, and in his opinion the only solution was unification with the operation of the Canadian National Railways turned over to the privately owned railway for a term of years, with the ownership of the Canadian National Railway property being held by the government. Within five years, he argued, unification would earn enough revenue to take care of the C.N.R. indebtedness and the Canadian taxpayer would be relieved of a tax burden of ninety millions a year.

Canada, too, was suffering from too much government and duplication of governmental services; the annual bill for federal, provincial and municipal governments being $900,000,000. By forming one government in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, and another in the three Maritime provinces some sixty millions a year could be saved.

Capt. Innes admitted that only a national government could bring about these reforms. His association, he said, was absolutely opposed to government in business and demanded the right of way for individual enterprise.

A vote of thanks was extended to the speaker on motion of Rotarian R. F. Downey.

Rotarian Ross L. Dobbin presented the report of the nominating committee, naming the following ten members for next year's board of directors, five to be elected at next Monday's luncheon: C. G. Graham, D. A. Loomis, Jack Gillespie, Roy Goring, Tom Carley, Stan. C. Warne, Art Runions, Elmer Metcalfe, Gordon Hall, James Dutton.

Sons Of England Guests Of Society

Williams, Mrs. William Davis, dialogue Miss Miles and Mr Miles, duet Mrs. Davies and A. Kirkcaldy. The program closed with a full chorus of the St. David's Society singing.

King's Birds

OTTAWA, April 22 (C.P.).—If the person shooting Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King's pet pigeons was a policeman, the Liberal leader will not have to worry any more about the welfare of the birds.

Last week Mr. King telephoned Mayor P. J. Nolan and protested vigorously that someone was killing the birds. Mayor Nolan asked for an investigation and police said one of their officers was authorized to shoot the birds if residents complained they were a nuisance.

The policeman will still be able to shoot pigeons, but not within a considerable distance of Mr. King's home, Mayor Nolan said.

shek's armies has increased the toll.

Conditions in the famine area were vividly described by a representative of the Interprovincial Drought Relief Association who visited the Lishui district, 30 miles southwest of Nanking.

"In one place I found a group of famine sufferers encamped in a grove of about 100 elm trees. They had stripped the bark clean from all the trees and had used it for food," he said. "In other districts, the hunger-crazed peasant families were mixing bran and water with earth and eating it for what little nourishment it might contain."

Discovery at London.

The U. S. Public Health Service is cooperating with Harvard in this study. It is a development of discoveries at the London Free Cancer Hospital last year that the substances which can be made from bile acids produce cancer.

Harvard undertook to synthesize the cancer producing material, in order that it might be studied better. A month ago Dr. Fieser and associates announced successful synthesis.

The progress reported to-day was the rapid effect of the artificial material. The speedy effect was unexpected and may assist in finding the clue to the cause of cancer.

Chemically speaking its extra potency is like having the cause of the disease stick its head up where it may be seen.

Dr. Fieser said a five-side ring of hydrogen and carbon atoms which is part of the molecule of this chemical, appears to be the specific irritant by which it produces cancer.

So the Harvard chemists are making experiments in changing the composition of this ring. These modified substances will be tested on animals to learn if possible what part of the ring is responsible for cancer.

What the chemists hope to discover ultimately is whether the human body out of its own bile acid, manufactures methyl-chloranthercene, or similar chemicals, all of which produce cancer.

No evidence that the body does this has been found, nor has it been found the body cannot manufacture cancer producing substances out of bile acids.

Suspect Unknown Process.

Chemists and physicians suspect some as yet unknown chemistry process in the living body may be making the cancer substance. One strong ground for suspicion is the fact not only the bile acid technically named desorychoic acid, but the human sex hormones, and the alcohol-like substances in the body called sterols, all are chemically much like the known cancer-producing hydrocarbons.

Dr. Fieser's associates in to-day's report were E. B. Herschberg, M. Newman, and A. M. Seligman.

Plunge Kills Major Wife Dies In Rescue

LONDON, April 22 (CP Cable)—Major Robert Hemphill, Commandant of the Royal Military Academy Hospital at Woolwich, and his wife were killed in Cornwall to-day in a 70-foot fall from a cliff. Major Hemphill slipped and fell to his death while his wife, attempting to go to his rescue, herself fell and suffered fatal injuries.

Major Hemphill, noted amateur rugger player of some years ago, was attempting to photograph a buzzard's nest at the time. His 15-year-old son Peter was with him when he fell, and ran for his mother, when she disappeared herself the lad clambered down the cliff but was unable to do anything. The body of the Major fell into the sea and was carried away by the outgoing tide. Mrs. Hemphill lived for only a short time.

DETROIT BISHOP BACKS COUGHLIN

Approves Priest's Sunday Afternoon Broadcasts After Long Silence.

"PREACHES JUST CODES."

DETROIT, April 22 (AP)—The Rt. Rev. Michael G. Gallagher, Bishop of Detroit, has thrown the full authority of his episcopal jurisdiction behind the radio addresses of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, organizer of the National Union for Social Justice.

Bishop Gallagher spoke on Father Coughlin's regular Sunday afternoon broadcast, last of his regular winter program. He said: "Freely I give him my imprimatur on his written word and freley I give my approval on the spoken word. May both be circulated without objection throughout the land.

"Under my jurisdiction he preaches the just codes of the old law and its commandments. He teaches Christ and the fathers and the doctrines of the church. He preaches the encyclicals and applies them as he has been ordered to do.

"Until a lawful superior rules otherwise, I stand steadfastly behind this priest, Father Coughlin, encouraging him to do the will of God as he sees it and I see it."

Bishop Gallagher's address, which Father Coughlin afterward described as "one of the most historic addresses ever made in this nation," broke the silence which has surrounded the Detroit episcopacy during Father Coughlin's sensational encounters with Gen. Hugh Johnson, former NRA chief, on the position of a Catholic priest in discussing national affairs.

DEATH STRIKES SENATOR BELAND

With the Mackenzie King victory in 1921, Dr. Beland became Minister of Soldiers, Civil Re-establishment and Health, and was summoned to the Senate in 1925.

Prisoner 3 Years.

Dr. Beland was in Belgium when war broke out in 1914. He volunteered for service with the Belgian surgical hospital staff and was taken prisoner. Later he wrote "My Three Years in a German Prison," a volume dealing with his experiences. The King of the Belgians made him a Commander of the Order of the Crown in 1919.

He was married three times, first in 1895 to Flore Gerin Lajoie, who die in 1908, and again in July, 1914, to Adolphine Cogels of Antwerp. She died in 1916.

NO FIRES.

Now that furnaces are being allowed to die out with the arrival of warmer weather, the chimney fire nuisance in the city is abating. While almost every week-end up to the present this spring has brought a half-dozen blazes from defective pipes and dirty chimneys, the firemen found time to take it easy yesterday.

The Department has received no fire calls since last Thursday.

CAR REPORTED STOLEN.

While visiting with the Chief Magistrate of the City last evening, Dr. E. M. Crough was the victim of automobile thieves. Theft of the car was reported to City Police late last night and some hours later at 5.30 a.m., the abandoned vehicle was recovered on Monaghan road.

Fly-Casters Will Give Demonstration

Local anglers waiting for the opening of the fishing season will be given something to stay their restlessness this week-end. Under the auspices of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association, several prominent Canadian fly-casters will give a demonstration of their art at the Armouries Saturday afternoon.

Among those who will perform are Fraser Galbraith, Stanley Howard and Jack Aid, all Torontoninas of championship calibre. They will offer instruction to any interested. The general public will be welcomed to the exhibition.

If the weather is favorable, the demonstrations will be carried out in front of the Armouries. Otherwise, the casting will be done within the building.

The assistance of the talented casters has been secured through the Toronto Angling Association.

TAG DAY NETS SOCIETY $286

Lively Demand for Tags Officials of Humane Society Report.

GRATEFUL TO PUBLIC.

The Peterborough Humane Society received $286 in their tag day appeal to the public on Saturday. The people responded so generously during the morning that the violet boutonnieres had to be reduced from three handmade flowers to one.

"We regretted having to do this," one of the members said to-day, "but next year we shall have a larger supply. The lively demand for tags was the best evidence that the people of Peterborough appreciate the work of the Humane Society, and their co-operation will be a new stimulus to the members for the coming year."

The convenors of taggers were Miss Mabel Wyatt and Mrs. E. S. Martin, assisted by members of the executive ,and Mrs. A. M. Young was convenor of automobiles. The Society had as assistants the Shetland ponies "Brownie" and "Peggy" owned by Mr. and Mrs. Morley Powell; also Jimmy Shields' splendid St. Bernard "Biddy"; Dorell Heffernan's collie "Rover"; and Fred L. Roy's fox terrier "Pete."

The Society is extremely grateful to the public for making this year's "Violet Day," a fine success; also to the taggers whose assistance was invaluable; to Mr. Harold Morrow for the use of his store on George street, and to Mr. J. W. Watson for many courtesies.

Alan Neal's Condition Reported Favorable

The condition of Alan Neal, son of Dr. and Mrs. F. C. Neal of this city who suffered a fracture of the spine when he fell down an elevator shaft in Toronto, Friday, was reported favourable to-day. Lying in a cast in the Toronto General Hospital, he is resting easily.

Although paralysis was at first feared, the fracture is now not considered serious. The cast will be worn for three months or more but it is hoped that he will be in condition to leave the hospital in a matter of weeks.

The mystery of the accident was cleared up by the young man's own story as he lay on his hospital bed over the week-end. He had been called to the Babayan Building at 34 King Street East where an advertising firm in which he is employed is located, on business Friday afternoon. Stepping into the building out of the bright sunlight his eyes were unaccustomed to the darkness in the hallway. He saw the open elevator doorway and stepped in, unaware that the elevator was at an upper floor.

Lowly Phils Are Again Doomed

Castoff Giants and Rookie Will Be No Help to Nats This Season.

PRETTY GOOD OUTFIELD

BY CUSTOMS and apparently by preference a second division habitue, the Phils show no signs of reforming this year. The only change that seems possible for the team is for the worse. The Phils finished seventh last year, 13½ games behind the sixth-place Dodgers. Since then the club has managed to rid itself of the league's best shortstop, Dick Bartell, accepting in exchange a group composed mostly of banjo hitters and ukulele pitchers.

How is one going to win with a club that lost two out of three of its games last year and traded off its brightest star during the winter? If you have the answer, writer Jimmy Wilson, manager. He'll be glad to know. One of Jimmy's problems is the pitching. The Phils have one great pitcher, Curt Davis, who won 18 games last year. How he did it I don't know—I never could figure how Houdini could take an elephant from his hip pocket, either. Next best was Fidgety Phil Collins, who won 13. These two men won 32 of the Phils' 56 victories last year, which lets you know what indifferent kind of people the rest of the pitchers were.

AFTER SERVING his stretch as manager of the Phils, Jimmy Wilson could qualify as a traffic expert. Last year parade after parade of pitchers, from bench to box to showers, was conducted in orderly fashion, without loss of a single life. This year, with Giant cast-offs and rookies from here and there added to the pitching department, congestion on the path from slab to showers will be terrific. Adoption of lockstep may be the only way out. And more showers must be built.

To leave this morbid subject and speak of brighter things, the Phils are strong in two departments. There's a pretty good outfield, composed of Ethan Allen in left, George Watkins in centre, and Johnny Moore in right. Reserves in this the Nazi or any other kind of department, however, do not rate salute. They are Morris Arnovich, from the Northern League, and Eddie Boland, semi-pro, from Long Island. The catching is o.k., too. Jimmy Wilson and Al Todd will do whatever catching there is.

A HURRIED look at the infield reveals no Honus Wagners. There is Dolph Camilli at first, Lou Chiozza at second, Johnny Vergez or Buck Walters at third, and Blondy (they-can't-beat-us) Ryan at short. The reserves are all young fellows named Elmer, who have enjoyed the training trip immensely, except for occasional home-sickness, an ailment easily alleviated. Of the recruit pitchers, Slim Jim Bivin, from Galveston, seems to have the best stuff. He won 20 games last year, helping his team to win the Texas League pennant. Sounds although he didn't deserve the demotion.

Orioles Win Two From Reds —Bisons Beat Chiefs With 6-run Rally.

(By the Associated Press)

Baltimore Orioles can look back upon Easter Sunday, 1935, as the day when they finally found some pitching strength to back up some of the dizziest home run exploits the International League ever has seen.

Despite 11 home runs the Orioles lost three of their first four games but yesterday Harry Gumbert and Beryl Richmond came through with effective pitching and Baltimore took both ends of a double bill from the Rochester Red Wings by 4-1 scores.

Gumbert, optioned to the Orioles by the Phillies the day before, kept six Rochester hits well scattered and fanned eight in the opener while Richmond gave up only five safeties in the seven-inning nightcap. Home runs by Roy Spencer in the first game and by George Puccinelli in the second swelled Baltimore's total four-base wallops to 13 in six games. Puccinelli's was his fifth of the young season.

Hold First Place

Meanwhile Toronto Maple Leafs and Buffalo Bisons were holding on to joint possession of first place, each with three victories and one defeat. Buffalo rapped Reg Grabowski out of the box with a six-run out burst in the third inning and won from Syracuse 10-5. Ken Ash held Syracuse under control until the eighth but retired then with one out and Owen Carroll mopped up and held the Chiefs safe.

Earl Cook's effective seven-hit pitching carried Toronto to a 7-2 triumph over Albany Senators. Ray Prim held the Leafs to three hits in the first eight innings and then retired for a pinch hitter. Ace Elliott, who finished up, was walloped for three hits which with two walks and a wild pitch gave the Leafs four more runs in the ninth.

Buddy Hall's pinch single in the sixth with the bases filled gave Newark Bears the two runs they needed to top Montreal Royals 4-3. Ben Sankey accounted for the first two Montreal runs with a home run in the fifth and a triple that drove in Pete Stack in the sixth, then scored the third Royal run in the ninth.

The Leafs and the Royals both won their Saturday fixtures. Toronto walloped Syracuse 15-6 while Montreal handed Baltimore a 7-4 defeat marked by a free-for-all in the ninth innings.

Chance Sun Still Favorite For Derby

Roman Soldier and Plat Eye Get More Consideration After Saturday Wins.

NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP)—Dropping odds on Roman Soldier and Plat Eye, reflecting their latest victories at Arlington Downs and Havre de Grace, failed today to disturb Chance Sun's position as favorite for the Kentucky Derby.

The latest quotations in Tom Kearney's book show Chance Sun, Joseph E. Widener's Belmont Futurity winner of last year, a 4 to 1 choice for the Churchill Downs fixture to be run May 4.

Roman Soldier's easy victory in the $15,000 added Texas Derby at Arlington Downs yesterday sent the odds on that son of Cohort—Miamba tumbling from 15 to 1 and 8 to 1 and left the Sachsenmaier and Reuter colt in fourth place in the Dermy list.

William Woodward's Omaha, whose daddy, Gallant Fox, won the Bluegrass classic in 1930, is ranked a joint second with Mrs. W. M. Jeffords' Commonwealth, in the Derby odds. Both are held at 6 to 1.

Plat Eye, one of Mrs. Payne Whitney's hopes for three-year-old honors, whipped seven other Derby candidates in the Chesapeake Stakes at Havre de Grace yesterday and Kearney immediately quoted the son of Chicle at 10 to 1. Previously Plat Eye had been a 15 to 1 shot.

Ruth Successor Gets 'Glad Hand' But Yanks Lose

George Selkirk, the Canadian youngster filling Babe Ruth's shoes in right field for the New York Yankees, shown as he was warmly welcomed by "Ruthville"—the right field bleacher section of Yankee stadium, as he took the field against Boston Red Sox in the American league's opening game. Wearing the Babe's big number 3 on his uniform, Selkirk turned in a fine fielding game and rapped out one of the Yanks' two hits. The warm welcome from the fans surprised and encouraged him. Lower, Billy Werber, Red Sox third baseman, sliding safely into the plate to score only run and beat the Yankees. Catcher Dickey dropped a third strike and threw to first. Gehrig threw low on the return, and 25,000 fans saw Werber tally the lone run on the error.

Leafs Are Second In Gate Attendance

NEW YORK, April 22. —(CP)— National Hockey League receipts for the 1934-35 season showed a gain over the previous campaign, President Frank Calder revealed today. Total receipts for the season just ended were $1,702,285.20, compared with $1,636,259 for the previous season.

The New York Rangers again led the list with a total of $290,417, followed by the Toronto Maple Leafs, $253,292. The New York Americans showed the biggest increase with receipts of $217,291, as against $174,192 for the 1933-34 season.

WINDSOR, April 22. — Barely lasting to stave off a desperate last-quarter drive by Alumnae, the renowned Edmonton Grads nosed out Windsor-Walkerville Alumnae, 34 to 30, here on Saturday night in the first of a best-three-of-five series for the Canadian ladies' basketball championship.

A bad first-half display by Alumnae, coupled with a splendid individual performance by "Babe" Belanger, petite Edmonton forward, was the main reason for the Windsor team's defeat.

TIGERS TRIUMPH 3-2.

Owen's Grounder Scores Gehringer With Winning Run —Yanks Also Win.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., A.P. Sports Writer.)

These warm spring afternoons a man's fancy seems naturally to turn to the nearest ball game. And with the exciting doings of the first few days of the season it turned out yesterday for a total of approximately 126,000 fans at seven major league contests — a figure which compared to the 148,000 total for the season's eight opening games.

Pittsburgh hit the high mark when 28,000, the largest crowd since 1929, turned out to see the Pirates take a 6-1 licking from the world champion St. Louis Cardinals and Dizzy Dean. The great Diz, slightly injured the opening day, came back to hurl a five-hit game and lost a shutout when Arky Vaughan connected for a home run in the second inning.

Another banner crowd, more than 26,000, saw the Cards, World Series rivals, Detroit Tigers, go 13 innings to pull out a 3-2 decision over the Cleveland Indians, who played their third extra inning tilt of the season.

Yanks Beat Athletics.

At New York 25,000 turned out for a pitching battle between Bill Dietrich and Johnny Allen in which the Yankees pulled out a 4-3 triumph over the Athletics, and some 22,000 Boston fans cheered Babe Ruth's second National League home run, then watched Brooklyn go on to belt out an 8-1 victory over the Braves.

The other gatherings were 10,000 at Chicago, where Cincinnati Reds repelled a ninth inning uprising by the Cubs, then went on to win in the 12th, 8-4; 9,000 at St. Louis, where the White Sox defeated the Browns 6-5 in 10 innings; and 6,000 at Philadelphia to see the Phillies and Giants battle to a 4-4 tie in a game ended in the 10th by the Sunday six o'clock law. The Red Sox and Washington were rained out, and re-scheduled their game for to-day.

Schoolboy Rowe's relief hurling was a big factor in Detroit's triumph and the winning run off Monte Pearson came on Charley Gehringer's double, two intentional passes, and a hot single by Marvin Owen.

The Yankees got only three hits off Dietrich, but they put them all together in the eighth when a walk and an error to score their four runs. Ruth's homer was of little avail when the Dodgers piled a dozen hits on top of four errors to make it three out of four for the series.

Among their other feats, the Reds pulled off the season's first triple play in the 11th when Augie Galan lined into first baseman Jim Bottomley's hands with two runners streaking down the paths.

Yesterday's Stars

(By the Associated Press.)

Jim Bottomley, Reds—Started triple play and double play and made two hits in 12-inning triumph over Chicago Cubs.

Tony Cuccinello, Dodgers — Hit three singles and drove in three runs against Braves.

Jimmy Dykes, White Sox—Singled and scored winning run in tenth to beat Browns 6-5.

Dizzy Dean, Cardinals—Limited Pirates to five hits.

Schoolboy Rowe, Tigers—Shut out Indians with four hits in seven innings of relief hurling.

Mel Ott, Giants — Clouted homer and three singles in tie game with Phillies.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX J. MORRISON

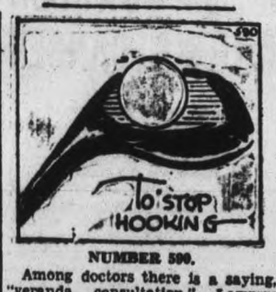
Number 589

Live and learn, the old folks say. As I go along there are many things I haven't learned. One is the difference between tolerance and a kind of stupidity.

Unknown to me a young fellow managed to include himself in a foursome recently. He has played less than a dozen rounds, taken no instructions and worse yet, thinks he can get by without them.

On every tee he would top the ball. It would roll into the rough about 50 feet. Then he would tee up a second and often a third ball and do the very same thing. He spoiled the morning for the entire foursome.

I tried to be tolerant. After all each man has a perfect right to play the game as he sees fit. But, those who try to play correctly also have the right to avoid the trials of playing with indifferent players.



NUMBER 590.

Among doctors there is a saying, "veranda consultation." Lawyers term the same thing "curbstone advice." The equivalent in golf is "course tips."

Men who really know their business will tell you that the front porch sidewalk and the golf course are the wrong places to seek remedies. Yet golfers insist on picking up their pointers as they go along —cafeteria style.

Even this is better than trying to ignore your faults. For example, if you find your shots curving to the left or hooking, make it a point to address the heel of the clubhead to the ball.

If you strike the ball in the centre or with some point inside the centre of the clubface, it is bound to fly straight; or with a slight curve to the right. Remember, at the first sign of a hook, address the heel of the clubface to the ball.

An omnibus conductor and a street car dispatcher read the lesson at a special service at Upper Holloway, N. Baptist Church, which was attended by omnibus and street car men from all London.

TRY HUT SYSTEM IN SUMMER TIME

Architect Advises Against Verandahs for the Holiday Cottage.

TORONTO, April 22.—(CP).—In a series of lectures on "Architecture in Modern Life" delivered weekly under the auspices of the University of Toronto and sponsored by the Toronto Chapter of the Ontario Association of Architects, Mackenzie Waters, B.A.Sc., dealt recently with the summer home. As to any tradition in architecture in summer homes he declared there wasn't any, but notes some of the possibilities of the adaptation of modern European ideas to summer homes here.

"The greatest problem," he declared, in speaking about the summer home, "seems to me to be the handling of the ubiquitous verandah. If it is agreed that some form of outdoor shelter is necessary, let us find a better solution than to encircle our living and bedrooms with long galleries on which it is only fit to play such games as musical chairs or to develop hurdlers who will eventually learn to leap 12 outstretched pairs of legs in five seconds flat.

"I suggest as substitute for the verandahs covered links joining the living and sleeping portions of cottages. Or, again, an isolated room commanding a view and connected to the main building by a covered passage. In short, build your summer place on the hut system, the indivisual units being connected or disconnected, whichever serves your purpose best."

Johnson Accuses Hank Greenberg and Jo Jo White of Rough Tactics.

TORRID WARFARE LOOMS.

DETROIT, April 22.—A year ago Cleveland was rated by most critics as having the best team in the American League "on paper," but an outfit whose attack was thoroughly lacking in fire and inspiration.

It now appears that Walter Johnson, the Big Train has found a means of arousing his men. The answer is Detroits champion Tigers.

Openly declaring Cleveland would no longer tolerate Detroit's rough-riding tactics, Johnson Saturday sounded the blow-off that may light the fuse to torrid warfare between the two clubs this Summer.

Johnson Mad

The usually mild-mannered and soft-spoken "Barney" mentioned Jo Jo White and Hank Greenberg as the two Tigers who have done most toward arousing his Indians.

"Detroit last season tried to run us off our own field and got away with it," he said. "Especially were Greenberg and White employing uncalled for tactics.

"I have never been one to encourage my men toward rough behaviour on the diamond. But I am convinced the Cleveland ball club is tired of such things as White and Greenberg have pulled in the past. We'll have no more of it."

Johnson recalled the final series of the year between the two clubs in Cleveland last season.

"We almost had a free-for-all fight that day when Greenberg rode into Kamm at third base with his spikes in the air," he said. "Kamm is one who plays the game fairly and squarely. Greenberg had no reason to resort to such tactics."

Johnson also related an incident concerning Jo Jo White which his men refuse to forget.

"White bumped into an Indian at second base and then remarked: 'Get in my way and I'll do it again.'

"Such stuff as that has just got to stop," Johnson reiterated. "Cleveland is not going to stand by idle and be chased right off our own ball field."

Asked how he felt about the Cochrane Who is Cleveland?" episode, Johnson smiled knowingly and said:

Tore Up Letter

"Cochrane says he didn't say it. The fellow who wrote it says he did. Anyway, I got his letter saying he didn't say it. He asked me to post it in the clubhouse. We were on the road and had no clubhouse. I told the Cleveland newspapermen about the letter and then tore it up."

Johnson declared that Hank Greenberg had been doing "too much popping off down south."

"I understand he has been telling people how Hildebrand threw at the Tigers," said Barney. 'In all my pitching days I never threw at batters. I don't believe in any such thing and never instruct my pitchers to do this.

"We're just tired of fellows behaving like Greenberg and White, that's all. Cleveland won't stand for it. Detroit might just as well realize that at the start of the season."

Concerning his own club, Johnson declared it to be much stronger than last season.

"I'll make the prediction now, that Rose Berger will become one of the greatest second basemen baseball has known," he declared. "Berger has the stuff that may make our ball club. At least, I am convinced he has."

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two.

Honey—aside from being an overworked romantic expression—had its supporters among the athletes, it seems. A week or so back we mentioned the value of honey as a quick energy builder in gruelling sports. Since then, we have received several booklets, a couple of letters and the word of half a dozen athletes that all bear out our statement. The booklets and letters all point to numerous examples in rowing, running, tennis, hockey, etc., where this digested food has proven to be a quick pickup for flagging energy. In fact, we gather that this product of the bees will do everything but step in there and single with the bases full in the ninth.

Examiner Bowling League held a banquet at the Empress Hotel Saturday eve and cups and prizes for the season were distributed. Members of the Duffus Cup winning team were: Harry Dugan, Mac McCauley, Ron Taylor and Bert Grey. Winners of the Jake Solomon Challenge Cup were: Walter Barringer, Max Glover, Maurice Dunkley and Bob Pearse, representing the News Room. Chairman of the pleasant affair was R. M. Glover. The captains of the losing team—with their usual modesty—spent most of their congratulatory speeches with explanations of how only tough luck kept them from winning out.

Annual meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club is this Wednesday e'en at 7.30 by your gold watch and chain in the Chamber of Commerce. This is the session which began three weeks ago but was postponed when a "putsch" was engineered by the Left Wing—said L.W. maintaining there had been insufficient notice of the gathering. The gabfest can now go ahead as scheduled with the election of officers and plans for next season which may be worked out through the summer. Everyone interested is invited to sit in at this general meeting.

A little quiet snooping around has shown us that there are many experienced—as well as the ambitious but inexperienced—gals who may be kept out of softball here this year unless the proposed junior section to the local loop is formed. With only a couple of Peterborough teams in the senior section, there is all kinds of material left which should be absorbed in another series. It's up to the sportsmen here who are interested in girls' athletics to back teams. The cost is extremely low, practically nil, in fact, in this circuit; and managers can be obtained easily to take care of the signing up and practising of players.

And how about an early meeting of the City Baseball League to get things started off? The last of April surely is the time to get things going and already prospective baseballers are starting to workout. With the Senior Ball Club promising Riverside Park to the City Leaguers for games and Knotty Lee offering to help them with pointers on the game, it's time to get to work and see if this loop can't be built up to resemble the City League structures of other years in this town. We expect four bantam squads, possibly two or three juveniles and at least one junior team in the circuit. Older local players will be pretty well taken care of this summer by our senior and two intermediate teams in O.B.A.A. competition.

• • • • • • •

A number of seniors and prospective seniors held a light workout here Saturday, tossing the ball around or shagging flies, but the first call-to-arms will be issued this week-end. Knotty Lee expects to have all prospects practising by Saturday if the weather is right. Whether or not that pre-seasonal series with Smith's Falls is arranged, it's getting around time for the C.O.B.I. squads to start conditioning for the long summer grind. Riverside Park is exceptionally dry this spring but of course will require some work on the infield—not to mention a rebuilt fence on the east side.

• • • • • • •

Kingston Ponies opened their training Saturday under Manager Joe Daley, and they predict a better season than 1933 when they went to the O.B.A.A. finals. Pitchers include Bud Clancy, Yammy Jamieson and Speedy St. Louis—who may catch also—with Jimmy Arneil and one other guy billed to do the receiving. Stone on first, Quinn on second, Compeau at short and Smith on third is the infield. Outfield will likely see McQuade in right, Scrutton in centre and Webber in left. This is about the way the Ponies will line up although some of the intermediates may earn a berth before the schedule opens. The Ponies will be plenty tough this summer.

Bunny Morgansen, sports writer on the Toronto Telegram, had some tough luck over the week-end on his way to Hastings, where he visits frequently. His new Studebaker caught fire and Bunny had both hands burnt before putting it out. The rotund Bunny maintains he extinguished the blaze faster than the Maroons put out the Leafs in the Stanley Cup series! At any rate, it might be argued that the writer of "Sports Slants" came closer to setting the world on fire than did Toronto athletes the past winter. Tough luck, fella, but it isn't the first time you've been in a hot spot.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX J. MORRISON

NUMBER 591

Slicing is the result of a combination of faults. In fact it requires more faults to slice than it does to cause any other error in the flight of the ball. Likewise it calls for the strongest corrective measure.

The one thing that will do most to straighten out your swing is to keep your head in the right position. It is the greatest factor in determining the direction in which the ball will fly.

The main thing is to keep your head from turning forward in the downswing. To do this you must try to turn it to the right as you swing down.

It is not enough to figure that you'll just keep your chin pointed toward the ball— you must try to turn your head to the right. Then the action of your body, arms and hands will be balanced for direction.

The first of over one thousand Scout beacons in the British Isles will be lighted by the King himself from the Buckingham Palace, where he will push a button which will light the fire located in Hyde Park.

In Canada also, beacons will be lighted by Scouts. In Winnipeg the beacon will be lighted by the Chief Scout himself, while in Alberta all the fires will be lighted by the use of flint and steel.

Local Scout authorities are negotiating with the local Jubilee committee and authorities to obtain permission to light a beacon. If permitted, the beacon would be held on Armour Hill, with a fitting program in the evening.

Matinee Idols Out

HOLLYWOOD, April 20—Motion pictures have been putting the matinee idol out of business. Tailored, barbered, debonair, he was the backbone of the legitimate theater. But to-day, where are the John Drews, Leo Dietrichsteins, E. H. Sotherns or others of that mold.

Hollywood perhaps numbers a scant half-dozen candidates for the title. Clark Gable is one. Carl Brisson, Francis Lederer, Tullio Carminati and John Boles are others who fit the matinee idol tradition to perfection.

The secret of being a true matinee idol, perhaps, is to pay as much attention to the solitary admirer as to the thousands reached through national publicity.

'Our Gang' Comedies Fourteen Years Old

HOLLYWOOD, April 20. — Movie stars may come and go, but "Our Gang" goes on forever!

Paradoxically that is the truth although individual members come and go with time. The ingenious comedy producer, Hal Roach, first conceived the creation of "Our Gang" fourteen years ago. Since then, there has been approximately 4 complete "gangs," each being interlocked by a few of the older members as it takes from three to four years to make one complete cycle of new talent.

Those familiar with the early "gangs" will remember Mickey Daniels, Mary Kornman, Joe Cobb, Farina, Sunshine Sammy and Jack Condon.

A Canadian play will start the Festival. From the pen of P. N. Jacobson, the one-act drama "..... And Sendeth Rain," will be given by the Royal Bank Players of Montreal as the first of a three-presentation opening night. It will be followed by "Saturday Night," vehicle of a group from the London Little Theatre. Philip Johnson is the author of this play. The final production of the first night will be "Rizzio's Boots," by Hal D. Stewart, played by the Ottawa Drama League group that won the Eastern Ontario competition.

The competition this year will bring 21 groups to the stage of the Little Theatre, with entries from 13 cities and eight provinces of the Dominion.

The Bessborough Trophy, symbolic of the best in Canada amateur acting and production, may be won by a play in either English or French. The teams from London and Montreal which will play to-night arrived yesterday in order to look over the stage and have the necessary dress rehearsals as a preliminary to the opening night.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

By McDONALD FEADER

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl, longs to dance with all the world at her feet. In love with her are the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu, both members of her tribe. She has only hate for her mother, Anica, but is extremely fond of her father, Girtza. The latter reprimands Anica for her treatment of Consuelo. When Anica finds Consuelo dressed in her own wedding skirt, she beats her with a whip. Marcus rescues the girl and her father then turns the whip on Anica. Consuelo's father slaps her when he catches her trying to hold back money she has made dancing at the county fair. Both the sheriff and Voda, trainer of the gypsies' bear, attempt to steal a kiss from Consuelo after she finishes dancing again but she repulses them both. Marcu tempts Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 7

Consuelo watched Marcu go, a puzzled frown on her face. She went to the campfire and sat down cross-legged. Suddenly she felt very small and helpless, and she knew she was going to cry and because, as always, she was the center of many eyes, she rose and flung her arms around Girtza and hid her face against him and nestled her body in his lap.

"I love you, papa." Her voice was choky and she clung to him.

Girtza put down his breakfast plate and wiping his hands across his jacket, put his arms around her.

"My little frog." He kissed the top of her head. "What does my baby one want?"

"Nothing. I just love you, ppap." She was sobbing now. "Can't I love you?"

"Of course you can, my baby." He held her gently. After a moment, "Come, come my sweet, we can't sit like this all day. You must eat your breakfast and I must finish mine and we must get along." He held up her face and looked into it. "You have spent the money you made last night," he teased. And then because she was still crying, he said, "But I do not care. Anyone who can dance and still thrill my old heart as you can have the money you earn. Keep it, little one, and buy yourself something pretty."

But conscience plays funny tricks, because Consuelo emptied her pocket in his hands and the silver overspilled from them.

"I—I don't want it—"

Girtza chuckled.

"Now I will take it and buy you a new skirt all your own." He put the money in his jacket and pulled her hair. "No time now for such a long, sad face." He lifted her from his lap and sat her on the ground close beside him. "A plate of potatoes and gravy and an extra slice of bacon and a mug of coffee with half of it thick cream, all for this girl, my daughter."

Again she protested but he would have none of it. But as the plate was handed to her and the fragrance of the food rose temptingly, she realized that she was hungry, awfully hungry. Her tears vanished. Her hand dived into the plate. Instantly a dozen eyes fastened on the glittering ring on her finger.

Girtza stooped down, grasped her hand and looked at the diamond, his mouth agape. She tried to draw the hand away, a crimson flush sweeping up her ochre neck and spreading over her face.

The laughter was gone from Girtza.

"Where did you get that?" he demanded.

"Yes, where did you get that?" Anica echoed, looking greedily on the stone.

Exclamations were echoed around the campfire and curious ones drew closer to examine this ring.

Consuelo glanced from her father to her mother, her mind in confusion. The flush deepened.

Girtza was shaking her now.

"Where did you get that?" His voice was a roar of anger.

"I—I stole it," she faltered.

"You little fool!" Girtza reached out and hit her across the face.

The blow knocked her backwards and so it was that she saw the sheriff first, saw the star gleaming on his vest, caught the glint of light on the revolver in his hand. A grian escaped her lips and she sprang to her feet.

The sheriff pushed back the bushes and moved into the silent circle. There were two men behind him and each was armed.

"Well, I knowed I'd catch you at it if I stuck around long enough. Let's see that ring!" He grabbed the girl's hand. "My gad, a diamond, and big as a rock! Where did you get it?"

The talk had been in Romany. The sheriff could not have understood what had been said. He was only supposing, so Consuelo smiled at him. She held her hand out, letting the diamond catch the sunlight.

"It is a pretty thing, now, isn't it? When I was a little girl my great, great-grandfather, Chief Zena, gave it to me and now because I am a woman I am wearing it for the first time."

"Baloney! Listen, gal, you can't kid me—not after last night, you can't. I dunno whether that diamond came from this town or not, but chances are it did. You gypsies 're a bunch of thieves and I wished I'd runned you out in the first place. But now, b' gad, I've got the goods on you!"

"What the girl says is true," Girtza spoke.

"Huh—a platinum heirloom, I suppose. Say, old man, don't you think I got brains? They didn't use platinum in them days. Give me that ring, girl."

"You go to the devil!" Consuelo threw the words at him.

"Better try to be nice to me now, gypsy," he said meaningly and put his hand under her chin.

She bit at his fingers and spat down on his boots.

He drew back from her and turned to Girtza.

"You an' this girl come along. I can't take all of you, but I might as well make sure that you ain't a' goin' to get away too far." He gripped his gun. "One of you git over there and take the wheel off the biggest wagon. You won't go off and leave your chief, I guess, so that'll keep you here in case I need you."

Not one of the gypsies moved.

"Did you hear me?" the sheriff yelled, his face red. "Git over there and take a wheel off that circus wagon!"

Still no one moved.

The sheriff motioned to the two men.

"Stand by me, fellows, these here gypsies may git tough." He leveled his gun at Girtza. "You're the chief here. If you don't make one of them do what I say, you git some of this through your belly."

"Very well!" Girtza boomed. At his nod the men swung into action. The wagon settled on its props as the wheel was pulled from it.

"Now have a couple of them roll it into town. And you—" he took hold of Consuelo's shoulder, "and you—" nodding toward Girtza, "come along with me. Come on, line up! I'll follow behind you, and just remember that I ain't a bit bashful at shootin'."

The courthouse, an imposing wooden building with a high front, was placed conspicuously in the town square. It was here that the justice of peace held court and that all legal matters of the countryside were taken care of. And it was here that the old men of the town sat on benches under the trees and discussed the crops and the wars and the farm pests and last year's wheat prices.

At the moment the benches were deserted. The courthouse was filled with curious people who were all talking at once. Behind the gates up front stood the gypsies, the black bearded one, the dancing girl, and two swarthy fellows, a wagon wheel between them. Across from them was the sheriff, whirling his gun on his finger and looking important and blustery. The court clerk had been dispatched to get "his honor", so they waited. The gypsies did not speak and Consuelo did not look at Girtza.

A long ten minutes passed before the judge appeared, unshaven and in his shirt sleeves and puffing from the heat. He eyed the gypsies as he assumed his seat of authority.

"Well, sheriff, I see you've been busy this morning. Rather early, isn't it?"

"It's never too early to serve the law, your honor," the sheriff answered like a school boy.

"What have they taken now?"

"Nothing!" Girtza thundered out the word.

"Nothing, me eye! That girl's got a ring as big as a potato. Show it to him, gypsy."

"What ring?" Consuelo asked, with a toss of her pretty head.

"That ring on your finger."

Consuelo held out tan hands. No stone glittered on them.

The sheriff stared pop-eyed at her.

"Where the hell is that ring, girl?"

Consuelo shrugged her shoulders.

Why Julius Left

His story was presented to Superior Judge Rudolph Desort, who gave him a divorce on grounds of cruelty. One of the cruelties, he said, was when he was sick and the doctor prescribed a cold application. Mrs. Svoboda threw a plate at him and did not miss.

C. C. F. SUPPORTS HYDRO CONTRACT CANCELLATIONS

Resolution Passes Demanding Province-wide Probe of Fascist Activities.

POLICIES SETTLED.

TORONTO, April 22. (CP)—With policies settled for another year, members of the Ontario section of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation were ready to-day to continue the campaign for a socialized Province and Dominion.

In day-long session Saturday, nearly 200 delegates from all over Ontario dealt with a series of resolutions, heard reports of progress in the past year and gave John Mitchell of Hamilton a second term in the presidency.

Delegates voted down a lengthy series of resolutions which aimed to attend the constitution and avoided debate on contentious matters of uniting with other organizations against war and Fascism by passage of a blanket resolution declaring it necessary to remove causes of war and Fascism rather than protest against them.

Raps Lack of Action

The convention criticized the Ontario Government for not dealing with unemployment at the recently-completed session of the Legislature but favored cancellation of Ontario's contracts with Quebec power companies and demanded prosecution of those persons connected with their negotiation.

Following charges by Louis Palermo shortly before the close of the convention that Fascism was taught Italian pupils in Toronto separate schools, a resolution was passed demanding a provinc-wide inquiry into Fascist activites.

At a large mass meeting at night leaders of Socialism on three continents extolled the cause of Socialism. They were: Norman Thomas of New York, chairman of the Socilist League of America; Sir Stafford Cripps, chairman of the British Socialist League and William Irvine, member of the House of Commons for Wetaskiwin, Alta., and member of the C.C.F. national council.

Outstanding Fliers Winners Of McKee Trophy

Flight-Lieut. E. G. Fullerton, second in command of the Royal Air Force station at Rockliffe, Ottawa, is the winner of the McKee trophy for 1934. This trophy, awarded by the late J. D. McKee, goes each year to the Canadian pilot who, in the opinion of the Department of national defence, has contributed the most to Canadian aviation. The award to Fullerton is the second time since 1927 that it has been won by an air force officer, all other awards going to civilian aviators. Continuous performance throughout the year, rather than one or two brilliant exploits, receive greatest consideration, and Fullerton's instruction at the Rockliffe base has been considered invaluable. The above layout shows past winners of the McKee trophy, and the list included a galaxy of the greatest aces in the Dominion. Top LEFT to RIGHT, Maurice Burbidge, Edmonton; Chas. "Punch" Dickins, Edmonton, the McKee trophy, and G. H. R. Philips. Lower row, LEFT to RIGHT, "Wop" May, Walter Gilbert, Capt. A. H. Oaks, and (ABOVE) Squadron-Leader J. H. Tudhope of Vancouver.

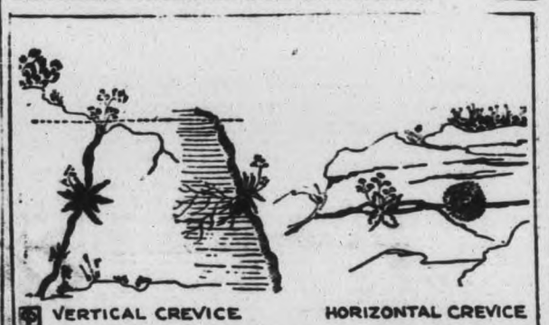
ROCK GARDEN POSSIBLE EVEN ON SMALL ESTATE



Method of planting on rock gardens built on a slope.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Central Press Garden Expert

One may have the pleasure of a rock garden, even though one does not have a large estate. The rock garden may be built in proportion to the area, and even the smallest garden may boast a lovely rock garden, with the various sedums and alpine plants.

The very best location for a rock garden is on a slope, since this affords ideal drainage. Of course, if the ground is level, the first work is to dig a hole, where the garden is to be built, about a foot or two deep, filling this in a little with cinders, gravel or coal ashes. Then the foundation should be of the largest stones, with the heaviest part down. Each stone should be planted so very firmly that afterwards it cannot be moved even the slightest bit. This is very important, for no matter how small the rock garden may be, there will always be children or someone stepping on the stones, either to pull out weeds or to plant new seeds. Also, if the stones are not in solidly, the frost will heave them out.

Place the rocks with pockets of soil between them for planting the flowers. The plants will want to have the opportunity of growing back under the rocks for moisture. Be sure to keep in mind the fact that a rock garden is for the growing of rock-loving plants, and is not just a pile of nondescript rocks.

The rock garden should face the sun, with a southeast or southwest exposure. The ideal rock garden soil is one composed of equal parts of top soil, sharp sand and leaf mold, all mixed together.

Major Battle Rages 120-Mile Chaco Front

BUENOS AIRES, April 22.—(AP).—Paraguayan and Bolivian troops were at grips to-day along a 120 miles front in Santa Cruz, Bolivia's potentially rich eastern lowland province. Observers of the prolonged conflict see the possibility the current fighting may be the decisive chapter in the war.

Paraguayan sources estimate the Bolivian losses in the two-and-one-half years of fighting at 80,000 killed, but Bolivians deny their death toll has been that large. Some observers believe the total killed on both sides to be well in excess of the 100,000 mark.

C. C. F. SUPPORTS HYDRO CONTRACT CANCELLATIONS

Resolution Passes Demanding Province-wide Probe of Fascist Activities.

POLICIES SETTLED.

TORONTO, April 22. (CP)—With policies settled for another year, members of the Ontario section of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation were ready to-day to continue the campaign for a socialized Province and Dominion.

In day-long session Saturday, nearly 200 delegates from all over Ontario dealt with a series of resolutions, heard reports of progress in the past year and gave John Mitchell of Hamilton a second term in the presidency.

Delegates voted down a lengthy series of resolutions which aimed to attend the constitution and avoided debate on contentious matters of uniting with other organizations against war and Fascism by passage of a blanket resolution declaring it necessary to remove causes of war and Fascism rather than protest against them.

Raps Lack of Action

The convention criticized the Ontario Government for not dealing with unemployment at the recently-completed session of the Legislature but favored cancellation of Ontario's contracts with Quebec power companies and demanded prosecution of those persons connected with their negotiation.

Following charges by Louis Palermo shortly before the close of the convention that Fascism was taught Italian pupils in Toronto separate schools, a resolution was passed demanding a province-wide inquiry into Fascist activites.

At a large mass meeting at night leaders of Socialism on three continents extolled the cause of Socialism. They were: Norman Thomas of New York, chairman of the Socilist League of America; Sir Stafford Cripps, chairman of the British Socialist League and William Irvine, member of the House of Commons for Wetaskiwin, Alta., and member of the C.C.F. naticnal council.

Outstanding Fliers Winners Of McKee Trophy

Flight-Lieut. E. G. Fullerton, second in command of the Royal Air Force station at Rockliffe, Ottawa, is the winner of the McKee trophy for 1934. This trophy, awarded by the late J. D. McKee, goes each year to the Canadian pilot who, in the opinion of the Department of national defence, has contributed the most to Canadian aviation. The award to Fullerton is the second time since 1927 that it has been won by an air force officer, all other awards going to civilian aviators. Continuous performance throughout the year, rather than one or two brilliant exploits, receive greatest consideration, and Fullerton's instruction at the Rockliffe base has been considered invaluable. The above layout shows past winners of the McKee trophy, and the list included a galaxy of the greatest aces in the Dominion. Top LEFT to RIGHT, Maurice Burbidge, Edmonton; Chas. "Punch" Dickins, Edmonton, the McKee trophy, and G. H. R. Philips. Lower row, LEFT to RIGHT, "Wop" May, Walter Gilbert, Capt. A. H. Oaks, and (ABOVE) Squadron-Leader J. H. Tudhope of Vancouver.

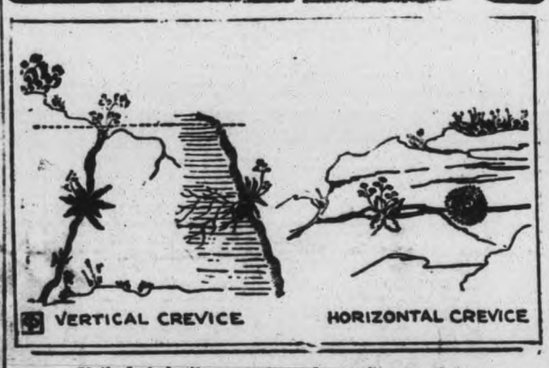
ROCK GARDEN POSSIBLE EVEN ON SMALL ESTATE



Method of planting on rock gardens built on a slope.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Central Press Garden Expert

One may have the pleasure of a rock garden, even though one does not have a large estate. The rock garden may be built in proportion to the area, and even the smallest garden may boast a lovely rock garden, with the various sedums and alpine plants.

The very best location for a rock garden is on a slope, since this affords ideal drainage. Of course, if the ground is level, the first work is to dig a hole, where the garden is to be built, about a foot or two deep, filling this in a little with cinders, gravel or coal ashes. Then the foundation should be of the largest stones, with the heaviest part down. Each stone should be planted so very firmly that afterwards it cannot be moved even the slightest bit. This is very important, for no matter how small the rock garden may be, there will always be children or someone stepping on the stones, either to pull out weeds or to plant new seeds. Also, if the stones are not in solidly, the frost will heave them out.

Place the rocks with pockets of soil between them for planting the flowers. The plants will want to have the opportunity of growing back under the rocks for moisture. Be sure to keep in mind the fact that a rock garden is for the growing of rock-loving plants, and is not just a pile of nondescript rocks.

The rock garden should face the sun, with a southeast or southwest exposure. The ideal rock garden soil is one composed of equal parts of top soil, sharp sand and leaf mold, all mixed together.

Major Battle Rages 120-Mile Chaco Front

BUENOS AIRES, April 22.—(AP).—Paraguayan and Bolivian troops were at grips to-day along a 120 miles front in Santa Cruz, Bolivia's potentially rich eastern lowland province. Observers of the prolonged conflict see the possibility the current fighting may be the decisive chapter in the war.

Paraguayan sources estimate the Bolivian losses in the two-and-one-half years of fighting at 80,000 killed, but Bolivians deny their death toll has been that large. Some observers believe the total killed on both sides to be well in excess of the 100,000 mark.

Aiming to Honor Sir Dan Godfrey

LONDON, April 20. (CP).—A movement has been started to commemorate the services which Sir Dan Godfrey, well known internationally as well as in the United Kingdom, has rendered to music in this country. He visted Canada wth his band some years ago. He retired a few months ago from the post of Director of Music to the Corporation of Bournemouth, which he had held for more than 40 years.

During that long period he played regularly at his weekly symphony concerts new works by British composers, many of whom have since risen to fame, and he also introduced to his audiences interesting foreign works hitherto unknown in this country. It is proposed to arrange for Sir Dan's portrait to be pain'ed by Henry Lamb. An appeal has been issued to Sir Dan's musical friends and admirers, as well as others who appreciate his services to music, to assist in arranging for this portrait to be painted.

FAIRMOUNT.

The auction sale of the late Wesley Shaw was held at the residence on Thursday. James Roddy, of Bailieboro, was auctioneer. Both stock and implements, which were in good shape, brought a fine price, and on account of the large crowd in attendance, bidding with brisk. The sale netted $1,400. No decision will be reached on the selling of the farm for a week on account of the reserved bid.

Miss Helen Perrit, of Emily, is spending a few weeks with Mrs. W. Shaw.

NIAGARA FALLS WILL PROVIDE SUPPLY NEEDED

Diversion of Ogohie River Will Enable Extra 1,000,000 Horsepower Yearly.

Signing of Cancellation Bill Pends Parley With Quebec Firms Next Week.

TORONTO, April 23. — (CP)—Plans to provide additional electric power should a shortage arise in Ontario from the government's action in declaring "illegal, void and unenforceable," contracts held with Quebec power companies, were disclosed today by an authoritative government official.

While the government has not yet made arrangements for a conference with the Quebec Power Company officials, the official said, plans alrea dy have been evolved whereby an additional 1,000,000 horsepower yearly could be obtained from Niagara Falls should any scarcity arise from the government's refusal to carry out the contracts providing for delivery of 900,000 horsepower from the Quebec developments.

Beauty Unimpaired

The new plan, which would not impair the scenic beauty of the Niagara cataract, calls for diversion of the Ogoki river from its present course into the Albany river, to Lake Superior, which would increase the flow over Niagara and provide an additional 120,000 horsepower.

The Queenston plant also would be established as the "main one" in the Niagara system while the other two plants at the Falls would be held in reserve. Additional abstraction could be made from the cataract, said the informant who claimed the beauty of the Falls and their surroundings would not be impaired.

Cost of diverting the flow into the plant, would be great, the Government official admitted, but

It was stated the child had been repeatedly warned by the officer not to play on the highway.

Australia Forgotten In Hitler's Protest

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, April 23 (CP Cable).—Adolf Hitler has forgotten Australia, and Australia is curiously wondering why.

At the special League Council last week Stanley Bruce, on behalf of Australia, warmly supported the resolution censuring German rearmament, submitted by Britain, France and Italy and passed by the council with only Denmark abstaining.

Hitler retorted Saturday with a curt note of protest to all the members of the League Council except Australia, only British Dominion at present among the Council's 14 members. Even Denmark got a copy of the note.

Inquiries here, however, show Germany did not even send a note to the British with the request it be forwarded to the Australians. In any event Australia is a separate member of the League.

Mae Not Wed In 1907 Says Hamiltonian

HAMILTON, April 23 (C.P.). — Mae West, beautiful and blonde, was not married when she came to the old Bennett's Theatre here in 1911, declares Wallace "Wally" Adams, property man, when Mae came to town with the "Deuce-Spot," or second act of a vaudeville bill, three or four years after the show house opened in 1907.

"I'd say she was not more than 20. She was only a slim young girl at that time," volunteered Wally.

The property man well remembered the charmer of the cinema. He should. He carried her on his back the opening day.

"I was sort of a play dog" said Wally. "My job was to carry her in on my back and open the act with a bang. Then I would do tricks, such as standing on my head, and begging and barking."

Operations Ceased By Fruit Peddlers

Two weeks ago a large truck loaded with fruits and vegetables of many descriptions and manned by a driver and four door-to-door peddlers arrived in the city from Toronto and an aggressive retailing canvass through the city was begun. This morning, in the face of the opposition of local grocers and fruit dealers, the proprietor of the truck agreed to abandon the venture.

The owner of the truck is Mrs. Molly Brown of 420 Bathurst street, Toronto. Although $75 licenses totalling $300 had been taken out for the four peddlers and the venture legalized in regard to local vending by-laws, agreement in the matter was obtained without difficulty through the activities of local city officials who interested themselves in the matter. It is understood that the City Council will be asked to refund the greater part of the $300 paid in peddlers' fees.

CONTRACTS WERE HIS.

Reminds London Papers of Britain's Debt Repudiation to U. S.

TORONTO, April 23. (CP). — Charge of fomenting agitation in the English press against Ontario's action in deciding to terminate Quebec power contracts to-day was levelled against Hon. G. H. Ferguson. Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain, by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn.

"I can see the fine Italian hand of Howard Ferguson as he gazes at his own handiwork and now tries to cover it up by fomenting agitation in the English press," said the Premier commenting on a reproduction of a poster from the London Morning Post characterizing Ontario's action as 'a shock."

"They had better look to the situation they created after Balfour signed an agreement with the United States regarding war debt payments and later England broke it," said Mr. Hepburn.

Rues War Debts

Declaring people in glass houses should not throw stones, Mr. Hepburn said "English paper shouting 'repudiation' had better turn attention to the situation they created by "repudiating war debts with the United States."

"I wouldn't be surprised," he said "if this situation was fomented by Howard Ferguson."

Mr. Hepburn added he would "remind the English paper they should put the blame on the shoulders of Canada's High Commissioner who entered into the agreements when he knew he didn't need the power."

FROST LENIENT TO RURAL ROADS

Damage Seldom So Light in United Counties, Warden Reports.

ONLY FEW BREAKS.

COBOURG, April 23.—Seldom have the county roads of Northumberland and Durham come through a winter with less damage from frost than has been reported this season.

"I don't think there are half a dozen breaks in the whole 260 miles of our county system," Warden Percy Stinson told The Examiner to-day. "Our roads are in fine condition, and our spring repair bill will be negligible."

The Road Commission of the United Counties, composed Reeves George Annis and Herman Morrow, and Warden Stinson, recently inspected the entire system, finding only a few places where the frost had broken through the surface.

"It means that we will have practically our entire appropriation for ordinary maintenance and construction work, a saving that gives us a good start in this year of economy."

Warden Stinson said the work begun last fall in Seymour township and on the Shelter Valley road would be completed, and the program for 1935 will be discussed at the June sessions of the county council.

TORONTO, April 23 (CP)—In his opening address to the Natural Science section of the O.E.A. in the University of Toronto Biology Building, V. R. Henry, Peterborough Sectional President, declared the Middle School Physics Course attempts to cover too extensive a field.

The course now has little interest for students, he stated, while study of color might also be profitably enlarged. He urges greater latitude to teachers in allowing them to emerge in researches along lines best suited to local conditions.

NOT SATISFIED ON INSPECTION DR. ALAN BROWN

Toronto Baby Expert, Called In, States Quints "Recovering Satisfactorily"

PRAISES CARE GIVEN.

Dr. Dafoe Will Not Be Displaced as Babies' Doctor, Hepburn States.

TORONTO, April 23.—(CP)—If Oliva Dionne, father of the famous quintuplets desires to have an independent doctor examine the babies, he may do so but he will not be allowed to displace Dr. A. R. Dafoe as the babies physician, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said today.

CALLANDER, Ont., April 23. —(CP)— Oliva Dionne, father of the quintuplets, said today he was not satisfied with the inspection of his babies by Dr. Alan Brown, Toronto child specialist, and advised Dr. A. R. Dafoe, physician to the babes, he still wanted doctors of his own choice to make the examination.

The father visited the hospital today accompanied by his brother Leon and his manager, Leo Kervin, and told Dr. Dafoe he was not satisfied by the statements of Dr. Brown the babies were recuperating from slight head colds.

"He advised me he wanted Dr. G. W. Smith and Dr. J. Joyal, both of North Bay, to see the children and report their findings to him," said Dr. Dafoe.

The quintuplets' physician said he informed Dionne it would be injudicious to have the babies examined again so soon as it might upset them. "I told him I would not object to the examination later but pointed out the children will be recovered within a day or so."

"Recovering Satisfactorily"

CALLANDER, Ont., April 23. — (CP)—Dr. Allan Brown, internationally known child specialist, examined the Dionne quintuplets at three o'clock this morning and found them "satisfactorily recovering" from head colds. He said their physical condition was "excellent."

Blames Outside Contact

The Toronto specialist issued a statement in which he said he found the babies satisfactorily recovering from an upper respiratory infection which apparently had been transmitted to them from an outside source. This, he said, emphasized the fact if the children were to survive they must be kept from contact "with individuals other than those in actual care of the infants."

He paid tribute to Dr. Dafoe's handling of the situation which had been "thoroughly scientific."

It was not immediately known whether the examination by Dr. Brown would satisfy the children's parents. When they telegraphed TAIHOKU, Formosa, April 23. — Relief agencies, experienced in dealing with earthquake disasters, rushed food, water, and medical supplies today into remote sections of North-western Formosa devastated in Sunday's catastrophe.

The problem of supplying water to the survivors became one of primary importance as a tropical sun parched the tongues of the stricken inhabitants and added to the hazard of the spread of disease.

Scarcely a pipeline or a reservoir was left undamaged in the entire stricken area.

Hasty repairs to the shattered railway line leading from here to Tainan and northward enabled the relief workers and physicians to speed into the interior with their welcome stores of water, food, and blankets.

The latest official casualty figures, which it was believed would be subject to only minor revision, gave the number of dead as 3,152 and the total seriously wounded as 10,406.

U.S. PLANS WEIRS TO SAVE NIAGARA

May Use Part of Huge Works Fund to Stop Falls "Killing Itself."

SPREAD THE FLOW.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., April 23 (A.P.). — The weirs or under water dams proposed to save Niagara Falls from "killing" itself through erosion finally may be built with part of the United States Government's $4,880,000,000 public works fund.

Western New York representatives were reported to-day from Washington as united behind a proposal to build the weirs with part of this fund.

The weirs would spread the water, diverting it from the wedge into which the Horseshoe Falls has been developing. The water has been concentrated in tremendous volume in this wedge, so that the American Falls now gets only about 10 per cent. of the flow.

The danger in the wedge is that the water is gradually cutting a channel at its point, and there is more and more concentration of water there.

Proposed Decade Ago.

Almost a decade ago engineers proposed to arrest erosion at this point by erecting a series of underwater weirs above the Falls. Except at extreme low water the weirs would not be visible.

In 1929 the United States and Canada signed a treaty which would have permitted this additional dithe Falls to build these weirs, in return for increased use of water, but the United States Senate refused to approve the treaty because it would have permitted thi sadditional diversion of water. A new treaty is being negotiated now.

At that time the cost of the weirs was estimated as $1,750,000.

The weirs would not stop rock slides, such as have occurred frequently in recent years, and they would not stop erosion. The engineers say they would slow the process of erosion sufficiently to save the Falls from "killing" itself.

Weir Prairie Bound To Battle Drought

OTTAWA, April 23 (C.P.).—Minister of Agriculture Robert Weir today was headed westward to muster the nation's forces in a fight against drought which has seared vast tracts of land in the Canadian south-west.

Before he left last night for Winnipeg Mr. Weir expressed keen appreciation of willingness shown by various agencies to co-operate with the Dominion by naming representatives to an Advisory Commission that will guide the Department of Agriculture in its drought battle.

Already, he said, chartered banks had nominated B. P. Alley assistant general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, to be their representative; the Canadian National Railways have named Dr. W J. Black, head of their Agricultural Department; and the Canadian Pacific Railway, Augustus Griffin chief engineer at Calgary.

"Don't Want Their Hearts Needlessly Broken Again," Vermilyea Declares.

SLAYER SOBS IN CELL.

BELLEVILLE, April 23. — Harold W. Vermilyea, sentenced to hang here on May 2 for the murder of his mother, definitely laid down the law regarding his son, Than, to a relative yesterday. Speaking from his death cell in the county jail, he declared, in a voice at times nearly broken with emotion, "I do not want Than to see me here. He would only be making a 3,000-mile journey to have his poor heart broken at the end of it.

"If the papers are suggesting that nothing is being done for Than and Aurelia, give them the facts. Tell them that you are doing everything you can for them and that you have offered to bring them here to see me. A Kiwanis club in California has written me, offering to send Than up here, and pay his expenses. I do not want Than to come. I would love to see him and I understand how he must feel, but I know what is best. Than and Aurelia have both written me wonderful letters and I know that even now they love me with all their hearts. I don't want those hearts to be needlessly broken again by the sight of me in this cell."

His Own Obituary

CHICAGO, April 23, (CP).— Dr. Frederick A. Cook, Arctic explorer who claimed discovery of the North Pole in 1908, disclosed to-day he was writing his own obituary.

In Chicago to observe the 28th anniversary of his attainment of the Pole, Dr. Cook, almost 70, said he had signed a contract with a news magazine and had agreed to write the obituary in a series of seven articles for publication after his death.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Tumbling back from new peak prices, the corn market suffered a sudden drop yesterday and practically wiped out gains that had been scored for wheat.

Realizing sales dragged all deliveries of corn down to below 90 cents a bushel after May corn contracts had risen to 92 cents, the topmost point reached on the current upward movement. Wheat meanwhile established a new high price record for the season, but reacted when corn headed downhill.

Corn closed nervous, unchanged to ¾ cent lower compared with Saturday's finished; May, 90⅞ to 91 cents. Wheat unchanged to ½ cent up; May, $1.01⅝ to $1.02; oats at ⅛ cent decline to ¾ cent advance; and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

Reports of dust storms in North Dakota tended to rally the wheat market during the day's final transactions, and indirectly helped corn prices to recover somewhat. Earlier strength of wheat values was traceable largely to disquieting crop conditions in Southwestern Kansas and the Oaklahoma Panhandle.

Oats traders took their cue mainly from corn. Provisions responded to hog market conditions.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Prices ruled steady on the Montreal dairy and produce market yesterday with trading somewhat restricted. Some fairly good dealings were reported on the butter market as No. 1 regraded butter continued at 24¼ to 24½ cents a pound for carlots or less and No. 1 fresh butter at ¼ cent a pound less. Small lots to retailers brought 25 to 25½ cents a pound for solids, and 26 to 26½ cents for prints. Receipts were 755 boxes.

The egg market was again quoted at 19 cents a dozen for A-large, 17 cents for A-medium, 16½ to 17 cents for B, and 15½ to 16 cents for C, graded shipments in carlots or less. Arrivals totalled 2,840 cases.

No. 1 Ontario cheese remained at 11½ to 11¾ cents a pound for late-fall make and 12½ to 12¾ cents for summer. Arrivals were 152 boxes.

Potatoes brought 52 cents per 80-pound bag of Quebec Mountains, darks and 57 cents for lights, while New Brunswick Mountains were 62 cents, and Prince Edward Island Mountains 65 cents.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 23. — The holiday spirit prevailed on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, and trading operations dwindled to small proportions. After a dull session, wheat prices closed unchanged to ½c higher.

Chicago's firmness partially offset the lack of wheat exports, restricted to small, scattered lots over the Easter holidays. Futures fluctuated somewhat irregularly, but quietly, May closing at 89⅝c and July 90⅜c.

No improvement in the United States south-west weather was reported, and wheat at Chicago gained a half-cent. Buenos Aires reopened after a three-day vacation and was up fractionally. Liverpool will re-open to-day.

For the first time in many weeks North America exported more wheat last week than Argentina, clearing 2,933,000 bushels of total world shipments of 10,750,000 bushels. Argentina shipped 2,839,000 bushels, her exports curtailed by the Easter holiday.

Cash and coarse grains trading continued dull.

NAZI OFFICIAL'S OTTAWA VISIT COMES TO LIGHT

Toronto Man Recalls General Von Ribbentrop as Young Man of Mystery Role.

FAVORITE OF SOCIETY.

New German Ambassador at Large Spent Year in Capital Before War.

TORONTO, April 23.—(CP)—As the Wilhelmstrasse buzzed today with speculation on the significance of the latest promotion of Joachim von Ribbentrop to a high rank in the Schutz Staffel or Black-shirted Nazi guard troops, Donald Heins, Canadian musician, recalled some impressions of an aristocratic young German at Ottawa before the Great War.

General von Ribbentrop who, it is said in high Nazi circles, will soon be appointed by Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler to the post of "ambassador-at-large, with special duties," made a vivid impression on those who knew him in those days, Mr. Heins said.

Tall, with a thin face, fair, wavy hair, and a bearing that "would have done credit to a prince," as Mr. Heins remembers him, von Ribbentrop was immensely popular with the top stratum of society in the capital.

There was something mysterious and extraordinary about the handsome young German living in Ottawa for no other apparent reason than to perfect his command of the English language and to familiarize himself with life in one of England's dominions.

Come To Rehearsals

Mr. Heins was conductor of the Ottawa symphony orchestra at that time, during the last few years of King Edward's reign, and a young lady who played with the

CAMPBELLFORD

ELIE BRUNELLE GUEST SPEAKER

"Frenchman's First Impression of Ontario," Subject of Address.

(Examiner Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 23. — Campbellford Rotarians received a real thrill at the regular Monday luncheon when acting president C. B. Williams announced that Cheer Leader Elie Brunelle had finally decided to give his talk on "My impressions on leaving the Province of Quebec and coming to Ontario."

The speaker lost no time in beginning his story, stated that he had landed in Ontario in 1914. That he had only held down two jobs in his life and that even while he was attending school always had a desire to work in a saw or pulp mill—if he attained that he would be perfectly happy. He later got his chance, working first as a timekeeper and later as a book-keeper but as he progressed with his company he felt handicapped by not knowing the English language (the business language of the world) especially so far as the book-keeping was concerned. So he was on the lookout for a job where he could learn the language and left Rimouski—locating in Campbellford in 1914.

As for Campbellford, he found it well built, wide streets, and paid great tribute to the power houses along the Trent. "Industries of all kinds were going well at this time—but my first impression was, that I was not wanted here," said the speaker, "and it was right then that I decided I would stay and make a job of it. When I first started to work as manager of the pulp mill, you know they expect a new man to change things around, but being a French Canadian, and not being able to speak English, instead of giving orders I made changes little by little. One of the first was the building of the big chimney where the pulp bark and shavings are burnt. This was formerly done on the banks of the river and smoked up the whole town. So while a little lonely I took an interest in my work, and began to make friends among whom was Ray Humphries who greeted me one morning in the hotel with the words 'Hello stranger, I know how you feel'. At that time Ray was a struggling young lawyyer. He is now assistant to the attorney general and I will never forget his kindness."

LONG CHARGES BRIGAND GANG HANDLES RELIEF

Threatens to Hold Up Federal Taxes if Louisiana Funds Are Withheld.

TILT ENLIVENS SENATE.

WASHINGTON, April 22. (AP).—Speaking before jammed United States senate galleries, Senator Huey P. Long, of Louisiana, began a new attack on the administration to-day, directing his fire particularly at Secretary Harold Ickes of the Interior.

Describing the Secretary of the Interior as 'The chinch bug of Chicago' Long told a tittering gallery and an attentive senate "new calamities" were being thrust upon Louisiana by the administration spokesman, Ickes, and "Secretary Henry 'Almighty' Wallace" of Agriculture.

Long's attack was propoted by the recent decision of Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, to take over administration of relief in Louisiana, and of an announced intention of Secretary Ickes to withhold public works funds from the southern state if legislation proposed by Long should be put through the Baton Rouge legislature.

GIANT CLIPPER PLANE IS RACING BACK TO STATES

Landing at California Will Mark First Round Trip to Hawaii by Lone Craft.

USING RADIO BEAMS.

Cargo of Over 12,000 Letters Aboard—Research Studies Carried Out.

ALAMEDA, Calif., April 23 (AP).—High above fleecy clouds over the Pacific, the giant clipper raced steadily toward the mainland today, and a record of being the first plane to complete a Hawaii-California round trip.

Its four powerful motors functioning perfectly, the sleek flying boat roared toward the halfway mark in its flight as easily as surface liners ploughed through the waves below.

At 3 a.m. (6 a.m. E.S.T.) the ship was 1,200 miles from the harbor here, where it was expected to land around 11 a.m., or noon (2 p.m. to 3 p.m. E.S.T.).

Besides being the first plane to complete a Hawaii-California round trip, the clipper later will inaugurate the first eastbound commercial flight between the islands and the mainland.

Cargo of Mail.

Aboard the plane when it took off from Pearl Harbor at 3.29 p.m., Honolulu time yesterday (8.59 E.S.T.) were more than 12,000 letters.

A chart projection of the clipper's path showed it was shifting from the mercator course to the great circle route to follow out plans for research studies in flight. In command was Captain Edwin C. Musick, but the destinies of the craft was due for other hands when it reaches here.

Pan American officials announced Musick and Fred J. Noonan, navigation officer, would be returned to duty with the company in Miami, Fla., when the present flight ends. Musick is a veteran of more

Canadian Policyholders or Their Beneficiaries have Received

$800,000,000 IN THE PAST FIVE YEARS

Through their Life Insurance Savings

MORE than $160,000,000 a year — that is the sum which Canadian policyholders or their beneficiaries have received on the average, during the past five years, from Life Insurance companies in Canada. In the next five years these policyholders will receive an even larger amount.

The large payments of Life Insurance benefits, made year by year, are the result of self-sacrifice on the part of 3,500,000 Canadians—thrifty citizens who have brought their savings together in Life Insurance funds, so that they and their families would have necessary financial security for the future.

Through the distribution of Life Insurance funds, the burdens of the widows and fatherless are eased — children are educated—independence is secured for old age—families are assisted in times of financial stress.

From the national standpoint, these citizens who have joined together to provide for their own financial future through Life Insurance, have performed a public duty. Their Life Insurance savings have lessened the number of people on public relief. And the investment of their savings in Life Insurance has provided working capital for Dominion and Provincial Governments, Canadian cities and municipalities, utilities and industries, farms and homes.

In the future as in the past, Life Insurance will continue to be the "Guardian of Canadian Homes".

Red Patch Club Marks 20th Anniversary of Ypres

FIRST DIVISION WON DISTINCTION IN HARD SCHOOL

Red Patch Club Holds Dinner of Anniversary of Second Battle of Ypres.

COL. DEWART SPEAKS.

No Battle in War of Greater Significance to Canadians Speaker Declares.

"We are to-night commemorating what was the most outstanding achievement of the Canadian troops," Lieut.-Col. J. A. Dewart, M.C., declared in an address at the annual dinner of the Peterborough Red Patch Club in the Armouries last night. "No doubt there were other battles fought as bravely and more scientifically, but no battle was of greater significance to Canadians."

The dinner marked the 20th anniversary of the great Second Battle of Ypres. One hundred of those returned men who bear the distinction of having gone to France in Canada's First Division joined with their guests in celebrating the occasion. In the chair was Major H. K. Clifton, M.C. Lieut.-Col. Gordon Hall, V.D., proposed the toast to the 1st Division, and Col. Dewart's address was made in reply. The toast to "The Empire" was sponsored by Captain "Barney" Quinn, and answered by Captain J. F. Strickland. Mayor Roland Denne replied to the toast to "Our City," proposed by Gordon Wyatt president of the club.

Raw Unit.

"When you consider that the Canadian troops were completey raw and untried when weighed according to the European standards you will realise the significance of the Second Battle of Ypres," Col. Dewart continued. "They were sent in to defend a very vital point. It was up to those gallant Canadians to uphold the honor of Canada before the world. There is no need to tell you what they did."

Col. Dewart told of the strange new weapon which the Canadians met in the battle—gas. He told of the importance of the battle to the Allied armies. If the Canadians had yielded at Ypres, the entire map of the world might have been changed as a result, he said.

"We late-comers to the Canadian ranks need not envy the men of the First Division. That bit of ribbon which they are entitled to wear was earned and earned in a mighty hard school. I think everyone can take off his hat to the First Division men. It is a distinction to have belonged in that first 30,000 men who left Canada in 1914."

Social Organization

In a few remarks, the chairman, Major Clifton, pointed out that the Red Patch Club is merely an organization for social purposes. If any members can help one another, so much the better, he declared, but the Red Patch Club is merely interested in continuing the comradeship of the First Division. He reported the regrets of General Garnet Hughes at his inability to be present at the dinner.

"I don't think it is necessary to go back over the First Division history," Col. Hall declared. "We all know that the men of the First Division opened up Canada's part in the show and set the great example for those who were to follow.

Col. Hall commended the Red Patch Club. He expressed the hope that the younger generation of Canadians will have the same esprit de corps displayed by the older.

"I didn't realize what the Empire meant until I enlisted and went over in 1914," Captain Quinn said. "I learned then the privilege I enjoyed in living in the Empire and I learned the meaning of the great things for which the word 'Empire' stands. I think you all feel the same way."

Captain Strickland referred to the approaching Jubilee celebration. "I am certain that will tighten the ties of our Empire," he said. He pointed out that the old soldier will look back and realize that the business of war is now changing rapidly. In the past days, the defence of the Empire rested with the navy. Nobody is certain on what the defence will rest in the future. Regardless, the sons and grandsons of those who fought for Canada in the Great War will be ready to carry on the tradition set up by them if the need arises, he declared.

In response to President Wyatt's commendation of the manner in which the City of Peterborough has been guided through depressed times by its leaders, Mayor Denne struck a note of optimism as he declared with conviction that the skies are now clearing.

Britain Sets Up Forestry Quests

LONDON, April 23 (C.P.)—An organization for the development of colonial forest resources has been set up by the Secretary of State for the dominions, J. H. Thomas.

With the consent of the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research two of their technical officers have been transferred for the new effort—namely, Major F. M. Oliphant, lately assistant director of the Forest Products Research Laboratory and Major J. P. Cosgrave, lately in charge of the section of utilization at the laboratory.

Major Oliphant, as forest economist, will deal mainly with the organization of production and will spend much of his time in the dependencies concerned, while Major Cosgrove, as market development officer will be engaged in market promotion work, with reference to the United Kingdom market and other markets, both British and foreign.

The organization will be chiefly concerned with timber development, but will also interest itself in other forest products, such as wood pulp, fibres, gums and resins, and the like.

CHINESE ORDER EVERY STUDENT TAKE UP ARMS

General Chiang Hopes Plan Will Enable China to "Talk Back" to Powers.

IN TEN YEARS.

Scheme Will Produce 100,000 Fully Trained Reserves Every Year.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press).

NANKING China, April 23. — China fell in line with world-wide military activities to-day by ordering all her male high school and college students to undergo at least one year of intensive military training.

The move was ordered by General Chiang Kai-Shek generalissimo of the Chinese Nationalist Government armies.

At the end of 10 years General Chiang expects his program to make China's military power of the first magnitude, capable of "talking back" to the other powers of the world if she should feel so inclined.

He expects once the movement is in full operation it will produce 100,000 thoroughly trained reservists for China's army every year. The new order will extend military training to all China's 1,400 colleges and high schools.

In addition to the provisions made for secondary schools and colleges, the Government's order requires boys in elementary schools be given the equivalent of boy scout training "in order to instill military fundamentals."

Eventually the program envisages instruction in war methods for the entire civilian population. This phase has not yet been inaugurated, however, because of lack of funds.

Pockets Bulged With Game Eggs

BALTIMORE, Md., April 23 (C.P.)—"Who got a egg?" "Who got a egg?"

A generation ago the streets resounded with the cry and the small boys' pockets bulged with eggs pilfered from the home pantry, bought with a few pennies hoarded for the purpose or won from the less lucky. For at least a week before Easter egg "picking" was the favorite sport and mother must keep a close watch on the egg basket if she wished to find a full supply — and all in good condition—when she went to make her Easter goodies.

"Possibly the game is as popular in these days as in the past but it doesn't seem to me," says a feminine observer who has not heard the cry for several years. Egg dyeing is still more or less popular and has been made far easier than it was in the old days—wonderful transfer patterns and vari-colored dyes being available.

Wife Is Held In Murder Of Former Vancouver Man

Two of the three principals in an English murder case of considerable Canadian interest, are shown in the above picture. They are Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rattenbury, and their son John, now six years old. Mr. Rattenbury was found seriously wounded of head injuries, in the living room of his home near London, March 24th. He had been struck repeatedly by a heavy mallet. He died four days later. Police then arrested Mrs. Rattenbury, who is 31, and her 19-year-old chauffeur, George Stoner. They are accused of murdering the man. Mr. Rattenbury was a wealthy retired architect, formerly of Vancouver.

EDWIN MARKHAM VIGOROUS AT 83

Noted U. S. Poet States There Are Only 1,000 Lines of Really Great Poetry

IN ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

NEW YORK, April 23 (AP) — On his 83rd birthday, Edwin Markham, noted United States poet, declared there were only 1,000 lines of "really great poetry, distinguished and powerful lines," in the English language.

This estimate was twice as great as some years ago when Markham set the total at 500 lines.

A vigorous old man with a booming voice and a hearty laugh, a huge black hat set on his flowing white locks, Markham named the following poets as those who had created the "Great":

Shakespeare, Marlow, Coleridge, Shelly, Keats, Wordsworth, Byron "once or twice," Swinburne in "a few lines," Emerson, and—rather dubiously—Poe. He added Poe to the list after first saying Poe "didnt have much of the kind of poetry I'm talking about."

Markham said he viewed poetry being written to-day "with mixed emotions. Some of it is unspeakably bad, and some nobly good.

"There are a number of writers of the new verse who aren't poets at all," he asserted. "They are led by a vicious theory of poetry—that you become a poet if you can write something odd. Some of these writers have produced poems on a fly-speck.

"On the other hand, men like Edwin Arlington Robinson, Alfred Noyes, John Masefield, William Rose Benet, at times Louis Untermyer, and Archibald MacLeish are still able to give us visions of the higher poetry."

Has Color Scheme In Breeding Mice

ABERDEEN, Scotland, April 23 (C.P.)—John Taylor, unemployed cooper has gone "mousey" and is getting along famously.

Taylor, in his early 60's, has been breeding mice now for about five years and a first look at his collection is a bit bewildering. He has hundreds of the rodents,—red ones, champagne ones, dove-grey and piebad specimens.

Mr. Taylor doesn't bother with the common or garden mouse variety. He tends only to aristocrats — sleek, pink-eyed beauties of the most delicate shades of coloring which in the past two years have won for him a large number of prizes at leading shows.

"The great thing with the mice is the coloring," he says, "and it is by mating one kind with another that the correct shades are obtained." Taylor said no other creation, bird or animal had taken such a hold of his affections as his mice. "I simply adore them, and I don't know what I'd do without them now."

LINDSAY'S WELL SYSTEM FAILS

Town Officials Halt Drilling Firm's Efforts For Supply in Ops.

CONFERENCE HELD.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LINDSAY, April 23.—Lindsay's new water system, which, it was hoped, would supply the citizens with a plentitude of water from drilled wells, has proven a failure. The two wells sunk by the Roberts Drilling Company, of Brantford, which, for a time, furnished a copious flow, have dropped heavily in gallonage, and the town has been obliged to fall back on water from the Scugog River to meet the requirements of the people.

The drilling company had decided to commence drilling operations in West Ops for an additional supply, but the work was halted as a result of action on the part of the Board of Water Commissioners, which felt that it would cost too much ($20,000) to pipe the water to Lindsay in case a flow was secured. The board, with representatives of the drilling company with a solicitor, held a conference recently in order to deal with the problem. The board has already paid the company $32,000, and point out that the terms of the contract have not been carried out, the company, the board claims, agreeing to maintain a sufficient supply of water to meet the requirements of the municipality.

Mrs. John W. Anderson, mother of County Crown Attorney Anderson, was laid to rest in Riverside cemetery Monday afternoon. The deceased was born in England, and came to Canada with her parents at the age of thirteen years. They settled in Bobcaygeon, where her father was accountant for the Mossom Boyd Lumber Company for a number of years. She was a prominent member of the Baptist church and was in her seventieth year.

The sudden death took place on the week-end of a pioneer resident of the district in the person of Walter Arksey. Deceased was born in England eighty-seven years ago, and at the age of nine came with his parents to Mariposa township. He following farming until a few years ago when he took up residence in Lindsay. He is survived by one son and one daughter.

The sudden death took place at the Ross Hospital during the week-end of John DeLurey, a well-known local resident. The deceased, who had been working in the northern road camps became suddenly ill and was rushed to the hospital, passing away ten minutes after entering the institution. For a number of years he was an employee of the Trent Valley Canal Department on the tug, Harwood.

INTERFERING WITH FREE PRESS NOT TO BE FEARED STATES ICKES

U. S. Official Upholds Freedom of Speech, Assemblage as Greatest Safeguard of Liberty.

RAPS 'SHARE THE WEALTH.'

NEW YORK, April 23 (AP)—Fear of government interference with a free press was called "without substance" yesterday by Secretary Harold L. Ickes of the United States interior department speaking at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press.

He said freedom of the press, freedom of speech and the right of free assemblage were "the greatest safeguards of our liberties," and asserted:

"So long as they remain to us as political vitamins, we can withstand the shock troops of fascism, of communism, or even of special privilege parading in the verisimilitude of benevolence and democratic concern for the common law."

Frank B. Noyes, publisher of the Washington Star and president of the Associated Press presided at the luncheon and paid tribute to charter members still living who joined in forming the present Associated Press in 1900. A number of charter members were present as guests of honor.

Between the Lines

"If each of you can read between the lines what I cannot express, you will understand why each of the charter members of the organization feels that for you of this and future years the institution which we call the Associated Press is a heritage to be cherished, said Mr. Noyes.

Ickes, without mentioning names, assailed the "share the wealth" plan of Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana and the proposal of Dr. F. E. Townsend of California to pay $200 a month to those over 60. He also made a reference apparently to Father Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit priest.

"Yet," he added, "if I were clothed with despotic power, I would not crook a finger in abridgment of the right of demagogue or visionary or poet to disseminate whatever views he might have. The right of free speech either means the plain intendment of the language in which it is written or it means nothing."

"Personally," he said, "I happen to be a man of strong convictions. Certain beliefs are obnoxious to me.

False Doctrines

"I despise the demagogue who hurls his voice through the pure air to advocate false doctrines, the acceptance of which by a majority of the people would destroy this America that I love.

"I have nothing but contempt for the man of crooked intellect who deliberately sets out to fool the under privileged, who during these last few years, have been having an especially tragic time of it, by holding out to them the hope that as a result of some fantastic 'share the wealth' scheme every man, woman and child is to have thrust into his hands the sum of $5,000 which is to come from God knows where.

"To inspire hopes that can never be realized in those who dwell in physical misery and mental despair is a base and loathsome thing. It is despicable beyond my powers of description.

"Or, take the impractical visionary, as distinguished from the ranting demagogue, who dreams an effervescent dream of an unrealizable utopia, the dwellers wherein, upon attaining the age of 60 are to be paid in spot cash, again from what source God only knows, the sum of two hundred dollars a month.

"And then there is the other voice of the cloistered individual whose rich but undisciplined imagination has reduced politics sociology, and banking to charming poetry which he distills mellifously into the ether for the entrancement of mankind."

Snakes Dislike Irish Moisture

DUBLIN, April 23 (C.P.)—A new reason has been assigned for the absence of snakes from Ireland. It's the weather!

Popular legend has it that they were all banished by Saint Patrick the national apostle, 1500 years ago. The more material view that snakes dislike Ireland's wet weather was taken by W. Farrington, lecturing at a meeting of the Geographical Society of Ireland here.

He said Ireland boasted of a species of toad common to county Kerry but had nothing like the common English toad. England was first occupied by certain fauna which were slow of movement, also Ireland at a later stage, but as the land sank and the sea arose and cut off the British Isles from the rest of Europe, separating Ireland from England, there was less time for the fauna to move from the mainland, he said.

Farrington added Tierra del Fuego also had no snakes, although South America was a comparatively snaky region. The reason for the absence of the reptiles was undoubtedly due, he said, to wet weather in both parts of the world.

ABOLISHING DEATH-TRAPS.

It is gratifying to know that some of the money the Federal Government proposes to spend in a works relief program is to be devoted to the elimination of level crossings, even if the amount earmarked for that work is not likely to make a very marked improvement in conditions, in view of the fact that there are some 30,000 such crossings in the Dominion.

The United States is going in for crossing elimination on a large scale, proposing to spend between one hundred and two hundred millions in an effort to remove some of the worst level crossing menaces that threaten the safety of motorists, but even that sum will, of course, fall far short of eliminating all the danger spots.

However, the fact that both countries are doing something to deal with this most serious matter should be generally welcome, for it means that at least some of the death-traps will be ultimately eliminated.

Unfortunately it would seem to be the case that until all such crossings are made fool-proof the death toll from grade crossing accidents will continue to supply newspaper headlines, for it is obvious that despite the frequency of such mishaps the absolute necessity of motorists protecting themselves at these danger points has not yet been appreciated sufficiently to bring about an improvement in conditions.

The old advice, "Stop! Look! Listen!", if faithfully adhered to would bring about a startling change, but unfortunately it is more often ignored than followed.

THIS NEVER SHOULD HAPPEN.

That tragic story from the small Maryland village of Powellville of six young people losing their lives when a speeding motor car crashed into a parked truck was a typical example of the kind of accident that never should happen.

Here was a joy-riding party of three girls and three young men occupying a high-powered car, and completely indifferent to the danger that excessive speed involved for themselves and for anybody else who might be on the highway.

Probably the driver was no worse than his companions, for it might well have been the case that they were exhorting him to "step on the gas," although that will never be definitely known, because all six are dead.

At any rate he hurled his powerful machine, travelling at a speed that the police declare could not have been less than 70 miles an hour, at a village corner, failed to swing the car back into the road and negotiate the turn safely, and the next instant the life was crushed out of himself and his five friends as the automobile ploughed into a parked truck with so much momentum that the wrecked machines had to be torn apart to get at the bodies.

Everybody in that car must have known that they were travelling at a dangerous speed, and yet they were willing to take a chance, so they gambled with death, and lost.

The circumstances are not unusual; such chance-taking driving is an everyday thing with many motorists, and the only wonder is that there are not more of such tragedies as this Maryland affair, which, we repeat, was the kind of accident that never should happen.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Twenty years ago this morning Peterborough's quota to the 1st Canadian contingent received its first real initiation into the horrors of modern warfare, and in the early hours of that far-away April morning many of them, some mere boys, made the supreme sacrifice as they hurled themselves against the advancing German hordes.

The Second Battle of Ypres—perhaps best known to Canadians as the battle of St. Julien—really began twenty years ago yesterday, for it was late in the afternoon of April 22 that the French Colonial troops, holding the line immediately to the north of the Canadian position, were overwhelmed by a cloud of poison gas, and the road to the channel ports was open.

That night the 2nd Battalion, with which unit most of Peterborough's infantry in the 1st contingent were serving, was brought up to help fill up the gap in the line, and early the next morning came the charge that brought grief into many a Peterborough home.

The Battle of St. Julien was the acid test for Canada's untried troops, and gloriously did they meet that test. It was said of them by Sir John French in his official communique that "their gallantry and determination undoubtedly saved the situation," and although the price was heavy, Canada's grief was tempered by the knowledge that her sons had not failed her when the time came.

There were many bigger and perhaps bloodier engagements for the Dominion's troops in the years that followed, but St. Julien will always be remembered as the battle that brought the war home to Canada.

THAT INCOME TAX.

In his address before the Rotary Club yesterday advocating the abolition of the federal income tax, Capt. W. C. C. Innes, of the Commercial Bureau of Canada, admitted that the move would not be popular politically because so comparatively few voters had to pay.

Figures recently published as to the operations of the tax for the fiscal year 1933-34 show, as a matter of fact, that only 269,957 individuals in the whole Dominion paid income tax in that year, the total sum raised from this source being $29,183,715.

A striking feature is that by far the largest part of the income tax revenue is obtained from a comparative handful of taxpayers: the report reveals the fact that $21,985,280 of the revenue from this levy was contributed by 6440 persons with incomes of $10,000 or more.

To put it another way, a little over three per cent of Canadians liable to income tax paid three-quarters of the total revenue obtained from this source.

In the house, being composed of those whose incomes were under $2,000 a year, were found nearly 46 per cent. of the total income taxpayer, 93,316 persons in all, and their contribution was only $989,083, an average of $10.60. On the contrary, in the highest bracket, those with incomes exceeding $50,000, numbered only 307 persons, or 0.15 per cent. of the total, but among them they paid $8,785,864 in income tax, for an average of $28,618 each.

With the income tax providing nearly thirty million dollars in revenue and the chief burden carried by less than 7,000 voters, Capt. Innes was undoubtedly right when he declared that any move to abolish this levy would not make much of a hint politically.

TRYING TO DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT.

The report and recommendations of the Royal Commission on Price Spreads and Mass Buying seems at first sight a patchwork, bewilderingly complex, often contradictory, much of it vague and improvised. But in it are the beginnings of a design. The design of state control.

• • • •

In trying to understand this report, it is necessary to remember two things. One is public determination that unbridled rapacity must henceforth be held in check; that greed cannot longer be allowed full play in our economic life. Which is understandable. There were few traffic laws when ox-carts plied the roads, but the automobile had to be regulated. Likewise untrammelled individualism was tolerable in a simpler day, but given the modern industrial machine to drive, it is impracticable. The wrecks are too many, too costly, too lethal.

The second is that there can be no real prosperity for all of us so long as any large group among us does not share in it.

• • • •

These are not new ideas, and the translation of them into reality involves tremendous difficulties, but it is a new thing to have them generally accepted. It is what makes the recommendations of this Royal Commission important.

• • • •

Further: in considering what this commission recommends, it is well to consider what this commission discovered. Some things it discovered were shocking. It didn't discover that Canadian business as a whole was a Sodom and Gomorrah, without the Scriptural ten just men. It did discover that a great deal of Canadian business was wicked; that there was greed and pathetic avarice; that in this land where labor was thought to be protected, and where consumers paid for labor's protection, there was exploitation of labor, with pitiable wages, with working conditions perilous to the physical and moral health of men and women; that things existed in certain industries unfair to honest business and a negation of what is just and decent. No amount of sophistry or of theory can escape the truth of that.

• • • •

Thus the case for control. It is easy to denounce state interference; to argue against regimentation and control; to contend that free play of competition, with the law of supply and demand, achieves its own remedy. The answer to all of that is that the free play of competition, with the law of supply and demand, hasn't shown itself as a remedy, that it has permitted evils to flourish, and that, therefore, we must try something else. We simply can't sit down in impotence and plead we can't do anything. Or that we shouldn't.

• • • •

Nor is it enough to say that the commission is blurred about what should be done, vague about the manner of doing the things it thinks should be done. The commission is vague. It fails to make clear—or so it seems to us—just how its proposed federal trade and industry commission is going to work; whether its decisions will be subject to the will of the Government; whether the penalties it imposes for wrongdoing will be imposed by itself, or by the courts; or what will constitute wrongdoing. But if these things, with others, are outlined but faintly, the answer is that the place to define them—and the only place in which they can be defined properly—is in a bill; in the law that will be placed upon the statute books. That is for the Government and Parliament.

• • • •

It is said that the commission has recommended too much; that it takes in too much ground. Perhaps it has. Certainly it cannot be argued that because control has been found possible in the case of our banks and insurance companies and railways, similar control ought to be possible in the case of all business and industry. The Dominion Department of Insurance deals with a comparatively few companies; the Bank Act with but ten chartered banks; the Railway Commission with but two railways. Control in that case, or supervision, is simple. It is obviously a much harder thing to supervise thousands of industries and businesses, scattered all over Canada and operating under different conditions.

• • • •

And yet, after all is said and done, after all of the difficulties are thought of, what do we come to? We come to the plain, unanswerable question: If not this, what? If free competition has become a menace, if it won't behave itself, if some of those operating under it won't play fair with the public, and try to exploit the public—what then? Free Trade? That, clearly, is nonsense. Free Trade, even were it possible, wouldn't help us; under the existing state of international capitalism, with its world combinations and cartels, Free Trade couldn't help us. There is no such thing now as the old free market.

• • • •

So we must try something else. That something else, when it is put into a statute, won't be what this report is; won't be as loose, or as general, or as vague. It will be an experiment in betterment. And while the Journal is no friend of regimentation, no friend of a controlled and graded society, with all of its instincts against bureaucracy, it is compelled to support that experiment. The specific measures taken may be full of blunders. Some of them may fall completely. Probably none of them will succeed perfectly—few of man's efforts in this world do.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Canada's climate has its faults, but at least we have reason to rejoice that we are fairly well out of the earthquake belt.

Peterborough's tag day contribution to the Humane Society was considerably larger than a year ago. That is a gratifying result, for there is need for the society's work, and it is being well and economically done.

Ottawa reports continue to tell the story that Hon. H. H. Stevens is to come back to the Bennett Cabinet. Of course, a lot of things can happen before May 20th when Parliament reassembles.

With the Federal Parliament adjourned, there will be considerable party fence-building done in the constituencies during the next few weeks.

NOT "A PASSING SHOWER"

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—In last Thursday's issue of The Examiner appeared an item relative to four men discharged from the Nogies' Creek Camp, because they refused to work during a "passing shower."

As I am one of these four men, I would like to present the facts in this case.

I may say that this "shower" took about eight hours to pass. We four men worked with the other men for over two hours in the morning, in the rain until called in by our foreman. At one o'clock in the afternoon it was raining harder than it was when we were called in, in the morning, and yet we were sent out to work.

After working about twenty minutes, we four men (who, incidentally, all had bad colds) motioned to our foreman that we were leaving, put our tools in the tool-box, and started for the office to report to the time-keeper. On the way we met Mr. Kidd (the camp superintendent) who, upon learning our intention, immediately discharged us.

Mr. Kidd's statement to a Government official in this city was that we were discharged because we attempted to "intimidate" the other men into laying off too. We did not attempt to persuade the other men to lay off, but if we had, it does not take a very keen brain to realize that, as Mr. Kidd was coming from the direction of the office, he could not have known about this when he discharged us.

The item mentioned in the first sentence also states that "the general rule in the camps is to give the men every consideration if the weather is unfavorable."

Reports from other camps are that on Friday afternoon, April 12 (the date on which we were discharged from Nogies' Creek) the men were allowed to lay off if they considered the weather unfit to work in. Many of the men continued work, while others, with colds, did not.

We four men have never been known as agitators heretofore and did not expect there would be any trouble over our wish to take care of our own health by not working in the rain.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I am,

Yours very truly,
L.C.

David Thompson, famous northwest explorer, arrived on the site of McMurray in 1799. But at the fort of the forks "where the bold river comes in," he did not tarry and for long years after there was no settlement.

In 1870, Fort McMurray was established by Factor H. J. Moberly on the site of the Forks Fort. He named the settlement after Chief Factor William McMurray, who was in charge of Ile a la Crosse about that time.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

The real problem in the treatment of arthritis is that of the young person with an involvement of many joints. There are two types of this arthritis—one is acute, the other chronic. The acute one, the old so-called rheumatic fever or acute articular rheumatism, runs a rapid course, with severe prostration for a few days or weeks, and then disappears. The course can be influenced by the use of salicylates. The disappearance is often temporary, as it has a tendency to return. It never leaves any disability in the joints and its worst feature is the chance that it may affect the heart or the circulatory organs.

The chronic form of arthritis which affects young people from 20 to 35, is the one that I speak of as the real central problem of arthiritis. The arthritis of ol people over 50 is not much of a trouble-maker. True, the patients complain a great deal, but after all it affects usually only one joint, and it only affects their activity in the sense that it keeps them from moving as fast as they would like to. But there is an apt story which applies to their condition about the fellow who was in jail and asked a guard what time it was. The guard's reply, you remember, was, "What do you care? You aren't going any place." We do not wish to appear unsympathetic towards the arthritis of old people. We have some of it ourselves. But the treatment is not troublesome and the nature of it will be taken up tomorrow.

Views of Prominent Physicians

Concerning the treatment of the chronic arthritis of young people, commonly called "rheumatoid arthritis", I have been interested in the replies to a questionnaire sent out to sixteen of the prominent medical men in this country who have been especially interested in this disease. They were asked for their opinions about treatment under the following heads; rest, physical therapy including massage and exercise, heat, water treatment, drugs, removal of the foci of infection as in the teeth and tonsils, climate, injections of foreign protein, streptococcus vaccine, blood transfusions, the low carbohydrate diet, intestinal hygiene including colonic irrigations, etc.

This list shows what are considered to be all the possibilities of treatment for this disease. The order in which the methods of treatment are listed above is the order in which those methods were approved by the sixteen different specialists. In other words, everybody agreed that rest was the most important; that massage and exercise are next most important; that heat is next important; that water is fourth most important, etc.

Emphasis on Rest

It seems to me the thing that needs the most comment is the emphasis on rest, and this applies to all forms of arthritis, acute and chronic, in the old and in the young. As long as people can hobble, they will get around on their poor inflamed joints. They will take every form of treatment except that of going to bed and allowing Nature to do its best and Nature, as everybody who has any wisdom knows, does 95 per cent of the treatment in any individual case anyhow.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

ARE CHILDREN TOUGHER THAN WE THINK?

Parents are always trying to "shelter" their children, trying to shield them from shocks and the more terrible side of life. They fear that if a young thing suffers it may be scarred all the rest of its life. They say, "Let the youngster be happy as long as he can, he will learn soon what life is like."

But children are tougher than we think. Some of them are sensitive and easily bruised, I know, but they are the same ones who are easily shocked at all periods in their lives. The others come into life armored and as safe as they will ever be.... And most of us learned long ago, in those tragic moments when we stood face to face with the mysterious unknown, that they were not so terrible as we had feared.

Sometimes, of course, we are shocked by our own ability to face the darker moments of life.... I remember when I was a little fellow and a boy we had played with was drowned in the yellow Sacramento river. And I remember how for weeks my mind would return to the picture of his poor young body being rolled over and over in the twisting currents of that river.... And I remember another boy who made a cave in a sandbank and was smothered when the earth fell in upon him. It was exciting for us to go to his funeral and wear white gloves and carry his coffin to the grave. It was dramatic, and I cannot believe that we were all little monsters lacking in feeling.

I remember my own self one day in the war, a day from which I did not expect to come alive.... It was a craziness of mustard gas that sickened me and made me vomit, of shells that fell alongside and did not kill me, but did kill others, of nervous excitement and terrible then, on that very day, while death weariness and disgust. But even was at my elbow, I was not unhappy, I was not shell shocked, and I remember that day not unpleasurably.

I believe that most of us are like that. We do not shrink from the worst we have known or may happen to us. Below the surface of ourselves we feel the challenge of life, we are glad to risk security for the treasure of the unknown and the adventurous.... And children are not as different as they seem. They are adventurers, too.

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A DAY OF MANY BIG EVENTS

April 23 is not merely St. George's Day and therefore, the feast of Englishmen wherever they may be found, but it is also the anniversary of both the birth and death of the immortal Shakespeare. That should be enough distinction for any one day, but it is not for April 23rd.

Here are a few of the things which took place on April 23 in Canada or by Canadians:

1785—The first settlers arrived at Sydney, Cape Breton. An event which is to be celebrated today in honor of the 150th anniversary.

1792—St. George's Church, Kingston, Upper Canada, was opened. It is now St. George's Cathedral the seat of the Bishop of Ontario and the burial place of Lord Sydenham, the first governor general of the Province of Canada.

1827—Guelph founded by John Galt of the Canada Company (Incorporated as a city April 23, 1875.

1842—King's College, the forerunner of the University of Toronto, inaugurated by laying of foundation stone.

1851—The First Canadian postage stamp (value (3d) issued.

1885—Battleford relieved by a column of Canadian militia under Colonel W. D. Otter.

1915—The Battle of St. Julian when the Germers first used poison gas and an engagement which won the highest praise of John Buchan, our governer general designate.

1917—The battle of the Scarpe.

1918—The amazing operation by which the port of Zeebrugge, a rendezvous of German submarines; was bottled up, a feat in which several Canadians shares and were awarded due recognition.

April 23rd is an important day in Canadian history.

Peterborough's Possibilities

By HOMER MOORE

ARTICLE 22

These districts, which affect our county and city adversely at present, because they appear to be in a deep sleep, but which I hope will waken up and affect us favorably, are described in language which the man not a graduate of any mining school can understand.

Many men would like to discover some mineral somewhere but do not know where to go or what to do. They start out hopefully by getting government reports only to find their lack of mineral knowledge and perhaps higher education prevents them knowing the meaning of some of the technical terms used by the professors who wrote the reports. There are men who can read those reports with an understanding mind, but there are not enough such men to handle our natural resources.

Those who attend the classes, held at different points, for prospectors are in many cases like the first year man in medical college. He is on the way but a long way to go, before proficiency shows. Those who have no opportunity to attend those informative mineral classes, may be reading these articles and may have unusual natural ability in mineralogy or forestry if called into activity by some suggestion. Even if only one such should be influenced by these possibilities and developed into a real "go-getter" for our northern development, he might become the discoverer of ways and means to more quickly bring those northern resources into a form beneficial to Peterborough. In that case these articles would have scored a "bulls-eye" or hit the mark we have been aiming at.

A great professor was once giving a lecture on electricity. Only one of his audience appeared to catch on. He was a preacher's son and he fairly soaked in the professor's words. The latent ability had been kindled and he later became so proficient, he originated devices and discovered new applications of natural laws in electricity, of basic importance to the great hydro-electric system we know to-day and which has done so much towards production of minerals right in our own country—so if these articles interest those who have ability naturally in mineralogy, "Peterborough's Possibilities" will advance in the estimation of those who are waiting to see if there are any worth-while resources in our northern areas. Even the bare rocks on rock piles—rocks of all shapes and sizes could be so used, if home owners had the right kind of artistic constructive imagination, to make city homes and property, a perpetual advertisement for that northern territory and also a medium for the rays of the sun to scintillate in shimmering colors. "Everything" in that northern district has a use. We will now state what is in some of those townships and perhaps you, as well as the motor kings, may see how to utilize them.

Tudor Township north of Bannockburn, is an area which some day will produce raw material for a scientific process of immense commercial value. This is the age of specialized science and only those who have studied high science would ever recognize the possibilities of the resources of this township.

Those of us who keep abreast of scientific discoveries — or perhaps ahead of the majority of them — have an idea that some time in the future "Peterborough's Possibilities" will depend, then, on a basic resource fund in this area. In stating such, I am fully aware of a unique process for manufacturing a product and which is owned by one person. A city can develop from the energies of many people or it can develop by the skill and money of one person. If that person has an idealistic mind—and realizes that God gave brains to discover uses of material to benefit or beautify the world, and that no man has ever been able to take wealth away with him at death.

"We brought nothing into this world and it is certain we can take nothing out" and if some of us know how to create large estates while we are passing through this world — why not do it for the benefit of everybody around us? Build up a city as a lasting monument, so future generations can see what we of to-day did with the resources so abundant around us! Pullman of "Pullman car" fame, by his invention was means of creating a large industry, which immediately made stores, houses, schools, churches, parks etc. etc., necessary for the use of the employees. Perhaps some one man will create an extensive factory here?

Every large industry always creates at its main location, the need for everything pertaining to comfort for employees and their families, and one business creates families, and one business creates an opening for another of a different kind. This enlarges a city—increases population and reduces individual tax expenses because more people to carry it. If some more large industries would locate the main factory in our city, we would soon benefit in every way.

The raw material for many such, is in "our" northern districts. Have we the men who can see the opportunity to help Peterborough grow? "On Lot 18 of Concession 18, in the Township of Tudor, is a deposit of magnetic iron ore of more than average quality." When tested it gave 68 per cent metallic iron and is free from titanium.

Every large industrialist who wants iron ore, always wants to know if it has in it, "titanium." If it has—they shrug their shoulders, which has a world of meaning. In Tudor Township is iron ore with no titanium in it. There are other deposits elsewhere in these districts, with the same absence of the disliked titanium. After we name those districts, why couldn't all such ore be conveyed to our city, to feed into some great steel plant?

I do not know the owners of the above iron property so this named lot and concession is in no manner done to influence a sale, but merely to draw attention to the superior quality of the ore. There is said to be considerable fluorspar near the town of Madoc, which could be brought to Peterborough. Some say that fluorspor helps turn iron ore into steel. But there are other ways also.

On lots numbers six, seven, eight in concession 19 of same township is another deposit of iron ore. Test revealed sixty-three percent metallic iron, also free of titanium. Aside from these deposits are other resources and a railway as well. The railway in this township will be the means of making the resources therein famous, not in their present form but when turned into what they can be turned into!

In the Township of Mayo, a few miles north and east of the above mentioned deposits, is an other occurence of magnetic iron ore near Bessemer! The ore is on concessions six and nine and considerable work was done there in past years. I have heard the sound of the blasting operations—heard it clear across Salmon Lake, near St. Ola. What a mighty blast that must have been and great amount of rock moved! Without going into details of this property, it must be said the ore tested around fifty-eight per cent metallic iron and was free of titanium.

In the Township of Lake, which is not far from Peterborough County, is a deposit of black magnetic iron ore. To be exact it is on lot number 18, in concession 3, and a specimen from there tested slightly over sixty per cent metallic iron and free of titanic acid. Now in these three townships is iron which is the desirable kind because free of titanium. Can it be possible that the other factors for the new alloys are in between those deposits or somewhere near Peterborough County?" "Peterborough's Possibilities" now loom larger!

Vt. to-day in lieu of $5,000 bail on an automobile theft charge. Denying all knowledge of the death of Baldwin, Brown has refused to waive extradition to Canada.

Mrs. Worsley identified a pair of rubber boots as similar to a pair the stranger was wearing when she claimed to have seen him walking away from the Baldwin store shortly after six o'clock last Thursday evening, carrying a pair of shoes under his arm. The jury was informed the boots shown to Mrs. Wormsley were found in the car Brown is alleged to have abandoned at the international border.

Doctor Testifies.

First witness at the inquest to-day was Dr. Arthur Prefontaine of Coaticook who attended Baldwin a few minutes before he died. The doctor reported his skull was crushed and there were other bruises, indicating he had been struck with a club or blackjack.

Harold Wormsley, 43, said he noticed a stranger in the village Thursday afternoon. The newcomer, said the witness, was about five feet six inches tall, with a lean face and a long nose. He was dressed in a blue suit and wearing low shoes.

Wormsley said he easily recognized the man in the photograph as the stranger he had referred to. He said he had noticed the man in the Baldwin store and had heard part of a conversation between Baldwin and the stranger.

Mrs. Wormsley said she saw the stranger walking towards the Baldwin store and had seen him later coming from the direction of the store with low shoes under his arm and rubber boots on his feet. She identified the photographs the Crown claimed were pictures of Brown and also the rubber boots.

Miss May testified she had noticed the man in the store when she went there to telephone, and identified the photograph, the profile view she said, showed an especially convincing likeness. Witness also said she attempted to call for assistance when Baldwin was found dying, but the telephone wires from the store had been cut.

GREENVILLE, Tex., April 23 (AP) —District Attorney Henry Pharr said to-day the Grand Jury was investigating an "accusation of murder" against S. P. Darden who yesterday told officers his eight-year-old son killed his mother with a shotgun while walking in his sleep.

Pharr said a charge of murder would be fyled against Darden shortly after funeral services for Mrs. Darden, 32, who will be buried this afternoon.

Pharr scouted the story of Darden who said the boy, Jackie Glenn, shot his mother while he walked in his sleep.

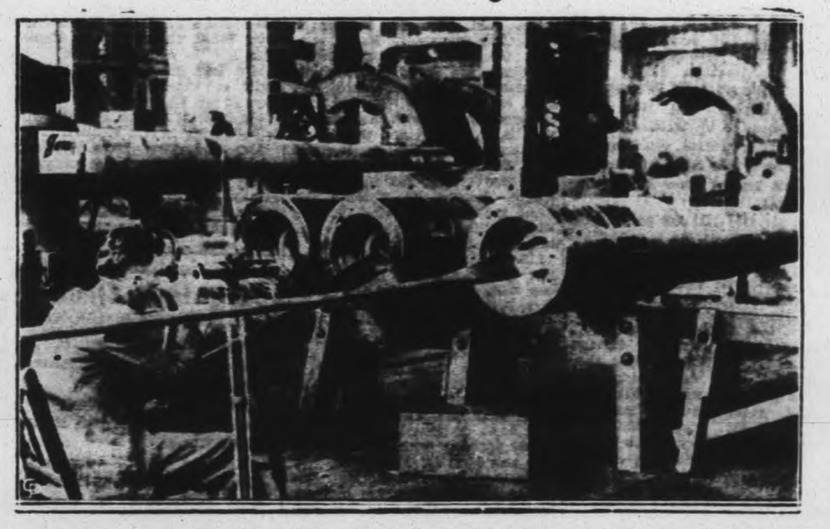
U.S. Gun Factories Running At Full Blast



The scene is the Washington navy yard gun shops, where most of the U.S. navy's ordnance is manufactured and an expert is shown examining the bore of a big gun, to determine if it is true to specifications. The gun shops in Washington are now running full blast, with 8,000 workers employed and a number of new guns are being manufactured including a so-called mystery 5-inch rifle, plans of which are being closely guarded.

Vt. to-day in lieu of $5,000 bail on an automobile theft charge. Denying all knowledge of the death of Baldwin, Brown has refused to waive extradition to Canada.

Mrs. Worsley identified a pair of rubber boots as similar to a pair the stranger was wearing when she claimed to have seen him walking away from the Baldwin store shortly after six o'clock last Thursday evening, carrying a pair of shoes under his arm. The jury was informed the boots shown to Mrs. Wormsley were found in the car Brown is alleged to have abandoned at the international border.

Doctor Testifies.

First witness at the inquest to-day was Dr. Arthur Prefontaine of Coaticook who attended Baldwin a few minutes before he died. The doctor reported his skull was crushed and there were other bruises, indicating he had been struck with a club or blackjack.

Harold Wormsley, 43, said he noticed a stranger in the village Thursday afternoon. The newcomer, said the witness, was about five feet six inches tall, with a lean face and a long nose. He was dressed in a blue suit and wearing low shoes.

Wormsley said he easily recognized the man in the photograph as the stranger he had referred to. He said he had noticed the man in the Baldwin store and had heard part of a conversation between Baldwin and the stranger.

Mrs. Wormsley said she saw the stranger walking towards the Baldwin store and had seen him later coming from the direction of the store with low shoes under his arm and rubber boots on his feet. She identified the photographs the Crown claimed were pictures of Brown and also the rubber boots.

Miss May testified she had noticed the man in the store when she went there to telephone, and identified the photograph, the profile view she said, showed an especially convincing likeness. Witness also said she attempted to call for assistance when Baldwin was found dying, but the telephone wires from the store had been cut.

"We have one of the best towns in Ontario,' said Mr. Brunelle, "and what could be made out of it if the people just took hold; the drive down the canal could be made beautiful and attractive with your farms all lit by electricity; the farmers of Quebec do not enjoy the low rates you have here."

After describing his impressions on the first Orange parade he had ever witnessed, the speaker touched on educational institutions in Quebec, stating that people are sending their children to those place and when they have finished they leave with on-half an education, because the English language is essential—he had known men who had to take a course in English for over two years in order to learn the language.

Acting President Williams conveyed the thanks of the club members to the speaker for his most interestin address. After the announcements had been read from the secretary's report it was decided that the club would be represented in the District Convention, to be held at Niagara Falls on May 19, 20, 21; also that a number of members would preside at the Trenton club's meeting, which will be held at the Gilbert House, at 6.30 p.m. on April 29, and at which the Canisteo, N.Y., club will be visitors and supply the speaker. It was also decided that there would be no meeting held on Jubilee Day, May 6. Arrangements were also completed for Ladies' Night, which takes place in St. Peter's Parish Hall, Cobourg, on the evening of Thursday, May 9th.

Visitors at Monday's luncheon included Dr. Alex. Hall of Hornell, N.Y.; Rotarian Roy Smith of Georgetown, and Mr. Carl Maguire of Toronto. After an absence of several weeks, Rotarian Harold N. Carr, M.P.P. for Northumberland, was among those present.

Premier Hepburn and Hon. David Croll, Minister of Welfare, one of the quints' guardians, yesterday, Mr. Croll was out of town and Premier Hepburn replied after telephoning Dr. Dafoe.

The premier told the parents Dr. Dafoe did not believe a consultant necessary but would call one to satisfy them. Dr. Dafoe declined to say whether he would agree to a physician named by the parents examining the children.

Get Regular Airing.

Four of the youngsters were so well after Dr. Brown's visit they were given their regular airing this morning. Marie, tiniest of the five, is still "a bit under the weather," Dr. Dafoe said, and remained indoors. Her temperature was 100 degrees. The physician expects her to be well in a day or two. Collectively the babies lost only one ounce to-day.

Dr. Brown came to Callander with Dr. William Dafoe of Toronto, brother of the local physician, and returned to Toronto early this morning.

He issued the following statement here:

"At three a.m., April 23, I saw the Dionne infants with Dr. A. R. Dafoe and his brother, Dr. William Dafoe of Toronto. I found them satisfactorily recovering from an upper respiratory infection (nose and throat infection), which apparently had been transmitted to them from some outside source. This again emphasizes the fact that these infants, if they are to survive, must be prevented from contact with individuals other than those in actual care of the infants.

Praise for Dr. Dafoe, Nurses.

"In my opinion Dr. Dafoe and his nurses have handled the situation in a thoroughly scientific and up-to-date manner. A general examination of all the infants reveals the fact they are in excellent physical condition, showing no indication of anaemia or rickets. In fact, the bone and muscle development would challenge the best brought up city infant with all the care that a specialist could give.

"The babies have made excellent progress since I last saw them in the late fall and I again wish to pay tribute to the excellent medical attention given by Dr. Dafoe and his two nurses, and to congratulate the Government in their wisdom in proposing the regulations governing the children's care and protection."

Vestment Worn 500 Years Ago

STOCKHOLM, April 23 (C.P.) Renovated for the occasion, a bishop's cope 500 years old will be worn by the officiating prelate in the celebration in June of the 500th anniversary of the cathedral at Upsala.

This magnificent vestment is made of crimson velvet with gold and colored threads in pomegranate design. The embroidery is carried out in gold, silver and many-colored silks, the work of a Swedish workroom of the time.

NAZI OFFICIAL'S OTTAWA VISIT

orchestra occasionally brought von Ribbentrop to rehearsals.

"He always struck me as being like a character out of one of E. Phillips Oppenheim's novels," Mr. Heins, now assistant conductor of the Toronto symphony orchestra, said. "He was a highly cultured, polished sort of fellow. There was nothing overbearing about him but you could see immediately he was of the aristocracy. He played the violin very well indeed but he was lionized by the people around town. He always seemed to have too much else to do to give any time to the orchestra. Everyone liked him.

"He wasn't the sort of fellow you could have a drink with and forget. There was something very impressive about him. The young lady who brought him to the orchestra practices was very much interested in him as were a lot of people in the city."

Mr. Heins said he never really knew von Ribbentrop in any intimate sense.

"Not that I didn't want to," he explained. "I liked him immensely. But he was always so busy socially, I only saw him under very ordinary circumstances."

In Years Before the War.

Although he was hesitant about placing the time too definitely, Mr. Heins said he believed Von Ribbentrop must have lived in Ottawa some time between 1907 and 1910. Mr. Heins could not be sure how long the now prominent Nazi had lived there, but he was inclined to believe he was not in the city more than a year. He appeared to be 22 or 23 years old at the time. Mr. Heins could not recall that he spoke English with any broadly foreign accent.

"There was, of course, talk about him while he was there. But most people were glad to accept him because of his youth and because of his desire to improve his language. There was an air of mystery about him, all right."

A cabled report of Von Ribbentrop's elevation to an important rank in the Guard troops, which was announced on Hitler's birthday three days ago, also mentioned the other likelihoods in store for him.

The same high Nazi sources who said he would soon be appointed ambassador-at-large, a position analagous to that of Norman H. Davis, ambassador-at-large for the United States, said that from there it would be only a step to his ascendance to the post of state secretary of the foreign office. In making the latter move, he would re place Bernard von Buelow, a hold-over from the Streseman and Bruening regimes.

Guided By Radio Beams.

Radio stations here and in Honolulu provided beams to guide the craft as it roared through the night, far above clouds, which at times obscured waters below. An improved radio compass, the challenge of science to hazards of ocean flying, kept the plane on its course.

At altitudes of 7,300 to 7,600 feet, the Clipper was more than 1,000 feet above the cloud banks in good flying weather, with an unlimited ceiling and unlimited visibility.

OFFICIALS FEAR

Damage was estimated at $3,000,000.

Head Hunters Escape.

Aerial surveys of the 'quake region showed the flimsy villages of the savage, head-hunting mountain tribes had escaped destruction and heavy casualties at first feared in these areas had not occurred.

It also was ascertained Formosa's principal industry, sugar, had suffered no serious damage, most of the mills and canefields being outside the damaged zone.

The surveys disclosed the shocks laid waste an area of approximately 2,000 square miles inhabited by some 20,000 persons. Most of the inhabitants are of Chinese extraction and engaged in agricultural pursuits.

As Army and Japanese Red Cross workers pursued their merciful efforts, a succession of slight aftershocks spread new terror. None of the later quakes, however, was of sufficient force to cause damage.

Floods Feared

The possibility floods might add to the woes of the territory created concern among officials. The Tansu River is close to flood stage as a result of recent heavy tropical rains and it was believed only continued fair weather would check its rise.

The Japanese destroyer Shimakaze reached Byoritsu with a cargo of relief supplies while the steamer Yamato Maru was en route from Kobe with a group of Red Cross workers.

Gets First Glimpse of Civilization After Years in Arctic

Back to civilization after five years in the Arctic wastes, driving 3,000 reindeer from Alaska to the Mackenzie Delta, Andy Bahr, Laplander from Seattle, Washington, is shown (right) as he arrived at the Edmonton airport. It was his first sight of a white man's city in five years. With him (at right) is Miss Reba Riddell, nurse from Ottawa, who for ten months was a guest at the Roman Catholic mission at Aklavik. She entered into the life of the north, making long trips by dog team through blizzards and intense cold that saw the mercury at the 60 below zero mark. Bahr is pictured at (left) upon his return to Seattle, Washington, where he is greeted by his wife and foster-daughter with a big hug and kiss.

Royalty From All The World To Assemble At Garter Ceremony

The richest pageant of all the celebrations of the Royal Silver Jubilee will be the assembly to be held in Windsor Castle on June 17 when 36 members of the Knights of the Garter will come together for the first time in 22 years. A service to be held in St. George's chapel will be the most colorful event of all the many colorful events to be witnessed in London for the next few months. The knights, many of them monarchs of foreign lands, will wear their picturesque robes of order, dark blue mantle, embroidered with the garter and black velvet hats and white ostrich plumes. The procession will be headed by the King and Queen in the march from the castle to the chapel. The King's stall will be canopied with purple velvet fringed with gold and above it will hang his banner as sovereign of the order. The Queen, the only woman in the order, will sit on his right and will wear full robes of the order and the insignia set in diamonds presented to her by the Marys in the kingdom. Among those who are knights of the Garter are shown in the above layout, TOP, LEFT to RIGHT, King Victor Emmanuel of Italy; King Gustav of Sweden; King George, Queen Mary, Emperor Hirohito of Japan and King Haakon of Norway. LOWER ROW, LEFT to RIGHT, Earl of Athlone, brother of Queen Mary; ex-King Alfonso of Spain; King Christian of Denmark; H.R.H. the Prince of Wales; Rt. Hon. Sir Austen Chamberlain, the only commoner in the order, and the Duke of Connaught, probably the oldest member. All 36 members are expected to attend the brilliant ceremony of the most famous of chivalric orders.

Miss Barrie, who has been going with Donahue, gave her blessing.

'Never Married' Says Actress Mae West in Day of Denials

1911 CEREMONY RUMOR BURNS UP MOVIELAND STAR

"Don't Know the Mug, Frank Wallace, Never Want to," She Tells Newsmen.

ALL VERY ODD.

Suspected Husband Traced in New York is Hushed Up By His Agent.

HOLLYWOOD, April 23 (U.P.) — Somebody done somebody wrong — but the question is: Who done who and why?

Mae West, streamlined film siren —who may be a spinster, wife or widow—issued denials last night until she was hoarse, insisting she never was married to Frank Wallace, doesn't know Frank Wallace, and doesn't want him, dead or alive.

But film colony gossips, rolling about on their tongues the sweetest morsel since Mary Pickford and Doug. Fairbanks had their innings, refused to believe anything.

Miss West, perspiration rolling down her enameled features, answered telephone bells and doorbells until she was dizzy, denying pointed inquiries of grinning newsmen as to how come a marriage license was uncovered in Milwaukee, Wis., listing the marriage of "Mae West, actress," and Frank Wallace, on April 11, 1911.

General Denial

"I don't know the mug—and don't want to know him," Mae said. "I never heard of the guy. I'm a spinster, I tell you—and I'm not 42, around the chest or according to my teeth."

The marriage license lists the mother's maiden name as Matilda Dilker, and the father as John West, in the Milwaukee marriage. Oddly enough, Miss West confessed her mother's maiden name was Matilda Dilker, and her father was John West, a prize-fighter.

"I bet can't figure it," she added, "it's very odd."

The question of whether Miss West ever was in burlesque also provided an intriguing point of departure. "Miss West" of the Milwaukee marriage, which took place in the Gaiety Theatre, a burlesque house, supposedly was a burlesque actress.

Miss West—the film lady—was asked if she ever was in burlesque.

"Me? Burlesque! Why certainly not—that is not what you would call burlesque. Some of the boys thought my stuff was pretty good, of course. But it wasn't exactly burlesque."

Memory Bad

Miss West confessed her memory didn't go back too far.

"The first show I remember was 'Sometime' (Schubert Theatre, New York, 1918). I was about 14 then. This would make her seven when she played demi-mondaine Maggie O'Hara in "A La Broadway."

Miss West soared into fame as Margie Le Mont in "Sex," her own play, in April, 1926. She got tangled up with the law on that occasion, went into "Diamond Lil" in 1928, and made her movie debut in 1931.

News files of 1911 list "Mae West and Frank Wallace" as playing in "Florida Enchantment," 'a musical show—so there you are, or where are you?

Two Frank Wallace Traced

NEW YORK, April 23 (UP).—Two Frank Wallaces were traced last night by Manhattan newspapers. One of the Franks was said to have died two years ago of tuberculosis.

A brief interview with the live Frank was printed in which a slim, bald, 40-year-old song and dance man was hushed by his agent when he sought to discuss the matter.

"Mr. Wallace cannot deny or affirm the report that he's the husband of Mae West," declared the manager, Jack Carroll.

"But——" Wallace began, only to be silenced by his agent.

"I'll do all the talking," said Carroll, "and I can only say that you will say nothing about it."

The dead Frank Wallace was described by his brother, Lew Wallace, as a member of a comic trio with Paddy Whalen and Jo-Jo in "Diamond Lil," Mae's show, but he succumbed of tuberculosis June 7, 1933.

"My brother never married anybody," said Wallace, "never mind Mae West. He didn't go into show business until 1918."

Do false teeth annoy and bother by dropping and slipping when you eat, talk or laugh? Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This new, tasteless powder holds teeth firm and comfortable. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste. Makes breath pleasant. Get FASTEETH to-day at any good drug store.

Child Going Deaf, Often Badly Used

NEW YORK, April 23 (C.P.)—"There is no child so completely neglected, so completely misunderstood as the child who is losing his hearing," says an investigator. "He does not even understand his own plight, he feels no pain; he only knows the impatience, the hard knocks, the lack of sympathy or the bitterness of being passed over or ignored. There are many thousands of these hard-of-hearing children in the State of New York. Some of them are being discovered through surveys."

The New York State Federation of Women's Clubs has two hard-working committees, attacking what is often the origin of juvenile delinquency and the quotation shows their finding. The child with eye-defects is also isolated and often anti-social.

An authority writes that life begins at forty. But how many women are willing to begin?

Well, there's one thing very few women CAN begin at, shopping via the ads in The Examiner being the fixed, profitable habit it is!

The Peterborough Examiner

PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, CANADA, TUESDAY, APRIL 23 1935

10,000 INJURED AND 532 KILLED CAR ACCIDENTS

Property Damage Was Approximately $4,000,000 in Ontario in 1934.

NEED OF GOOD BRAKES.

One Person Was Fatally Injured For Every Nineteen Accidents.

The importance of efficient brakes on any motor vehicle was explained in terms of the vitally serious job they must perform for safety in an emergency by Albert H. Wood, M.S.A.E., representing the Canadian General Insurance Company and the Toronto General Insurance Company this morning.

"Brakes to be in any kind of satisfactory condition should stop a car in 27 feet at 20 miles per hour, and even at that stopping distance four-wheel brakes are only 50 per cent. efficient," Mr. Wood told The Examiner.

"A one-tone coupe travelling at 20 miles per hour has a collision impact force, based on kinetic energy, of 26,700 pounds. A foot brake in good condition should stop a car at 20 m.p.h. in 25 feet on a dry road; and at that speed the braking distance, with brakes in 80 per cent. condition of efficiency, should be 18 feet. Then, there is another factor to be considered, and that is the time in which brakes are actually applied.

The braking distance is 18 feet, but the car travels 22 feet while the driver is transferring his foot from the accelerator to the brake pedal. Therefore, the total stopping distance is 40 feet. A car at 20 m.p.h is travelling 29 feet a second, and although the engine might rate 25 or 26 m.p.h., it would require 69 h.p. to stop within this distance. This is sufficient power to lift this car 13 feet in the air in 1 1-5 seconds.

The common speed of automobiles to-day is 60 m.p.h., which requires 206 horse-power for efficient stopping of a car.. This power is capable of lifting a car 120 feet in the air in 3 3-5 seconds."

Mr. Wood implied that this fact should impress upon drivers the tremendous impact force which lies under their control when they are travelling the highway at 60 m.p.h.

"At this speed a car moves 66 feet in the time the driver is transferring his foot from the throttle to the brake. The total stopping distance at this speed is 126 feet, the braking distance being 160 feet with 88 feet added for the time it takes for the foot shift from the accelerator to the brake pedal."

Mr. Wood also said that the hand brake should stop a car in 60 feet at 20 m.p.h. and should be kept on par with the efficiency of the foot brake.

Speed Causes Accidents

"Excessive speed, without any doubt, is responsible for 90 per cent. of all accidents involving motor vehicles, therefore it is very necessary that all cars and trucks, independent of their age, should be in a thoroughly safe operating condition in regard to brakes, lights, horns, tires, windshield wipers, steering, glassware and so on, before being taken on the road.

It should be especially remembered that speed took a heavy toll in this province last year.

The public may forget that there were 532 people killed in Ontario in 1934 and 10,000 injured. The property damage was approximately $4,000,000, and the average property damage per accident was $96.32. There was one person fatally injured for every 19 accidents.

The number of accidents reported to the Ontario Department of Highways during the first ten months of 1934 totalled 10,992. An analysis of the time during the day when the accidents occurred showed the following comparative percentages:—from 12 o'clock midnight until 8 a.m. 13 per cent; from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., 32.5; and from 4 p.m. to 12 p.m., 54.

The peak for accidents in any hour is from 5 to 6 p.m. with a percentage of 8.8 per cent., and from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. is the most dangerous period, the percentage being 37.4. The cause is that everybody is in a hurry to get home."

Accidents in Ontario for the first ten months of 1934 increased 10.3 per cent. over 1933.

An Insurance Service

Mr. Wood was engaged for years as a technician with the General Motors Corporation in Canada, and also in the United States. He is now engaged by the Canadian and Toronto General Insurance Companies in a new department of motor vehicle inspection.

"These Canadian companies have pioneered in the merit rating of insurance as an encouragement to safe driving. Adopted in 1931, this plan of merit rating provides a decrease of 5 per cent. in the insurance premium if the insured has had no accidents, and this reduction increases annually at the rate of 5 per cent to a maximum of 35 per cent. off the premium."

For the rank and file of drivers this departure was found not quite sufficient in accomplishing the desired ends. The two companies have now created a safety engineering department under Mr. Wood's supervision. This work includes mechanical inspection of fleets of trucks, taxicabs and motor buses who are insured with these companies, represented locally by Thomas Mark and Hatton and Collins. Drivers are tested and graded independent of experience. Previous accident records of drivers are investigated. Drivers' safety meetings are held wherever possible, and at these meetings discussion covers the various types of accidents and how they may be prevented. The object is to instill a safety consciousness in the minds of every one connected with automotive service and road transporation.

In the checking of cars as to the response and efficiency of their brakes, Mr. Wood uses the Tapley brakemeter, which has been adopted by the Toronto Police Department, in the inspection of cars, to remove guesswork in recording the condition of brakes.

MRS. C. M. SCOTT GUEST SPEAKER

Addresses Special Meeting of St. George's Women's Auxiliary.

Mrs. C. M. Scott was guest speaker last evening at a special meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. George's Church in celebration of their tenth anniversary. Mrs. W. H. Andrews, president, presided over the meeting, and gave a brief resume of the history of the Woman's Auxiliary, which is celebrating its jubilee this year. Rev. J. L. Hughes took the opening devotions, and read the Scripture passage. A violin solo was played by Aileen Hughes, and Rev. J. H. Hughes contributed a vocal solo.

Mrs. Scott, who spent sixteen years in India, where her husband was a medical missionary, gave a very interesting account of the life and work in its three main aspects: Educational, evangelical, and medical. A general description of the country, the climate, religious, and customs of the people was vividly portrayed by the speaker, and a number of interesting curios and a large map of India were also used to illustate the talk. Mrs. J. L. Hughes moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Scott, this being seconded by Mrs. W. G. Ray. Dainty refreshments were served at the close, and a social time enjoyed.

St. George's Church is indebted, through Mrs. W. G. Ray, secretary-treasurer of the Woman's Auxiliary, to Mrs. Ray, Sr., of Halifax, Nova Scotia, for a new hanging for the book rest in the pulpit. The cover of white corded silk, beautifully embroidered in gold-colored thread, is the work and gift of Mrs. Ray, Sr., and was received in time to be used on Easter Day.

OPERA SAN TOY SET FOR FRIDAY

Choir and Men of St. Paul's Give Presentation in Opera House.

BEAUTIFUL COSTUMES.

Have you purchased your tickets yet for the big production, "San Toy", which is to take place at the Grand Opera House on Friday of this week, April 26th? The seat reservation opens tomorrow and first comers are always sure of the choicest sittings.

It is seldom that Peterborough has a chance to patronize the Opera House. The theatre which in former days resounded almost nightly during the season to the voices of actors and actresses many of them among the great people of the Thespian world, now is 'dark' the year 'round, and Peterborough play-lovers have only the cinema to entertain their fancy for the mimic world of the theatre. So a production like "San Toy" should be widely patronized. It has a little bit of everything: Drama, near-tragedy, plenty of fun, loads of colors, and music galore.

Presented under auspices of the choir and Men's Association of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, with M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., directing, every patron is assured of a splendid evening's entertainment, as these producers grow better and better as the seasons roll around. Many successes in the past can be chalked up to their credit score, including "Martha", "Pirates of Penzance", "The Bohemian Girl" and "The Mikado", all of which like "San Toy", represent favorite compositions of masters in their art.

Arrangements are in hand to make this year's presentation better, if possible, than any preceding production. Costumes will be provided by Mallabar of Toronto, experts in this line, and much of the scenery is being brought from Montreal.

The theme of the piece revolves about the story of "San Toy", daughter of a Chinese mandarin, who falls in love with a gay American naval officer, although she is destined by the Emperor himself for a different role in life. Many complications ensue before the lovers are united and much bright singing and music flows over the footlights in the telling of the story, which is embellished with humorous touches resembling the quaint fun of the much-loved Gilbert and Sullivan operas.

Exports from Argentina are larger than a year ago.

PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, CANADA, TUESDAY, APRIL 23 1935

10,000 INJURED AND 532 KILLED CAR ACCIDENTS

Property Damage Was Approximately $4,000,000 in Ontario in 1934.

NEED OF GOOD BRAKES.

One Person Was Fatally Injured For Every Nineteen Accidents.

The importance of efficient brakes on any motor vehicle was explained in terms of the vitally serious job they must perform for safety in an emergency by Albert H. Wood, M.S.A.E., representing the Canadian General Insurance Company and the Toronto General Insurance Company this morning.

"Brakes to be in any kind of satisfactory condition should stop a car in 27 feet at 20 miles per hour, and even at that stopping distance four-wheel brakes are only 50 per cent. efficient," Mr. Wood told The Examiner.

"A one-tone coupe travelling at 20 miles per hour has a collision impact force, based on kinetic energy, of 26,700 pounds. A foot brake in good condition should stop a car at 20 m.p.h. in 25 feet on a dry road; and at that speed the braking distance, with brakes in 80 per cent. condition of efficiency, should be 18 feet. Then, there is another factor to be considered, and that is the time in which brakes are actually applied.

The braking distance is 18 feet, but the car travels 22 feet while the driver is transferring his foot from the accelerator to the brake pedal. Therefore, the total stopping distance is 40 feet. A car at 20 m.p.h is travelling 29 feet a second, and although the engine might rate 25 or 26 m.p.h., it would require 69 h.p. to stop within this distance. This is sufficient power to lift this car 13 feet in the air in 1 1-5 seconds.

The common speed of automobiles to-day is 60 m.p.h., which requires 208 horse-power for efficient stopping of a car.. This power is capable of lifting a car 120 feet in the air in 3 3-5 seconds."

Mr. Wood implied that this fact should impress upon drivers the tremendous impact force which lies under their control when they are travelling the highway at 60 m.p.h.

"At this speed a car moves 66 feet in the time the driver is transferring his foot from the throttle to the brake. The total stopping distance at this speed is 426 feet, the braking distance being 160 feet with 88 feet added for the time it takes for the foot shift from the accelerator to the brake pedal."

Mr. Wood also said that the hand brake should stop a car in 60 feet at 20 m.p.h. and should be kept on par with the efficiency of the foot brake.

Speed Causes Accidents

"Excessive speed, without any doubt, is responsible for 90 per cent. of all accidents involving motor vehicles, therefore it is very necessary that all cars and trucks, independent of their age, shoulu be in a thoroughly safe operating condition in regard to brakes, lights, horns, tires, windshield wipers, steering, glassware and so on, before being taken on the road.

It should be especially remembered that speed took a heavy toll in this province last year.

The public may forget that there were 532 people killed in Ontario in 1934 and 10,000 injured. The property damage was approximately $4,000,000, and the average property damage per accident was $96.32. There was one person fatally injured for every 19 accidents.

The number of accidents reported to the Ontario Department of Highways during the first ten months of 1934 totalled 10,992. An analysis of the time during the day when the accidents occurred showed the following comparative percentages:—from 12 o'clock midnight until 8 a.m. 13 per cent; from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., 32.5; and from 4 p.m. to 12 p.m., 54.

The peak for accidents in any hour is from 5 to 6 p.m. with a percentage of 8.8 per cent., and from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. is the most dangerous period, the percentage being 37.4. The cause is that everybody is in a hurry to get home."

Accidents in Ontario for the first ten months of 1934 increased 10.3 per cent. over 1933.

An Insurance Service

Mr. Wood was engaged for years as a technician with the General Motors Corporation in Canada, and also in the United States. He is now engaged by the Canadian and Toronto General Insurance Companies in a new department of motor vehicle inspection..

"These Canadian companies have pioneered in the merit rating of insurance as an encouragement to safe driving. Adopted in 1931, this plan of merit rating provides a decrease of 5 per cent. in the insurance premium if the insured has had no accidents, and this reduction increases annually at the rate of 5 per cent. to a maximum of 35 per cent. off the premium."

For the rank and file of drivers this departure was found not quite sufficient in accomplishing the desired ends. The two companies have now created a safety engineering department under Mr. Wood's supervision. This work includes mechanical inspection of fleets of trucks, taxicabs and motor buses who are insured with these companies, represented locally by Thomas Mark and Hatton and Collins. Drivers are tested and graded independent of experience. Previous accident records of drivers are investigated. Drivers' safety meetings are held wherever possible, and at these meetings discussion covers the various types of accidents and how they may be prevented. The object is to instill a safety consciousness in the minds of every one connected with automotive service and road transporation.

In the checking of cars as to the response and efficiency of their brakes, Mr. Wood uses the Tapley brakemeter, which has been adopted by the Toronto Police Department, in the inspection of cars, to remove guesswork in recording the condition of brakes.

MRS. C. M. SCOTT GUEST SPEAKER

Addresses Special Meeting of St. George's Women's Auxiliary.

Mrs. C. M. Scott was guest speaker last evening at a special meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. George's Church in celebration of their tenth anniversary. Mrs. W. H. Andrews, president, presided over the meeting, and gave a brief resume of the history of the Woman's Auxiliary, which is celebrating its jubilee this year. Rev. J. L. Hughes took the opening devotions, and read the Scripture passage. A violin solo was played by Aileen Hughes, and Rev. J. H. Hughes contributed a vocal solo.

Mrs. Scott, who spent sixteen years in India, where her husband was a medical missionary, gave a very interesting account of the life and work in its three main aspects: Educational, evangelical, and medical. A general description of the country, the climate, religious, and customs of the people was vividly portrayed by the speaker, and a number of interesting curios and a large map of India were also used to illustate the talk. Mrs. J. L. Hughes moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Scott, this being seconded by Mrs. W. G. Ray. Dainty refreshments were served at the close, and a social time enjoyed.

St. George's Church is indebted, through Mrs. W. G. Ray, secretary-treasurer of the Woman's Auxiliary, to Mrs. Ray, Sr., of Halifax, Nova Scotia, for a new hanging for the book rest in the pulpit. The cover of white corded silk, beautifully embroidered in gold-colored thread, is the work and gift of Mrs. Ray, Sr., and was received in time to be used on Easter Day.

The hall of the Canadian Legion was the scene of a gay and colorful party last night, when dancers numbering close to three hundred enjoyed a jolly evening at the third annual Warriors' Ball held under the auspices of the Legion, with the co-operation of militia units of the city. The entire proceeds of the Ball will be used to further the work of the local branch of the Canadan Legion. Smooth, tuneful music that was much enjoyed by the dancers was played by a new orchestra that made its initial bow here to dancegoers last night, Bus Browne and his eleven musicians from Toronto playing a varied program of favored numbers in snappy style. Color played a large part in the attraction of the scene last night. The ladies wore lovely gowns and the conventional masculine evening attire of black and white was relieved largely by the inclusion of many military uniforms, 'blues' and scarlet mess jackets, with medals prominent on manly breasts. The decorations of the hall were carried out elaborately in the flag colors of red, white and blue. Bert Gash of the Legion Hall, assisting largely in their placing. The three patriotic hues were notable in flying scarves and tennis nets of paper strung below the ceiling, along with festoons of red, white and blue hearts and strings of colored balloons that matched the brilliant lines of electric lights strung outside the building for the occasion. On the windows and doorways were curtains in the same trio of tints, with similar basket shades on the electroliers. The orchestra stand, banked with ferns, was surmounted by a large back drop centered by gilt festoons and letters advertising the "3rd annual Warriors Ball" while many large flags draped the walls all around the hall, and also appeared in miniature above the orchestra. The downstair billiard and card rooms was transformed into a very attractive lounge for the evening, with quantities of palms and ferns and red, white and blue decorations. A brilliant opening note for the evening was provided by the band of the 57th Regiment, which played briefly in the hall. Several prize dances were on the program, with handsome prizes. Winners of the spot dances were Miss Helen Cole and Mr. Andy Rutter; birthday dance, Miss G. Rogers and Mr. Gordon Chapman; balloon dance, Miss Marcelle Minicola and Mr. C. Rowatt. At midnight, supper was served in the upper hall, with ladies of the Legion Auxiliary in charge, convened by the president, Mrs. Joseph Mills, patrons and patronesses for the Ball were as follows: Brigadier W. B. Anderson, C.M.G., D.S.O., of Kingston, and Mrs. Anderson; Mayor Roland Denne and Mrs. Denne; Lt. Col. J. A. Dewart, M.C., and Mrs. Dewart; the Hon. G. N. Just Between Us Women

Wasn't everybody very grand on Sunday in their new spring apparel. One little lady we saw was particularly smart in a suit of thin sand colored tweed combined with brown. Peeking from beneath her coat was a blouse of dotted material that worked through and tied outside the coat. A perky little hat and gloves of the same material completed a very smart and attractive costume.

* * * * * * *

The lace blouse "dresses up" even a strictly tailored suit, and makes it suitable for dinner wear.

* * * * * * *

A crochet coat would have a smart addition to the summer street ensemble. A smart utility coat made of natural color cotton with raglan sleeves could have huge wooden buttons as the only ornament.

* * * * * * *

There seemed no end to the variety of suits noticed on Sunday in the Easter parade to and from church. Classic suits with short, hip-length jackets, fitted, or semi-fitted, some of them beltless, others with set-in belts, and some with belts simply at the back. There were jackets that were cutaway in front and short cape jackets that buttoned up the centre front like a jacket and have a cape back belted. One little woolen dress of the suit style had a three-quarter length cape of matching material. It was indeed very dashing.

* * * * * * *

Wide and not so wide saucer hats are worn with the spring suits and dresses. A hat of clear white with a navy suit and white accessories is simply the last word in chapeau styles. Most of the shallow types of hats are being held in place with elastic this year again.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

The summer season may seem far away, but now is the time for summer preparedness, especially with reference to reconditioning the elbows to make them attractive for the coming season.

Now is the time for every girl to give her elbows close inspection, for most women neglect their elbows all winter, because they are hidden beneath long sleeves. Short sleeves and sleeveless frocks are all included in the new summer styles, and a pair of rusty looking elbows will detract from even the smartest of these frocks.

If your elbows have become sharp and scrawny looking, start pronto to practice corrective exercises. There are some excellent exercises for shaping the arms and elbows in my 'New Figure' booklet. And in addition to exercising, massage your elbows nightly with warmed coco butter, in order to nourish the tissues and round out the contours.

Different Procedure

If your elbows have become dark, rough and rusty looking, a different procedure is necessary. When taking your bath each night, scrub your elbows briskly with a bland soap, using a small flesh brush. Then apply a bit of plain lemon juice or peroxide to each elbow, and permit the chosen bleach to dry on the skin, so that it may remove any discolorations.

After the bleaching, apply a generous quantity of nourishing cream to each elbow, massage it well into the skin, and permit it to remain on over night. Or, if you prefer, you may, instead, loosely wrap a bit of gauze soaked in warm olive oil around each elbow. Either method of lubrication will remove any roughness, and will make the elbows alluringly soft and smooth.

ANSWERS TO JUERIES

Weight

John: I think that a man 5 feet 7 inches tall and 30 years of age should weigh about 148 pounds.

Nose

Rita: The only way that I know of in which you can have your nose made fatter, is by plastic surgery. I'd advise you to consult a nose specialist about that lump.

Mouth Wash

Alice: An excellent mouth wash can be made by dissolving one-fourth teaspoon of borax, one-fourth teaspoon of peroxide and one-fourth teaspoon of salt in a glass of warm water.

Foods

Mrs. M.: Breaded and fried foods are fattening. A whole orange is just as beneficial as the juice alone.

Eyelashes

Patricia: Apply a bit of plain vaseline or odorless castor oil to your lashes nightly. This will help to promote the growth and thickness of the lashes.

Return Of Lost Purse Rewards Jobless Man

TORONTO, April 23 (CP) — A purse containing $465 in cash proved no temptation to Thomas "Scotty" Leeds, unemployed taxi driver.

When Mrs. M. Bragg of London, Ont., reported to the gate man at the Union Station she had lost her purse they went back to the train for an "end-to-end" search of the coaches. Then they made for the lost-and-found department.

There stood "Scotty" idly watching the attendant count the cash. Mrs. Bragg had laid down the purse while she tied her shoe-strings and forgot to pick it up when she went on. Scotty was suitably rewarded.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

WILL ROGERS IN "LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY."

This is one of the favorite roles of the old master of fun-making. His dry humor and friendly wisdom are at their best in a picture with a title that doesn't mean much of anything, as in the case of so many movie titles. For the story revolves about the loves and woes of the near twenties, with Will Rogers, as Kensaw Clark, acting as the 'god in the machine' in his own inimitable way.

He is the propretor and editor of a very small town newspaper, the Plain View Citizen, and he runs foul of the sensibilities of the man who holds what might be called a first mortgage over his head. In a good-hearted desire to befriend Lee Austin, accused of appropriating bank funds, he earns the wrath of this leading citizen, Colonel Abercrombie. And, by way of pouring oil on the flames, he gets into hotter water still by running the town sleeper, (Slim Summerville), as a rival candidate to the colonel in a campaign for School Board honors.

This queer candidate and his patron get mixed up in some of the goofiest and funniest episodes that have ever marked the progress of even a Will Rogers picture. The infectious laughter, that always runs through the house when a Rogers' picture is showing seems more hilarious than ever for this feature. Imagine a picnic where pigs are shown for competition and then the hog callers come along and do their stuff. And then these very same doughty mountain dwellers assist in a side-splitting rescue of a gentleman about to suffer the ignominy of tar and feathers. And the duet that Kenesaw and the Colonel fight in the dim murk of a misty morning! It is a picture that calls into being some of the funniest bits that one can imagine, and the hero is at his best in his dry cracks.

"The American eagle ought not to be the national emblem," he murmurs, as he wrestles with a new-fangled kitchen contraption, "it ought to be a can opener."

Along with the feature is a stunning novelty short reel entitled "Star Night at the Cocoanut Grove" with Ted Carillo and his helpers putting over a glamorous and brilliant bit of music, dancing, and fashions, all colored.

CANADA ONCE RULED BASEBALL - TIGERS HOPE TO REPEAT

CANADIAN BALL TEAM WON AMERICAN TITLE PHILADELPHIA SERIES

Ontario Sponsored Teams That Played Ball on Par With Clubs Across Line—First Bats Made From Wagon Tongues—London Pitcher First Player to Ever Use Curve Ball.

Canada once ruled the world in baseball supremacy, despite the fact that the diamond sport is generally recognized as being strictly an United States' institution. This startling fact was brought out by George J. Smith of Hamilton in an interview with The Examiner here Good Friday.

Mr. Smith, a close follower of baseball for over 60 years, was in Peterborough with his son, Ernie Smith, president of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association, for the annual convention of this body. President of the Native Sons of Canada, the elder Smith demonstrated his aggressive pride in Canadian athletics, particularly baseball, by backing his assertion on this country's place in the baseball sun with names and dates. Nearing 80 years old, he is still active and possesses a keen mind.

The game was in its infancy when Mr. Smith—as a youth—became interested in it. He was a close follower of it, an active player for a time and later an organizer and officer. He travelled extensively to view his favorite sport. A crude type of baseball, established by Abner Doubleday of Cooperstown, N.Y. in 1839, was the origin. The game progressed slowly for 20 years or more and it was not till 1876 that the National League was formed. Mr. Smith's recollection goes back to 1872 in Canada.

Good Ontario Teams

In this year, there were several Canadian teams—all in Ontario—which occasionally played against each other or went across the line once in a while by train for a challenge game. London Tecumsehs, Guelph Maple Leafs, Bowmanville Royal Oaks, Hamilton Standards and Syracuse Stars played intermittent games among themselves. Players were what would now be known as "semi-pros." They received no stated salary but if the gate receipts warranted it, after expenses were paid, some money might be split among the participants. Woodstock also had a good team a year or two later.

"A Canadian ball team," Mr. Smith said, "won the championship of America—which is the same thing as the world in baseball—in 1876." That team, he went on to relate, was the Guelph Maple Leafs and it won the title by beating a Pennsylvania outfit—U.S. winners—at a titular tournament in Philadelphia. At this time, there were just about as many good ball players in Ontario as there were in the Eastern States, according to the Hamilton septuagenarian, and Canadian players had no trouble in catching places on teams in the States when they moved over. He added that Fred Goldsmith of London around '73 was the first pitcher ever to use a curve-ball.

No masks, pads or gloves were used in those early days and every catcher had his face marked and fingers broken after the rule was enforced whereby receivers had to stand up closely behind the batsman, instead of some distance back. It was not long however before catchers began using a hand-pad—with fingers still exposed — and then about '85, Charles Decker, catching in Toronto, invented a thinly-padded mitt for catchers. Hence the word "decker" still used for catchers' mitts.

"That expression 'wagon-tongue' for a bat," the old gentleman remarked, "really had a foundation. The first bats were carved from heavy wagon-tongues, seasoned and hard to break. Later, of course, this was discontinued." Whether the players were stronger or the bats better in the bygone years, Mr. Smith could not say, but he believed they hit the ball harder until in recent years the rabbit ball made homers common. Any number of good Ontario players found their way into the major leagues before the turn of the century, but for the past two generations or so American boys have taken so to the game—with the asset of longer and warmer seasons for practice — that the United States now stands alone in baseball.

Game More Colorful

Asked if he thought the game was improving now, Mr. Smith was not so sure. He believed that it was perhaps more colorful and was drawing more fans of both sexes—ladies at one time did not attend games—but he felt that it had lost a lot of strategy. "How many really original pieces of diamond strategy have you seen in recent years?" he asked. "The modern team is using the same old tricks for the most part and unorthodox stunts to upset opponents are infrequent to-day. I believe Ty Cobo was about the last really brainy player in the Big Leagues." Still a close follower of baseball, Mr. Smith now works also in the interests of softball in Ontario.

BELL FEATURES NEWARK HITTING

Long Triple in Ninth Breaks Up Duel for Bears' 3-2 Victory.

BIRDS DEFEAT WINGS.

(By Associated Press.)

Fern Bell, who hit only .283 in 43 games with Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League last year, apparently has earned himself a regular position in Newark Bears' outfield, largely because of his timely hitting.

Just another member of a young and hustling ball club when the International League opened, Bell jumped into prominence on the first day by cracking out two home runs.

He failed to keep up that pace the next few days, but came through again yesterday with two timely blows to pace the Bears to a 3-2 victory over Montreal Royals. His single in the seventh sent George McQuinn across the plate with the tying run and then in the ninth he crashed through with a triple to score Dick Porter with the deciding tally.

In the only other game played in the circuit, Baltimore Orioles continued to hit home runs frequently to turn back Rochester Red Wings 10-9 in a game in which the lead changed hands seven times.

Big Guns for Birds.

Woody Abernathy and George Puccinelli were the big guns in the Orioles' attack. They each hit home runs to bring the club's total for the year to 15. Puccinelli also cracked out a double to drive in a total of five runs, while Abernathy sent four across the plate.

Cold weather forced the postponement of the Buffalo-Syracuse game, while Toronto and Albany were not scheduled to play.

PATE TO CAPTAIN DAVIS CUP TEAM

Selection is Only For North American Zone Play.

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP)—Walter L. Pate of New York, better known as the father of the universally standardized tennis ball, rather than for his court prowess, was designated yesterday as non-playing captain of the United States team which will play against China next month in a North American Zone Davis Cup match.

Pate, who, with Samuel Hardy, won the United States veterans' doubles championship in 1924 and 1925, will lead a "freshman" team comprising Bryan Grant of Atlanta, Ga., Donald Budge of Oakland, Cal., and Gene Mako of Los Angeles, into Mexico City, where the United States representatives will meet the Oriental players on May 10, 11 and 12 in the customary four singles and one doubles match.

HUDLIN HOLDS DETROIT TIGERS TO FIVE HITS FOR 5-0 SHUTOUT

Vosmik's Homer With Two On Climaxes Indians' Four-run Outburst—Boston Sox Battles Way to 5th Victory in Six Starts, Defeating Senators 4-2.

By HERBERT W. BARKER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Four games, four pitchers, three victories—that's part of the reason why Walter Johnson is persuaded his Cleveland Indians will be a constant threat for the American League pennant this year.

So far the Indians have done very little hitting on their own behalf but they haven't needed to with such pitching as Mel Harder, Oral Hildebrand, Monte Pearson and Willis Hudlin have flashed.

Harder and Hildebrand gave up only 17 hits altogether in winning Cleveland's first two games, a pair of 14-inning, 2-1 victories, and Pearson was touched for only 10 in losing a 3-2 decision to Detroit's champion Tigers in 13 frames. But it remained for Hudlin, the veteran of the staff, to top all these yesterday with the Tigers as his victims.

Holds Tigers to 5 Hits

In mid-summer form, Hudlin set the champions down with three hits and won a 5-0 shutout.

Two of the Tigers' hits came in the seventh but a double play ended the rally and rescued Hudlin from his only difficulty. Joe Vosmik's home run with two on climaxed Cleveland's four-run outburst at Tommy Bridges' expense in the third and Hal Trosky's double followed by Sammy Hale's single accounted for the other Indian run in the eighth.

Cleveland's pitching 'Big Four' now has allowed only five runs and 30 hits in 50 innings, by far the most impressive record of the early season.

Meanwhile at Washington, Joe Cronin's amazing Boston Red Sox battled their way to their fifth victory in six starts, a 4-2 triumph over Bucky Harris' Senators. Wes Ferrell contributed a triple, double and two singles to his second pitching victory but weakened in the ninth and was replaced by Rube Walberg who stopped the Senators cold.

Narrow Call for Browns

Zeke Bonura's two home runs drove in five runs for Chicago White Sox in the first three innings of their game with St. Louis Browns but the Browns scored six in the same span and won out, 6-5.

Jim Walkup, relieving Dick Coffman with one out in the third, held the pale hose to one hit the rest of the way.

Second Win for Hubbell

The only National League game of the day saw Carl Hubbell regain his pitching form. The slender southpaw held the belting Phillies to four hits, one of which was Dolph Camilli's fifth home run of the year, and New York Giants earned an easy 8-1 victory. Mel Ott's home run and Dick Bartell's triple, double and two singles were the main factors in the Giants' 15-hit attack.

An exhibition game at West Point cost New York Yankees the services of Fred ('Dixies') Walker, fleet outfielder, for two weeks. Walker dislocated his right shoulder when he slid into second base in the first inning. It was an injury to the same shoulder that kept Walker out of the game practically all last year.

EDMONTON FIVE COPS 58-31 WIN

Victory on Wednesday Will Give Westerners 12th Straight Championship.

PLAY AT WINDSOR.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 23 (C.P.).—Satisfied his proteges had given one of their best performances of the current season, J. Percy Page today proclaimed a day of leisure for Edmonton Grads after their 58-31 victory over Windsor - Walkerville alumnae in the second game of the Canadian women's senior cage championship series here last night.

The peerless, gray-haired mentor said basketball would be forgotten for the day and the girls permitted to do as they pleased while they waited for the third game of the series Wednesday night. One more win will give the western wonders their 12th consecutive Canadian title.

In the meantime every effort will be made to have "Babe" Belanger back in the lineup, because, as Page remarked: "In girls' basketball you never know what to expect. One night a team is in form, the next night it's the reverse."

Sprains Right Ankle.

The bespectacled Belanger sprained her right ankle in the scorching third session of last night's contest when Alumnae matched point for point in what was perhaps the most exciting 10 minutes of basketball witnessed here this year.

It was in this session the courageous Alumnae gave all they had in an attempt to whittle down the 10-point lead Grads carried into the last half, but when the gun went to end the period the margin remained intact—41-31—each team having scored 10 points.

Add To Total.

The Edmonton girls came back for the final quarter entirely unaffected by the sizzling pace of the previous session, and added 17 points to their total. Unlike their rivals, the visibly weakened Alumnae gamely tried to pick up where they had left off, but after a few futile thrusts at the basket, when their shots rimmed the hoop, their attack subsided and they went scoreless.

FIRST JOURNEY WEST MAY TELL THE POWER OF AMERICAN CHAMPS

Remarkable Record on Road, the Detroit Tigers, Champions of League Last Year, Best Road Club in Either League in 1934, Winning 48 of 74 Games Played Abroad.

Detroit Tigers early this week complete their first home stand against the western teams and take to the road, where they play 10 games on foreign fields before returning to Navin Field to repel the first eastern invasion.

The first road trip is important because it will give some evidence as to the Tigers' quality as a pennant contender. A championship team must win on the road as well as as at home. The Tigers help Chicago White Sox open its season to-day.

Last season the Tigers were the best road club in either league, winning 48 out of 74 games played abroad for a percentage of .649. The Tigers beat every club they faced on the latter's own field except the Yankees. New York won six out of the 11 games played with Tigers in the Stadium.

Good Start

If the Tigers can maintain a similar pace on their first road trip they will be well launched on their 1935 pennant drive.

Detroit did its best on the road against western teams. Cleveland, regarded as one of the strongest contenders this season, was virtually knocked out of the pennant race last year by the Tigers.

Detroit won 16 of the 22 games played with the Indians last season and 16 games was the precise number Cleveland was behind when the pennant race ended.

Chicago White Sox won only two of nine games played with the Tigers in Comiskey Park. Cleveland won only three of the 11 games played in League Park. Cleveland, St. Louis was the toughest nut for the Tigers to crack on the western wheel. The Browns won four out of 11 games played with the Tigers in Sportsman's Park.

The Tigers made greater gains on the road in the West than in any other sector, by winning 22 out of 31 games for a percentage of .710.

Opponents Better

Against the same teams in Navin Field, the Tigers did even better, winning 27 out of 35. Thus Detroit won 49 of its victories at the expense of the three western clubs with which it will be engaged during the first two weeks of this season.

The Tigers can expect to encounter stiffer opposition this year. At least two of the three clubs have strengthened and one of those is rated as Detroit's most serious rival.

Cleveland is picked by most of the baseball writers to top Detroit in the standings. St. Louis, although not rated as a contender, has better pitching, improved defense and attack this season, and the Browns were tough enough for the Tigers last year.

The Cleveland series especially will be hard fought battles. The feeling between the two clubs was fanned into the proportions of a major baseball feud during Spring training by a couple of incidents.

Drawing Power

NEW YORK, April 23. — The "Ruthless" New York Yankees are outdrawing the "Ruthful" Boston Braves from a spectator standpoint.

In six games since the 1935 major league baseball season opened last Tuesday, the Yankees have played to 107,611 fans—good for an average of approximately 18,000 fans per game.

The Braves, on the other hand, in five games have drawn 99,000 spectators, putting them 2,000 per game under the Yanks' present rate.

Eddie Shore After Lady Byng Trophy, Wants To Be Known As Cleanest Player

VANCOUVER, April 23. —(C.P.)—Possibility of National hockey league games being played under the eyes of four referees and Eddie Shore's secret ambition to be known as the cleanest player in hockey were post season hockey tidbits from Frank Patrick today.

The Boston Bruins mentor who makes his home in British Columbia in between hockey schedules, said when the N.H.L. holds its annual meeting he would recommend adoption of the four-man referee system instead of the two used at present. The increase in arbiters, Patrick believes, would result in more accurate decisions when offsides were called or players penalized. Each referee would have a quarter section of the ice under his scrutiny.

As for Shore being one of the bad men of the league, his manager has definite ideas on that. "Do you know what Eddie's secret ambition is?" Patrick queried, then added: "He wants to win the Lady Byng trophy for clean playing. That should hold his critics who claim he is deliberate in his roughness."

BLANTON'S ONE-HIT SHUTOUT FEATURES ROCKIE MOUND WORK

Oklahoma Righthander Came Up to Pirates Late Last Year From Albany—New Cleveland Keystone Combination Pleases Fans—Red Rookies Sensational.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, April 23. (AP).—It is still too early in the major league campaign to revise pre-season calculations but it is not premature to emphasize the important roles played by new talent in both big circuits.

The best pitching feat in either league so far is Rookie Cy Blanton's one-hit shutout of the world champion Cardinals. This Oklahoma right-hander came up to Pittsburgh Pirates late last year from the Albany Internationals.

The brilliant work of Cleveland's freshman keystone combination—Roy Hughes at shortstop and Lou (Bozie) Berger at second — has made Indians fans forget the illness of Billy Knickerbocker, a 1934 yearling sensation.

It's conceivable now Knickerbocker may have to fight to get his job back, so successfully has Hughes combined with Berger under fire.

Sensation at Cincinnati

Cincinnati's rookies are the sensation of the National League's first week. Kampouris, Myers, Riggs, Goodman and Campbell, to list only the outstanding freshmen on the club are the nucleus of an up-and coming Varsity.

Two rookie first-sackers have gotten away to good starts. They are Alex Hooks, who replaced Jimmie Foxx for the Athletics, and Ellsworth Tenney (Babe) Dahlgren, sensation from San Francisco with Boston Red Sox.

New Talent in Outfield

The outfield is cluttered with new talent. Besides Ival Goodman of the Reds, there's George Selkirk, Huntsville, Ont., graduate who seems a fixture in Babe Ruths old post for the Yankees, and big Hank Leiber, whose hitting finally seems sufficient to clinch a regular job with the Giants.

Chester Morgan, Texas League recruit, has crashed the regular lineup of the champion Detroit Tigers while Pete Fox remains on the bench.

VETERAN PRO HOCKEY STAR COACHED VICTORIOUS WOLVES

Bill "Red" Stuart Guided Halifax to Allan Cup—Played With Boston, Toronto St. Pats — Was Colorful Puck-Chaser.

(By F. Elward Martin, Central Press Canadian Correspondent.)

HALIFAX, April 23.— Presenting ladies and gentlemen, Mr. William Stuart, coach of Halifax Wolverines, winners of the 1935 Allan Cup. Bill Stuart, not the "Red" Stuart that ——? The very same, don't you remember the flaming red-head as he burned up the ice on one of his characteristic rushes not so many years ago for Toronto St. Pats and a little later for Boston Bruins. In those days he was the answer to a sport writer's prayer, an idol of the fans; fast, rough, colorful.

To-day, in quiet attire with a grey felt hat fitting squarely over the flaming locks, which are thinning here and there, one would hardly recognize the devil-may-care player of yesteryear as the man who has led the Wolverines to stardom. Always reserved and unassuming, Coach William Stuart is reluctant to talk of his playing days, but if you wear him down a little and work around to the years of 1923-24 and wonder aloud about the Toronto St. Pats, the old "Red" can't refrain, and you are in for an interesting half-hour or so. Memories of those grand and hectic campaigns bring up those mighty warriors . . . "Babe" Dye, Reg. Noble, Cameron, Randall, Sprague, Cleghorn and John Ross Roach, the evergreen goalie who was kicking them out again this year for Detroit Red Wings.

Starred With Boston.

Then on to Boston, in the fall of '24, "Red" lined up with the one and only Eddie Shore, Sailor Herberts, Hitchman, Oliver, and Winkler. In the spring of 1927, Ottawa won over the Bruins in the Stanley Cup playdowns. That fall "Red" found himself in Minneapolis where he played three seasons, coaching the "Millers" the last two. Seattle decided they wanted the Pacific Coast championship in '30-31, so "Red" went out there and helped them win it. With Duluth in '31-'32 he returned to Minneapolis the next year and coached the team to the Central League Cup.

Is Maritime Product.

Stuart was born in Amherst, N.S., 1900. Desirous of seeing the place and to renew old acquaintances, he returned there in the summer of '33. It was then that he was prevailed upon to take over the coaching duties of the Halifax hockey entrant in the Maritime big four, at that time Canada's fastest amateur league. The fight for leadership in this circuit last season will long be remembered. The Moncton Hawks had annexed the Allan Cup the previous year, and Stuart's Haligonians were in the thick of the race.

WILLIAM "RED" STUART.

The Allan Cup in Moncton, however, was just like Aladdin's lamp to Coach Percy of Hawks and to Nicklin when his boys began to falter, he brought forth the trophy and the inspiration gained could not be denied. The Moncton Hawks went through to another Dominion title. The faltering of the Wolves was no fault of Stuart's, handicapped during the Maritime playdowns by sickness and injuries the result was inevitable. Coach Stuart had proven his worth and was handed his 1934-35 contract by John H. Conn, manager of the Wolves. With the Wolverines holding the Allan Cup in the East, and incidentally winning the right to represent Canada in the 1936 Olympics, Coach Stuart has justified the choice.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two.

(By C. J. P.)

The other day—last Thursday it was somewhere around midnight—while the O.A.S.A. delegates tried to outshout each other over refreshments in various hotel rooms, we cornered "Dad" Smith. His right monicker is George J. Smith, national president of the Native Sons of Canada, over three-score years and ten, and he hails from Hamilton. Father of Ernie Smith, O.A.S.A. prexy. And in this veritable den of softballers, we calmly proceeded to discuss baseball! We were after a story about baseball from one of its oldest followers in Canada and we got it. Not the modern game but the diamond sport as it was played before catchers turned sissy and started using gloves—when you wouldn't get a tryout unless you sported a walrus moustache and chewed tobacco.

"We in Canada," the old gent informed us, "do not appreciate the fact that for its size this country is the best in the world for athletics. We're first in hockey and lacrosse, we held our own for years in baseball, we originated softball, and we're right up there on harness horse racing and other sports." He was fiercely proud of being a Canadian and after listening to him for awhile we felt pretty proud of being a Canuck, too. His reminiscences of baseball 'way back around '72 were very interesting and we'd like to see him write a book on his "Sixty Years in Sports." And today, "Dad" Smith is as keen a sports follower as he ever was.

It won't be long now before local sandlot diamonds will be the scene of much activity. Regardless of organized leagues, you can't keep youth from playing old-cat or scrub ball when a warm May sun bathes the open fields. There every day will be enacted the law of Boyville before a ball game, the old hand-over-hand ritual to see who bats first. The time-honored custom calls for the captains to toss a bat, one catching it near the bottom. Each in turn then places his hand above the other and the last one able to span the club with his hand—sometimes compressed, sometimes expanded to the utmost—bats first. Many of our prominent politicians, manufacturers and businessmen will recall the distant days when they, too, measured fists 'round a homemade bat.

The new O.B.A.A. executive holds its first meeting this Saturday afternoon in Toronto and Max Swanston will attend from here. The question of player transfers will be the main item of business probably. Oshawa will try to get permission to use Doug Mays from the start of the season instead of just after July 1st as ruled by the O.B.A.A. Frank Whitehouse has applied for permission to return to amateur ball here this summer—being a reinstated pro who never played amateur anywhere but in Peterborough. And Red Hollingsworth, back here now from Oshawa, has probably applied for a transfer. These are the only moves we know of affecting the C.O.B.L.

Next meeting of the Central League will be in Belleville a week from Saturday. Drawing up of the schedule, matter of umpires for the season and report of the delegates to the O.B.A.A. convention will comprise most of the business. A similar schedule to last year's is expected, ending about Sept. 1st with each team playing four games at home and four away with each of the others. O.B.A.A. senior playdown series this year are three out of five. Shiner Johnston and Jim Coursey have applied from here as umpires. As in the past the C.O.B.L. playing season will begin around May 24th.

Annual meeting of the City Baseball League will be held at seven bells in Duffus' pin-toppling parlors this Thursday eve. Entry of teams, election of officers and plans for the season will be handled at this session. Everyone interested is urged to be on hand and get this loop off to a good start. We'd like to see some of the local clubs like Kiwanis, Rotary, Kinsmen, etc., enter squads. The City Circuit made a good start last year toward a comeback, particularly in the bantam section, and more headway should be made this summer. Games will be played in Riverside Park.

The first lacrosse practise to be held in Lindsay for many years took place in Victoria Park there Saturday. Five Peterborough players—Weir, Magee, Gardner, LeBarr and Lefebvre—are coaching Scugog prospects along and they had plenty of material to work on. The game bids fair to take a mansized grip on the town this summer with games in the new rink and plenty of fans expected. And don't be too surprised if Lindsay-on-the-Scugog, the town where lacrosse was but a memory till a few weeks ago, should waltz through to put the clutch on the Tri-County Loop silverware ere the frost is on the punkin.

Another meeting is slated for Thursday p.m. at eight in Duffus'. It's the annual session of the Men's City Softball League and all who are interested should be on deck. There should be six teams in this loop this year but we doubt very much if there will be. The present executive will hold a meeting there at seven Thursday to clean up business in connection with the recent O.A.S.A. convention. The fellows deserve credit for the way they put it over, a number of Ontario papers remarking since then on the convention's success in Peterborough this spring. Some of the present officers say they won't stand for office this year.

Cage Finals Start To Victoria To-Day

VICTORIA, April 23.— (CP). — Victoria Blue Ribbons, western titlists, and Assumption College, Windsor, Ont., step onto the floor here to-night in the first of a five-game series for the Dominion men's senior basketball championship. There was confidence in both camps but neither outfit expected to win the championship in three straight games.

Ken Walton, secretary of the British Columbia Association, announced Ralph Thomas and Al Perrin of Vancouver had been named officials for the series. They will arrive from the mainland later today.

The eastern titlists arrived in Victoria yesterday and last night held a work-out at the gymnasium where the series will be played. The Ribbons watched the Easterners for a while and then took the floor themselves for a short practice.

LACROSSE RULED OUT

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., April 23. (CP).—Hopes of sending a Canadian lacrosse team to the 1936 Berlin Olympic Games were shattered by President Dan McKenzie of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association who announced he had received word the game had been ruled out in favor of another sport by the Olympic committee. The committee met recently at Oslo, Norway, and turned down the proposal.

Torn Letter Starts Baseball War

Walter Johnson Mickey Cochrane

Denying disparaging statements about the Cleveland Indians which were attributed to him, Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Tigers, wrote to Manager Walter Johnson to post his letter on the bulletin board where all the players could see it. Johnson, instead tore it up—and now the American league has a feud just like the struggle between Bill Terry and Casey Stengel in the National.

Platers' Parade

It was work day yesterday for Stanley Crawford's King's Plate candidate, Goggles. The son of Gaffaman-Belle Mahone worked a half in 1.24 1-5, and galloped out the seven-eighths in 1.34 well within himself. In the Crawford entrant continues to improve there is no getting away from the fact that he's going to be hard to beat in The Buneas.

Norman "Dude" Foden, who last year rode T. C. Cochenour's Papalico in the Plate, and who finished third behind Horometer and Speygold, when queried as to who he thought would win this year's renewal, answered, "Papalico all the way. I know he's a maiden, and has to park plenty of weight in that 132 pounds, but I know what I'm talking about. Beat Papalico and you win the Plate."

Tim Bird, one of Canada's outstanding turf authorities, has already gone on record as saying that the horse that beats R. S. McLaughlin's Vingt Cinq in the King's Plate will be the winner. He ought to know. He has clocked Plate candidates since Victorious won for the late Joseph E. Seagram back in 1891.

It is learned on good authority that Jockey Eddie Barnes will be astride Ryland H. Newa's candidate, Lipton, in the Plate.

Frankie Mann, contract rider for R. S. McLaughlin, will have the mount on Listaro in the Plate. Trainer Giddings has not decided as yet who will be in the pilot-house on Vingt Cinq.

Beechview, who will carry the orange and green silks in the Plate, is under the watchful eye of Fred Schelke, and reports say that the daughter of Worthmore-Merry Eve is doing everything the trainer has asked of her so far this year.

Harry Giddings, when asked how he liked Listaro, R. S. McLaughlin's colt in this year's running of the Guineas remarked, "Was about Vingt Cinq?" Vingt Cinq will run coupled with Listaro.

Though there is no official word as yet, those close to the inside believe that J. E. Smallman's entrant, Rightfoot, will not be a starter in the Plate. But that's just a rumor. Time will tell.

The track at the present time is lightning fast. Owners and trainers of thoroughbreds who will campaign at the forthcoming meeting at Woodbine Park hope the racing strip remains as good as it is at the present time.

It was learned yesterday that R. S. McLaughlin had purchased from Mrs. Charles Robson the King's Plate candidates Vingt Cinq and Epicurus. This means that the horses that will carry Mr. McLaughlin's colors in the Plate will be Vingt Cinq, Epicurus, Listaro, Eileen D., and Calico Miss.

SOFTBALL WORKOUT

The Westclox girls will hold a softball practise at 4.30 Wednesday afternoon at the King George School grounds. Any player wanting a tryout will be welcomed.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

By McDONALD FEADER

PICTURE

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance with all the world at her feet, is loved by the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu. She despises her mother, Anica, but is fond of her father, Girtza. Marcu temps Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him. Just as Girtza notices Consuelo's ring, which she tells him she has stolen, the sheriff appears. He proceeds to haul the gypsies into court but Consuelo is no longer wearing the ring.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 8

"Well George, you might have known that she wouldn't wear the ring into court. Why didn't you take it away from her when you saw it" the judge asked.

The sheriff's face turned redder.

"I couldn't—" he stammered the painful admission. "Ask Bert and Fred, they was with me. They seen her bite at me." He cleared his throat. "But she's got it on her some place. She ain't had a chance to give it away. I'd have seen her. Gosh, judge, it was a diamond as big as my thumb nail and a brand new shiny one. She's got it on her."

"All right, then, search the girl."

The sheriff stepped back.

"Who, me?" He shook his head vigorously. "Not me, judge, not me!"

The judge turned to the clerk.

"Get my wife and Mrs. Mortimer and tell them to come her immediately." He turned to the girl. "What's your name?"

"Consuelo."

"You danced yesterday, didn't you?"

She nodded.

"This man says you have a ring, a large diamond ring. In a few minutes there will be two ladies here to search you and if you want to save yourself some embarrassment, you can give me that ring now. I dare say that even a gypsy wouldn't throw away the evidence if that evidence happens to be a valuable ring, so you might as well give it to me."

Consuelo stared at him, her look sultry.

"Well, if you won't, we have ways and means to make you, you know. Did you steal the ring from this town? Come, now, answer my questions. I warn you, you had better give me the ring. If you will, I promise not to be too hard with you."

There was no answer from the girl, just a steady, defiant look on her face.

At this point the crowd made way for the clerk and two women who followed close behind him.

"Good morning, ladies. George, here, says this gypsy girl has a large diamond ring. I'd thank you if you'll take her into the jury chamber and get it."

Mrs. Mortimer, a determined country woman, marched through the gates and up to the jury door. But the judge's wife was not so determined; in fact, she was not determined at all. She made as if to protest but the judge motioned her on so, gathering her skirts up in her dainty fingers, she made a wide circle around the gypsies and gained the jury door.

"Go with them, young lady," the judge ordered.

Feet apart, hands on hips, Consuelo did not move.

Uneasiness appeared on the judge's face. Then to his astonishment the gypsy girl laughed. With one quick movement she stepped up and made a deep bow before him.

"Dog of a white man's judge, I will do as you say, but you will wish that you had let the Gypsy Consuelo alone before I am through. I spit on your authority and curse you for a white son of a dog!" She spoke in Romany.

"Eh, what's that you say?" The judge leaned forward.

"Anything you wish, gorgio," she said in English. She stood erect, eyes sparkling. Again her laugh rang through the room and, turning she walked toward the open door where the two women awaited her. She paused a minute and glanced back at Girtza.

"You need not worry over this bad one." Romany words to him, "I will show these pigs how sharp are a gypsy girl's finger nails and how strong her arms!"

As she disappeared through the door, the sheriff turned the key in the lock. He'd keep the gypsy in there until the women got the ring, and if they were a bit rough with her it would serve the scamp right. He'd not unlock the door for any hollering. Nor did he—until—

A quarter of an hour or so later when Marcus returned with the horses he was met with a babble of excited voices. His eyes took in the propped axle. The maze of voices settled to coherency.

Girtza, Consuello, the sheriff. A diamond ring. The gorgio jail. The sheriff and his men with guns. Marching off to town. Prisoners. What was to be done? The gorgio dogs had gone too far this time. They'd go in and cut the throats of all of them! Dirty curs! Marcu must do something Wasn't he Consuelo's sweetheart, the man Girtza had promised her to?

Marcu smiled at the sullen growled words.

"It's all right," he told them. "I will go in and fix it. Get everything packed and on the wagons and the horses hitched and we move as soon as we get back with the wheel."

"But how are you going to do it?" was the amazed demand.

"Never you mind, my comrades. I will do it. Am I not some day going to be your leader? Can the Gypsy Marcu fail?"

"What do you know about that ring?" Anica asked him.

"What I know about that ring is my business." He laughed in her face and hastened down the trail.

So Consuelo said she had stolen it, eh? Ah, but she was the smart one. A good wife she'd make him. Wife. Yes. No longer could she say no. His heart beat faster. He increased his pace.

He had no sooner entered the court room than he was seized upon by rough hands.

"Here's another gypsy! Arrest him!"

Marcu shook himself free and pushed his way to the front.

"There is no reason for the arrest of these, my people. I bought the ring!" she shouted above the din of confusion.

The judge was standing, his face red and angry. His wife was sitting down front, her dress torn and dirty, her head in her hands, her shoulders shaking, low choking sobs coming from behind her hands. Mrs. Mortimer was nowhere to be seen. Consuelo was standing near Girtza, eye smoldering with anger.

The sheriff, puffing and perspiring, grabbed Marcu and got him inside the gates. All eyes were turned on them.

"I bought the ring!" Marcu shouted, trying to understand the scene around him.

"The stealing of the ring is unimportant compared with what this —this girl has done!" the judge bellowed down at him. "The hellcat! Attacking these two defenseless women! It's an outrage! George, go in and see if Mrs. Mortimer's nose has stopped bleeding and if it has, get her out here to swear out a complaint of assault and battery against this gypsy ruffian!" He sat down and mopped his face with his handkerchief. "I never in my life heard of such behavior!! Sadie," to his wife, "will you stop sniffling? I can't think with you carrying on like that. Now, what's this about the ring?" he asked, attempting to resume his resume his judicial elquilibrium.

"I bought it," Marcu repeated for the third time.

"You bought it, eh? Well gypsy, prove it and make it quick. I haven't much time to waste on a bunch of thieving gypsies. If I had a jail big enough I'd run the whole pack of you in!"

"Mrs. Mortimer went home," George interrupted. "She says she won't swear out any complaint. She says to tell you she'll git even with you for gittin' her banged up like she is—she says to tell you the gypsy is a devil and if you don't git the bunch of 'em out of town quick she'll sue you—she says—"

"That's enough George! Now, gypsy, prove what you say."

WORKMAN HURT

HALL'S BRIDGE, April 23.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Archie Young, of Selwyn, foreman at the road construction camp at Nogie's Creek, sustained severe injuries to the right eye when he was struck by fragments of rock. Mr. Young was attended by Dr. Willis at Hall's Bridge, who reports that he is improving satisfactorily and will be able to resume his duties in a week or 10 days' time.

Fire at Buckhorn Lodge.

What might have been a serious fire occurred on the grounds of Buckhorn Lodge on Saturday afternoon, flames from burning leaves rapidly spreading to the stable and some of the outbuildings. The stable and one shed in which the furniture of the summer cottages was stored was completely destroyed. The villagers promptly rushed to the scene, and forming a bucket brigade, prevented any further damage being done, although it is feared that the trees forming a park of 6 to 7 acres at the rear of the hotel have suffered irretrievable injury.

Easter Services.

The Easter Day services were held at St. Matthew's Anglican Church, being conducted by the Rev. E. C. Moore, who also preached the sermon, which was most eloquent and impressive. Before the celebration of holy communion, a pleasing feature was the baptism of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvine Tully, of Selwyn, the sponsors being Mr. and Mrs. Barnard Walton, of Toronto. The church, looking very bright by reason of recent repairs and addition of new furniture, being almost filled to capacity with members and friends.

BACK AGAIN.

LOS ANGELES, April 22 (C.P.).—Observing Easter Sunday by using his new crutches for the first time, B. W. French started with his wife down the front steps of a hospital where he had spent several weeks with his broken left leg in a cast. He accidentally placed one of the crutches on his wife's foot. She snatched her foot back and both toppled down the steps. French will spend several more weeks in a cast, as he broke his leg in another place.

Centenary Women's Association Accepts Invitation for May Meeting.

SHORT PROGRAM

CENTENARY, April 23 (Examiner Correspondence) — The Centenary Women's Association met in the church on Thursday afternoon and was fairly well attended. Miss Emma Sherwin, president, led in opening the meeting with usual devotional exercises which were suitable for Easter time. Mrs. W. Hircock read the Easter message. The secretary Mrs. Dawson Timlin, read the minutes of previous meeting, which were found correct and business was discussed. Prices were arranged for the several quilts on hand and are in charge of the secretary, Mrs. Dawson Timlin.

A motion was made and carried that a copper box be had for the society, the purpose for good cheer to the sick and shut-ins. It was decided to accept an invitation to meet at Mrs. Wilbert Smith's, Roseneath, for the May meeting on Thursday, May 9th, and to invite the Women's Association of the Roseneath United Church.

Miss Hilda Arthur took charge of a short program after the business part was completed which consisted of a paper, "Don't You Love Him for That" by Mrs. D. Timlin; a poem "God's Love in Christ," by Mrs. M. Brown; a poem "Be Careful What You Say," by Mrs. Isaac Skuce; a poem "The Lord Knows All About It," by Miss Hilda Arthur, after which a hymn was sung, mizpah benediction repeated in unison and lunch enjoyed.

Our King and Queen on their Silver Jubilee

King George and His Favorite Pastime

King George's favorite sport is shooting and his indulgence in this pastime from early youth has made him one of the four best shots in England.

Be it grouse shooting at Balmoral, tiger hunting in India or deer hunting in Scotland, the King is regarded as a man of rare proficiency with firearms. He is particularly fast on the "draw," and possesses an iron nerve that never fails him.

Once in India, when a wounded tiger charged an elephant on which the King was mounted, he coolly waited until the ferocious beast made a lunge for the mount and then fired, one shot doing the trick. It was a splendid illustration of coolness.

Our pictures today show the King at his favorite sport.

Second only to shooting in the King's favor is yachting; after that he prefers soccer, a game he used to play with some vigor and skill as a midshipman in the navy.

King George has two indoor hobbies, one which has earned him fame the world over. That is stamp-collecting. His other collection is of antique watches and clocks. Made up entirely of British Empire issues, the King's stamp collection is said to be worth over £100,000.

One sport that the King has played but in which he never became interested was golf. Only one or two occasions are recorded in which his majesty chased the elusive pill.

Plans More Troops In Jubilee March

LONDON, April 23 (C.P.) — London is to have a much more brilliant and imposing spectacle on Jubilee Day, May 6, than was originally intended.

It is not now proposed that the procession accompanying the King and Queen along the route to St. Paul's Cathedral should be limited to a relatively small escort of troops. It is to be a much longer procession and full-dress uniforms are to be worn.

Soldiers, sailors, airmen, and their bands will participate in much larger numbers than was originally planned.

DARTFORD

Mrs. Alva Merrill, of London, Ontario is a guest with Mr. and Mrs. S. Ewing.

Mrs. Earl Nelson was a recent visitor with her friend Miss Marion Hilson.

Mr. Donald Yule has returned home after a visit with friends at Toronto and other places west.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Tully have moved to their home in Dartford village.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Pautley of Toronto, Mrs. William Houghtailing and her niece, Elsie Yule of Roseneath were recent visitors with friends in the neighborhood.

Use Popular Leaf For An Embroidery

NEW YORK, April 20. (CP). Popular tree leaves, treated to remove the leafy structure and leave only the fine velnwork, are used as a base for embroidery by a Cuban girl says "Popular Mechanics."

The leaf is cut from the tree, those that have fallen being of no use, and placed in water for from 15 to 20 days, the water being changed every day. This bath softens the green leafy structure so that it may be removed with a soft brush, care being taken not to break the fine network of veins of the leaf.

The design is then embroidered in regular stitches with silk thread of various colors. In such parts as the petals or flowers, one color is frequently put over another, in part, at least, to other embroidery. The leaf is frequently finished with a small six flower placed at the point where the stem joins the leaf.

"Tight buttoned"

Have You, The "Can't Afford It" Habit?

THE use of that phrase does not suggest the inability to buy so much as the desire to practice rigid economy . . . to save . . . to deny yourself needed and necessary commodities.

But Man, oh Man, and you, too, Madam, how better and more effectively can you practice economy and thrift than to buy when prices are at their lowest ebb in years? How more certainly can you insure economy than to replace worn or out-of-date furniture than when new is selling for one-third of what it sold for 15 years ago? Or to stock up on food products when they are 40% less than at any time since the war? Or clothing when $53 to-day will buy you what you paid $100 for in 1912?

What you really cannot afford to do is not buy because you cannot afford to miss to-day's low levels . . . prices that are an actual boon to reduced incomes . . . to the practice of sensible, far-sighted economy.

EASTER SERVICE IN MILLBROOK

Three Local Churches in Village United for Holy Week Services.

BEAUTIFUL LILLIES

MILLBROOK, April 23.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The community holy week services, in which the three local churches united for special Lenten gatherings in Grace Presbyterian, St. Andrew's United and St. Thomas' Anglican Churches in turn on Wednesday, Thursday and Good Friday evenings, when the "Seven Words from the Cross" was the theme of addresses by the different ministers, culminated on Sunday with Easter services of peculiar significance in all of the places of worship.

Beautiful Easter lillies, specially donated by various members of the congregations and several of these in memory of loved ones gone before, were used in decorating the altar in all three of the churches, one lovely pot of lillies in Grace Church having been sent by Mr. and Mrs. Bolton Price, of Orillia, in memory of her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Doak, formerly faithful worshippers with this congregation for many years.

Anglican Parish.

The services in the parish of Cavan begun with early communion at St. Thomas' Church, Millbrook, at 8 a.m., followed at nine o'clock by a special choral communion, after which the rector, Rev. William Simpson, B.A., administered the rite of baptism to the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Patton, and to the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Sanders.

Holy communion was celebrated at St. John's Church, Ida, at 11 a.m., followed by the sermon, and at Christ Church, Bailieboro, at 3 p.m. The evening prayer and sermon, featured by Easter hymns, a solo, "The Resurrection Morning," by Mrs. J. Roden, of Toronto, and the message by the rector, based on the words, "With fear and great joy," in which emphasis was placed upon the fact that "we cannot enter fully into the joy of Easter unless we have first experienced the cross," was at 7 o'clock in the presence of a large congregation.

Grace Presbyterian.

A special Sunday School session at 2.30 p.m. was part of the Easter observance in Grace Church, two of the intermediate classes, taught by Misses Muriel Ball and Margaret Armstrong, singing, "Christ is Risen." Following the session, when the Easter lesson had been taught, the "Van Guard" class of young men, taught by Mrs. J. R. Eakins, sang, "Rejoice, the Lord is King," and immediately afterward the whole school sang softly, "Go to Dark Gethsemane" as a prayer. Misses Jean Bothwell and Ada Peers contributed Easter readings previous to the benediction.

The church service was at 7 p.m., when the minister, Rev. H. R. Williams, B.A., spoke on the words, "He is not here, but is risen," emphasizing the importance of the resurrection with its promise of the hereafter as the scene for attaining the fullness of our existence. A solo, "Calvary," was sung by Miss Ruth Thorndyke. As was the case in the other two churches, when the day's services were finished, the flowers were sent to sick and shut-in members of the congregations, the lillies being sent by Mrs. Price being a gift to Councillor J. R. Eakins, who is seriously ill.

St. Andrew's United Church.

The morning service was followed by the Easter communion, when practically the whole of the large congregation remained for the solemn sacrament. The music included an anthem by the choir, "Awake Thou That Sleepest," with soprano solo by Miss Jean Stinson, and a quintette, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," by Mr. and Mrs. M. McDowell, Mrs. W. W. Kennedy, Miss Ella Elson and Mr. W. H. Coombe.

The minister, Rev. A. L. Sisco, spoke from the words, "The Lord is risen indeed" (Luke 24:34), his theme being "The Meaning of Easter." Some of the points developed were the gladness of Easter, with back of this the thought of newness of life such as nature exhibits in the spring season, the promise being of the recreating of hope in the heart of humanity. A new beginning is also a promise of Easter, a resurrection here, and now in the soul as we are born again in Christ, with victory over death assured, and a victorious life a possibility; and lastly, we have Easter meaning the companionship of our Saviour, and the obligation to go and tell others of the Risen Lord.

Called King 'Captain'

Photo shows Dusty Mathews, oldest seaman in Eastbourne, England, who addressed King George as "Captain" recently, and who is puzzled by the sudden fame heaped on him. The 85-year-old veteran, with mutton-chop whiskers and small gold rings in his ears, still thinks it was a nice sociable title to confer upon his monarch. "I told him," Dusty chuckles, "that I knew his mum and dad."

JANETVILLE

SACRED CONCERT IS MUCH ENJOYED

Program Presented in Janetville United Church Good Friday.

JANETVILLE, April 23.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The sacred concert in the United Church on Good Friday evening, April 19, was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed.

A pageant, entitled "The Challenge of the Cross," was beautifully and impressively presented by nine local girls in long white gowns. "Easter" was represented by Miss Jean Stinson; "Gold" by Miss Isabe: Marshall; "Christian Stewardship" by Miss Edith Jobe; "Talent" by Miss Bernice Stinson; "Loyalty" by Miss Muriel Stinson; "Adventure" by Miss Gladys Irvine; "Fearless Faith" by Miss Maude McPeake; "Knowledge" by Miss Edna Robinson, and "Christian Education" by Miss Marjorie Armstrong.

An illuminated cross formed the centre of the pageant.

A mixed quartette, composed of Mrs. J. Howe, Mrs. Oswald McGill, Rev. H. C. Wolfraim and Harry Thornton, sang very acceptably, "The Old Rugged Cross," as did also the male quartette, composed of Messrs. H. Thornton, F. Joblin, C. Robinson and H. Wolfraim, who rendered "The Wayside Cross." The children's choir sang two Easter anthems. The remainder of the program was very ably presented by Courtice talent. Two splendid piano duets by Misses Hazel Rundle and Sadie Muir, and vocal solos by Miss Hazel Rundle and Miss Velma Pearce. The elocutionists for the evening were Mrs. R. C. Pearce and Miss Aura Osborne, also of Courtice, whose numbers were more than enjoyed and appreciated.

The proceeds of the evening, which were very gratifying, were in the interests of the Women's Missionary Society.

Trent Valley Cemetery Company Re-organized

HASTINGS, April 23 (Examiner Correspondence) — Mr. Walter M. Fowlds was re-elected president of the Trent Valley cemetery for another term at the annual meeting held in the council chamber the past week. The treasurer reported a surplus after considerable work having been done.

The following officers were elected: President, Walter M. Fowlds; vice-president, Dr. J. H. Hess; secretary-treasurer, A. Wilson; cemetery board, to act with the above three officers, J. A. Brown, H. B. Wilson, J. Pickens, G. Pickens and C. R. Fowlds.

Using two pairs of spoons as rattlebones, George Taylor, a street "musician" at Tower Bridge, London, had $4.71 in pennies on him as the result of half a day's work when arrested recently.

Better "Greens"

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP)—Eating grass is better than eating carrots, spinach, lettuce or a dozen other well known vegetable greens, the American Chemical Society was informed to-day. C. F. Schnabel of Kansas City said he tested young cereal grasses such as oats, wheat, barley and rye, cutting them before their first joints. He said one pound of this grass contained as much vitamin and "greens" value as 50 pounds of lettuce.

JANETVILLE

"CYCLONE SALLY" IS WELL RECEIVED

Play Ably Presented by Young People of Janetville Presbyterian Church.

JANETVILLE, April 23.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Wednesday night the comedy play, "Cyclone Sally," was very ably presented in the Foresters' Hall here by the young people of the local Presbyterian Church. The weather and roads were perfect and a full house thoroughly enjoyed the evening's entertainment.

The cast of characters were as follows

Jack Webster, owner of the Webster estate—Mr. Percy Hamilton.

Reginald Manners, an adept at plucking peaches—Mr. Greer Earl.

Effie Varden, a cute neighbor—Miss Cofinie Earl.

Ruth Thatcher, a peach Reg would like to pick—Miss Norma Stacey.

Sally Graham, "Cyclone Sally"—Miss Ione Porter.

Vivian Vernon, belle of Cedar Point—Miss Eunice Malcolm.

Willie Clump, Sue Bascom's beau—Mr. Clarence McGill.

Jim Jerkins, who has courted 20 years, but is not discouraged—Mr. H Johnston.

Jenny Thatcher, the object of Jim's persistence—Mrs. H. Johnston.

Several delightful numbers were given between acts, including: A motion song and encore, "When Mary Was a Baby," by Master Grant Earl; mouthorgan selection and encore, Mr. Cecil Smith; orchestra selection, by Misses Eunice Malcolm and Olive Fisher, and Messrs. Percy Hamilton and Clayton McGill; and a chorus with an encore by the Continuation School pupils.

Miss Eunice Malcolm was the musical director and accompanist for the evening, and Mrs. (Rev.) Walker was the capable director of the play.

After the singing of the National Anthem, lunch was served to the cast and their friends by the ladies of the church.

Easter Services Held In Apsley Churches

APSLEY, April 23. — (Examiner Correspondence).—Holy week was observed at St. George's Church, services being held every evening, and on Good Friday the choir rendered Edmund Turner's cantata, "Gethsemane to Golgotha," soloists being Rev. C. A. G. Spence, Donald Hester, Mrs. F Bullied and Mrs. Frank Tanner, all taking dual characters. On Easter Sunday choral services were featured, in addition to the anthem, "O Grave, Where is Thy Victory?", by R. M. Stults. Flowers on the altar were the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Emmal. Large congregations attended the services at both the Anglican and United Churches. Rev. Gordon Porter conducted service at the latter and delivered an inspiring sermon. The church was adorned with Easter lilies from Bermuda, the gift of a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McFadden.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY EXAMINER

WHAT an all-'round, 100 per cent satisfactory soap Lifebuoy is! Kind to tender baby skin—to a woman's delicate complexion—yet how thoroughly it cleanses! Its creamy lather does more than just remove surface dirt. It goes down into the pores; deep-cleanses; deodorizes; stops "B.O." (body odour). Yet scientific skin tests show it is 20% milder than many so-called "beauty soaps."

Rich lather always!

Lifebuoy lathers abundantly in hot or cold water, hard or soft. Its fresh, clean, quickly-vanishing scent tells you this purifying lather gives extra protection.

DR. DAFOE ATTENDS.

Outside Physician Commends Excellent Care Taken of Infants.

CALLANDER, Ont., April 24.—(CP)—Dr. G. W. Smith, North Bay physician chosen by the parents, today inspected the Dionne quintuplets and announced they were satisfactorily recovering from head colds. He was in consultation with Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the babes, and in his statement, commended the splendid care given to the infants.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, living 100 yards distant from the hospital in which the children were examined, were invited to attend during Dr. Smith's examination but did not appear. When Dr. Smith arrived, a man was despatched to the Dionne home to invite the parents to attend.

Marie Shows Gain

Today, Marie, still the sickest of the quintet, was the only one to register a weight gain. She added two ounces while the rest of the 10-months-27-days-old children recorded losses when placed on the scales by the nurses. Annette, Yvonne, Cecile and Emilie were again placed on the veranda to take their airing but little Marie was kept inside.

In a statement following an examination of the babes at the request of the parents, Dr. Smith reported the quintuplets were recovering from head colds during the last week and were improving satisfactorily.

Dr. Smith stated four of the Young Miner Is Hurt in Madoc Rock Fall

MADOC, April 24 (Examiner Correspondent).—With both legs fractured and suffering internal injuries Jack Henderson, Jr., was admitted to Belleville Geeral Hospital late yesterday afternoon, following a fall of rock at the Gillespie Talc Mines here.

The young miner, it is stated, was scaling rock immediately following a blast when a large piece of rock fell and pinned him to the ground. One of his legs was broken at the knee, and the other was fractured above the knee. First aid was rendered after which Dr. S. Eagleson ordered the man's removal to hospital. Dr. Robert Beatty is also in attendance.

Baldwin Murder Suspect Remanded

Extradition proceedings against him in connection with the Baldwin case will be begun shortly.

Arrangnment of Morin to-day was a formality following the coroner's complaint. He was immediately remanded till next Wednesday. He appeared ill at ease in court to-day and there was some delay till he was provided with legal counsel.

Following his court appearance he was lodged in Sherbrooke jail.

CHILDREN PLAN DEMONSTRATION IN QUEEN'S PARK

Forty-one Young Crowlanders Hope to Draw Attention to Parents' Plight.

WANT MORE RELIEF.

WELLAND, Ont., April 24.—(CP).—Forty-one children packed in a glistening red truck, left Crowland at one o'clock to-day for Toronto, where they will stage daily demonstrations in front of the Parliament Buildings in Queen's Park in order to draw attention to the case of their parents, striking Crowland relief workers.

Prior to the departure, the children led a parade of the strikers in the city of Welland. At the boundary between Welland and Crowland the strikers were informed by Police Chief Arthur Davies they would not be permitted to hold a parade through Welland streets. The marchers then left the roadway and filed along the sidewalk into the city in orderly fashion.

The children bound for Toronto, will halt in Hamilton for lunch. It is expected they will arrive at Queen's Park after four p.m.

The truck is bearing banners and placards carried by the children.

Although sporadic instances of stone throwing occurred yesterday and the mother of Reeve Fred J. Kilgour of Crowland was slightly injured when struck by a flying missle, there were no signs of violence to-day.

Rough Handling for Backers

TORONTO, April 24.—(CP)—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said today the Ontario government would be sympathetic towards the children Crowland relief strikers were sending to Queens Park "But we will certainly handle the people who sent them here without kid gloves."

"We are very sympathetic to the children and we will show them every kindness but we have our own opinion of the parents who would do such a thing," the premier said.

Mr. Hepburn, however, would not reveal what action the government proposed to take with regard to the parents or how the children would be treated.

Lost Money Claimed By Little Britain Man

Within an hour or so after losing a sixty-five dollar bankroll yesterday afternoon, J. A. Stevens of Little Britain recovered his loss, after providing City Police with proof of ownership. Visiting the city on a shopping trip, Mr. Stevens lost the money through a hole in the lining of his pocket, and was unaware of his loss until he went to pay for some purchases an hour later. Meanwhile the wad of money had been picked up in the middle of George street between Hunter and Simcoe streets and turned over to police by Eric Denston, 451 Water street.

Mr. Stevens rewarded the youth for his honesty, it was learned.

EMPIRE HEADS PLAN TO CONFER UPON DEFENCES

Discussion Will Embrace Policy Britain Must Adopt in European Affairs.

GERMAN COLONY RETURN.

Premiers of Dominions Will Meet MacDonald, British Cabinet.

[Copyright, 1935, By The A.P.]

LONDON, Eng., April 24.—A high overseas official said to-day the prime ministers of the dominions will hold important meetings with cabinet members in the next few weeks to discuss tightening the Empire's defences in all quarters of the globe.

The discussions will embrace the policy Great Britain will adopt in European affairs, the attitude to be taken toward Germany's demand for colonies and the problem of apportioning costs for armaments among sections of the Empire.

Their consultations will be conducted with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald; Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary; Stanley Baldwin, Lord President of the Council, and other cabinet members.

Hankey's Report

The basis of the negotiations affecting Empire defence measures will be the finding of Maurice Hankey, secretary of the committee for Imperial defence since 1912, who made an Empire tour late in 1934.

Overseas quarters have pointed out recently questions of Empire foreign policy and defence have never been so urgent since the imperial war cabinet sessions ended in 1918.

It was understood that the Southern Rhodesian representative is eager to discuss the future of the

DUBLIN SWEEP BUILDING BURNS

Many of 300 Girl Workers Weep as Walls Crash Down.

RECORDS LOST.

DUBLIN, April 24 (C.P. Cable).—The Plaza Buildings, where prizes are drawn in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes was swept to-day by fire rumored to be of incendiary origin. None of the 300 young women employed in the building was at work at the time. Many of them later joined the throng of spectators and and wept as the walls of the blazing structure collapsed with a tremendous roar.

The elaborately decorated drum from which the counterfoils are taken in the sweepstakes draw was found in the debris, a mass of twisted steel.

The building, of frame and brick construction, was owned by the Soorstat (Irish Free State) Government and contained the sweepstakes records.

Work has been in full swing in the Plaza recently in preparation for the Derby draw. An official said there were no Derby counterfoils in the building but that some sweepstakes records were destroyed.

Only the blackened walls of the Plaza remained as firemen ended their eight-hour battle with the flames. Joseph McGrath, managing director of the sweepstakes, said the drawing would go on as usual. Counterfoils were not damaged.

Brantford Indian Reserve May Move to U.S.A.

The conference will discuss whether or not the Six Nations Indians will support the Wheeler-Howard bill in the United States Congress which provides self-government for the Indians without interference from the whites. HEAVY DAMAGE TO BUILDINGS 300 Panes of Glass Have Recently Been Broken in Buildings.

DOORS PRIED OPEN.

Three hundred panes of glass have recently been broken in the building at the Exhibition Park, presumably by youths living in the south end of the city. The doors on five of the buildings were pried open, and various other damage has been done since the snow faded out of the park scene, inviting boys to the 'great outdoors' and incidental mischief.

An evidence of misapplied industry was disclosed in the poultry building. From each of the long double row of windows in the projected roof, a long rope hung to the ground by which the windows could be raised for ventilation. Every one of these ropes has been cut off at the top, the job requiring the shifting of a big ladder from one window to the next all along both sides.

A window in the manufacturers' building was smashed permitting the bolt to be pushed back on the inside. Decorations left in the booths from last August's exhibition have been torn down, and even one of the posts supporting the room of the little verandah on the south side has been dislodged.

Most of the windows on the east side of the cattle buildings along Lock street have been broken, apparently by boys throwing stones, and apparently there has been more than one field day in this destructive pastime by youths who are known to residents in the neighborhood of the park.

John Gillespie, caretaker of the grounds, reported yesterday that there was scarcely one broken window in all the buildings last fall, and on his weekly visits during the winter and early spring he had not observed any of the damage which now represents a considerable bill of repairs and labor for the Exhibition Board.

NO SUNDAY DANCING

MONTREAL, April 24. (CP). — Dancing on Sunday whether it be in a cabaret, night club or a ward labor club is an infraction of the Lord's Day Act, according to a decision of the local Recorder's Court. A labor club invited its members and their wives to dance away their Saturday evening but it lasted into Sunday and resulted in a fine for the club.

Preserved

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., April 24 (CP) — An elucidating and instructive letter from the Toronto Police Department dealing with with the dog menace was declared "an historic document" and filed in the city archives for the guidance of future generations by the Sault City Council last night.

The letter said "All dogs are caught by hand and added: "As the clothes worn by men doing this work have a doggy odor they find no difficulty walking up to any dog, placing one hand underneath him and the other at the back of the neck, irrespective of the size of the dog."

"I think the Hackle Club ought to use the same method of catching trout, irrespective of the size of the fish," commented Alderman A. E. Hugill.

HEPBURN ASKED TO DEFER ACTION ON SCHOOL TAX

Education Association Suggests Other Taxation Possibilites be Explored First.

NAME JOINT COMMITTEE.

TORONTO, April 24 (C.P.).—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario was asked to defer action on the demand of the separate schools for a larger share of corporation taxes until other taxation possibilities had been explored, in a resolution passed by the urban trustees section of the Ontario Education Association. The 5,000 members of the association spent the second day of their convention here in meetings of more than 30 groups.

The trustees' resolution requested that a committee, representing public and separate school supporters, be appointed to assist the Government in investigating these possibilities.

Unfair Advantages.

Charges that certain business houses, industrial concerns and institutions such as hospitals, were "taking unfair advantage of the large number of unemployed young people in order to have work done at no cost to themselves," were voiced by G. CHATHAMITE HAS HIS WIFE JAILED

Charges She Stabbed Him After He Protested to Conversation With Stranger.

DENIED BY WOMAN.

CHATHAM, Ont., April 24 (CP)—His wife stabbed him with scissors, an ugly wound in his chest, charged Charles Hill of Chatham when Mrs. Mamie Hill appeared before Magistrate S. B. Arnold in police court to-day on a charge of assault and bodily harm. She was convicted and remanded for sentence.

The husband said his wife flew into a rage when he remonstrated over her talking to a strange man in a car. He charged she made a pass at his face, which he ducked, to receive the blow on the chest.

The woman claimed the wound was a bite inflicted by their dog with which Hill had been playing.

Dr. A. E. Northwood, who dressed the wound, asserted it was not a bite and had been caused by "a pointed instrument."

BLAMES REDS.

Melee in Hudson Bay Building Rages Hour—6 Officers Injured.

VANCOUVER, April 24 (C.P.).—Threats of new disturbances developed in Vancouver to-day as a sequel to violence between police and striking relief camp workers last night when the Riot Act was read by Mayor G. G. McGeer and a mob of 2,000 dispersed.

Early to-day police for the second time within 12 hours were called upon to break up a gathering of jobless. Two men were injured in the clash and additional arrests were made. Quiet was restored within half an hour.

VANCOUVER, April 24.—(CP)—Mayor G. G. McGeer of Vancouver today was clothed with authority to call out the militia in case of recurrence of violence which late yesterday brought injury to several, arrest of 12 relief camp strikers, reading of the Riot Act and several thousand dollars damage to the department store furnishings of the Hudson's Bay Company.

Trouble flared when 2,000 relief camp strikers, staging one of their so-called "nuisance" parades to draw attention to their protests of alleged unfair and unsanitary conditions in the camps, invaded the store.

Swarming through Vancouver's downtown business section, the men held up traffic for over an hour and wrecked the furnishings on the ground floor of the Hudson's Bay Company's store before being ejected by police with drawn batons.

The Riot Act

Later they marshalled their forces and paraded to Victory Square where, for the first time since an Oriental disturbance in Chinatown in 1912, the Riot Act was read. After reading of the Act by Mayor McGeer the mob dispersed.

In a statement issued after the clash, Mayor McGeer charged the outbreak was due to Communist elements among the jobless. He immediately banned all future demonstrations, parades and meetings in the city.

Cape Cod Rocks in the Grip of Fresh Earth Tremors

483 KNOWN DEAD IN QUAKE AREAS THROUGH PERSIA

Relief Parties Speed For Stricken Centres After Series of Shocks.

3,185 FORMOSANS BURIED

Tremors Shake Buildings on Tip of Cape Cod—Little Damage.

TEHERAN, Iran, April 24 (C.P.-Havas).—Fears the number of dead in the series of earthquakes which began April 12 would be greater than first reports indicated were expressed to-day as relief parties speeded toward the stricken areas. Present figures place the dead at 483, all natives.

Most of the loss of life and the damage to native settlements, it was reported, occurred in Mazandaran Province in Northwest Iran. Collapsing buildings at Dodangueh, Tchardangueh and Lezardjarib, towns in the vicinity of Sari, in Eastern Mazandaran, caused death and injury to scores.

Medical aid and supplies are being rushed to the stricken areas and efforts are underway to re-establish communication.

Cape Cod Rocks.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., April 24 (C.P.).—Earth tremors which shook houses and rattled dishes here were described to-day by Dr. L. D. Leet, Harvard seismologist, as purely local.

Asked if the 'quake, which terrified inhabitants of this town on the tip of Cape Cod last night, might be related to those in Formosa and Iran, Dr. Leet said:

"The Provincetown earthquake is too far removed as to size and distance to be related. Provincetown was purely local."

In Washington D.C., N. H. Heck, earthquake specialist of the coast and geodetic survey, said earthquakes have occurred in the vicinity o. Boston and Cape Cod periodically throughout its history.

Formosa Buries Dead.

AIHOKU, Formosa, April 24 (AP)—Official reports from the earthquake area said to-day 3,185 victims of the catastrophe have been buried and more than 10,000 injured given hospital or first aid treatment.

Government hospitals at Shinchiku and Taichu are filled. Scores of first aid stations set up in tents also are operating in the district.

HYDRAULIC BRAKES FOR STUDEBAKERS

Entire Hydraulic System Most Efficient Ever Developed for Motor Cars.

One of the most interesting mechanical improvements of the new 1935 Studebakers, displayed here at the showroom of Chas. H. Elliott, 253 Hunter St., W., local Studebaker distributor, is the adoption of hydraulic brakes for service use and the employment of an independent operating mechanism for the hand brake which operates on the rear wheels, instead of the drive shaft.

The new Studebaker hydraulic brakes are called "compound hydraulic brakes." They provide a softer pedal pressure for forward speeds because the pistons operating the front shoes are larger than those of the rear shoes. There has been no sacrifice of pedal reserve or length of time between brake adjustments necessitated by lining wear.

Self-Filling Cylinder

In accordance with common practice, the master cylinder which gives the power to the hydraulic system, is self-filling and compensates automatically for changes in volume of fluid in the braking system due to temperature control or possible seepage.

The entire hydraulic system is one of the most efficient ever developed for motor cars. Only the slightest pressure is required to bring the power of the brakes into action. Deceleration is quick, yet gradual so that passengers are not pitched forward in their seats.

Other interesting mechanical features of the new Studebakers include independent front wheel suspension, automatic shock absorbers greatly improved steering, thermostatic heat control which warms the water in the cooling system automatically, more efficient mufflers and the careful shielding of gasoline lines, fuel pumps and carburetors.

FRENCH DRAMAS FINELY ACTED

Critic Allan Wade States He Would Be Unable to Choose Between 4 Presented.

TWO PLAYS REMAIN.

OTTAWA, April 24.—(CP)—Tonight's audience at the Dominion Drama Festival will see two plays by Canadians, the last two on the program, as the event switches back from French to English.

Last night, French night, brought four plays to the stage of Ottawa's Little Theatre, one of them by a Canadian, Mme. Emma Morrier of Edmonton, whose "Bon Sang Ne Ment Pas," the French equivalent of "Blood Will Tell", gained praise from Adjudicator Allan Wade, London stage authority.

Speaking in what he said was his first French public address, Mr. Wade congratulated Mme. Morrier on the "Simplicity and sincerity of her play." His one criticism of the performance by Le Cercle Dramatique de St. Joachim of Edmonton was that it produced too much sadness and "There was too great uniformity in the characters."

The adjudicator expressed himself as "extremely moved" by the University of Ottawa Dramatic and Musical School's presentation of H. R. Lenormand's "L' Innocente," the story of an idiot girl. He said he believed it would be difficult to give a more perfect performance of the piece.

Excellent Acting.

A group of three from the National Conservatory of Music at Quebec gave what Mr. Wade described as a fine performance of scenes from the second act of Rostand's "L'Aiglon," the story of Napoleon's dreaming, futile son. The adjudicator found the acting of the three characters "admirable."

La Rampe of Ottawa also gained praise for its performance of the second act of Roger-Ferdinand's comedy, "Chotard et Cie," the story of a poetic son-in-law of a commercially-minded family.

At the end of the evening Mr. Wade said if he were asked to select the best performance of the night he would be unable to do so because all were generally excellent.

To-night the audience will see "To the Dead Man," a one-act dramatization by K. W. Edge of Toronto of Charles Dickens' "The Lazy Tour of Two Idle Apprentices"; "God Caesar," by Marjorie Price of Toronto, and "Vindication" by Leonard J. Hines and Frank King.

The Dickens' piece will be performed by the Toronto branch of the Dickens Fellowship, "God Caesar," by the Playmakers' Club of Toronto, and "Vindication" by the Theatre Art Guild of Halifax.

COUNTERFEITER PROUD OF WORK

St. Thomas Iron Craftsman Takes Responsibility For Bogus Coins.

TELLS OF PLANT.

ST. THOMAS, April 24. (CP).—A 26-year-old metal worker who takes pride in fine workmanship has assumed responsibility for circulation of spurious 50-cent coins which resulted in arrest of three other men besides himself.

Frederick Craig, former St. Thomas iron worker, took the witness stand yesterday at the trial of John Rick, young painter, faced with eight charges arising out of the circulation of bogus coins.

Faced with the counterfeit money Craig said he had made them and had given two of them to young Rick as part payment of his rent for a room in the painter's house. He said Rick did not know the money was bogus.

Of the counterfeiting equipment allegedly found in Rick's home, Craig explained he did a little milling there but did most of the work on the coins in Toronto. Rick did not know he had any equipment in his house, the metal worker insisted.

H. C. Comeron, K.C., counsel for the defence, contended Rick would not have passed the spurious coins at a store where he was well known, had he known they were not genuine.

But Magistrate G. Menzie differed, saying it only made it more serious. "That was what Judas Iscariot did . . . he was taking advantage of his friends."

Two of the eight charges against Rick were heard yesterday, one being dismissed while judgment on the other was reserved.

The trial will continue to-day.

LIVESTOCK PRODUCE AND CHEESE QUOTES

ONTARIO GRAINS.

TORONTO, April 24. — Ontario grains, f.o.b. shipping point:

Wheat 85c to 88c, oats 33c to 36c, buckwheat 43c to 47c, malting barley 64c to 67c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, April 24. — Butter and egg prices firmed slightly on the Montreal Dairy and Produce Market yesterday, while cheese held unchanged and potatoes eased fractionally. No. 1 regraded butter in cartons or less was generally 24½c a pound, with No. 1 fresh butter at 24c to 24¼c. Small lots to retailers brought 25c to 25½c for solids and a cent higher for prints. Receipts were 617 boxes.

The egg market was quoted at 19c to 19½c a dozen for A-large, 17c for A-medium or B, and 16c for C, for graded shipments in cartons or less. Receipts totalled 2,120 cases.

No. 1 Ontario cheese held at 11½c to 11¾c a pound for fall-make and 12½c to 12¾c for summers. Offerings amounted to 765 boxes.

The potato market was lower, Prince Edward Islands being quoted at 58c per 80-pound bag, New Brunswicks at 55c, and Quebecs at 50 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN

A break of three cents tumbled wheat prices below the dollar-a-bushel level yesterday and caused a sharp recession in the prices of other grain futures.

The drop in wheat values coming near the close of the trading session, was the result of a wave of bearishness that enveloped speculators and caused pronounced liquidation as the downward trend broadened. The market was influenced mostly by reports of showers in important grain-producing areas and forecasts of additional precipitation overnight.

Wheat closed 2⅝c to 3¼c below Monday's finish, May 99c to 99¼c and corn dropped 1½c to 2¼c. Oats lost 1⅛c to 1¾c; rye 1⅝c to 2c and barley was unchanged to 1c off. The market was carried back to the approximate level of ten days ago.

Wheat was under pressure throughout the day with Eastern longs conspicuous sellers particularly at the close. The market also was weakened by the uncovering of stop-loss orders to sell. Easiness at Liverpool after that market had opened firm following the week-end holiday also was a bearish factor.

The weather map showed traces of moisture in the southwestern dry territory, but commentators asserted wheat there was virtually beyond recovery.

Corn and oats followed wheat. The corn pit was full of liquidating orders and shy of buying power. Provisions eased stubbornly with grains.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 24. — Grains dropped on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday simultaneously with reports of much-needed rains in parts of the dry United States south-west.

Wheat prices closed 1⅛c lower; May at 88⅛c and July at 89⅛c, with corresponding declines in the coarse grains futures. Weakness in outside markets was a bearish factor.

The recession was one of the sharpest in more than a week, but was quiet and orderly throughout. Trading was slow, a minimum of selling sufficing to send prices lower.

Export interest in Canada's wheat failed to revive yesterday, as expected, when Liverpool re-opened after a three-day holiday. Sales comprised only a few scattered lots.

Coarse grains declined in sympathy with wheat, losses ranging from ⅜c to more than 2c. Rye sold liberally, losing 2⅛c. Cash grains were slow.

Trading in the October future for oats, barley, flax and rye will open to-day, following an announcement of the Exchange Council yesterday.

Futures:

Wheat—	Open	High	Low	Close	Prev. Close

Probably Mr. Arthur had enough of it without making it "home work" for he was a piano moved until his retirement a few years ago.

JAIL BREAKER'S FREEDOM SHORT

Posses Use Bloodhounds on Trail After Flight From Washington Prison.

HIS THIRD ESCAPE.

TACOMA, Wash., April 24 (A.P.).—The Pacific Northwest's "champion jail breaker" Robert Kress, aged 39, of Spokane, enjoyed only a short-lived freedom yesterday after a dramatic break for freedom in a fast prison boat from McNeil Island Penitentiary.

Traced by three bloodhounds from the spot at which he abandoned the boat near Salmon Beach, just north of here, he was captured without resistance early in the afternoon. More than 100 men were combing the area for him. He was armed only with a knife, and made no attempt to use it.

Kress, who was served time at the Federal penitentiary for theft of army automatic pistols in a raid on the Spokane National Guard Armory, was working at the prison boatyard yesterday morning. At 8.45 o'clock he overpowered the mate-engineer working on a launch there and threw him overboard. Kress then raced away in the launch. Within ten minutes the alarm was sounded.

Imprisoned three times in Canada in recent years, he escaped twice, evading capture for a few days on each occasion.

MADOC CHURCH CHOIR ENJOYS TURKEY SUPPER

MADOC, April 24. — (Examiner Correspondence).—On Monday evening, April 22, the choir of Trinity United Church held a social evening at which a turkey dinner was served in the ladies' parlor, and about forty people were served.

Mr. W. Fletcher, president of the choir, acted as toastmaster. The toast to the King was responded to by the National Anthem. The toast to the church was given by R. P. Wellman and responded to by Rev G. W. Rivers. Mr. A. Abbott proposed the toast to the visitors, which was responded to by Mrs. James Kincaid.

A cheque of fifty dollars was presented by the choir to the board and received by Rev. Mr. Rivers. This sum is to be applied on expenses of the renovation and tuning of the organ.

A vote of thanks to Mr. W. Fletcher for his able leadership was moved by Mr. A. Abbott, and this was followed by a motion of thanks by Mr. W. Fletcher to Mrs. L. Ashley, who has so ably presided at the organ.

PRIZE-WINNING HERD IS BURNED

Guelph Shorthorn Breeder Loses 45 Head of Pure-bred Stock.

IN BARN FIRE.

GUELPH, April 24. — Forty-five head of pure-bred cattle, virtually the entire herd of prize-winning stock owned by William J. Kay, prominent Guelph Shorthorn breeder, were burned to death when fire destroyed the barns on his farm at Arkell yesterday.

Four cows and two bulls which were on pasture were saved. A large quantity of hay and grain was also consumed. The barn, a large modern frame structure, was completely destroyed. The flames gained such headway before the blaze was noticed, nothing could be done to save it.

The animals destroyed were all prize-winning stock, and the loss, which is only partially covered by insurance, is heavy. The origin of the fire has not yet been determined.

Mrs. Dionne said she was surprised but happy. She and the twins a seven-pound boy and a 6½-pound girl, were reported "doing nicely."

SCHOOL REFORM PROMISES MADE O.E.A. DELEGATES

Minimum Salary of $500 to be Established for Rural Teachers.

INQUIRY PLANNED.

TORONTO, April 24 (C.P.).—The 74th annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association went into its second day here with a new president, Dr. S. Silcox of the Stratford Normal School, and the promise of important reform in the provincial system from Duncan McArthur, Deputy Minister of Education.

In addition, the 1,500 or more delegates yesterday and last night heard address on various aspects of educational administration by many of Ontario's leaders in the field, including such nationally known figures as Hon. Vincent Massey and Canon H. J. Cody, President of University of Toronto.

Mr. McArthur announced that a minimum salary of $500 annually for rural school teachers would be established by legislation.

Probe To Be Started

He further stated that within the next month a commission would be appointed by the government to make a thorough investigation of means of refinancing and reorganizing the Ontario school system, and legislation would be based upon their findings.

Following this announcement, the executive of the Separate School Trustees' Section of the association passed a resolution demanding that they be represented on any commission appointed to study the financial structure of the school system.

"Education is concerned with the whole of life, not only with the means of earning a livelihood, but with the art of living," said Mr. Massey, former Canadian minister to the United States.

Canon Cody, in an address of welcome at Convocation Hall last night, announced the establishment of a chair in geography at the university to be filled by an outstanding geographer, who would put himself at the disposal of the Department of Education and the teachers. Canon Cody did not reveal the name of the professor who will occupy the chair, as arrangements for him to come here have not been completed.

What's Your Answer to These Questions?

1. In what can you invest your money, except life insurance, with absolute confidence that it will bring you a guaranteed income upon which to retire, say 10, 20 or 30 years hence?

2. What asset, outside of life insurance, can you depend upon to furnish funds for the continued support of your family in case of your death?

Consider these questions . . . unless you are fully insured.

London Life "complete protection" policies meet both these needs at the same time — protection for your family if you should not live and money to retire if you do live. To these can be added Total Disability Insurance to provide for you in case of prolonged disability from either sickness or accident.

Ask any London Life representative for particulars about a "complete protection" policy, or write to the Branch Office.

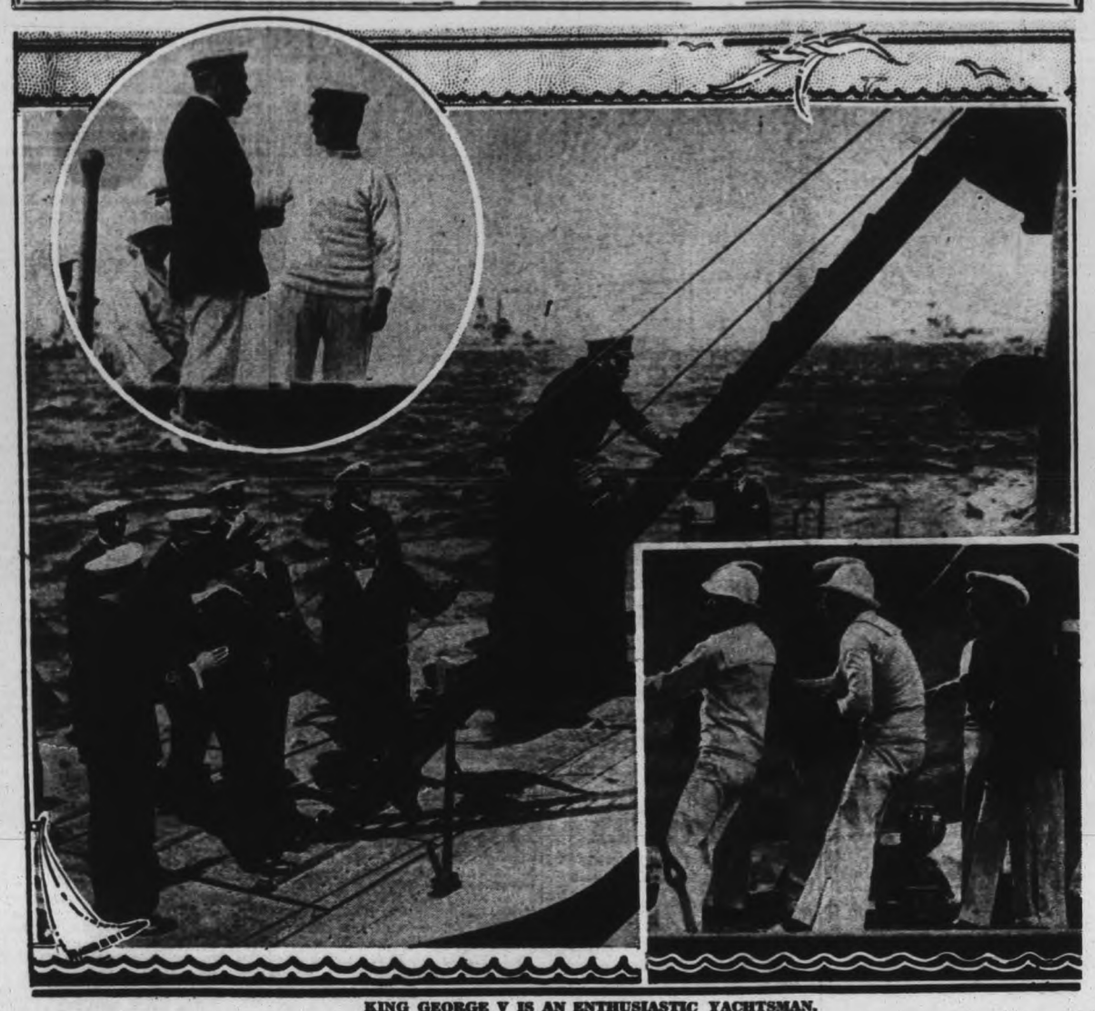
Our King and Queen



KING GEORGE V IS AN ENTHUSIASTIC YACHTSMAN.

Second only to shooting is King George's love for yachting.

Shortly after he ascended to the throne he had the royal yacht Britannia remodeled for racing. Since that time, except for the war years, he has raced in her nearly every year until recently. This year, in celebration of the Silver Jubilee, the Britannia will play another major role when the King reviews the grand fleet.

When the King sails, he does so as a true sailor. And he is a sailor of no mean ability, for all his early life was spent at sea and he knows ships as well as he knows guns or stamps. When the race gets close and exciting, the King become no more than an ordinary seaman, taking part in the work of hauling in sheets side by side with his crew.

That is characteristic of King George; he never tries to force his position—in fact he would rather be accounted as an ordinary individual bent on enjoying life.

The Royal yacht Britannia is a big one and meets the King's desire for a boat on which he could accommodate many friends. An old ship, it nevertheless has won a majority of the races in which she has taken part—particularly at the famous Cowes regatta course.

The layout today shows three informal pictures of the King as a yachtsman and a sailor. In the CENTRE he is shown ascending the ladder to one of the British navy dreadnoughts for inspection. In the CIRCLE, with his helmsman aboard the Britannia. BELOW, hauling in the main sheet with his crew.

SONS OF ENGLAND HONOR SAINT AT ST. GEORGE'S DAY BANQUET

Lansdowne Lodge is Given Illustrated Lecture by Dr. C. M. Scott.

100 ATTEND DINNER.

St. George's Day was fittingly commemorated at a well attended dinner held under the auspices of Lansdowne Lodge of the Sons of England Benefit Society in Paragon Hall last evening. The gathering numbered close to one hundred persons, and included visitors from the sister Lodge at Lindsay and also representatives of kindred organizations in the city.

An illustrated lecture entitled "Glimpses of India" forming the chief item on an enjoyable and varied program, was presented by Dr. Charles M. Scott, former medical missionary in that country. The lecture touched upon the different phases of life and work in India, with particular reference to medical missionary activity.

George Benton ably presided as toastmaster, and to Charles Shaw he assigned the duty of replying to "The Day We Celebrate" in the unavoidable absence through illness of J. J. Turner.

Mr. Shaw spoke of the significance behind the celebration of national days referring to the proud heritage which, he said, was the birthright of every Englishman. Drawing an analogy between George and the Dragon and some modern evils, Mr. Shaw believed "it is just through such organizations as this that we can help to slay the dragons of envy, hatred, revenge and fear," and he urged a rigid loyalty to British ideals and principles.

E. A. Peck, K.C., M.P., one of the oldest members of the Society replied to the toast to "Canada." Providing facts and figures to prove that Canada occupied a comparatively favourable position as compared with other countries who had suffered greatly from the effects of depression, he feared, "we will never go back to normal so long as the threat of war exists in Europe. We pray that another war will never happen again, but the threat is hanging over us and over Europe." So far as Canada was concerned, Mr. Peck maintained, "she is doing her best to maintain peace and cannot reduce her armaments because she has practically none."

Representing St. David's Welsh Society of which he is president, V. Mills responded to a toast to "Kindred Societies" while Alderman Walter Stocker replied to "Our City."

The musical part of the program was most enjoyable, and those who contributed included Mrs. Doig, vocal soloist, accompanied by Mrs. E. Kitney; Miss Phyllis Rome, vocal soloist, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Webber; and Frank Biddle, an old-standing member of the Society, who sang and played his own accompaniments.

A vote of thanks to Dr. Scott and the assisting artists was ably voiced on behalf of the gathering by W. G. Shiner, who called upon Harry L. Beal, chairman of the Program Committee, to present the roses with which the head table was adorned to the two lady singers and their accompanists.

Two Recluse Sisters Die In Locked Home

BALTIMORE, Md., April 24.—(P).—Two octogenarian sisters, who died as they had lived for more than 20 years—together and in the utmost seclusion — were found lying on scanty makeshift pallets in the dining room of their home here last night.

The bodies of Kate and Josephine Mann, 84 and 80 respectively, were discovered by a nephew, Paul Plunkett, summoned after an aged woman proprietor of a corner grocery "fretted" because "Miss Kate hadn't come for a week to ask for her bread and crackers and cake."

The two sisters had lived for more than 20 years in seclusion in a small house opposite the State penitentiary. The front door, neighbors said, always was tightly shut and locked. Katae did the necessary shopping, they said, "because Josey couldn't get about."

Coroner John M. Fenton gave a verdict of death from apoplexy for Kate. Josephine, who lay five feet from her sister, died of pneumonia, he said.

She listened to all the hockey broadcasts this winter, and was very disappointed at the failure of the Leafs to win the Stanley Cup.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk, and the world looks punk, don't think that a large cleaning out of the bowels will make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

It can't do it! You know it can't give you any lasting relief. For a mere cleaning out does not get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food don't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pints of bile flowing freely. Then you feel "up and up." Carter's Little Liver Pills contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Insist on them. 25c at drug stores. © 1934 C. M. Co.

FROM A STAFF OF SEVEN TO SIX THOUSAND STRONG

From less than a corporal's guard to the equivalent of six regiments — this graphically illustrates the growth of the Bank of Montreal's staff in 117 years.

On the 23rd of August, 1817, the first four employees of the Bank of Montreal were appointed. They were the cashier, an accountant, a paying teller and a second teller. Shortly afterward a discount clerk, a second bookkeeper and a porter were added.

These seven constituted the original staff when the modest establishment on St. Paul Street in Montreal opened its doors on Monday, November 3rd — an establishment which was destined to play a conspicuous and beneficial part in the development of Canada's resources.

Throughout the many decades that have followed, the Bank of Montreal has made increasing effort to provide a banking service always adequate to meet the requirements of Canada's development.

The original staff of seven has grown to 6,300, loyally serving the public through 500 branches extending from sea to sea — and overseas.

DO WE WANT TO PAY FOR IT?

In regard to the discontent voiced at Ottawa recently over the administration of radio, The Examiner is in full accord with the Ottawa Journal's remark that the trouble with Parliament is that it is as extreme in its discontent now as it was extreme in its optimism two years ago.

As the Ottawa paper expresses it, the whole House was carried away by a lot of nonsense and was stampeded into a plan of state control that went too far and yet did not go far enough.

There is no use blaming the Government for this condition, for Parliament was unanimous in endorsing the plunge into nationalized radio, and all parties threw up their hats and cheered for something they knew very little about, and the cost of which they had never stopped to consider.

Wherever the idea came from that a satisfactory state-controlled radio system could be established and maintained on the revenue derived from a $2 license fee The Examiner has no means of knowing, but at all events it is clear that the hopes of the proponents of nationalized broadcasting can never be realized unless the country is prepared to pay the price; radio facilities cost money, radio programs are expensive and the thing cannot be operated on what is compared with the sums spent by private enterprise in the United States, only a shoe-string.

Unless we are ready to foot the bill for what we claim to want in the way of Government radio, we might as well withhold criticism, for about all that could be done on the budget provided is being done under the present plan.

TOO MUCH GOVERNMENT.

While The Examiner finds itself unable to adopt Capt. Innes' plan of railway unification, we must admit that in his address on Monday the head of the Commercial Bureau said many things with which we have no trouble in agreeing.

Especially is this true of the reference made by Capt. Innes to the fact that Canada is very much overgoverned, and that the cost of federal, provincial and municipal government is needlessly great.

Why this country should consider it necessary to have a Federal Government and nine Provincial Governments, with all the overlapping of services that is inevitable under the circumstances and piling up a yearly cost to the taxpayer of nine hundred million dollars, is something that defies satisfactory explanation.

Capt. Innes argues that a very substantial economy could be effected by the simple plan of having the three Prairie Provinces Legislatures amalgamated into one, and by following the same method in connection with the three Maritime Provinces, thus wiping out four provincial governments and bringing about an annual saving estimated at $60,000,000.

The plan is fundamentally sound, but politically, of course, it is something else again; there are no problems in one of the western provinces that are not common to the other two, and that same condition applies in the Maritimes as well, but the difficulty lies in the reluctance of any one province to surrender its governing power, a sentiment that would have to be overcome before there would be any possibility of the Commercial Bureau's proposal being translated into action.

THE COTTON SITUATION.

The cotton situation in the United States, which is giving the Roosevelt administration grave concern, offers an object lesson in the futility of attempting to control production in any one country in the face of world competition.

The A.A.A. has gone further in its effort to reduce cotton production by plowing up lands than it has in any other branch of agriculture, and in spite of that fact and in spite of currency manipulation to raise prices, the cotton market, so far as Uncle Sam is concerned, has collapsed.

Before this campaign began the United States produced some 60 per cent. of all the cotton grown in the world, and sold more than 60 per cent. of that production to other countries. To-day our neighbors are growing less than 40 per cent. of the world's supply, and have outside markets for less than 40 per cent. of that limited production.

At the same time the processors have been experiencing a marked shrinkage in their business, with the result that some 50,000 workers in cotton mills have been thrown out of employment, with Rhode Island for example, reporting some 22 textile mills completely closed.

And to add insult to injury, more cotton from the outside world is being imported into the United States than ever before, because other countries where no restrictive measures have been taken having been increasing their production.

The cotton industry, in short, is in a very bad way, and the sunny South, traditionally Democratic, is likely to kick over the traces if something is not done to remedy the situation.

HOCKEY'S POPULARITY.

Official figures as to the attendance at games in the National Hockey League during the season recently closed show that the Canadian game that only yesterday was a winter recreation for the youth of this country has developed into the big business category.

It is evident that before long patrons of the major professional league will be paying more than two million dollars each season to witness the scheduled fixtures, and two million dollars is a lot of money in any language.

During the last season the New York Rangers alone earned revenue of over $290,000, with the Toronto Maple Leafs a good second, and there is every reason to believe that Canada's national winter pastime has firmly established itself as a popular and therefore profitable big-time sport, likely to grow in favor as the years pass.

Already the large arenas built some years ago and provided with what was thought to be ample seating capacity have proved to be none too big to accommodate all those who wanted to see important games and it is possible that before long this question of accommodation for the fans will become a serious one in a number of professional centres, so rapidly is the popularity of professional hockey increasing.

Some of the sports writers across the line, who at first were inclined to view the impression made by the "world's fastest game" as a fleeting thing, now admit frankly that they were mistaken and that professional hockey has come to stay.

It is Canada's chief contribution to world sport, although it is worthy of note that basketball, hockey's chief rival as a winter sport, was invented by a Canadian.

BONDS, BANKS AND OTHER THINGS.

In another column on this page we print a letter from a correspondent in Smiths Falls, dealing with certain aspects of monetary policy. As he is evidently sincere, and states his opinions moderately, we think he is worth answering. Dealing with the position of bondholders and with interest rates, our correspondent says:

"When I hear the oft-repeated story of the poor widow who has invested her all in municipal and other bonds, and the cruelty that would follow if there were a thought of reduction of interest, I am reminded of two cases in point. One was that of a widow who was left some $20,000 . . . which she invested in municipal bonds and Government bonds; the other was that of a widow who, in the same town, invested some $18,000 in real estate. Both were perfectly sane and respectable persons, and both were considered to have made equally good disposal of the money left in their hands. Along comes the depression, whereupon the widow with the bonds sits back in her chair and the 'sound money' criers say she must not be touched. What about the other widow, just as respectable, just as good a citizen? The same criers are demanding that her property (which, by the way, has stood idle over two years, with consequent arrears of taxes) be sold under the bailiff's hammer to satisfy the interest on the municipal bonds? No crocodile tears are shed for this distressed widow."

• • • •

So what? Does our correspondent wish to imply that the way to help the woman with the house would be to repudiate the contract of the woman with the bonds? If he does—and we can't see that his words carry any other implication—then he must have a pretty imperfect knowledge of what monetary policy means.

The Journal has no acquaintance with anybody crying out that the home of a widow, in arrears for taxes, should be sold; that she should be turned out of her home. On the contrary, the whole tendency, it seems to us, is to make things easier for home owners, both in the matter of tax payments and mortgage payments. However, and apart from that, the assumption that the way to help the woman with the house would be to hurt the woman with the bonds, is an absurd assumption. We may all work toward the reduction of interest charges, this by negotiation and agreement, and we are achieving reduction, but we are not going to hasten that end by repudiation. Repudiation, making it harder to borrow—and we shall have to go on borrowing—and making for higher interest rates on all future borrowing, could only increase taxes. Instead of helping the woman with the house, it would ruin her. We should be selling the day to serve the hour.

• • • •

Our correspondent appears to be taken in by the plethora of nonsense being talked about banks. He says

> "How subtle the story that the banks must protect their depositors' money, intimating that this is the money loaned out on interest. Even the most innocent of our populace knows that these are not facts. The banks collect interest on ink and paper."

This fallacy has been printed so often, a lot of sensible people have come to believe it.

It is true that most bank deposits arise from loans. The business man borrows and promises to pay back at some future date. Commonly he does not take the money out of the bank in hard cash. The bank credits him with a deposit. It is a mistake, however, to assume that banks can create money or purchasing power merely because deposits arise out of loans. Rather the cancelling of debts against one another makes more spending possible. The facilities for this cancellation are furnished by commercial banks. Checking accounts provide the means. It is not the creation of deposit subject to check that enables business to be done; it is the facilities the banking system affords for cancelling debts. The deposit credit that a bank exchanges for the promise of a business man at a future date arises out of business. In other words, business precedes credit and consequent deposits. The bank, giving credit greater currency, doesn't create credit.

• • • •

Further, when a bank makes a loan, it is necessary for it to have an equivalent amount of surplus funds available. It will have to meet additional claims upon itself soon after it makes the loan. People do not borrow to leave deposits in a bank; they borrow to spend. That is why the percentage of reserves which must be maintained against deposits is fixed by law.

At bottom, the lending policy of any bank is one of synchronization of adjusting rates of speed. From day to day, a bank receives payments and permits withdrawals, in cash and in checks. There are two flows of funds, one outgoing and the other incoming. The bank tries to adjust its lending policy so that the outflowing funds will be about equal to the inflowing funds. If the outflowing funds exceed the incoming flow for a considerable length of time, the bank will soon be drained of all its means of payment, be compelled to close. On the other hand, if the incoming flow exceeds the outgiong flow, the bank will become the possessor of idle funds on which no money is earned unless it invests them.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Huey Long is still leading the wisecracker campaign, but unfortunately present-day problems cannot be solved by wisecracking.

Recent figures show that Canadian shoe manufacturers have practically captured the home market and that clothing manufacturers are not far behind in that respect.

Possibly Toronto people who love the "Island" the most are glad that there is no immediate prospect of a tunnel. The absence of automobiles compensates for a lot of inconvenience in transportation.

NEW PERIL THREATENS

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—To say that a new peril threatens us is like calling down to a man who has fallen into a deep pit that his house is on fire. When the machine drove out the tool it was only a matter of time till the machine would drive out the man and girl altogether. That time has now arrived. As Henry Ford says, "I ask no skill from my employees. The machine is perfect and does the work more perfectly 24 hours a day and at a tremendous speed." What is required is not skill but cheapness and the east furnishes that. Whole factories are going east to China and India just as they went south in the U.S. into the black belt. This is the condition of affairs which our people have now got to consider.

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

REDCLIFF, ALBERTA

This town of 1,200 is situated six miles west of Medicine Hat, just north of the South Saskatchewan river, which flows 200 feet lower than the town itself. The cliffs thus formed are composed principally of blue shale, a splendid substance for making brick. In sections this shale has been subjected to heat, leaving it the color of red brick, hence the name, Redcliff.

Coal is also seen along the cliffs at different depth, natural gas is found at approximately 1,000 feet, while pure, ice-cold water is drawn from filtration beds in the river.

The town had its inception in 1883, when the C.P.R. mined coal here. John Ellis, one of the original settlers, still is a resident.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Certainly no more important innovation in the ordinary conception of how an average household looks upon the treatment of disease could be made than to instill them with the idea that the bathroom is just as important a place for treatment as the drug store.

We are getting them to believe that the kitchen is also a laboratory of treatment and that simply swallowing pills is not the only form of successful treatment. So far as the bathroom is concerned, we used to have the idea that treatment with water should only be carried out in a special institute of hydrotherapy, but American plumbers having installed the modern American bathroom, with both hot and cold water and showers, have constituted themselves a committee for the promulgation of hydrotherapy in the home. There is hardly any good form of hydrotherapy that cannot be accomplished in any American bathroom.

Lucky is the person who has arthritis in one joint—at least, comparatively lucky, and extra comparatively lucky is the person who has an arthritis in one joint of an extremity, either the hand, or the foot, the knee, or the elbow. Because he can take a contrast bath.

Nobody who has not tried it knows how much relief there is to be found in the contrast bath, and nobody who has not tried it knows how much joy there is in the use of cold water in joint affections. If I had my choice I would rather have my joints treated with cold than with heat. It produces practically the same effect as heat and gives infinitely more relief.

A contrast bath is simply a rapid change from very hot water to very cold water. In the case of the foot, it can be carried out either by having two pails, one with hot and one with cold water, or in turning the water into a bathtub, first very hot, then running it out, and then running the cold in. The actual technique is as follows:

The only apparatus needed is a pan of hot water, a pan of ice water and two bath towels. The hot towel is wrapped around the painful joint and allowed to remain for about 30 seconds. Then the ice towel is applied in the same manner. This is repeated for 20 minutes and should be done two or three times a day. If the involvement is in the hand, they are simply immersed in the pans alternately. If the feet are the site of pain, deep pans or buckets should be used to insure covering above the ankle joint.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

F. W.: "For the past several months the skin on my body, especially the feet and legs, has been so dry that it scales off like dandruff. My finger nails, too, peel off in thin layers. What is the cause of this condition?"

Answer: It might be due to several things. One is, since you have not given me your age, that it might be due to the natural atrophy of the skin that occurs in elderly people. Another condition is known as "ichthyosis", or fish-like skin, and is especially troublesome in the winter. Also possibly it is due to a fungus infection. I would advise you to consult a dermatologist, of which there are many good ones in your city.

E. H.: "I drink a pint of beer every day in the year. Is this injurious? My friend drinks a highball every evening before dinner. We have argued over the effect on our ultimate health. What say you?"

Answer: I say if you stick to the amounts which you specify in your letter, these beverages will do you no harm whatever.

THE BROWSER

A lady who doesn't sign her name objects to what the Browser said last week about Thomas Wolfe's "Of Time and the River." And he gathers from her letter that she thinks Wolfe is a crazy writer, with little restraint and no judgment, who swallows the dictionary whole and spews it forth in great chunks. ....Not a pretty figure of speech, but picturesque.....Perhaps the lady will like this quotation better:

"The words were wrung out of him in a kind of bloody sweat; they poured over his finger tips, spat out of his snarling throat like writhing snakes....And in those words was racked the whole image of his bitter homelessness, his intolerable desire, his maddened longing for return. In those wild and broken phrases was packed the whole bitter burden of his famished, driven, overladen spirit—all the longing of the wanderer, all the impossible and unutterable homesickness that the American, or any man on earth, can know."

You either like that sort of writing or you hate it. The lady hates it. The Browser doesn't exactly LIKE it. But he does admire the fury, explosiveness and passionate driving power of Thomas Wolfe. He's six feet five, and he alternates the scalpel and the sledge hammer. What he can't dissect he smashes to pieces....But the Browser is omnivorous, and to all who are weary and heavy laden he advises Lloyd C. Douglas' "Green Light". Mr. Douglas is a preacher who abandoned the pulpit for the novel and "Green Light" is a novel of which no man need be ashamed.... It is comforting—and helpful.

From "Green Light" the Browser skips lightly to "Come and Get It," by Edna Ferber, who needs no advertising from the Browser. Not the best book she has written or will write, but not a book you will put down and forget to finish. Miss Ferber is a very nice boxer. With a grand left jab she keeps snobbery and complacency off balance.

"Of Time and the River" will be a best seller.....Sixty-five thousand copies of "Green Light" have been printed and will be sold....Sir Phillip Gibbs can't get into Germany....Sir John Buchan will be governor general of Canada.... Louis Adamic scooped the nation with a fine article in The Nation about Pennsylvania coal bootleggers. Magazine editors said: "That's a fine subject and who reads the Nation anyway?" So both the Mercury and Harpers had articles this month about Pennsylvania coal bootleggers.....Josephine Herbst has been reporting Cuba for the New Masses....Barry Franek has gone to Mexico...But right here, punching a typewriter, is where you'll find that old stick-in-the-mud

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE BATTLE OF FISH CREEK

On this date (April 24) in 1885 was fought the battle of Fish Creek in the Saskatchewan rebellion. It was perhaps the most unfortunate incident of the whole campaign. Clearly General Middleton was outwitted by Gabriel Dumont, Riel's field commandant. The militia was advancing towards Batoche, on both sides of the Saskatchewan River. Not long after the advance early in the morning rebel scouts opened fire upon the advance guard, killing some of the horses and wounding two or three of their riders. Middleton ordered the 90th, of Winnipeg under Captain F. L. Clarke, to advance. They did so and with the aid of "C" Company Infantry School Corps, captured a small knoll. But they were at once ordered to retire, whereupon the rebels took re-possession which involved another needless charge by the 90th, a fatal mistake for them. In the subsequent operations Middleton was cleverly outmanoeuvred by Dumont and after a day's fighting the rebels got away in safety leaving only a few dead on the ground. The militia casualties were 12 killed and 35 wounded. The killed were: 90th Regiment: Private Ferguson, Pte. Hutchinson, Pte. Wheeler, Lieut. Swinford, Corporal Lethbridge, Pte. Ennis, Captain Clarke.

"A" Battery: Driver Harrison, Gunner Dananally, Gunner Cook, Gunner Ainsworth. "C" School: Private Watson.

All accounts agree that if the militia could have had their way they would have cleaned out the rebels in the ravine, as they did later at Batoche, but Middleton refused to sacrifice any more lives. Major Boulton wrote of his engagement: "No greater bravery, heroism, devotion to duty or discipline could have been expected from any troops than was manifested at this unequal fight Fish Creek. There was no wavering, no thought of a retreat, but rather a dogged determination to hold their ground under the galling fire of an unseen enemy."

Dumont himself admitted having 280 expert rifle shots under his command. Fewer than 300 infantry were engaged, all unused to fighting, unaccustomed to the country. The odds were against them, but they stood their ground and averted disaster.

Is it any wonder that Winnipeg remembers them each year by decorating their monument?

Andrew Heaslip Wins In Crokinole Tourney

FLEETWOOD, April 24.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The Y.P.S. of Fleetwood United Church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Staples, Fleetwood, on Friday evening, April 19, for their Easter meeting, and enjoyed a series of progressive games of crokinole. There were about fifty guests present and ten tables were played.

Rev. Mr. Paton, pastor of the church, took charge of the evening's activities.

Mrs. John Henderson, of Lifford, succeeded in winning the largest number of games for the ladies and was presented with a suitable prize. Messrs. Andrew Heaslip and Leonard Welsh were tied for the gents' high score, the former winning out in the playoff and receiving a prize award.

Following presentation of prizes, community singing, led by Mr. Paton, was much enjoyed. A happy social time was spent in the enjoyment of music and conversation. The young people had arranged for lunch which was served with the assistance of the hostess and other members of the senior society.

The proceeds amounted to about five dollars.

Where Five Were Killed In Nova Scotia Wreck

HEPBURN ASKED TO DEFER ACTION

the technical section of the convention

He said these institutions were getting expert services of graduates for nothing under the excuse of supplementing the courses of vocational schools with practical courses.

Survival of Fittest.

"There has been a failure to send on to the normal school's only such students as have developed the ability to think clearly, to speak precisely, to act correctly, to grow continuously and to initiate effectively, all of which are characteristics of a liberal education," Principal Everton A. Miller of London, Ont., said in an address to-day to the training section of the Ontario Education Association.

Noting the great increase in the number attending secondary schools with no particular object in view, he said: "These students find it difficult to put much effort into their daily tasks because their morale is being lowered by contemplation of their prospects."

One solution of the problem might be the granting of graduation certificates from the high schools on a basis of 50 per cent. on each paper but requiring those seeking admittance to normal schools as well as to obtain 70 or 75 per cent. on subjects which they intended to teach.

Boost Age Limit

TORONTO, April 24.—(CP)—Rural trustees at the Ontario Education Association convention moved today to advance the minimum age for admission to rural schools from five to six years. The resolution met little opposition.

The rural trustees section elected: President, H. H. Boyes, Meaford; Vice-president, Dr. P. D. Proudfoot, Russell; Secretary, H. R. Wilson, Bradford; Directors, J. H. Ebbs, Perth; Mrs. R. Davidson, Dungannon; George S. Paxton, St. Davids; Mrs. George Edwards, Keenoka, and Mrs. D. Hartley, Milton.

A Flaw

TORONTO, April 24.—(CP)—"The biggest business of our country — education—is deplorably lacking in efficient management," the urban trustees section of the Ontario Education Association was told today by C. C. Carrothers, chairman of the London Board of Education.

In the place of training for university educations, which he said were not desired by many pupils, he could like to see courses in civics, government, personal health and hygiene, economics, home-making, domestic science, and the cultural subjects, the latter not taught as in Canada like a science but as a pathway to living.

former Germany colony of Tanganyika, now a part of British East Africa, in view of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's declaration to Sir John Simon German's right to colonial possessions must be recognized.

Premier G. M. Huggins of South Rhodesia is an avowed advocate of an "United States of South Africa," composed of British territories extending from Capetown to the Mediterranean. It is understood, however, he believes consolidation of Great Britain's vast territories must be delayed until the attitude of the Afrikanders (South African inhabitants of Dutch extraction) toward Great Britain is clarified.

SMELTERS GAINS SILVER ADVANCES

TORONTO, April 24.—(CP).—Industrial shares drifted down fractions in fairly slow trading to-day on the Toronto exchange, weakness appearing particularly in the Oil, Distillery, Food and Utility shares. Selling was active in the liquor and oil groups and Distillers Seagrams eased back to 14%. Industrial A to 9 and Walkers to 25% to show fractional losses. Recessions of ⅛ to ¼ came out for British American, Imperial and International Petroleum and Thayers lost a full point. Minor losses were recorded also for Brazilian, Ford A and C.P.R. The power issues were fairly steady and Consumers Gas had a point gain.

Currency Wars Must End For Prosperity

LIVERPOOL, April 24 (CP-Havas)—World prosperity will not return until quota and currency "wars" are ended, Percy Bates, chairman of the Cunard-White Star Lines, declared here to-day at the annual meeting of stockholders.

"The company cannot prosper," he said "until prosperity returns to the Atlantic trade. The Atlantic trade cannot prosper until the world prospers. There is war to-day—universal war. The weapons are not navies, armies or airplanes, but tariff quotas and shifting currencies. Every change in the tariff quotas or in currency levels is nothing more than a hostile move in this war."

BABES' PARENTS FAIL TO APPEAR

quintuplets registered normal temperatures but with Marie, whose weight a few days after birth was only 24 ounces, the infection was more prolonged. He said she was also progressing favorably and barring unfortunate developments, her condition should eventually be equally as well as the others.

Excellent Condition

The North Bay physician remarked on the general excellent condition of the babies and the splendid care that has been given them. His examination lasted about one and one-half hours.

Dr. Dafoe stated that he hoped Dr. Smith's visit and examination would prove satisfactory to all concerned. "The guardians and myself are willing to co-operate with the parents at any time," said the Callander physician who has cared for the quintuplets since their birth.

He requested that visitors remain away from the hospital until such time as he announces all five of the babes normally healthy again. Dr. Dafoe said it would take little Marie at least to the end of the week to "shake her cold."

Parents Postpone Trip

CALLANDER, Ont., April 24. (CP).—Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne to-day definitely postponed their intended visit to Ottawa because of their concern over the health of their quintuplet daughters.

Leon Dionne, Oliva's brother and Leo Kervin, Dionne's manager, will, however, leave to-night for Ottawa where they will confer with Mrs. P. E. Marchand, foundress and national president of La Federation Des Femmes Canadiennes Francaises and other delegates of the organization.

North Augusta Fire Razes 'Phone Exchange

BROCKVILLE, Ont., April 24. — (C.P.)—Fire at North Augusta totally destroyed the Central Exchange building of the Leeds and Grenville Independent Telephone Company last night and damaged an adjoining structure. Loss is placed at $3,000.

It was prevented from making further headway through services rendered by a detachment of Brockville fire brigade, which used a pumper to draw water from a nearby creek in the absence of any village fire equipment.

The fire broke out in the telephone building, a two-storey frame structure, the roof of which collapsed. Another two-storey frame building adjoining was damaged.

World Silver Above U.S. Treasury Price

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP)—Bar silver in world markets pushed above the United States Treasury's price to domestic mines to-day, leading Wall Street to look for an early announcement of an advance in the Treasury's price.

In New York, foreign silver for commercial use rose 1¾ cents to 71⅝ cents an ounce, compared with the Treasury price fixed a fortnight ago of 71.11 cents. This followed a rise in London to the equivalent of 71.76 cents. In both London and New York, prices reached the highest levels in ten years.

Grateful Transient Writes Benefactor After He Finds Employment In Toronto

The charge of ingratitude is often voiced against transients, and while it may be generally justified there are exceptions.

Recently a well-known local man who befriended a transient some weeks ago, received a letter of thanks. The letter was merely addressed to the street number, the transient being unaware of the name of the party who had extended some practical help when he most needed it.

It is learned that the young man hopped off a freight train here about a month ago en route to Toronto, where he was expecting to get a job in a warehouse through the influence of a brother-in-law.

He called at a certain Frederick avenue residence, was given a meal, and a sum of money sufficient to provide further refreshment upon his arrival in Toronto and to ensure getting some place to sleep for the night.

According to the man's story, he had been a deep sea sailor for some years before he decided to come inland in search of employment on the Great Lakes. His quest being fruitless, he went as far West as Winnipeg in the hopeless search for employment before finally deciding to retrace his steps East in the hope of work in the Queen City.

He is now apparently settled in Toronto with his brother-in-law, and the letter received from him contained deep expressions of gratitude to his Peterborough friend.

TAX INSURANCE TAXING SAVINGS OF THE CITIZENS

Life Underwriters Hear Gordon Nairn of Dominion Association.

PROPER SALES TALK.

Life insurance companies are merely holders of small savings entrusted to them by the people, and whenever governments talk of taxing the funds of insurance companies they are proposing a tax on the savings of a great body of citizens, Gordon Nairn of Toronto, superintendent of the Dominion Life Underwriters' Association, reminded members of the local branch of the association in their noon lunch today at Hooper's.

Suggestions of repudiating investment issues are also a threat against the security of insurance funds Mr. Nairn said, and every blow of this kind that might materialize would make it more difficult for insurance companies to meet their obligations to the 3,500,000 policyholders in Canada.

"We represent a great body of public opinion in this county, and it is the duty of every person in this business to make people right-minded about the true nature of life insurance. In the last few years you have heard some persons saying things on public platforms about life insurance companies as a whole that are untrue and wrong. This presents a new challenge to us to show the public that life insurance companies are not great financial institutions that are independent of the people themselves. The companies are trustees of the savings of a great section of the people of Canada. Governmental talk of taxing the funds of insurance companies would mean a tax on the people's saving as much of a tax on their deposits in the banks."

Mr. Nairn discussed some aspects of life insurance work, and also the objectives and accomplishments of the Life Underwriters' Association. He suggested to the local underwriters that they should endeavor to discuss with the prospects the things that were closest to their hearts and the relation of insurance to these deep personal interests.

"There is a place for estate analysis and for figurs, but it is base on the simple message the life insurance man should give his prospect. When you talk of company statements and dividends you are in danger of putting yourself in the position of some one who might be selling bonds. It is true that prospects often do ask about these things, but it is probably a result of some previous salesman's talking about them. I am simply giving you my opinion as a buyer of insurance, and I know that the man who sells me insurance is one who can make me feel surrounded by the things that are closest to my heart, my hopes in my family and my responsibility toward my wife and children. I think that is essentially what motivates a man to buy life insurance, that and of course, his interest in his own future."

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, April 24.—(AP)—The stock market slowed down in its trading pace during late dealings today but earlier advances of fractions to more than a point were well maintained.

At the beginning of the final hour leading metals, industrials, including aircraft shares, and utilities had levelled off a trifle under the earlier peaks, but the tone of the market remained steady to firm.

Shares holding early gains well included Howe Sound, American Smelting, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry Liggett & Myers, Union Pacific, Consolidated Gas and American Telephone. General Motors and Chrysler held about even.

Announcement that the Chicago Board of Trade would remain closed today because of a petition of the Rosenbaum Grain Corp. For reorganization caused only slight nervousness in the share market.

Sales aggregated 1,400,000 shares.

SILVERS HIGH MINE SECTION

Volume Advances on Higher Prices to Show Turnover of Close to Million.

GOLD ISSUES WEAK.

TORONTO, April 24.—(CP)—The gold issues displayed mild weakness while silvers and base metals pushed higher today on the mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange. The factor behind the advance was the sharp gain on the price of silver metal. Volume expanded to show turnover for the day of close to a million shares.

New highs for the year were registered by Eldorado and Castle, the former advancing about 25 cents and the latter about 15. Bear exploration registered a net gain of 5 cents. Premier and Nipissing closed a few cents higher each and fractional gains were boarded for the penny silvers, Peterson-Cobalt, White Eagle and Cobalt-Contact. In the base metal group Hudson Bay closed above the $15 mark and Falconbridge above $4 while Base Metals Corporation added ten cents or more to the price. Noranda remained steady and Sudbury Basin displayed mild strength.

In the senior golds recessions ranging up to 5 cents were boarded for Central Patricia, Siscoe, McWatters, Buffalo-Ankerite, Sylvanite, Pickle Crow and Macassa.

British Press Believes German Naval Request Only Step to Equality.

URGE IMPERIAL PARLEY.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, April 24 (CP Cable) — An anxious note again runs through the British press, assessing the German reaction to the united front at Stresa and the League of Nations' condemnation of German rearmament.

Diplomatic correspondents of two opposition papers see Britain as a sequel to the Stresa meeting and Geneva—dangerously near the prewar system of alliances and a return to the old balance of power.

The naval correspondent of The Morning Post, Conservative, in an analysis of Adolf Hitler's claim to a navy 35 per cent. as big as Britain's, argues the ratio claimed is purely fictitious as far as a true measure of sea power is concerned, and would appear to be merely a stepping stone to equality.

Imperial Conference

The Daily Mail editorially presses the British Government should seize the opportunity of the presence of the prime ministers of the Dominions for the Royal Jubilee to convene an imperial conference.

"In the many complicated issues confronting the Empire," The Daily Mail continues, "it grows every day more important to move in unison with the Dominions and ascertain exactly how they view the Locarno Treaty. . . . Unless the Dominions are with us in this matter, the liabilities attaching to the Locarno Treaty would be of the utmost peril to imperial unity.

"No Dominion could remain neutral unless it were to secede. It is therefore, imperatively necessary to test Dominion opinion thoroughly. If it is against the Locarno Treaty, then there can be only one course for the British Government—the treaty will have to be denounced."

Democrat NRA Chiefs Try Silence On Long

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON, April 24 (A.P.)—Democratic leaders in the United States Senate decided yesterday to apply the "silent treatment" to Senator Huey Long (D.-La.), who cut loose Saturday with a new assault in which he flung such words as "chinch bug" and "ignoramus" at New Deal chiefs.

After experiencing some difficulty and mental strain in remaining in their seats while Long voiced his threat to take Louisana out of the tax-paying union, the leaders were said to have reached the conclusion that better results would be obtained by silence than by returning shot for shot.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, was all set to reply to Long at one point Monday. But he consulted associates first and changed his mind. Vice-president Garner advised against a reply on the ground Long could be handled better if let alone.

if you've heard this one . . .

"MY DEAR, I simply dread this daily shopping!" How many times have you heard that story? More than once, we'll bet a hat. And if you ask the woman who "dreads shopping" just why she does so, you'll usually hear something like this:

"It takes so much time! I start out and look and look and look . . . and by the time I've found what I want I'm dead on my feet. All in, my dear. I mean I actually am!"

You can do a friend like that a real service. Ask her if she reads the advertisements. Possibly she'll look surprised and say, "Not very often. What has that to do with it?"

Tell her how you have your mind all made up before you hang the market basket over your arm . . . how you're able to save steps, budget your expenditures neatly, get what you want—and all with a minimum of time and effort. The Easter Morn

The sun shines forth in Easter light,
The earth has passed from winter's night,
All things say, "Christ is risen in might"
This Easter Morn.

The flowers bloom on this fair day,
The birds forthwith sing a sweet lay,
"The Lord is risen" let all earth say,
This Easter Morn.

Let us too sing our brightest lay,
On this most glorious happy day,
"Christ is risen indeed" we say,
This Easter Morn.

(The above poem was written by Aileen Hughes, small daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Hughes when she was nine years old. Suitable music was found for the piece and it has been sung by the choir at the last two Easter seasons in St. George's Church.)

GENERAL STEEL WARES

The Greatest Boon to BAKING and ROASTING in Years

TO an oven already accepted as one of the finest baking and roasting ovens on any range, McClary now adds Stabilized Heat! With this new feature come three distinctly new advantages: 1—The fastest pre-heating. 2—An absolutely even-temperatured oven. 3—Fool-proof Stabilizing Heat Control.

FASTEST PRE-HEATING

Set the control to the desired temperature . . . turn the single oven switch to "pre-heat" . . . a small red light glows on the switch panel . . . the oven elements release an instant flood of heat! Then comes the fastest pre-heating you've ever witnessed!

POSITIVE OVEN TEMPERATURE

After the desired oven temperature has been reached, the small red light on the switch panel goes out . . . your signal that the oven is ready. The control automatically cuts off all oven elements. The oven heat will not rise above the desired temperature. If your oven is allowed to cool through delay, the control automatically cuts in and brings the oven temperature back immediately.

STABILIZED HEAT

After pre-heating, put in your roast and turn the switch to "baking." Then leave it . . . the heat control will take care of everything after that. The temperature is evenly maintained throughout the baking process. Save time . . . save worry . . . save electricity. McClary has taken the guess work out of baking and roasting with Stabilized Heat.

PLAY FEATURES ANNUAL SOCIAL

Successful Event Held by Zion Ladies' Aid in Sentinel Hall.

AT PETHERICK'S CORNERS

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, April 24 (Examiner Correspondence). — "The Colonel's Maid," a three-act comedy with a Carolina setting was the main feature of the annual pie social of Zion Ladies' Association held in the Sentinel Hall on Thursday evening. The hall was filled to capacity in spite of illness in the community and counter attractions in some other districts. This play marked the return to action of the Zion Dramatic Club after a year's idleness, and the glowing tributes of many of the crowd proved that the club members had lost none of their prowess on the curtained stage.

The cast of characters was as follows:

Colonel Robert Rudd (of North Carolina), Fred Fry; Colonel Richard Byrd (of South Carolina), Lindsay Anderson. These two are mortally antagonistic.

Marjorie Byrd (Colonel's daughter), Cora Petherick.

Bob Rudd (Colonel's son) Harry Ewing; not so antagonistic as their fathers.

Mrs. John J. Carroll (Colonel Rudd's sister-in-law), Laura Watson.

Ned Graydon (Julia's lover and a very forgetful young man) George Brunton.

Lawyer Baskom (the Rudd family legal light), Alfred Simpson.

Ching-Ah-Ling (the Chinese cook and the most important figure in the cast), Art Petherick.

Parts Well Taken.

While all parts were well taken, the roles of Colonel Rudd and Ching, the heavy parts of the play, were exceptionally well rendered and the antics of the inimitable Ching provided much merriment, particularly for the younger members of the audience, while the storming, roaring spasms of the oft-enraged Col. Rudd brought forth much applause. Bob Rudd, Jr., was also an important part as the brainy members of the cast who spins the web of mystery and then has it untangled for him.

Between act numbers were duets by Malcolm and Howard Hutcheon, piano numbers by Evelyn Barnum, and orchestra selections by Cora Petherick piano, Art Petherick violin, Evelyn Barnum guitar, and Denzil Dixon banjo.

Rev. F. G. MacTavish acted in his usual happy manner as chairman and general announcer, while Mrs. Fred Barnum and Mrs. Lorne Barnum assisted the play group. A satisfying repast of sandwiches, pie and coffee brought an enjoyable evening to a close. Proceeds amounted to nearly $72.00.

Spanish Heir Turns To Study Of Law

FLORENCE, Italy, April 24 (C.P.) —The heir-claimant to the Spanish throne turned yesterday from a restful life at sea to the musty law books of Florence University as a prelude to his marriage next fall.

The student prince, the Infante Juan, 22-year-old son of former King Alfonso of Spain, did not hesitate to make plain he regards his forthcoming course in legal lore with somewhat less enthusiasm than he held for the salty life of a sailor.

HEALY FALLS HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE

George Brown's Residence Lost by Blaze of Unknown Origin.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 24 (Examiner Correspondence). — About 10.15 o'clock on Monday night fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed the frame dwelling occupied by Mr. and Mrs. George Brown at Healy Falls. Perry Sanders a Hydro employee who was returning from Campbellford was first to discover the blaze and promptly gave the alarm.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown were absent in Belleville at the time of the outbreak returning about midnight to find their home a smouldering mass of ruins. So fierce were the flames that not a single article of household furniture was saved and Hydro men and neighbors who had quickly formed a bucket brigade confined their attention to the adjacent dwellings. While the house and contents were covered by insurance, the owners lost a number of personal possessions which money could not replace. Mr. Brown is a member of the Falls Power House staff.

MILLBROOK W.M.A

Easter Atmosphere Prevails at Thankoffering Meeting—Treasurer Resigns.

MILLBROOK, April 24 (Examiner Correspondence) — The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Grace Presbyterian Church held its Easter thankoffering meeting immediately prior to the holiday week-end, with the president, Mrs. S. E. Eakins, calling the gathering to order by the reading of an appropriate poem, followed by the story of the resurrection read in unison, and a prayer by the leader.

Mrs. Z. Seaton contributed a reading, "The Resurrection of Our Lord," and Miss Annie Johnston also spoke of the theme of the day. A period of sentence prayers, led by Miss Johnston, Mrs. C. Thorndyke, Mrs. J. H. McKnight, Mrs. A. Coyte, Mrs. J. N. McGill and Mrs. F. J. Deyell, led up to the Lord's Prayer in unison. The thankoffering was then received, Mrs. J. R. Thompson offering the dedicatory prayer, and Mrs. McGill reading, "The First Easter Day."

A solo, "It was alone," was sung by Mrs. Thompson, who followed this with a talk, "In the Garden," based on John 20, 19-26. The business period included the decision to hold the May meeting at the manse, with Miss Johnston, deaconness, giving a report of the recent W.M.S. provincial convention in Toronto.

The resignation of Mrs. William Deyell from the office of treasurer, on account of ill-health, was regretfully received, and her successor will be appointed at a later date. The repeating of the Apostles' Creed brought a helpful meeting to a close, and afterward afternoon tea was served, the committee in charge being Mrs. S. E. Eakins, Mrs. F. J. Deyell, Mrs. J. N. McGill, Mrs. John Thompson and Mrs. Z. Seaton.

UNION PICKETS GUARD FACTORY

Prepare to Hold Lines Two Weeks in Toledo Auto Workers' Strike.

2,300 OUT OF JOBS.

TOLEDO, O., April 24. (AP). — Union pickets guarded each entrance to the Chevrolet Motor Company plant to-day and prepared to hold the lines for "two weeks or more" in their fight for a closed shop and a signed contract.

Inside the plant, machines were idle. Only office workers and watchmen were on duty. Some 2,300 workers were out of jobs as the strike moved into its second day.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said the Federation would back up the strikers with every facility of the organization. Green said there was "grave danger" the strike might spread to other United States auto plants.

In New York, Alfred P. Sloane, Jr., president of General Motors Corp., said the corporation would not sign an agreement for a closed shop.

Francis J. Dillon, organizer for the American Federation of Labor in the auto industry, headed for Washington to discuss the strike with Green.

"The situation is more serious than it has been for some time with the General Motors Corporation taking the attitude it does," Dillon said.

Large Attendance At Hastings Bazaar

HASTINGS, April 24 (Examiner Correspondence).—A gay and colorful Easter bazaar was held on Easter Saturday in Lynch's Hall, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The spacious hall was lovely with its bright ceiling decoration of yellow and blue streamers and fringed paper. The tables from which the sales were made were covered in white and plenty of color was provided by the display of fancy work and artificial flowers in pastel tints. Home cooking with cakes and pies daintily iced and frosted, an abundance of candies, maple syrup and sugar, pickles and marmalade found ready sale. The members were very grateful to Peter Gillespie of Keene who made and donated attractive smoking stands, which were soon disposed of.

A mystic fish pond, supervised by Misses Betty Spooner and Isobel Fowlds, attracted the attention of the younger generation.

The president, Mrs. H. McMillan, had a general oversight of the entire proceedings and all members found time for a word of genial welcome to the incoming guests, who were seated at three long tables made attractive with flowers.

Mrs. C. B. Plant and Miss Cadwell had charge of the fancy work booth; Miss Jessie Whitred, the candy booth, and Mrs. Howard Fife and Mrs. A. J. Brown the home cooking.

Table I was supervised by Mrs. A. E. Spooner and Mrs. J. V. Findly; Table II by Mrs. O. Phillips and Mrs. William Hill; Table III by Mrs. S. Fife and Mrs. H. McMillan. Tea was poured by Miss Herminston and Mrs. Thomas Richardson.

Other members of the Ladies' Aid assisted in every way possible.

2,000 STRIKERS DAMAGE STORE

streets, the strikers sought to enter several stores, only to find their way barred by locked doors.

Battle In Store

They were more successful in entering the Hudson's Bay store but refused to leave when urged by police. Officers sought to eject the men individually and when they met resistance were forced to draw their batons.

The men rushed through the first floor of the store kicking in show cases, breaking mirrors and damaging perishable goods. Store officials afterwards surveyed the damage and estimated it at $5,000.

Women employees of the store were escorted from the scene by their department managers. Male employees left the police to deal with the rioters. In all 250 law officers were required to handle the mob. Some 150 of these were Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The others were city and British Columbia Provincial policemen.

Six city policemen, including Deputy Chief Alfred Grundy, were injured in the store clash. None was hurt seriously. An undetermined number of strikers were injured. None was taken to hospital as the rioters removed their fallen comrades from the store themselves.

700 Invade Building

Seven hundred of the strikers managed to gain entrance to the store. Their fellows waited outside and when the men were ejected the whole body joined up again and moved on to Victory Square, site of Vancouvers war memorial.

Enroute several strikers broke the parade ranks and sought to overturn a police patrol car. They were held off by police who handled the situation easily.

The jobless gathered in the square, surrounded by constables until Mayor McGreer read the Riot Act. After due warning, they started to disperse and there was no further disturbance.

Of the 12 men arrested, ten were picked up after leaving the City Hall where their demands that the city provide for the relief camp recalcitrants were refused by the mayor. The men are held on a charge of vagrancy.

The other two under arrest were taken into custody during the battle with police in the Hudson's Bay store and face charges of causing malicious damage to property.

"City Not Responsible"

The city could not accept responsibility for the welfare of the relief camp strikers who quit their camps April 4 and flocked into Vancouver, Mayor McGeer said. He declared it was a federal responsibility.

"Vancouver," he said, "is being victimized by an organized attempt to capitalize, for revolutionary purposes, the conditions of depression which now exist. From information supplied to me, I learn there is a definite organization of Communistic activities which are centering on calling a general strike in Vancouver." The mayor believed the police force was capable of handling any situation which might arise.

The policy of the jobless in holding the "nuisance" parades, which heretofore have been orderly, was to demonstrate their strength and attempt to force the governments to grant them relief denied after they were warned no aid would be extended if they left the camps. They alleged camp conditions were not healthy and demanded increased pay.

An action song, "The Holy City" was given by Isabel McComb, Patricia Cryderman, Ruth Palliser and Theone McArthur, with Elsie McPherson, Eileen Hall and Elva Mowat singing. The meeting closed with the hymn, "Jesus Calls Us Forth to the Fray," and the Mizpah Benediction.

EASTER SUNDAY SERVICES AT CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, April 24.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—The services of the day were marked by a good attendance, special music and Easter messages. The Sunday school and church united for the morning service, and the theme for meditation was based on Easter messages brought by the different classes of the school.

At the evening service the pastor of the church, Rev. L. M. Smith, chose as his text, Mark 16:6 and 7, "And he saith unto them, be not affrighted; ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified, he is risen; he is not here; behold the place where they laid him. But go your way, tell his diciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee. There shall ye see him, as he said unto you."

An impressive message in song was given at this service by Miss Phyllis May of Belleville, soloist of Victoria Avenue Baptist church.

SKIN TROUBLES THAT HAD DEFIED TREATMENT completely cleared up when treated this way

A new food supplies "Protective Substances" needed to overcome that great cause of many skin troubles . . . CONSTIPATION!

DISTRESSING SKIN TROUBLES overcome—and general health greatly improved—simply by adding one food to the diet—important hospitals are reporting this result in hundreds of their cases!

The commonest cause of many skin troubles, such as pimples and boils, is constipation. Constipation, it has now been found, can be completely corrected by supplying certain "protective substances" in the diet.

Even fruits and vegetables do not supply enough of all these substances. But one food supplies them in abundance . . . the new Fleischmann's Yeast!

Helps to keep the skin clear

This new Fleischmann's Yeast builds up a more active condition of your intestinal tract, increasing the flow of stomach juices and strengthening digestive nerves and muscles.

Then your whole digestive tract works better. Bowels become "regular." Your skin clears up amazingly because bowel poisons no longer flood your system.

Eat the new Fleischmann's Yeast regularly. Don't stop after a few days.

In a prominent Skin Clinic, patients got these results:

In a leading private clinic and two prominent hospitals, the new Fleischmann's Yeast gave satisfactory improvement in 77%, 83% and 89%, respectively, of skin cases. Typical cases from actual records are:—

CASE OF L. T. WOMAN, AGE 27 . . . Very bad acne vulgaris. Was nervous, shy, shunned company. Evacuations irregular. Her improvement under treatment with the new Fleischmann's Yeast was little short of miraculous. Her skin trouble is practically gone. (Skin specialist's comment.) Her nervous condition greatly improved.

CASE OF W. D. YOUTH, AGE 18 . . . Had very bad case of pimples. Complexion sallow. Complained of stomach disturbances, belching, gas . . . After treatment, his bowels moved more often and easily. He no longer complained of indigestion. His skin condition improved.

CASE OF Q. W. WOMAN, AGE 23 . . . Obstinately constipated since childhood. Anemic, underweight, severe acne (pimples) for many years. After treatment (eating Fleischmann's Yeast every day), bowels moved better and more often. Patient made almost complete skin recovery.

"Best corrective for most skin troubles," says Dr. Hufnagel

"I used the new fresh yeast in three clinics," writes Dr. Léon Hufnagel (at left), French skin specialist, "with very successful—in some cases remarkable—results." He is clinic head in Rothschild Foundation Hospital, Paris.

THIS IS THE WAY YOU SHOULD EAT IT:

Eat 2 or 3 (or more) cakes of the new Fleischmann's Yeast daily—one-half hour before meals—on an empty stomach.

Eat it just plain or in water, milk or fruit juice—or on crackers.

Discontinue laxatives gradually (not all at once). As the yeast strengthens your bowels, you can stop using cathartics altogether. At grocers, soda fountains, drug stores, restaurants. Fleischmann's Yeast is a food.

THE NEW FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST can give complete bowel regularity . . . help clear your skin and keep it clear.

TO THE MEDICAL PROFESSION:

After one month's feeding of the new Fleischmann's Yeast, patients' elimination was speeded up 49%—as shown by their "charcoal time."

This new Fleischmann's Yeast is not only the richest vitamin-carrying food (supplying Vitamins A, B, G, D); it is extremely rich in a substance resembling a digestive hormone which stimulates digestive activity.

Being fresh, this new yeast releases its properties to the body in their most active form.

Skin disorders often come chiefly from constipation. To make sure of the cause in your case, see a doctor.

"I ADORE YOU"...

THRILLING WORDS . . . BUT NOBODY SAYS THEM TO THE GIRL WHO HAS COSMETIC SKIN

SOFT, lovely skin is thrilling to a man. So what a shame when a girl lets unattractive Cosmetic Skin rob her of this charm!

Cosmetics Harmless if removed this way

Many a woman who thinks she removes make-up thoroughly is actually leaving bits of stale cosmetics in the pores to choke them. Gradually the pores become enlarged — tiny blemishes appear, blackheads, perhaps. Signs of Cosmetic Skin!

Lux Toilet Soap is made to remove cosmetics thoroughly. Its ACTIVE lather sinks deep into the pores, gently removes every vestige of dust, dirt, stale rouge and powder. Before you put on fresh make-up during the day . . . and ALWAYS before you go to bed at night, guard your complexion with this gentle soap that 846 out of 857 English and Hollywood stars use! (It's grand whatever type of skin you have . . . dry, oily, or "in-between").

OF COURSE I USE COSMETICS, BUT I NEVER WORRY ABOUT COSMETIC SKIN — THANKS TO LUX TOILET SOAP. IT'S EASY TO HAVE A GORGEOUS SKIN THIS WAY

P.S. Now Lux Toilet Soap is so economical you can afford to use it for the bath, too! Why not try it tonight?

LAKEFIELD

SUNDAY PROGRAM PLEASES AUDIENCE

Variety Bill Presented by Lakefield Citizens Band — Assisted by Soloists.

LAKEFIELD, April 24.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The concert put on by the Citizens' Band on Sunday evening was attended by a large number of interested citizens, who were rewarded with an excellent program of varied character with a quality which reflected great credit in the band and their leader, Walter Madill.

The band was assisted by two popular soloists, Mrs. J. R. Hull and Mrs. N. Millen, the former singing "Open the Gates of the Temple" and the latter "Nearer My God to Thee." Both ladies were heard at their best, notwithstanding a heavy day's choir work, and their numbers were appreciated.

The band program was as follows: "Old Comrades March," dedicated to the Canadian Legion; "Operatic Mingle"; march, "Cross and Crown"; cornet selection, "A Perfect Day"; sacred operatic selection; hymn, "More Love to Thee."

Reeve Burrows was chairman and expressed his pleasure at the band's performance, which is a matter of local pride. The concert may be repeated at a later date.

Mrs. Stewart Forbes, of Toronto, and formerly, with her husband, a missionary in China, was the guest speaker at the annual W.M.S. service held on Sunday evening in the United Church, and gave a very interesting and inspiring address. The Young Women's Mission Circle put on a pageant, entitled "The Easter Story."

Rev. Forbes Robertson, of Montreal, was in charge of the services in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday, and will take charge on Sunday next. Lakefield is to be grouped with Omemee and Lakevale.

Jolly Crokinole Party Is Held At Ballyduff

BALLYDUFF, April 24 (Examiner Correspondence).—Ex-Reeve Fred S. Gray and Mrs. Gray, whose beautiful farm home is near Ballyduff were host and hostess on Thursday evening, April 18th, for a jolly crokinole party sponsored by the Ladies' Aid of Ballyduff Presbyterian Church.

About seventy-five people assembled, thirteen tables playing progressive crokinole while the remainder enjoyed other games and social conversation.

At the close of a series of games it was learned that three ladies and four gentlemen were holding high scores. After a play-off the winners were declared to be Miss Marjorie Page who was presented by the hostess society with a pretty china dish and Carlisle McGill who received a useful tie rack and brush.

The hostess had prepared a list of thirty-four questions to be answered by surnames of people living in the surrounding community. This novel contest created a great deal of interest and amusement for all. Miss S. McLennan, teacher of Ballyduff School and Harry Johnston succeeded in guessing the largest number of correct names and were awarded accordingly.

Much appreciated music was provided by Mrs. Herbert Neals on the piano. Miss Isobel Sisson and George Neals sang pleasing vocal solos. The Ladies' Aid had provided a liberal luncheon which was served with a cup of tea at the conclusion of the evening's program. An enjoyable social time followed.

The proceedings for the evening were about nine dollars.

A Congestion is the Starting Point of Most Babies' Ailments

Congestion anywhere in the body can be acted upon if the body's most important organ is stimulated

THE most important organ to a child's health is the liver, which not only stimulates activity in the intestines and rids the system of poisons, but actually filters out from the blood the poisons causing the congestion.

When you give Baby's Own Tablets to a baby or child for a cough, cold or other form of congestion, the first effect of these tablets is to stimulate liver activity, which aids in breaking up the congestion and in removing poisonous wastes from the body.

How much safer and more sensible this is than giving soothing syrups which do not remove congestion or the wastes which cause congestion! Thus, whether the congestion is in the chest, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, or anywhere in the body, Baby's Own Tablets get at the cause of it and are an effective agent in removing it.

Mothers by thousands have told us how Baby's Own Tablets have helped them in raising their children. Here's a letter from a mother in Washago:

"I want to praise Baby's Own Tablets for all they have meant to me in raising three boys. My baby is two years old and I have corrected all irregularities with them. In teething period they work miracles, and colds last but a few days when Baby's Own Tablets are given at the beginning. They thoroughly cleanse and carry off waste matter."

Baby's Own Tablets are safe for even the most delicate baby, and so inexpensive it is an economy to give them to older children, too. A certificate of analysis, showing that these tablets contain no narcotics, opiates or other harmful drug, is given with each package. The correct dosage for babies and children of different ages up to 12 years is given in each package. Always have them on hand to treat the congestions that cause most ailments of childhood.

The Norwood United Church Easter services were well attended on Sunday. The choir of about forty voices sang "Awake Up My George" by Simper and "We Declare Unto You Glad Tidings" by Maunder. Solo "As It Begins to Dawn," Van Laer sung by H. C. Renaud was much appreciated. Mrs. M. Knox and Miss Margaret Brethen sang a duet.

The lady members of the choir looked very attractive in their new maroon colored gowns.

Rogers and Miss Evelyn Godin beautifully sang "He is Risen." Mr. Reeves spoke on Phill. 3, 10, "That I may know Him and the power of His resurrection."

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

HASTINGS, April 24.—(Examiner Correspondence). — A very large congregation attended the special Easter services held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Easter Sunday, with Rev. McKenzie, of Centreville, in charge of both services.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with lovely flowers and potted plants. In the morning special Easter hymns were sung, and the lesson was read from 1st Corinthians, chapter 15, which was followed by a beautiful Easter duet by Miss Muriel Wilson and William Flatman.

The Rev. Mr. McKenzie gave a very earnest and helpful Easter message, choosing his text from St. Matthew, 28, verse 6, "He is not here, for he is risen, as he said Come, see the place where the Lord lay." Eight male members of the choir rendered an anthem, "On Calvary's Brow." Miss Muriel Wilson and John Wilson sang "Flowers of Eden."

William Flatman presided at the organ for the anthem and hymns, and Miss Flora Yule for the duet.

ST. GEORGE'S ANGLICAN.

St. George's Anglican Church was beautiful on Easter Sunday with its many lovely Easter lilies and snapdragons placed on the altar and throughout the church for the special Easter Sunday services.

A large congregation was present when the processional hymn, "Welcome Happy Morning," opened the beautiful morning service, followed by special prayers for Easter and the solemn chant, "Te Deum."

"Christ the Lord is Risen To-day" was sung as the recessional hymn, and as an anthem by the choir, with special parts taken by Rev. H. F. Battersby, Miss Margaret Battersby, Miss Jessie Kirk and Cyril Blackbourne.

Miss Della Plant presided at the pipe-organ throughout the service.

The rector, Rev. H. F. Battersby, chose his text from Romans, 14, verse 19, "Christ both died and rose," preaching an earnest and thought-provoking sermon on Easter.

The service was followed by the celebration of holy communion.

ST. PETER'S (PRESBYTERIAN)

MADOC, April 25 (Examiner Correspondence). — The services of Easter Day at St. Peter's Presbyterian Church were observed by a large congregation. Suitable music was ably rendered by the choir.

After the offertory, Mrs. A. C. Crawford sang most acceptably the classic song by Hawley, "Christ Has Opened Paradise." Miss Marion Robertson presided at the organ.

The minister, Rev. W. A. Hunter, D.D., based his sermon on the words of the Apostle Paul, "Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more."

Easter lillies and pink tulips, the gift of the Ladies' Aid Society decorated the Communion table.

At the evening service, Rev. Mr. Bilton, chaplain to the men in the government road camps on the trans-Canada Highway, gave a vigorous and interesting account of the religious work being done in the camps.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

At Trinity United Church, Madoc, at the morning service, the quarterly Communion was held, in which a large congregation partook of the Communion, and ten persons united with the church on profession of faith.

Rev. G. W. Rivers took for his subject, "Keeping the Feast," his text being taken from I Cor., 5:8, "Therefore let us keep the feast."

The choir rendered two anthems, "O Death, Where Is Thy Sting?" and "He Is Risen."

The evening service consisted of a cantata, "The First Easter," given by the choir. Rev. G. W. Rivers took charge of the devotional service with two Easter hymns, "Christ The Lord is Risen To-day," and "Crown Him," with a short scripture lesson. The remainder of the service was the cantata with Mrs. L. Ashley as organist. As soloists during the rendition of the cantata were Mrs. W. Hulin, Miss N. Fair, Mrs. George White, Mrs. Zuercher, Messrs. W. Fletcher, A. Abbott, and W. Rose. The ladies' quartette were Mesdames Eagleson, Hulin, and Misses N. Fair and E. Salisbury. The men's quartette was composed of Messrs. W. Fletcher, A. Abbott, Rose, and Long. The choruses were especially well rendered.

ST. JOHN'S (ANGLICAN)

The services of Easter Day at St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, came as a natural and joyous culmination to the week-night services of Lent, the services of the Week of Witness, and the three-hour service of Good Friday with its gloom and sadness.

The beautiful little church was radiant from its spring cleaning, which had been done with loving and willing hands by the members of the Ladies' Guild, and bright and beautiful with potted plants which adorned every window and decked the large western window. Around the lectern and prayer dask were potted lillies and daffodils, and the flowers on the altar were large Easter lillies, gay daffodils with red tulips. These were donated, "To the glory of God, and in loving memory of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Spurr; their children, John William Spurr, Isabel Moore Spurr, and Gertrude Spurr, wife of Dr. B. M. Spurr; also of Leslie, Harold and Ted Nickle," by Mrs. T. L. Nickle and family. Lighted candles also lent their brightness and cheer for the Easter festival.

Beginning with the processional hymn, "Jesus Christ Is Risen Today, Alleluia," the morning service was opened with the Easter salutation, then Confession and Asolution. In place of the Venite, the Easter anthem, "Christ Our Passover" (Humphrey) was sung, after which the Choral Communion Service (Smart) was used. The anthem, "He Lives" (T. Lincoln Hall) was well rendered by the choir. Other hymns used were "He is Risen," and after Communion (at which about forty-five attended), came the "Gloria in Excelsis" and the Benediction, then the recessional hymn, "Christ the Lord Is Risen To-day."

A full surpliced choir, a large and reverent congregation, beautiful flowers, all helped to make the fervent Easter message of the rector, Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne, more effective. The sermon was preached from the text, "He is not here, but has risen," Luke 24:6.

MISS SARAH HINDMAN

LIFFORD LINE, April 24 (Examiner Correspondence)—On Sunday evening, April 21st, there passed away one of the few monegenerian residents of Lifford in the person of Miss Sarah Hindman who had attained the ripe age of ninety-four years of age.

The deceased lady was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hindman, who left Ireland many years ago and settled in U.S.A. for a short period of time, after which they moved to Lifford settling immediately west of the present Lifford School. The family have been remembered by generations of school pupils who enjoyed the kind-hearted hospitality of the Hindman home during their childhood years. Miss Hindman was one of a family of five and was the last of the family to survive. Her brother John passed away several years ago while her brother Alexander died six years ago and her sister Ann a few years previous to that time. Mrs. Robert Flack of Lindsay is another deceased sister.

Following the death of her brother, finding it impossible to continue alone on the farm home she took up residence at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Sisson, Eighth Line of Manvers, where she continued to live until the time of her death, being kindly cared for by the various members of the family. Although a partial invalid for a number of years, it was not until a few weeks ago that Miss Hindman was confined to bed, becoming almost totally blind during the latter two weeks of her life and recognizing her many friends who called to see her by familiar voices.

Her niece, Mrs. Werry of Lindsay, daughter of Mrs. Robert Flack and mother of Mr. Leander Werry of Fleetwood who is also an aged lady, was a vrey intimate relative of her departed aunt.

The late Miss Hindman was an interesting conversationalist, being able to relate stories of her school days when she attended the old log shanty school which was located east of the present structure which replaced it, and was on the farm of the late Captain Preston and is now owned by Mr. Lloyd Staples.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, April 23rd. A brief service was conducted at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Sisson by Rev. Holden, rector of Manvers parish. Following this the funeral cortege proceeded to St. Mary's Church for a public service where Mr. Holden took charge also. Interment took place in the near by family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Among the beautiful floral tributes was a wreath from St. Mary's Church Guild. The pall-bearers were six old friends of the family Messrs. Heber Preston, Alban Sisson, Offa Staples, Norton Mills, Edward Mitchell and William Neals.

CLAIM WRITTEN EXAMS HURT LANGUAGE TEACHING

TORONTO, April 24 (C.P.)—The present system of written examinations put a deadening hand on the teaching of modern languages, Professor J. A. Surerus, head of the German department at Victoria College, told the modern language section of the Ontario Education Association in convention here. He predicted failure for the new "reading method" unless examinations are altered to eliminate translations from foreign languages into English.

The pedagogical course at the Ontario College of Education ought to be condensed to three or four months, instead of a year, to allow teachers in training to spend six months in France and Germany.

SOUTH AFRICA ENJOYING BOOM

Canadian Publishers Describe Business Like Canada in Days of 1929.

AGRICULTURE SLACK.

NEW YORK, April 24 (CP)—Back from the Imperial Press Conference in South Africa, E. Norman Smith, honorary president of the Canadian Press and vice-president of The Ottawa Journal; Frank Burd, publisher of The Vancouver Province; and C. A. Barbeo of The Chilliwack, B.C., Progress, arrived in New York today aboard the Empress of Australia. They were accompanied by their wives.

A month's recollection aboard ship had enabled the Canadian delegates to confirm their impressions of the marvellous opportunity afforded them to learn about and understand South Africa, Mr. Smith said. They were now able to take an intelligent interest in by-elections. He expressed the gratitude of the delegates for the hospitality of the South Africans.

Mr. Barber was most impressed with the prosperity of the cities, especially Johannesburg. "They are pulling down good buildings and putting up others," he said. "The rush of business is like that in Canadian cities in 1929."

The agricultural districts were not so prosperous, however.

Mrs. Barber, who unofficially represented the Canadian Women's Press Club at the conference, was greatly pleased with South Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will leave tonight to return to Ottawa. The others will remain for a few days in New York.

ONTARIO HALTS HIGHWAY WORK FROM NORTH BAY

12-Mile Stretch to Temiskaming to Wait Ottawa Decision on Contribution.

$175,000 SPENT TO DATE.

TORONTO, April 24 (C.P.)—Completion of the North Bay-Temiskaming Highway will be held in abeyance until after he consults with the Federal Government and learns if it will make any contribution to Northern Ontario arterial roads, Hon. Peter Heenan, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests and Northern Development, told a deputation from the North to-day.

While he had no intention to abandon the road, Mr. Heenan said it would be necessary to take into consideration the province's finances, unemployment and arrangements with Ottawa before giving a definite answer.

Case for completion of the highway was presented by Mayor W. G. Bullbrook of North Bay, Mayor A. K. Grimmer of Temiskaming, Quebec, proposed eastern terminus of the road and J. S. Marceau, Liberal member for Nipissing in the provincial Legislature.

12-Mile Strip

The stretch in question is approximately 12½ miles long, running west of Temiskaming.

So far, $175,000 has been invested in the highway, said Mayor Bullbrook, and he believed a similar sum would be sufficient to construct the 12½ mile stretch.

The mayor continued it would provide an outlet for Temiskaming and make it possible for the 3,000 residents of the town which has an annual payroll of $1,250,000 to do business in North Bay.

"People in the Quebec town want to come to us," he said. "And we are anxious to get them."

Delightful Cantata Is Given At St. Luke's

On Wednesday April 17th, "The Crucifixion," by J. Stainer (A meditation on the Passion of Our Lord), was sung by the choir of St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham.

The soloists for the occasion were Mr. Hope, bass; C. Hope, tenor, and H. Flowers, baritone; assisting soloists, Stanley Willis, Cyril Rice, and A. J. Flowers of Hamilton.

The singing of choir and soloists was all that could be desired, and was much appreciated by the congregation.

IN MEMORIAM

BRISBIN.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Carrie Brisbin, who passed away April 24, 1932.
—The Family.

IN MEMORIAM.

DUGGAN.—In loving memory of our dear Aunt, Evie Jane Duggan, who departed this life April 24th, 1934.

The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought the end was near;
It's only those who have lost can tell
The sorrow of parting without farewell.
In the lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of you are always near;
We who loved you, sadly miss you
As it dawns another year.
Some may think that we've forgotten,
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartache
That smile hides all the while.

—Too dearly loved to ever be forgotten by Nieces, Elsie and Jean Duggan.

DUGGAN.—In loving memory of our dear Auntie, Evie Jane Duggan, who passed away April 24th, 1934.

Our auntie is sleeping, so free from all pain,
Oh wake her not sweet spirit, to suffer again;
She slumbers so soundly, Oh let her sleep on,
Her sickness is ended, her troubles are gone.
Just think how she suffered and moaned with pain,
In the long night hours we soothed her in vain,
Till God in His mercy sent down from above
An angel that whispered a message of love.

—Sadly missed by Nephews, Lloyd and Bob Duggan.

IN MEMORIAM.

DUGGAN.—In loving memory of our dear daughter, Evie Jane Duggan, who passed away April 24, 1934.

No one knows how much we miss you.
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you;
Life has never been the same.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
sweetly, tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear daughter,
That we do not think of you.

—Lovingly remembered by Mother and Dad.

J. L. RALSTON IS NOT CONTESTING NEXT ELECTION

Opposition Financial Critic One of 25 Members of Commons Retiring.

SCRAMBLE TO SENATE.

Ottawa Estimates That 23 Conservatives Will Not Seek Re-election.

OTTAWA, April 24—Reports were current in political circles today that Col. the Hon. J. L. Ralston, former Minister of National Defence, and Opposition financial critic, may be one of the 25 members of the House of Commons who will not be candidates in the approaching general election.

Col. Ralston's extensive law practice in Montreal has drawn more and more upon his time and the situation, it is understood, has become more acute since the death of his partner, Walter G. Mitchell.

J. L. Ralston

It is expected that Liberal party leaders will exert the greatest pressure upon Col. Ralston to remain in the parliamentary arena. Further it is held that he would become Minister of Finance of the Mackenzie King forces were they successful in the election.

The Government forces will be hit hard by retirements. It is estimated that no fewer than 23 Conservative members of the House of Commons will not contest their seats as against two Liberals—Col. Ralston and A. F. Totzke, Liberal member for Humboldt, Sask.

With 13 vacancies in the Senate it is expected there will be a scramble among the retiring members of the House of Commons for them.

In Line for Senate?

It is reported that Conservative members who are in line for Senate vacancies include the following: Hon. J. A. Macdonald, H. B. Short, T. M. Cantley, George Jones, Thomas Bell, and Sab Charters.

The 25 members not expected to be candidates in the election are: Gordon C. Wilson, Sam Charters, Hon. J. D. Chaplin, D. M. Wright, Hon. R. C. Matthews, C. W. Bell, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, George Pettit, Hon. Robert Rogers, Thomas Hay, J. H. Stitt, W. W. Kennedy, Percy Davies, Hon. George Black Hon. J. A. Macdonald, W. G. Ernst, T. M. Cantley, R. K. Smith, H. B. Short, Hon. George Jones, Thomas Bell, George McDade, Col. Ralston, and A. F. Totzke.

MURDER CHARGE FACING WIDOW

Mrs. Rattenbury Will Go on Trial With Chauffeur For Slaying Husband.

BOTH DENY GUILT.

BOURNEMOUTH, April 24 (C.P. Cable).—At the conclusion to-day of the preliminary hearing, formal charges of murder were laid against Mrs. Alma Rattenbury, 31, and her 19-year-old chauffeur, George Percy Stoner, in connection with the death of the woman's 67-year-old husband, Francis Rattenbury, distinguished architect.

Both the accused pleaded not guilty and reserved defence, after which they were remanded for a week at which time they will be committed for trial.

Inspector Mills testified for the prosecution this afternoon that on a table near the chair in which Rattenbury was found bleeding from his wounds, was an open detective novel, entitled "The Stay of Execution." Prosecution counsel intimated it might be necessary during the trial to read passages at which the book was opened.

The inspector said Mrs. Rattenbury was most excited at the time, and was under the influence of liquor. He repeated the statements attributed to Mrs. Rattenbury by previous police witnesses—that she attacked her husband, adding: "Rats has lived too long," and later declaring, "No, my lover did it."

Alleged statements by Stoner to the police, that Mrs. Rattenbury had nothing to do with the affair, and "I hit him, then told Mrs. Rattenbury," were also reiterated.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

QUALITY BOOKLET IS PRINTED IN CITY

Johnson Motor Company's 1935 Catalogue is Now Off the Presses.

The Examiner's job printing department holds second place to none for high quality workmanship,—and as proof of this statement the department has just completed a large order for The Canadian Johnson Motor Company Ltd.

Executed in two colors—opaque red and opaque black, the order consisted of the printing, for the second successive year, of the company's 1935 catalogue of outboard motors and boats. Printed on a high grade coated paper, the booklet, of 28 pages is crammed with photographs and diagrams in addition to the printed work, the art work having been designed by The Lorne Ardiel Company, Toronto.

While the booklet that was printed for The Johnson Motor Company by The Examiner last year was considered to be one of the outstanding jobs, so far as quality of workmanship is concerned, the newest booklet just off the press easily outclasses it, in the opinion of several critics of good printing. It is a job of which the department might be justly proud.

MAE'S MARRIAGE STILL DEBATED

Milwaukee Vaudeville Artist Denies Star Wed There in 1911.

ONE WED WAS BRUNETTE.

MILWAUKEE, April 24 (A.P.).—New knots to the tangled tale of the marriage of Mae West here in 1911 were added to-day by oldtimers of Milwaukee's theatrical district, some denying it was the Movie Mae, others asserting or implying it was.

Some added to the hints of New Yorkers Movie Mae's memory had done her wrong when she said she never was here until four years ago.

That Movie Mae was the one married here was denied vigorously by Ollie Keeley, vaudeville performer, who said he worked on the same bills with the Gay Nineties star on the eastern circuit.

Keeley displayed bills of theatres showing Mae West, the movie one, teamed with Gerald Brothers as dancers, singers and comedians.

"I say the Mae married here is not the Mae now in the movies," Keeley declared. "A lot of people who remember the Mae West who was married here say she was a brunette. Well, the Mae of our circuit was then, as she is to-day, a blond and blond beyond question, too."

As for the Movie Mae's first visit here, theatrical men connected with the Davidson Stock Company recalled she came here with her sister, Beverly, in 1915 to obtain a stock job for Beverly from the late Sherman Brown, the manager of the house.

Storm Is Brewing On Ottawa Pacts

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, April 24.—(CP Cable).—The industrial correspondent of the Daily Herald, Labor, claims today a lively storm over the Ottawa Economic Conference agreements is developing among the British and Dominion governments and "strong comments" await Prime Minister R. B. Bennett when he reaches here for the Royal Jubilee when the Daily Mail urges a formal Imperial Conference be held.

"British manufacturers," asserts the Daily Herald, "allege Clause 11 of the Anglo-Canadian agreement (similar to Clause 10 of the Australian agreement) is being broken.

FAVOR OPENING RURAL SCHOOLS FOR PRACTISING

Need of Wider Experience By Normal Pupils is Emphasized at O. E. A.

TESTED AT PETERBORO'.

TORONTO, April 24.—Every rural school in Ontario should also be a practice school for Normal school pupils. Normal school principals should be allowed to use rural schools whenever necessary, and should have the right to select critic teachers from rural schools who are best fitted for the supervision of practice and observation work.

These points were emphasized at a session of the Training Section of the O.E.A. at the University of Toronto yesterday afternoon.

Complicated Duties

Inspector A. B. Lucas contended that very often a graduate of normal school took up the complicated duties of teaching in a rural school without ever before having stepped into one. As a consequence, many of these teachers were unable to grasp the problems involved in this type of school in such a way as to enable them to give satisfactory service.

Under the plan unanimously endorsed at yesterday's session, prospective teachers would spend from two to three weeks each term actually conducting rural school classes. With the number of different grades encountered in the one room of a rural school, this type of teaching naturally differed widely with that of the urban school-room, said Inspector Lucas.

Another need stressed at yesterday's session was that of closer co-operation between the staffs of normal schools and school inspectors. Too large a gap exists at present between theory and actual practice. It was suggested that the inspectors of various rural school divisions should supply to normal school principals lists of rural school teachers best suited for the task of taking in prospective teachers for training and practice.

Peterborough Experiments

Dr. J. H. Bannister, Principal of the Peterborough Normal School and President of the Training Section, told the meeting that experiments were now being conducted in his school with a view to placing pupils in rural schools for longer periods of time. In some cases, said Dr. Bannister, his pupils had been given the opportunity of taking over complete control of a rural class for a week or two.

Dr. S. Silcox, Principal of the Stratford Normal School, told the meeting that most of his difficulty in this matter had been encountered in the reluctance of rural taxpayers to allow their schools to be used in practice work. Dr. Silcox urged that higher standards be adopted for critic teachers because of the fact that so much depended upon their ability in the ultimate turning out of efficient rural school teachers.

Poor Judgment

ST. LOUIS, April 24.—(CP)—Maurice Kornblet, grocer, wasn't going to lose all his day's receipts to bandits, so he put $60 in his pockets and his $325 in his grocery basket.

Two men in a car stopped him. They took the $60. "What's in that basket?" one asked.

"Just groceries," Kornblet smiled.

"Well, we eat, too." They took the basket. The $325 was still in it.

Chatter

DETROIT, April 24.—(CP).—The poet's description of a woman's voice as "ever soft and low" got a setback in circuit court yesterday when a University of Michigan scientist testified that women's chatter makes more racket than a forge.

E. J. Abbott, University research physicist, a defence witness in the suit of a group of neighbors who objected to the noise of the Huron Forge and Machine Company, testified he had made sound meter tests in the neighborhood of the factory. The meter, he said, showed the noise of women talking in their homes set up vibrations 50 times greater than passing automobiles and 40 times greater than the noise from the factory.

and see I did not finish about a "page." Could there not be a weekly page with some happy little motto, and mother sitting with an Examiner in her hand, supposed to be reading but really watching a wee boy and girl teaching a darling little puppy to talk? If this is all too wild use it for kindling, but I come of a race of shall I say cranks? So "them's my sentiments."

I do like The Examiner and you in particular and I often wonder how you manage it all, so I am,

Very sincerely yours,
"Quid Est."

Dear Quid Est:

Thank you for your lovely greeting and may I wish you a very joyful and happy Easter too. What a sweet loyal neighbor you are? Your idea on a weekly page is just what I have been waiting for. Several weeks ago I asked the neighbors for suggestions and yours is the first real constructive one I have received. Would the neighbors like to exchange ideas on current events, or contribute little messages to say "shut-ins," poems, or general ideas on homemaking. Maybe we could have some of each. Wouldn't it be splendid? I wish we could get the neighbors all interested. Could we not start very soon? Even if we have to start out very humbly with just a few little offerings we shall hope as time goes on more and more neighbors will come in to our circle and we shall be one very large happy family. I hope, dear Quid Est that you can find time to be a regular contributor. Will you not be the first to send in something and maybe Water Lily, Ad Infinitum and all the others will follow suit.

To all the dear neighbors I wish a very happy and joyful Easter.

Sincerely,
Anne Wilcox.

SUNNY LIVING
starts at the table

How you feel and how you look depend largely on the foods you eat. The balanced menu provides the "bulk" to prevent common constipation — caused by lack of this essential fiber.

Common constipation frequently causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Yet, in most cases, it can be overcome pleasantly and safely by eating a delicious cereal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a natural food for normal individuals. It furnishes "bulk" in convenient and concentrated form. ALL-BRAN also provides vitamin B and iron.

Isn't this sunny way better than taking patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If relief is not obtained, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Hush darling HUSH!

HAVE you ever held a child in your arms —quivering and screaming from a burn? Have you ever waited those seemingly endless minutes for the druggist to rush Unguentine to you?

Then you smoothed it on gently. Almost immediately Unguentine began to draw the fire from the burn; to soothe and cool, bringing relief from the pain—and a resolution from you to have Unguentine where you can reach it instantly in future.

If you have never gone through this experience guard yourself against it, by having a tube of Unguentine on hand, ready for emergency—to relieve pain from burns or scalds; to prevent ugly scars.

Eight out of every ten hospitals use Unguentine because it is actively antiseptic while in contact with the burn or scald and does not dry out, making the dressing easy to remove, without pain.

The wise Mother keeps a tube of Unguentine in the kitchen within instant reach — and another in the Medicine Cabinet for cuts, infectious scratches and bruises.

Unguentine Quick!

REMARKABLE SUCCESS BIDDING FORLORN HANDS

During the last dozen years I wonder how many times I have seen the famous sculptor, Elie Nadelman, inject into the auction a bid on an apparently hopeless hand, only to discover that he has done the one best thing for his side. Such luck is akin to genius. Note what he accomplished with East's miserable cards.

Bidding went: South, 1 heart; West, 2 clubs; North, 2 diamonds; East, 2 spades, ready if doubled to assist partner's clubs. West, 3 spades; East, 4 clubs, to show how weak spades were; West, 4 spades, calculating from the bidding that his partner held the K of clubs, and could lead through South's high spades, the side strength for his opening heart call; South doubled, ending the bidding.

	♠ 8 5 ♥ J 8 7 5 ♦ A 10 9 8 6 3 ♣ J 10
♠ A Q 10 ♥ Q 10 4 ♦ K Q ♣ A 8 6 5 4	N. W. E. S.	♠ 9 7 6 4 2 ♥ 3 2 ♦ J 5 2 ♣ K 7 3
	♠ K J 3 ♥ A K 9 6 6 ♦ 7 4 ♣ Q 9 3

The opening lead was the K of hearts. North played the 7 and East false-carded his 3. False-carding small cards never is noticed by poor players, but it frequently deceives good players. South thought that East held the J-8-3, and that North had started an echo from the 7-2. So South led off his ace of hearts to allow partner to ruff the third round of the suit, only to see North play the 8 and East drop the 2. About the only hope of defeating the contract now appeared to be that North held the ace of diamonds and K of clubs, or that West would have to ruff a diamond, to prevent the declarer from losing a second diamond trick. South led the 3 of clubs. North played the 10 and East went in on his K.

East led his lowest spade and won on a double finesse of dummy's 10. On a lead of dummy's Q of hearts the declarer discarded his lowest club. Dummy's ace of clubs was led. East ruffed the next lead of clubs. North discarded a diamond. It would have done him no good to ruff. The 6 of spades was led. South's J was captured with dummy's Q, then the ace picked up the last opposing trump. The three leads of clubs had established 3 long cards of that suit in dummy. These good clubs were led. East discarded his 2 lowest diamonds. When the K of diamonds was led at the twelfth trick of course North's ace won the trick, but 2 heart tricks were not sufficient to defeat the contract. North had nothing to lead back except a losing diamond, upon which dummy's good Q and declarer's last trump went. Perfect defence should have given the defenders a club trick, as well as the other three tricks won.

OUR MAIL

Dear Anne:

This may be a bit early but I am going right now to wish you a glad Easter as there are quiet moments when there is not an actual "must."

Is everyone so terribly busy that they leave you alone? Why cannot we have a page such as some Toronto papers have? I have met the ladies at the head of two of these papers, entertained one of them, heard one address an Institute and I am sure The Examiner could have a page. These other papers have contributors from far and near. I know The Examiner goes to several far away places and I also know there are many talented women in Peterborough to say nothing of the surrounding country. It does seem that in his sermon on Sunday evening Mayor McGeer of Vancouver hit the nail on the head as to causes of the present chaotic conditions. Whether his ideas which he takes to Ottawa for correcting things are right or not I am not wise enough to venture but they do not appeal to me. I do not think any laws will do the work. History is given us for instruction. From instruction we should learn wisdom not just knowledge. Wisdom would teach us to obey the laws of the Creator, and put Him first not only on Sunday but every day, in our homes in our work. I know city and country ministers who are breaking their hearts over the way things are going. Homes are not the desired homes of the Bible. Amusement is or seems to be the chief aim in life. Necessary, of course it is, but it is only a recreation not an end. So little home life in so many homes, so little home training, no time for it. So often the parents do not know where their teen age children are for the evening and worse still how or with whom they will come home.

We hear so much of short hours, full pay, which means more idle hours in so very many cases worse than idle hours, especially since beer parlors are open. There was a command "Be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth." That did not refer to increasing cattle and growing things that will come naturally, but it does refer to human beings. We have God given means for producing more and making work simpler, but when there are two or three generations of only one child the population lessens rapidly. There are so many cases where there is one child, whose parents were each an only child so that in just three generations there is one where there were four instead of from twelve to sixteen as there should be, as a rule. Of course, no children or only one or two are not always deliberate. Then there is so little time for the family altar, and I am sure things would soon be right as they were with the ancient Hebrews if there were.

During the evening, which was pleasantly spent in games and contests, the members of the class presented the bride-elect with a number of pieces of china in her favorite pattern. Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

There are times when nothing quite takes the place of one's personal presence. Flowers are sent as substitutes frequently. They are delighted in by the recipient when seeing a person is impossible, as for instance, when a friend is too ill to have callers. Also flowers may represent one when distance precludes the possibility of making a call or of attending a function. Sometimes both flowers and attendance combined, fulfill the wishes of the person best, giving evidence of thoughtfulness when absent and of companionship when present.

* * * * * * *

The most obvious of these combination of elements is at weddings, formal functions, and at funerals. It is at the first and last occasions that one finds personal presence is the thing wanted, at the wedding because it is an occasion when happiness shared is doubled happiness. At a funeral because there is a sympathetic consolation felt by the very presence of loved ones, which imparts a silent support to those in bereavement.

* * * * * * *

The realization of floral tributes being a substitute for personal presence was brought to me forcibly when attending a funeral recently of a man, beloved in his community, an outstanding business man, one interested in charitable works, and civic affairs. There was a wealth of floral tributes, but the church not a large edifice, could have seated more persons. The flowers represented thoughtfulness, but they could not be substitutes for seats unfilled.

* * * * * * *

The actual presence of the persons would have been gratifying even though the enormous quantity of flowers had been somewhat diminished How the immediate family felt, I do not know. They may have felt all their friends would have been with them if they could.

* * * * * * *

It is because the idea of substituting flowers for personal presence seems to be on the increase, that I thought I would call attention to the matter, and let you think it over. Sometimes the cost of flowers is more than the purse strings can permit. Then realize that your presence is more than flowers. When you can both send the tribute and be in attendance you are fortunate. When all you can do is to send flowers, you are at least represented.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

When the beautiful and gracious Irene Dunne first arrived in Hollywood, I am told, she was amazed at the lavishness with which the girls there used their lipsticks. Irene, whose winsome smile has lured many a masculine heart, had always considered lip rouge a cosmetic to be employed lightly and skillfully, in order to improve upon Nature. And so, before the filming of her first picture, she even experimented with dozens of different lip make-ups before she found one that suited her.

The Girl's Right

Irene is perfectly right about the necessity for skill in making up the lips, for lip rouge can either enhance or detract from a girl's loveliness. And color is a most important factor in the selection of proper lip make-up. Irene Dnnne claims that the purpose of all cosmetics is to emphasize Nature's own coloring, and since that is really so, lipstick should match the natural coloring of the lips perfectly. Of course, you may claim that your lips are practically colorless. But it's easy enough to determine the natural color of the lips. This color is occasioned by the blood showing through a transparent layer of skin. And if you simply bite your lips gently, the color will rise in them and will serve to guide you in your choice of a becoming lip rouge. What's more, so many lipstick manufacturers offer free samples of their products, that I don't see why girls don't do a bit of experimenting before actually choosing their lipstick shades, anyway.

If you do decide to do a bit of experimenting with different lipstick shades, however, there are several facts that it is well for you to bear in mind. First of all, always select the most normal colors in lipsticks. Do not, for instance, unless you are an extremely exotic type, invest in deep purples or unnatural mandarin shades. Your lipstick may be dark, medium or light, but it should always possess the same basic tones as your skin. Ordinarily, light and medium lip rouge are the most natural in appearance. Such lipsticks possess the yellow and reddish tones that appear in a youthful face. The darker and more purplish lipsticks are not as youthful, for purplish shades are the tones that appear in an aging face. Try always to have your lipstick match the natural coloring of your lips. However, if you can, select it from the more youthful colors, rather than the aging ones.

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Fish Chowder
Green Vegetable Salad
Peach Brownies Coffee

This is a very simple and nourishing meal—easy to prepare and good to eat. Try the peach brownie with fresh peaches when they are in season.

Today's Recipes

Fish Chowder—Fry out four slices salt pork cut in cubes. When light brown cut up four good-sized onions in small pieces and fry till light brown. If desired, butter may be used to saute the onions instead of salt pork. Use fillet of haddock or perch. If using haddock, two or three would be sufficient for a family of four. Boil fish three minutes in salt water. Drain fish, saving water. Cube four medium sized potatoes, add to fish water with diced carrots, onions and pork. Add fish and about one cup of milk. Season to taste. The amount of milk added depends on how thin you want the chowder.

Peach Brownies—Two cups flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, four teaspoons baking powder, four tablespoons shortening, one-half cup sugar, one egg, one-half cup milk, one No. 2 can peaches, drained. Sift together flour, salt and baking powder, work in shortening. Add sugar and mix to a dough with beaten egg and milk. Roll out on floured board, cut into rounds with large cutter, place two half peaches on each piece of dough to simulate whole fruit, pressing edges firmly so that wall will not burst. Fry in deep hot fat until golden brown about three minutes. Drain thoroughly, sprinkle with sugar and serve with a sauce made from canned peach syrup, slightly thickened with cornstarch. Serves eight.

A delicious lamb sandwich is made by spreading one slice of buttered bread with chili sauce, covering it with a buttered slice of bread, and on the second slice placing thin slices of roast lamb, covering this, too, with a buttered slice of bread.

HARRIS PLANS USE "LEFTIES" SIX IN A ROW

Line of Portsiders Will Enjoy Big Advantage Over Best Hurlers in Loop.

TOUGH JOB FOR BUCKY

SIX MEN who bat left-handed have a chance this year to set a baseball precedent. They are Myer, Manush, Stone, Travis, Kuhel and Bolton of the Senators. It is the plan of Bucky Harris, returning to his old post of managing the Senators, to use the half dozen who bat from the radical side of the plate one after another. It is his idea that since there aren't many great southpaw hurlers left in the American league, the succession of left-handed hitters will enjoy an advantage over the best pitchers in the circuit, most of whom are right-handed.

Starting his batting order with right-handed Jake Powell, a fast man who hit hard for Albany last year, Harris will follow with the six men named. Then will come another right-handed batter, either Lyn Lary or Red Kress, shortstop. When Whitehill, Stewart, Weaver or Burke is pitching, the batting order will contain seven left-handed batsmen. It is a noble experiment, and if it serves no other end, will attract attention to a ball club that dropped out of the picture last year after winning a championship in 1933. Washington's chief loss this year, of course, is Joe Cronin. His place at short will be taken by Lary or Kress, who cannot hope to measure up to his generous specifications afield or at bat.

HARRIS TAKES the job with other definite handicaps facing him, including a pitching staff that is certainly questionable. When Hadley, counted upon as ace, developed a crippled arm during spring training, trouble began in earnest. Hadley was dispatched to Chattanooga to undergo ministrations under the expert hands of Lee Jensen, specialist in glass arms. Harris figures on Whitehill, Weaver, Russell and Burke as starters (besides Hadley), with Stewart and Thomas in reserve. Russell has to prove he has regained effectiveness after a bad year, and Burke, with eight won and eight lost in 1934, still must demonstrate he is strong enough to take a regular turn.

Linke's arm went dead last summer. Has it returned to life? Petit, a new pitcher from Chattanooga, is counted upon heavily in view of his 16 victories from Chattanooga last year. He is a righthander with plenty of minor league experience. Will he click in the American? Henry Coppola, 20-year-old speedballer from Albany, has made such an impression that Clark Griffith, foxy pitcher in his own day on the diamond, has announced he will teach him personally. Washington is a first rate fielding aggregation with Kuhel at first, Myer second, Kress or Lary short and Travis, third. Outfielders, Schulte, Stone and Manush, pack experience and punch; Fred Sington, reformed Alabama footballer, and Powell are very promising. The catching is better than fair while Bolton is doing it, but the other two receivers—Holbrook and Redmond—are just in from the minors. Washington by no means figures to win a pennant this year. Their left-handed attack must prove its worth. There are important pitching doubts, shortstop is a question and the catching reserves certainly need schooling. Second division seems the answer.

Dodgers In Top Place

Philadelphia Athletics Drop Home-town Opener to Washington Senators.

INDIANS TRIUMPH 7-6.

By HERBERT W. BARKER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Brooklyn Dodgers, erstwhile daffiness boys of the National League, have put away such childish things as stealing already-occupied bases and cutting legitimate home runs to singles by failing to touch a base or two or passing another runner on the base-paths.

They're tending strictly to their baseball knitting, winning games by hard, timely slugging, especially by Danny Taylor, Linus Frey, Sam Leslie and Joe Stripp, and sharp, clean fielding marked by 12 double plays in seven games. Five of these have been won.

Ironically enough, the Dodgers' about-face has come under the leadership of Casey Stenge, himself no shrinking violet in his playing days, nor, for that matter, even now as the club's manager.

Great Welcome Home

A crowd of 30,000 welcomed Stengel's men to their home park yesterday and howled in glee as the Dodgers assailed four pitchers for 13 hits, trounced the Phillies 15-5 and took undisputed possession of first place. Home runs by Frey and Tony Cuccinnello contributed heavily to the Dodgers' two big scoring outbursts in the fourth and sixth when they scored 10 runs. Dolph Camilli's sixth homer and Johnny Moore's third brought the Phillies two runs in the second and two more came across in the third after which Emil (Dutch) Leonard called it a day. Bill Clark, who received credit for the victory and Dazzy Vance pitched effectively for the winners thereafter.

The world champion St. Louis Cardinals and New York Giants, meanwhile, moved up to take second and third places. The Cardinals walloped Chicago Cubs 9-5 behind Paul Dean's seven-hit pitching, while the Giants ruined Babe Ruth's home-coming by beating Boston Braves 6-5 in the 11th on Mel Ott's single. Ruth, making his first New York appearance in his Braves uniform, attracted 50,000 to the Polo Grounds, but failed to get a hit. Pittsburgh drove Tony Freitas out of the box in the sixth with a four-run assault and beat Cincinnati Reds 4-3.

Developments in the American League were marked by Boston Red Sox's sixth victory in seven starts, a 7-4 conquest of the hitless New York Yankees. Red Ruffing allowed only one hit in the first 2 1-3 innings, but had to retire because of a lame back. Johnny Murphy came in and was slugged for eight hits and all Boston's runs in the next three frames. A crowd of 20,500 saw the Red Sox home opener.

Big Blow for Indians.

Joe Vosmik's triple was the big blow in a ninth-inning rally that gave Cleveland Indians two runs and a 7-6 victory over St. Louis Browns that left the Indians in second place with four triumphs against one defeat. Chester Morgan, rookie outfielder of the champion Detroit Tigers, dropped fly with the bases filled and two out in the fourth, and Chicago White Sox went on to score five runs and win the ball game 7-2 behind Sam Jones effective pitching. Washington turned back Philadelphia Athletics 6-4 with a three-run rally in the eighth.

CINCINNATI REDS SURPRISE TEAM IN THE MAJOR LEAGUES

Jim Bottomley and Chick Haffey Leading Porktown Outfit Merry Chase.

"TOPS" SHOW FAIR FORM

NEW YORK, April 24.—Six days after the opening of the 1935 baseball season finds the major league races loaded with surprises, shocks and regrets.

The Cincinnati Reds, on paper, now among the leaders in National circuit were decidedly outclassed. They were supposed to continue being the "doormat" of the senior loop. But the Porktown outfit, managed by Charley Bressen and boasting only two veterans—Jim Bottomley and Chick Hafey—in its regular lineup, has thus far proved the big surprise of the league. Bottomley and Hafey, apparently caught by the spirit of the thing, have taken a new lease on life.

Ordinary Form.

The Giants, the Cardinals and the Cubs, selected by experts as the teams most capable of winning the 1935 bunting, have shown nothing more than ordinary form. The season, of course, is still quite young, but every game counts.

Babe Ruth, the "tottering old man," whose major league career as a hitter and fielder was supposed to be behind him, has stolen the major league show thus far. The former Yankee home run king has connected for two circuit clouts and has been chipping in with other base hits in the pennant drive of the Boston Braves.

The dismal showing of Chuck Klein, who was a great player with the Phillies has been a great shock to the Chicago Cubs. Klein failed miserably last year, his first with the Cubs, chiefly because of injuries, but he was supposed to be back in form this year. Klein has been benched in favor of a rookie.

The Cubs must also regret to a great extent their trading of Dolph Camilli to the Phillies. Camilli, who showed great promise when with Cubs, has already hit five home runs for the Quakers.

Directors of these competitions are: Russ Huggins, Gord Johnston, Ralph Johnston, Lorne Galley, Bob White, Stuart Laing, Art Stinson, Gord McIntyre, Vern Janeway and Lloyd Grose. There has been a big entry list and some keen competition to date, with prospects of a bangup finish Friday and Saturday.

New York Commission Insists On Forfeits

NEW YORK, April 24. —(AP)— The New York State Athletic Commission revived an old unwritten rule of the past today and announced that in the future contestants in championship and other major boxing bouts would be required to post cash weight and appearance forfeits.

With the explanation the Commission desires to protect the boxers themselves as well as the public, the boxing fathers served notice on Tony Canzoneri and Lou Ambers, who will meet May 10 in Madison Square Garden for Barney Ross's vacated lightweight championship, they are compelled to post $2,000 each to guarantee making the 135-pound limit and assure their appearance.

The same edict was handed out to Jimmy McLarnin and Ross, who will collide May 28 with McLarnin's welterweight crown at stake at 147 pounds. In the matter of heavyweights $2,500 forfeits must be posted to cover appearance only.

VICTORIA CAGERS COP 47-22 TRIUMPH IN FIRST OF SERIES

But Assumption Quintet Give Promise of Tough Battlers.

NEED BETTER TIMING.

VICTORIA, April 24—(CP)—Victoria's rangy, basket-tossing crew of blue ribbons today stood on the first rung of the ladder that leads to the Canadian men's senior amateur basketball crown. Right on their heels, however, came Assumption College quintet, undaunted by Ribbons' first game victory in the best-of-five series for Dominion honors.

Last night the Ribbons opened the series by outscoring their eastern opponent more than two-to-one and ran up a 47-22 triumph. But the easterners gave promise in their first showing here that with a little perfecting of their timing, probably affected by their long train journey here, they may overtake the champions of 1933 and reverse the verdict of three years ago when the Ribbons stepped into their first Canadian crown at the expense of another Windsor team.

Ribbons, who chalked up the first ponts of the game in the first minute of play and wound up with the last score in the final minute, were never outscored with the exception of the third quarter. Stepping easily through the first quarter to count eight points, the Ribbons boosted their point total to 20 in the second, were held to a mere five in the third quarter and ended with a burst of scoring that netted them 22 points in the final period.

SOCCER FORMS ARE DISTRIBUTED

At a special meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Club last evening, a communication was received from Drumbeller soccer club of Alberta requesting a game in the city on Saturday, June 22nd. After a lengthy discussion, it was agreed to pay the visiting club a stated amount to meet current expenses which would cover twenty-one players and officials. If the Alberta team agree to the terms stated, the game will be played on the Brinton ground. They travelled throughout the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec last season, and made a favorable impression.

Referee Registered.

Asa Downer, James Morgan and Albert Prick have been registered as official referees for the season.

The Canadian General representative intimated to the executive that the club are holding an organizing meeting to-night and couldn't state definitely what action would be contemplated for the current season.

The president, vice-president and secretary were instructed to interview the chairman of the Parks committee in reference to the dressing accommodation on King Edward Park, which is in an unsatisfactory condition to meet the requirements of the players.

James Isle was appointed the official representative of the C.C.F.

Forms Distributed.

The registration forms for the current season were distributed to the clubs. They can sign a many players as they desire but must deposit the registration fee before participating in the first official game.

There was no definite action taken about the official opposition for the Brinton first league scheduled game, until Monday, April 29th.

ALBANY EASY VICTIMS FOR BOONE SQUAD

Cal Chapman's Hitting Against Ed. Chapman's Hurling Features Day.

FINAL SCORE 10-5.

Porter and Bell Combine to Give Newark 3-2 Triumph Over Royals.

(By Associated Press.)

Although they started the season with little more than a hard-hitting outfield, Toronto Maple Leafs have surprised even their strongest supporters by setting the pace through the first week of the International League pennant race. ....

With practically no reserve strength the Leafs bore little resemblance to the team that finished third last year and then went to win the play-offs and represent the circuit in the Little World Series. They dropped their first game to Syracuse, but since then have won four straight from the Chiefs and Albany Senators.

In turning back the Senators 10-5 yesterday, Calvin Chapman, second baseman, led the attack on his cousin, Ed. Chapman, by banging out a home run and two singles. His homer with a man on came in the sixth inning and broke a 5-5 deadlock. Phil Cozad, new addition to the under-manned pitching staff, blanked the Senators after the fifth inning.

Combine for Newark Win.

Dick Porter, former major leaguer, and Fern Bell, rookie outfielder, combined to give Newark Bears a 3-2 triumph over Montreal Royals. Bell smacked a home run, his third of the season, in the eighth to put the Bears in running in the eighth and then Porter crashed through with a double to score Ed. Leishman and Nolen Richardson with the deciding tallies in the final frame.

Home Runs Count.

Baltimore Orioles rapped out three more home runs to bring their total for the season to 18 in defeating Rochester Red Wings 19-7. All the circuit blows came in the first inning, in which the Orioles scored six times, and were hit by Eddie Mayo, Woody Abernathy, and Roy Spencer. George Darrow handed the Red Wings 10 passes in the first 4 1-3 innings, but managed to steady with men on bases until relieved by Sheriff Blake in the fifth.

The Chiefs collected 17 assorted hits to defeat the Buffalo Bisons 16-3 behind the effective hurling of Bob Coombs. Johnny Watwood, Bob Graham, and Gordon Hinkle connected with three hits each, the former getting a home run. It was the first circuit drive of the season in the Syracuse Park.

Ruth's Return to Polo Grounds Labelled Artistic Bust

BASEBALL'S BIGGEST BARNUM SUFFERS FROM SEVERE COLD, GIANTS OPEN HOMETOWN SEASON

Practically Everyone But Bambino Clicks For Hits as Braves Beaten 6-5.

GETS FIRST ON WALK.

Notables of City and the Game Help Swell Crowd For 50,000 Gate Attendance.

[By EDWARD J. NEIL]

NEW YORK, April 24. (AP).—The ancient Babe Ruth rode the bases in the Polo Grounds again, with 50,000 cheering his return to the once green pastures of the Polo Grounds—but somebody else was hitting the home runs.

The return of Ruth as a member of the Boston Braves, planned as one of the baseball dramas of the day, was pretty much of an artistic bust, to put it baldly.

A band blared the way to the flag pole in centre and the Giants raised a flag in honor of the occasion and their first home game of the season. Mayor Fiorello Laguardia was there, Governor Hoffman of New Jersey, the Babe's old boss, Jake Rupert. Everyone was cheering for him, hoping for him.

So the unsolvable Bambino fooled everybody again but this time not the way they wanted to be fooled. He swung four times against the curves of fat Freo Fitzsimmons and Al Stout and he never once got the ball out of the infield. He trotted against the bases again, as he did so many times in the past, but he rode around ahead of Pinkey Whitney in the sixth when the Braves' third baseman hit a home run into the stands after the Babe had walked, only time he got on base.

"I was sick," growled the Babe, sicker still at heart. "I had a lousy cold and my leg hurt, I'll get many a belt here before I'm through."

For the first time in his 20 years of major league ball, it actually seemed as though the tenseness of the occasion got the big fellow. He was nervous, as the crowd—one of the biggest of the season—gave him one personal tribute after another, cheered every move he made on the practice field. He wouldn't sign score cards. He pleaded with the cameraman: 'Give me a break," and all around the crowd roared and roared him on.

But this time the Babe just couldn't do it. Everyone—portly Glanty Hogan Whitney, Buck Jordan, Dick Bartell, Bill Terry—seemed to be hitting home runs, but the Babe couldn't get a hold of one. He aided Terry greatly as the Giants' manager got his in the third by Babe's misjudging the drive, starting in, then racing back too late as the ball flew over his head and rolled into the farthest corner of right centerfield.

He made up for his early staggering around by backing up against the yellow frankfurter sign, 410 feet from the plate in deep center, to get Terry's bid for a homerun high above his head in the fifth.

STORY OF THESE NOSES

LONDON (CP) — The most remarkable horserace ever run in England occurred in the Royal Borough Handicap at Windsor in 1923 when three horses, Dinkie, Marvex and Dumas dead-heated for first place. Scrutiny of a photograph snapped at the finish failed to show a fraction of an inch separating the nose-tips of the three runners.

Torrid Summer

Speaking of baseball, here's sumpin! What is sauce for the goose is also an aspirin tablet for the gander. Other clubs have been doing practically the same thing.

Echoes of the opening game hardly have died away and yet Cincinnati has pulled the first triple play of the season.

Babe Ruth has cracked out two home runs for the Boston Braves.

Cy Blanton of the Pirates has hurled a one-hit game to defeat St. Louis, 1-0. Wes Ferrell and Bob Grove both have passed the first hurdle in their comeback attempts.

Both of the terrible Dean boys are in the win column and on their way to their glorious goal of 50 victories. Charley Gehringer, nosed out for the batting championship last season, is out in front of his celebrated rival, Lou Gehrig.

Everything is happening. What a torrid summer seems just ahead!

SPORTS
Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two.
DAY BY DAY

(By C. J. P.)

Speaking of lacrosse—well, let's start, then—here's a bit of squeaky music from Belleville that might be okay to play on a second-hand fiddle: "Bill Pry and Eddie Goodier returned from the annual meeting of the Ontario Lacrosse Association quite satisfied with their lot. The local delegates say that a meeting of all lacrosse clubs in Central Ontario will be called within two weeks. President Waghorne promised the local contingent every consideration in the matter of procuring a grouping. 'We understand that Peterborough intends operating an independent league from which they expect to pick one all-star team for O.A.L.A. playdown purposes. Well, you can rest assured that nothing of the sort will be tolerated,' stated Prexy Waghorne to Bill Pry."

• • • • • •

Pish, pish with a tush or two! We can't take this very seriously because (1) Waghorne's alleged crack is probably Misquote No. 7 of the week for our Belleville pal; (2) how come the O.A.L.A. took our entry fee last week if they wont tolerate such scandalous doings? (3) the prexy can't stop us from doing what other O.A.L.A. squads do; and (4) nertz to Waghorne if he did say it, and nertz to the Quinte delegates if he didn't. And hasn't it been lovely loitering around the streets the past few days?

• • • • • •

At least, we gather from the Belleville report that the O.A.L.A. moguls plan to meander down this way and do some missionary work in lacrosse. Very nice, indeed. But we wont refrain from shaving until that time as—judging from numerous and humorous past promises and performances by the same Waghorne-Dopp crew—we would have a right smart crop of alfalfa depriving the world of our pleasant features by the first snowfall. We are also interested to hear that the worthy prexy told the Belleville boys that all they needed last year to win out in Eastern Ontario was a good coach, Perhaps he added: "And quite a few good imports from Campbellford and Peterborough," but not very loud, of course. After all, why discourage a prospective entry?

• • • • • •

The veteran harness horse racer, Lou Bennett of Port Hope, is training his string of pacers and trotters at the local Exhibition Grounds again. 'Tis said he has stepped the mile in 2.30 with Ginger Grattan and Margaret Brewer. The 77-year-old gentleman is in fine health and as enthusiastic as ever over the summer races. A grand old gentleman, who always rides his own bike behind his horses, Mr. Bennett is one of the best known and most likeable turfmen in the Province.

• • • • • •

Bill Prindible has called a meeting of the East Peterborough Baseball League for Monday night at eight in Duffus'. Bill is E.P.L. prexy. While the general belief is that the loop won't operate this summer, still this session will be called to give prospective teams a chance to enter if they wish. Possibly, the E.P.L. could be organized once more to take in just district teams—with maybe one local entry—as it once was. With the C.G.E. and Raybestos teams entered in the Lakeshore League and other local squads saying they will not operate again, things don't look too dazzling for this intermediate circuit.

• • • • • •

And this from Oshawa: "Peterborough's East League is disbanding and two teams are going to join the Lakeshore League along with entries from Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville and Oshawa, to form one of the strongest six-team leagues ever assembled in this district. Orme Gamsby tells us there are going to be four teams in the junior Lakeshore League, too, Port Hope, Oshawa, Cobourg and Bowmanville. This should make a strong league, providing plenty of competition for the winners who, in the past, have never been able to capture Eastern Ontario honors. They might do much better this year." The local junior squad may join this loop, also.

• • • • • •

Art Young has been appointed manager of the Belleville senior ball club with Peeney Mills named as coach. It is possible that Peeney will again sign a playing certificate and get in the game from time to time. He's not as fast as he used to be but still a pretty fair receiver and a dangerous batter. With five new players in the Quinte town, the revamped Nationals expect to at least hold their own with the strengthened Peterborough, Oshawa and Kingston teams this summer. They start working out shortly.

• • • • • •

The racquet wielders at the Peterborough Lawn Bowling and Tennis Club are bestirring themselves now and expect to get into action in a week or so. The tennis section of the club will handle its own business this year with separate officers. Already, a number of prospective members have been communicated with and it looks like a larger number than previously will be strutting their stuff on the courts this season. The courts are being put in fine shape by an experienced man and will be ready any day now. Those thinking of joining up should get in touch with Max Cotton, 208 Reid street, phone 1693. The Peterborough Club will likely have two or three teams again in the Kawartha League and also hopes to stage more invitation tournaments.

INTRODUCE DELAYED PENALTY TO CANADIAN HOCKEY RULES

President Gilroy Favors Pro System—Will Enforce Branch Residence Rule.

PRESENT PLAN WEAK.

WINNIPEG April 24. — "If they did nothing else the final playdown games in the Allan Cup series firmly convinced me that the amateur hockey rules are weakened by not adopting a delayed penalty rule. So impressed am I by the value of the delayed penalty rule to both the public and the teams that I will introduce a covering notice of motion of a change at the next meeting" declared E. A. Gilroy president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association who returned yesterday from the east over Canadian National Lines.

"I hold no brief for either team in Royals-Wolverines semi-final but as a result of referee rulings during one of the games the Royals were playing three men against Halifax five. The Halifax team ganged up on their opponents and ran in two goals.

"The effect of having two or three men in the penalty box because of rule infractions is demoralizing to a team and certainly is not appreciated by the hockey public. Fans do not pay good money to see a team play three men against five or six.

Demonstrated at Halifax

"Just because there happens to be a couple of minor fouls by one team it makes a poor game and I am absolutely convinced of the value of the delayed penalty system whereby no team could play with less than four or five, as decided upon by the C.A.H.A. It was clearly demonstrated at Halifax that the delayed penalty rule should be in the amateur hockey code.

"Insofar as the residence rule is concerned, we clarified it in the book and fair warning is issued that no transgressing will be allowed. The rule will be absolutely lived up to and enforced. Players who left their branches last year too late to participate in the season just closed will be O.K. to play in their new branch next Winter, providing they have continued to reside in that new branch and not again changed their residence. But we give fair warning to all that the residence rule is in the book and will be rigidly enforced," emphatically declared Mr. Gilroy.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!
By ALEX J. MORRISON

Two of the best golf fans I know are Mrs. Fred Stone and her lovely daughter, Carol.

When Mrs. Stone first took up the game the whole family, including Fred and the other daughters, Dorothy and Paula, engaged in a putting contest. Carol, the youngest, kept score. Near the end of the contest she cried, "Hurray — mother's winning — she has the highest score."

Judging from results there are many players who must think that the high instead of the low score wins. No? Then tell me why they go on, year after year, turning in higher scores?

The only answer I can give is this—most players kid themselves into thinking that they are improving. An occasional good score may give you something to talk about, but it doesn't mean that your average is improving. It's lowering your average that counts.

Number 594

Leading manufacturers of golf balls are coming out this season with much improved products. They are giving more attention to distance.

In the past the cheaper balls didn't give the good player the distance he felt entitled to. Many good players have had to economize.

One firm now has a ball selling for 50 cents that will give you practically the same distance as the 75-cent ball.

Long drivers will get a big kick out of the new tightly-wound balls. They have an advantage over last year's ball in that they get away from the clubface quicker. They feel lighter when you hit them and they go a mile when you hit them clean. The 1935 balls are a marked improvement and worth trying.

PLAYER PLAINTIFF, ACTION FOR $4,550

Albert Hughes Claims He Negotiated St. Louis Franchise Purchase.

TORONTO, April 24. — Albert Hughes, professional hockey player, is plaintiff in an action against Frank Wainwright, who, he alleged, owns the St. Louis Hockey Club and a franchise in the American Association Hockey League, for $4,550 and interest or damages and costs.

Hughes set forth in his statement of claim that in November, 1933, when he was playing on the St. Louis team, Wainwright, hearing that the club franchise was for sale, made an agreement with him that he was to negotiate for the purchase of the St. Louis franchise for Wainwright and if he succeeded Wainwright was to pay him $5,000 and that he would engage him to form a team and manage it.

Hughes claimed that he carried out his part of the agreement and formed a team and played on it in 1933-34 and got his salary, but that he has only received $450 on the $5 000.

Wainwright, in his defence, denied that he entered into such an agreement with Hughes. He stated he is not the owner of the St. Louis franchise, denied promising him $5,000 and denied he engaged plaintiff to form or manage a team. He says he was the manager of the team and engaged Hughes only as a trainer on salary.

Because of the absence of Wainwright the case was adjourned to May 7.

TORONTO, April 24.—A dream of many years of golfing executives and enthusiasts in Canada became a reality yesterday when the Canadian amateur golf team assembled at the Lambton Club preparatory to sailing for Great Britain on Thursday from New York on the Empress of Australia. GYPSY GIRL

by McDONALD FEADER

FICTION

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance with all the world at her feet, is loved by the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu. She despises her mother, Anica, but is fond of her father, Girtza. Marcu tempts Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him. Just as Girtza notices Consuelo's ring, which she tells him she has stolen, the sheriff appears. He proceeds to haul the gypsies into court but Consuelo is no longer wearing the ring. When the judge's wife and another woman search her, Consuelo fights them savagely. Meantime Marcu comes into the courtroom and announces he bought the ring.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 9

Marcu drew a slip of paper from his shirt and handed it to the judge.

The judge looked it over and then again asked the sheriff how big the stone was. George demonstrated by the size of his thumb nail and the judge nodded. He addressed Consuelo.

"Young lady, we must have the ring to prove that it is the same as this man bought." He quieted her look of suspicion. "You may have it back as soon as this man proves it to be the same he bought," he said craftily.

Consuelo turned to Marcu, her eyes wide with question.

"Did you actually buy the ring?" she asked in the language of the gypsies.

"Yes, for you," he answered in the same.

She was still puzzled.

"I can have it back?" she asked the judge.

He nodded.

The frown deepened on her face. Somehow it didn't seem right, but if Marcu was lying he'd have to be clever enough to carry it through. Just for an instant a thrill raced through her. How grand and big he looked standing there like a king and telling the judge what to do. Trust him. Trust him. He was her man.

She reached up under the wide wedding skirt and, utterly unconscious of the necks that craned forward, untied the string that held her bloomers in place and slipped the diamond from it. For a moment she held the cherished ring in her hand and all the fire of her soul crept out in response to the beauty of it.

"Hand it to me, girl," the judge broke in upon her thoughts.

Consuelo looked up, the ring clasped between her hands.

"Honest, you'll give it back?"

The judge nodded, a smirk on his red face. With a sigh the girl handed him the ring. Eagerly the man examined it. The stone was worth a couple of thousand dollars if a dime!

"You say you bought this ring?" he asked again.

"Yes, didn't I show you I paid for it?" Marcu was becoming impatient. He did not like the feeling of the court room.

The judge rose to his feet.

"Sheriff, arrest that man!"

The sheriff leaped forward and before Marcu realized what had happened a pair of handcuffs were on his wrists. The color of his face seemed to darken, his black eyes glared up at the judge.

"What do you mean by this? I paid for that ring!"

A contemptuous snort issued from the judge's lips. He picked up the slip of paper Marcu had given him and tore it into bits.

"In the first place, no gypsy would have a receipt, and in the second place, it is ridiculous! You might as well tell me from who you stole it. We'll get it out of you eventually, do you understand?"

"We certainly will," George echoed.

Marcu's lips curled.

"Go get the little man on the side street that owns the jewelry store," he sneered.

"You mean Abraham Dakis? You stole this ring from Abraham Dakis?"

"Go get him and see if I did," was the terse reply.

The clerk rushed from the room. The excitement grew tense. The court room was a babble of wild conjectures.

Through the noise Consuelo's voice reached him.

"I do not understand all this. But now is the time I must tell you I love you. Remember that, my dear one."

"Consuelo!" His voice was a sob. "Consuelo, my adored!" He made to go to her, but the sheriff's gun was in his ribs. "My adored, my precious one! I would come to you and take you in my arms and kiss your sweet lips but this dog has a gun."

"Keep your mouth shut with that gypsy lingo!"

A few minutes later Abraham Dakis appeared in the court room, his round face flushed. Through his near-sighted eyes, the gypsies and the judge were blurred. He followed the clerk up front and focused his eyes on the judge.

"I've been robbed! The clerk says I have! Oi! Oi!"

"Well, you needn't worry, we have the thief and the diamond in our possession," the judge assured him with unconcealed pride. He pointed to Marcu. "That is the man who robbed your store!"

Darkis stepped close to Marcu and for several seconds scrutinized the dark face. The fright left his eyes.

"Why, it is mine gypsy friend," he said in surprise.

"Didn't I buy the ring from you?" Marcu demanded.

"Yes, yes, you did."

The astonished judge leaned forward.

"Mr. Dakis, have you lost your wits? How could that gypsy buy a diamond ring from you?"

Dakis grinned.

"Let me see that ring." He took the ring from the judge and examined it through his near-sighted eyes.

"Yes, yes, it's the same. The gypsy he bought it."

The judge mopped his brown and shook his head with amazement.

"Let me get this straight. You say that fellow bought the ring?" Dakis nodded. "Well, then the gypsy shows me a receipt for twelve dollars and sixty cents—"

"Yep, that's right."

"Are you in your right mind, Mr. Dakis?"

The grin broadened on the little man's face. He gave the ring into the dark, handcuffed hands of Marcu. He turned to the judge.

"You see, judge, the gypsy he come to rob me, but I don't want something awful. In court like this I admit it ain't worth even twelve dollars and sixty cents. It ain't worth a dollar even—wholesale I pay four bits. I'm clever, oh, I'm clever! I make twelve dollars off it when the ring ain't worth nothing—it ain't real—it's only a hunk of glass!" He doubled up with laughter.

There was a wild scream from Consuelo.

"A piece of glass!" she shrieked at Marcu. "You skunk, you dog, you tricked me! A real diamond! You liar! You rat! You beast!" She sprang at him, her finger nails digging into his face. "Twelve dollars and sixty cents! Ah, dog, I'll kill you! A real diamond! Liar! I'll tear out your lying heart! I'll kill you!" She tore at his face, his hair, his throat.

Marcu tried to shake her off, but his shackled hands were useless. She clung to him screaming guttural epithets, her nails digging into his flesh, her fists pounding at his face.

Girtza and the sheriff grabbed the flying fists. The crowd joined in. The judge banged upon his desk. Women were screaming. The men were yelling.

Kicking and shrieking, Consuelo was dragged from Marcu and her arms pinioned behind her. Her mad fury subsided as quickly as it had sprung up. She turned blindly to her father. Sobs choked the words she might have said to him. As they released her, she flung herself into his arms and buried her face against his bright jacket, her body trembling violently.

PORT ERIE, Ont., April 23 (C.P.).—While digging a garden at Erie Beach, Frank Walker found a stone Indian tomahawk in perfect state of preservation. It is believed to have been dropped by one of the Indian braves under Chief Pontiac, who helped to build old Fort Erie when Colonel John Montresser founded it more than a century and a half ago.

Three Are Injured At N.S. House Fire

WEDGEPORT, N.S., April 24 (C.P.)—Three persons are suffering from injuries, two serious, while the home of Vincent Richards is levelled to the ground and a loss of approximately $3,000 is being counted.

Fire broke out in the attic of the home. As it reached the brick chimney there was a dull explosion and pieces of brick and mortar shot into the street.

Captain Walter Doucette, watching the fire was struck on the leg by a sharp piece of brick and seriously injured. Force of the explosion was so great Mrs. Richards, in a room downstairs was knocked to the floor. She is suffering from shock.

Bystanders rushed to the aid of Captain Doucette and a youth was despatched on a bicycle to the home of Dr. O'Brien. Pedalling down the street at full speed the youth struck Mr. Ardelle Ameriault. Mrs. Ameriault was rendered unconscious.

Custed Philadelphia Woman Enlists Huey Long's Aid To Rebuild Her Home

PHILADELPHIA, April 24 (A.P.).—Support of Louisiana's "Kingfish," United States Senator Huey P. Long, was claimed to-day by Mrs. Nana Scott in her battle to prevent the city from razing her home.

On Long's advice, she said she will seek a permit to build a new house around the single ground-floor room—minus one wall—that remains of her old home.

"Huey Long is going to help me," she asserted in announcing her latest plans. "When he spoke in Philadelphia, I wrote him about how the city tore down my house. Then I wrote him another letter at Washington and told him I wanted to rebuild the place but the city might try to refuse me a permit. He answered and told me to apply for the permit and if anybody tried to stop me, he'd see personally that I got the permit."

Mrs. Scott has fought for two years against ejection from her home.

The property was condemned for a street-widening project and she was awarded $25,000 in damages, half in city bonds. She didn't want bonds, and slept in a city-dug ditch outside her home in her efforts to halt the work.

She was out-manoeuvred, however, and the street was widened after most of her home was taken down.

PROBE IN LINDSAY PROVES STARTLING

Man is Arrested For Indecent Assault—Number of Girls Involved.

LINDSAY, April 24.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— A condition of gross immorality has been unearthed by Chief Lawler after quietly investigating reports which reached police headquarters a few days ago. A number of 'teen age girls, it is announced, have been involved in the disclosures. Action on the part of the Chief culminated in the arrest of a middle-aged man, a former resident of Peterborough, who, it is said, made certain startling statements to the police relative to the conduct of the girls. A serious charge was preferred against him, but it was later reduced to indecent assault. He was remanded on bail of $2,000. The police are continuing their investigations.

It is announced that Major Hilton Brown, of the Victoria-Haliburton Regiment, is shortly to be gazetted officer commanding the regiment, with the rank of colonel. He will succeed Col. R. I. Moore.

Mr. John Castle, formerly of Peterborough, and head of the Castle Motor Company, which recently purchased the old Cole Brass Co. plant, appeared before the town council last night, asking that body that they supply credit for the firm in the Bank of Montreal to the extent of $10,000, in return for which the firm wouuld put the plant in full operation on some very substantial orders. He further asked that a local executive be appointed to control the expenditure.

A committee was named to investigate the proposition.

Predict Red Gains In French Election

PARIS, April 24.—(C.P.-Havas)—Many changes will take place in the political complexions of French city governments when 11,500,000 voters elect more than 450,000 local councillors on May 5, but the general trend of France's political currents will be little changed, experience observers forecast today.

It was predicted the Communists would be the chief gainers by the new elections, though such gains probably would not be enough to give them much strength. They control only two per cent of the Communities of France, but with the support of the Socialists, who are working with them in a common front, they probably will pick up some new support.

The general opinion is the Socialists may lose a little, and the general complexion of the country's government will not change, the Centrist parties remaining in power though grouped slightly differently.

SEEK RECOVERY OF FIRM'S LOSS

Case Before Mr. Justice Kelly Arises Out of an Alleged Embezzlement.

SUING FOR $4,309.93.

Trial of an action by the Canadian Woodmen of the World, an insurance fraternity with headquarters in London, Ontario, against the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company, Toronto, was begun before Mr. Justice Kelly as the non-jury sitting of the Supreme Court opened here yesterday afternoon.

Represented by G. N. Gordon, K.C., the insurance organization is seeking performance of the agreements of a bonding contract it had with the Guaranty Company regarding one of the firm's Montreal employees who is alleged to have embezzled $3,509.93. This sum is being sought, also $800 alleged to have been spent on the prosecution of the defaulting employee, Pasquale De Lisio. T. N. Phelan, K.C., of Toronto, is acting for the defendants.

The defendants maintain that the Woodmen of the World failed to adhere to the conditions of the bonding contract, failing to give notice of the affair within the time required by the contract. They claim further that they are not liable for the sum of the loss, the organization having proved no fraud on De Lisio's part. De Lisio was acquitted when charged with the embezzlement in a Montreal court.

Two witnesses had been called to the box before court adjourned yesterday afternoon, Colonel A. E. Kirkpatrick of Toronto, Canadian manager of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company, served at length in the identification of the correspondence which passed between the various parties interested in the matter. Correspondence going as far back as the date on which the guaranty bond took effect, December 17, 1929, was submitted as exhibits. The written bonding contract was identified by Col. Kirkpatrck and entered.

Jonathan Robinson who served the Woodmen of the World as private prosecutor against De Lisio when he was tried in Montreal was questioned extensively regarding the circumstances of De Lisio's prosecution. De Lisio was charged with having misappropriated the funds previous to July, 1931, he said. In reply to Mr. Phelan, he asserted that the principal reason for De Lisio's acquittal was the fact that it was revealed to the court that De Lisio had been re-insated in the Woodmen of the World company.

Palmer severed an artery while cutting timber on his farm. Bleeding and helpless he scribbled a note, fastened it to the dog's collar, and ordered: "Take this to Moran's place, Jack." Jack scampered away to the home of A. Moran, more than a mile away. Moran read the note and came to Palmer's assistance before he bled to death.

50TH BIRTHDAY COMES SUNDAY FOR PRISONER

Guards on Death Watch Will Play Part of Guests at Event.

CAKE TO BE PROVIDED.

Final Word on Doom Expected First of Week—Start Scaffold Monday.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 25.—(CP)—Harold W. Vermilyea, sentenced to die one week from today for the murder of his mother, Mrs. Aurelia Vermilyea, will celebrate his 50th birthday at the county jail next Sunday. The jail officials have arranged to purchase a birthday cake for the prisoner and the condemned man will share his present with the guards who have constant watch over him since the death sentence was passed by Mr. Justice Nichol Jeffrey Feb. 26.

As the day of the execution draws nearer there does not seem to be any appreciable difference in the attitude of the prisoner to his fate. He continues his daily exercises in a vigorous manner and it is understood he has added seven pound to his weight, his diet being chiefly vegetables and salads. His physical condition is excellent.

He spends much of his day lolling about the cells and playing solitaire, with considerable reading thrown in, the only things denied him in the reading line being the current newspapers. At least five cigars are smoked a day.

Vermilyea seems buoyed up by the efforts being made by his counsel, Col. R. H. Greer, K.C., of Toronto and Charles A. Payne, K.C., of this city for executive clemency but should they fail, he is resigned to his fate.

It is not expected any word respecting the carrying out of the sentence will be received before the first of next week and preparations for the building of the scaffold will likely begin next Monday.

GEORGE SHERRY DIES SUDDENLY

Was For 25 Years Local Registrar of Supreme Court—Clerk of County Court.

52 YEARS A LAWYER.

George J. Sherry, K.C., who was recently retired after twenty-five years' service as local registrar of the Supreme Court of Ontario; clerk of the County Court; and registrar of the Surrogate Court passed away late last night following a brief illness.

A venerable and dignified figure, Mr. Sherry was in a comparatively good state of health as recently as last Saturday evening when he suffered a heart attack, from which it is stated, he failed to rally. Earlier on Saturday he was out and about as was his usual custom.

Over eighty years of age, the late Mr. Sherry received his appointment as registrar on October 26, 1909 shorty after the late Judge E. C. S. Huycke was elevated to the bench of Peterborough County.

Graduating from Osgoode Hall in 1883, he was called to the Bar in the same year and practised law in Belleville and Norwood before succeeding to his late appointment formerly held by the late John Maloney.

The late Mr. Sherry was appointed King's Counsel on June 3, 1933.

As President of Peterborough Law Association, Wilfred F. Huycke stated, that he much regretted the death of Mr. Sherry. "I would like to state that during the term of his office he proved to be an able and efficient officer. He had the deepest respect and esteem of the legal fraternity and was widely regarded as one of the most able officials in the province."

From his personal contacts with Mr. Sherry over a period of years Mr Huycke added, "I can speak in the highest terms of the value of the assistance I received from him during the time it was my pleasure

GENERAL STRIKE IN VANCOUVER SET FOR FRIDAY

Mayor McGeer Blames Ineffective Handling of Relief By Ottawa.

18 RIOTERS ARRESTED.

VANCOUVER, April 25. (CP).—Threats of a general strike in Vancouver for one hour Friday were added to-day to the aftermath of rioting, arrests and reading of the Riot Act by Mayor G. G. McGreer.

A sequel to Tuesday's disturbances came in a clash between Mayor McGreer and Sir George Perley, acting prime Minister. In a telegram to Ottawa, Mayor McGreer declared the Dominion Government's "ineffective policy of administering the unemployment situation" caused the disturbance. The acting Prime Minster denied the charge.

While 18 men arrested during the rioting awaited arraignment on charges of vagrancy, assault and malicious damage, a delegation from the relief strikers vainly sought aid from a session of the city council. The council refused to hear their demands, but Arthur H. Evans, delegation leader, warned of the general strike.

"Trade unions of Vancouver have been invited to hold special meetings to consider plans for a general strike in protest against government inaction on the camp situation" Evans declared. He said the strike was being planned for Friday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock.

HEPBURN VISITS JOBLESS' HOMES

Croll, Roebuck, Nixon Accompany Premier on Tour of Inspection.

PROMISE MADE MARCHERS.

TORONTO, April 25.—(CP).—In accordance with his promise given "hunger marchers" who visited the Legislative Buildings at the first of the month Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario visited homes of unemployed in Scarboro and East York districts to-day. With him went Attorney-General A. W. Roebuck, Minister of Welfare David Croll and Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon.

The Premier said he desired to shield the families of the unemployed from any adverse publicity attending on the tour and explained the government wanted to do as much as possible for relief recipients without making them feel their position unduly.

One house, Mr. Roebuck said, "plainly had very little food to spare."

"I was told by one women," he said, "relief rations were insufficient unless supplemented." The "supplementary" food, he explained, was obtained with money received for occasional work.

REV. RAHARD IS FOUND GUILTY OF BLASPHEMY

Ordered to Pay Fine of $100 By Chief Justice Perrault.

TO APPEAL JUDGMENT.

Charged With Blasphemous Libel Against Roman Catholic Church.

MONTREAL, April 25 (CP) — A judgment handed down to-day by Chief Judge Gustave Perrault declared Rev. Victor Rahard, pastor of the French-Anglican Church of the Redeemer here, guilty of blasphemous libel and condemned him to pay a fine of $100.

Rahard was arrested on a warrant of the Provincial Police charging blasphemous libel against the Roman Catholic Church through the wording of placards placed outside his church on Sherbrooke street east. City police also laid charges against him for violating municipal laws regarding the placing of posters in the street. Recorder Aime Leblanc, however, dismissed all six counts against him in connection with the city bylaws.

Chief plea of Rahard, in defence, was the placards contained no offensive language and he had said nothing against the Roman Catholic Church not embraced by the Anglican Creed. The Crown had maintained the statements of the placards were indecent and scurrilous writings and a blasphemy calculated to offend people professing the Roman Catholic faith.

Notice of appeal was given by defence counsel following sentence. The placard complained of was published in the east end of Montreal, frequented principally by French-Canadian Roman Catholics and was given added force and authority by

THIEVES ENTER TWO GARAGES

Service Stations on McDonnel Street Entered During the Night.

SECOND TIME THIS WEEK.

"The whole trouble is that we are not getting adequate police protection in this part of the city. We are paying our taxes the same as other business men and we are not receiving the service to which we are entitled. I am not blaming the police department as I realise they are doing their best under existing conditions, but I do maintain that the force should be enlarged." Richard H. Dawson, service station operator, complained to The Examined to-day.

Mr. Dawson, whose place of business is at Reid and McDonnel streets, was one of two service station operators in that section of the city who was victimized by burglars last night. The other service station that was broken into was Foley and Wilson's garage on the opposite corner — twice victimized within little over a week.

Glass in Door Broken

Reaching his garage at about seven o'clock this morning, Mr. Dawson stated he found that entry had been gained by thieves through the night. Q.E.A. OPPOSES TAX DEMANDS

Grey Official Contends Separate Schools Forced on Ontario By Quebec.

WANT NATIONAL SYSTEM.

TORONTO, April .. (CP).—A resolution expressing disapproval of the Separate School's request for corporation taxes was unanimously passed to-day by the Trustees and Ratepayers section of the Ontario Education association. The section also asked profits from war munitions be prohibited.

W. J. Miller, Grey county, contended separate schools were "forced" on Ontario by Quebec under the Act of 1863. "What we want," he said, "Is a national system. The Quebec system in regard to corporation taxes is not applicable here."

He quoted figures in an effort to show public school grants had declined whereas those given to separate schools had increased.

The section adopted the separate schools resolution without further discussion and it will be sent to the provincial convention.

Delegates also went on record as in favor of compulsory teaching of music and singing.

SUSPECT FREED GOLD BAR THEFT

Two Others Face Trial in London For Burglary Involving $100,000.

TAXIMAN GIVES CLUE.

LONDON, April 25 (C.P. Cable).—The trial of three men alleged to have stolen gold bars worth $100,000 from the Croydon Airport in March opened to-day in the Croydon Quarter Sessions, and before the first day was over the jury had found John O'Brien, 74, not guilty. He was discharged.

The two other accused are Cecil Swanland, 47, an artist, and Silvio Mazzarelli, aged 38, commission agent. O'Brien described himself as a "dealer."

Graham Brooke the prosecutor described the crime as very cleverly planned and cleverly carried out. A taxi-driver in North London had been roused in the early hours and had picked up four men at King's Cross Station, at 4 a.m. He drove them to a spot near the airport.

Later a small and dilapidated car drove up, and the men transferred three bags from it to the taxi-cab which drove them to a house in North London where Swanland has rooms. The gold had been taken almost miraculously from a guarded strongroom.

NAZIS BRANDED PEACE SPOILERS BY MACDONALD

Actions Have Roused Suspicions of Continent, Premier's Article Charges.

ASKING TOO MUCH.

Claims High Germans Not Even Giving Lip Service to Cause of Stability.

LONDON, April 25—(AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay Macdonald, in one of the strongest indictments of Hitlerite Germany ever made by a member of the British government, accused that nation today of destroying European confidence in the outlook for continued peace. The prime minister, in an article written for "News Letter," National Labor organ, charged the Reich with "besetting the road to peace with terrors."

The article said there are Nazis in high authority who are not even giving lip service to the cause of European stability. "Germany has acted in such a way as to destroy the feeling of mutual confidence in Europe," Macdonald wrote. "It asks other nations to accept verbal pledge of pacific intention which it would not accept from its neighbors.

"Other nations cannot be pacified by such assurance and can show ample justification for their refusal.

"Germany has not won the honor and sympathy which it sought," the article said.

"It has aroused the suspicion of practically every nation in Europe. I do not believe any German can honestly feel surprised that the conduct of his government has been dealt with with prejudice when the council of the League of Nations expressed apprehensiveness and misapprobation.

Leaving Honor Out

"Leaving the 'honor' argument out of the count for the moment," the Prime Minister wrote in another section of his attack. "How can it profess to be blind to the effect which its colossal armaments must have on the sense of security of other nations?"

"The most secure nation in the whole of Europe until it aroused suspicions and fears against itself was Germany.

"The people are asking far too much of those who understand them best and sympathize with them most when they claim that both their objects and their methods should be accepted without a tremor of fear or a shadow of suspicion, or that the suggestion for security which they rejected at Berlin and the ominous revelations made of their ultimate intentions and the spirit animating them do not overcast with suspicions the pledges they have been giving of a desire to assure the peace of Europe."

The article concluded by asking, "Will the German Government prove its pacific intentions by declaring at once that it is prepared to take its part of carrying the Stresa resolutions into effect?"

Tenders Are Called For Three Bridges

The projected bridges on No. 7 highway over the Otonabee, Indian and Ouse Rivers have finally reached the stage at which the Ontario Department of Highways is calling for tenders.

The Department's advertisement was published this morning calling for bids on these bridges and a fourth one at Etobicoke. Plans may be obtained from J. Sears, Port Hope, S. A. Robbins, Toronto, engineers; or R. M. Smith, Deputy Minister.

The Locks bridge contract will be only for the concrete work, indicating the government's intention to erect here one of the bridges over the old Welland canal. Tenders will be received up on noon on Friday, May 10.

DAIRY INDUSTRY THREATENED BY PROPOSED LEVY

New British Quota For Dairy Imports Discussed by H. B. Cowan.

CONFERENCE SUGGESTED.

A proposed British levy on dairy imports is regarded by H. B. Cowan as a threat to Canadian producers and especially to the cheese industry.

Referring to his address in Toronto on Tuesday to the Ontario Milk Producers' Association, Mr. Cowan said that the Empire trade agreements expire in July.

"The dairy producers of Great Britain are organized in one gigantic pool, and their milk marketing board manufactures all surplus milk into byproducts such as cheese, condensed and powdered milk and butter. The British pool has been successful in obtaining for producers a higher price for milk with the result that there has been a very large increase in milk production throughout the Old Country, and a steadily increasing quanity has had to be manufactured into the lower-priced byproducts.

Quota Proposed.

The British producer has been

SEWER PROJECT READY.

Jobs Still Open—Mob Leader Proposes Parade on Welland.

CROWLAND, Ont., April 25.—(C P)—The "deadline" in the Crowland relief strike passed at 1.30 today with Inspector Chris Airey of the Provincial Police and Frank Haslam, strike leader, shaking hands.

There was no sign of disturbance, although 300 strikers and sympathizers, grouped around the Ukrainian Hall, booed and cheer as 32 police marched to the Beatrice street sewer project.

No one went to work, although police were ready to protect anyone desiring to work on the relief project.

Haslam directed the strikers to mass themselves about the hall which he said was private property.

Tom Disher, township road foreman, asked the crowd if anyone wanted to go to work. There came criesof "No."

Inspector Airey addressing Haslem, said he had not come to "fight" the strikers.

"If anyone wants to work we will protect them," said the inspector. "If no one wants to work we will just have an enjoyable afternoon."

Haslam, talking to the crowd, said, "We want to work but want to know what we are going to work for."

Officers Carry Clubs Only

While the police, carrying only night clubs stood by, a hundred children milled about in the crowd and took up a chant:

"The cops are having a hell of a time

"Chasing us out of the picket line."

Just before the police departed, Tom Disher, Crowland Township road superintendent, announced if any one wished to return to work the jobs would be available to-mor-

Democrats Predict American Figure Will Soar to $1.29 an Ounce

WASHINGTON, April 25. — (AP) — Happy over the new boost in the treasury price for newly mined domestic silver, Democratic leaders of the United States Senate silver bloc today predicted the figure would go to $1.29 an ounce, the statutory coinage value.

"It simply means silver is on its way to $1.29. What I want to see is silver fixed at a definite ratio with gold," declared Senator Burton Wheeler of Montana.

"I am going to continue my fight to remonetize at 16 to 1. That would be $2.18 an ounce for silver at the present price of gold."

Senator King (D.-Utah) said he looked for silver "to supplement, if it doesn't take the place of gold."

"We will soon have the bi-metallic standard in all nations," he said. "Our country is leading the way back to bi-metalism."

Senator Adams (D.-Colo.) said if the government program of buying is carried out, "We will have silver at $1 of not $1.29."

Their comments were occasioned by a presidential proclamation last night boosting the price for newly mined domestic silver more than six cents to 77.57 cents an ounce. This followed a new spurt in the

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Selling increased on the Montreal Dairy and Produce Market yesterday and butter and cheese quotations were slightly lower than Tuesday. Eggs firmed narrowly and potatoes held unchanged.

No. 1 regraded butter was generally 24½c a pound for carlots or less while No. 1 fresh brought 23¾c. Small lots to retailers were 25c a pound for solids and 26c for prints. Receipts were 259 boxes.

On the egg market graded shipments in carlots or less were quoted at 19c to 19½c a dozen for A-large, 17c to 17½c for A-medium or B and 16c to 16½c for C. Receipts amounted to 1,721 cases.

Cheese prices were 11c to 11½c a pound for current No. 1 Ontario and 12½c to 12¾c for summers, down a half cent on the former and unchanged on the latter. There were no offerings.

Potatoes held at Tuesday's declines, No. 1 Green Mountains bringing 58c per 80-pound bag for Prince Edward Islands, 55c for New Brunswicks and 50c for Quebecs.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Possibilities of severe immediate downward plunges of prices went hand-in-hand yesterday with a $6,000,000 bankruptcy petition of the Rosenbaum Grain Corporation.

Legal difficulties, temporarily resulting from the Rosenbaum petition, however, made business on either the Chicago Board of Trade or the Kansas City Grain Exchange impracticable for the time being, and excitement was confined to a brief period at Minneapolis, where dealings were unrestricted, but were lacking in volume. With tension greatly minimized last night by clearing up of trade procedure in regard to the Rosenbaum Corporation's pending contracts, definite announcement was made that the Chicago Board of Trade will resume business to-day at the usual hour.

After a maximum tumble of 1⅞ cents a bushel, wheat in Minneapolis recovered in part, and closed ⅞c to 1⅛c under Tuesday's finish, May, $1.10.

Completely halted because of intricacies of the Rosenbaum Corporation's huge grain interests, Chicago and Kansas City Board of Trade members did no business yesterday either in cash dealings or in futures. Before the ordinary time for the start of trading, formal notice was read from the Chicago Board of Trade rostrum that no dealings would be sanctioned until court orders outstanding had been clarified. The notice was received quietly by hundreds of brokers crowded into a dense mass on the exchange floor below the gallery where the announcement was made.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 25. — Foreign wheat importers entered the market for the first time in days yesterday to take advantage of lower prices, their purchases stemming a panicky rush to dispose of futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Wheat prices closed ⅞c to ¾c lower; May at 87¾c and July 88¾c after being down ⅝c earlier when huge quantities of wheat were dumped into the market following failure of the Chicago Board of Trade to open.

Chicago's closure announcement created extreme nervousness among local traders. Heavy selling entered a pit bare of support until export interests entered the market at the low levels and caused prices to recover half their extreme loss.

Yesterday's foreign sales of Canadian wheat were estimated at 500,000 bushels, the best day's business in nearly a week. Coupled with this support was good buying from an unknown source.

Trading was the most active in some time, with futures prices fluctuating widely for most of the day. Liverpool's 1½d decline also was a bearish factor, as were forecasts for showers over the dry United States South-west.

Cash grains, unaffected by the activity in futures, closed unchanged. Coarse grains futures were liquidated in sympathy with the early decline in wheat, losses of 2¾ cents being sustained, but some recovery was made near the close.

COUGHLIN TURNS HEAVY BARRAGE ON PLUTOCRATS

Lines Up National Union For Social Justice to Drive Them From Office.

FIRST OF 12 RALLIES.

DETROIT, April 25.—(AP).—The National Union for Social Justice, turned into a political force at a mammoth rally directed by Fr. Charles E. Coughlin last night, faced the United States' middle west and east to-day, promising to drive the "plutocrats" out of public office.

Chicago, New York and Philadelphia are under tentative consideration by Father Coughlin and his associates as the next battle grounds in the organization of State units of the National Union.

Flanked by two senators and four representatives from Washington, the Detroit priest pushed his union to the front as a definite political weapon last night. The Olympia Stadium, filled to near capacity by 15,382 persons set up salvos of applause for him and his fellow speakers.

Money Key Note.

Money and its use, both as profits for manufacturers and bonuses for war veterans formed the backdrop setting for the political birth of the National Union. Aiding the native of Hamilton, Ont., in his first of 12 State rallies were Senators Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota and Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma and Reps. William Connery of Massachusetts, Martin L. Sweeney of Ohio, Thomas O'Malley of Wisconsin, and William Lemke of North Dakota.

Thunderous cheers greeted caustic attacks on profit makers and International bankers. Every dis-

CHURCH PRESS TO BE SILENCED

New Nazi Law Forbids All Protestant, Catholic, Jewish Papers.

RESERVED FOR PARTY.

BERLIN, April 25 (A.P.).—Nazi press leaders took steps to-day to crush once and for all the entire German church press, Catholic as well as protestant, and all Jewish organs still existing on a religious or racial basis.

A new law, signed by Max Amann, president of the Reich Press Chamber and manager of the Nazi Party's publishing organization, is designed to monopolize the Reich's publications for Nazi ideas and make them legally subject to Nazi dictatorship.

The law provides "Church or professional newspapers as well as papers intended for groups of subscribers with certain interests, henceforth are forbidden."

The Nazi Party and its organizations are not subject to the new law.

Under the edict, "personal unions and organizations which represent confessional or professional viewpoints or interests of certain groups cannot be newspaper publishers."

It further is provided that "persons who cannot prove their aryanship since 1800 are banned," the same rule being applied to boards of directors of publishing houses.

Campbellford Child Bitten By Wolf Hound

CAMPBELLFORD, April 25 (Examiner Correspondence). — Little Helen Owens, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Owens of Front Street, was badly bitten in the face by a Russian wolf hound while playing with some companions across the street from her home on Tuesday afternoon. Eye-witnesses stated that one of the children playfully pulled the dog's tail and that he turned and grabbed the first child he came to. Dr. E. A. Stuart dressed the wounds, which required several stitches. "Mickie," the one-time favorite of the town and valued at $100, owned by Mr. L. A. Burbank, was destroyed.

Our King and Queen on their Silver Jubilee

The King and the Duke of Connaught

Son of Queen Victoria and uncle of King George, the Duke of Connaught had considerable influence on the British royal family.

Long experience in court life, to say nothing of his military and diplomatic career, made the Duke of Connaught one of the King's most trusted advisers from the moment he ascended the throne.

Today he still retains that status, though he is well past the eighty-year mark.

Our picture shows the King and the duke in 1928, just before King George was stricken with an illness that nearly robbed the empire of a beloved monarch. It was taken on the occasion of the ceremony of the installation of the new Knights of the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath, of which the duke is great master.

In 1911 the Duke of Connaught had been governor-general of Canada, the first royal prince to have been so appointed. His daughter, Princess Patricia, was famed through the land for her charm and loveliness, and a Canadian army unit was formed when war broke out called the Princess Pats. They had an entirely different fame, however, winning the reputation of being one of the hardest fighting units at the front.

TARIFF BOARD TO START PROBE OF CAR INDUSTRY

Members Will Visit Tilbury, Windsor and Oshawa in Ontario.

NATION WIDE INQUIRY.

Manufacturers Expected to Present Plea for Present Levy During Summer.

OTTAWA, April 25.—(CP)—M. N. Campbell, vice-chairman of the tariff board, disclosed today the board will start next Sunday on a trip through Western Ontario during which it will visit Windsor, Tilbury and Oshawa in connection with its nation-wide inquiry into the automobile industry.

The board, Mr. Campbell said, would kill two birds with one stone by proceeding on its Western Ontario tour with investigation of the oil industry, going possibly to Sarnia a week from next Monday. He said, however, this date was uncertain.

The board has been empowered to examine officials of companies manufacturing automobiles and parts with a view to determining if justification exists for the difference in price between cars manufactured in Canada and the United States.

Mid-Summer Hearing

A final hearing will be held in Ottawa, probably midway through the summer, at which the automotive industry is expected to put forth its strongest reasons for retention of present tariff rates which it is understood, the government considers might be reduced should they be found to have artificially bolstered prices to the detriment of the purchaser.

In its oil inquiry the board will investigate the general effect on the industry of existing tariff rates and examining the financial structure of companies processing gasoline and other oils. It expects to leave about May 15 for Western Canada, arriving in Vancouver in time to hold hearings there May 20 in both investigations. It will meet probably May 27 at Calgary for further hearings in the oil case.

Junk Has Ruined The Old Swimming Hole So Two Adventuresome Youths Leave Home

BELLEVILLE, April 25.—Two Peterborough boys, Joe Primeau, 12, an, James Woodcock, 14, were taken from a passenger train here Tuesday night by railroad officials and are now being held by police until their parents come to take them home.

"We wanted to catch a boat for Europe at Montreal," declared Joe, seriously.

"How would you earn your way across the Atlantic?" "Peeling potatoes," smiled Joe. "Besides, I've worked at horticulture, agriculture, motor mechanics and woodworking. I can tackle almost any job. The trouble is they won't give me work because I'm so young."

"Why not stay in Peterborough and apply your talents there?" asked Chief Constable Alec Kidd. "Aw, shucks, chief, Peterborough isn't what it used to be, they've thrown garbage in our old swimming hole," replied Woodcock.

NO SPECIAL RATES SYNTHETIC FLEETS

Ontario Insurance Act Amended Prohibiting Preferential Premium Rates.

A new section, numbered 273a, has been added to the Ontario Insurance Act, prohibiting preferential premium rates for groups of persons assembled in so-called "synthetic fleets."

273 a (1) Preferential rates for groups of persons prohibited. No rating bureau and no insurer authorized to transact the business of insurance within Ontario shall fix or make any rate or schedule of rates or charge a rate for automobile insurance to any group of persons by reason of such group being engaged in any trade, calling, profession or occupation, or by reason of membership in any guild, union, society, club or association or by reason of common employment or by reason of common occupancy of the same building or group of buildings or for any other reason which would result in a lower cost to an individual in such group than such individual would have had to pay if insured individually; and every insurer or other person who violates the provisions of this section shall be guilty of an offence.

(2) Exception where vehicles owned by same person. Nothing in this section contained shall be deemed to prohibit the fixing or charging of a special rate for the insurance of two or more motor vehicles owned by and registered in the name of the same person.

This legislation does not prohibit the writing of "legitimate" fleets but the greatest care should be exercised to ascertain that fleet policies do not include any motor vehicles that are not owned by and registered in the name of the insured.

Barnyard Oddities

CAMPBELLFORD, April 25 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — While gathering eggs in his barn the other day, William Lucy of Havelock Road, came across a Plymouth Rock hen with five perfect toes on each foot, and is looking forward to better production from this particular hen. So much for Seymour.

The next day Raymond Finch of Rawdon was so pleased with an egg one of his White Pekin ducks had laid that he brought it to town. The egg weighed 5 ounces, and measured 9 by 7 inches, which sounded rather good for a first-year duck'ing.

avowal of standpat partyism likewise was cheered.

As to the purpose of the National Union in the field of American political affairs Father Coughlin said in his prepared text:

"It is not our desire to form a political party, but it is our intention to drive out of public life the men who have promised us redress, who have preached to us the philosophy of social justice and, then, who have broken their promises, practice the philosophy of plutocracy.

Deserve To Be Ousted

"With these men we have no sympathy. They deserve to be driven from their Congressional district, or from their Senatorial state, or from the broad expanse of the Presidential nation with our undivided, united strength."

In another phase of his prepared statement which he issued for publication, he said:

"The farmer will not forget the agricultural plank in the Democratic platform espoused at Chicago in 1932. That policy promised 'tariff protection, the same protection that industry has to-day' . . . When the cabinet was established at Washington a Republican by the name of Wallace was made Secretary of Agriculture and the Democratic promises were forgotten.

"The days of broken promises and hypocritical pledges have passed, as to-night there is born in the hearts of the members of the National Union . . . the philosophy of 'United we stand or divided we fall'."

OPERA SAN TOY BE GIVEN FRIDAY

St. Paul's Choir and Men's Association Make Presentation in Opera House.

CHINESE PRODUCTION.

"The Lost Mandarin" is the title of a brief meditation on one of China's vanished glories, written by one of the foremost of the present-day literary lights of China, in the person of Lin Yu-Yang.

He philosophizes as follows:

"One of the greatest calamities of the Chinese Republic is the disappearance of the Mandarin. I have been searching for rare specimens of this gentleman amidst the present ruins of the Manchu Empire.

"In order to know a true Mandarin you had only to hear him talk.

"His voice was deep and resonant, his bearing poised and calm, his language was an art, and his personality was a combination of scholarship, suavity, rascality and high breeding.

"His manners were a tribute, not only to himself but also to those who offered him a bribe.

"A Mandarin might be disgraced, but he was never undignified. He groaned elegantly and sneezed methodically.

"Instead of blowing his nose, one should cough and spit, cough and spit in the most approved fashion.

"To ask a man to come to your house tell him just to "Order the carriage and gloriously descend." Such polite distinctions make one really educated. They improve the mind.

"China might still be saved."

Whether the Mandarin Yen How of Yamen who takes one of the principal roles in the production o. "San Toy" on Friday night of this week at the Grand Opera House, can live up to the above exalted ideal in manners and bearing, is a question. Those who attend this production will doubtless find out.

And, in addition to the noble Mandarin, there is San Toy, his dainty daughter, who masquerades as a boy during a portion of the opera. And Captain Bobbie Preston, her lover, with his father, Sir Bingo Preston, to say nothing of the Emperor of China and his suite, as well as many minor characters. The cast includes George Coleman, Miss Jessie Pattison, Miss Mary Sedgewick, Don MacKay, John Fowler, John Sedgewick, George East, Dion Snelgrove, H. Hope, Fraser Skinner, Marion Irvine, Howard Macdonald, Isobel Duthie, George Hall, Don Ross, Adam Sands, Sr., Miss Emma Lou Chenhall, Mrs. Board, Miss Isobel MacKay and C. M. Lawrence.

The choruses are lively, the libretto is entertaining, the setting picturesque, the costumes colorful and rich, the setting appropriate to the theme. The production is in charge of M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., and the day is Friday of this week, at the Grand Opera, under auspices of the choir and Men's Association of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Don't miss this year's presentation by actors who have made a fine reputation for themselves with previous year's successes.

world price of silver which carried it slightly beyond the price of 71.11 cents that the treasury had been paying up to last night.

FURORE IN LONDON.

LONDON, April 25 (A.P.).—President Roosevelt's overnight silver announcement advancing the American price of the white metal to 77.57 an ounce resulted in turmoil in early trading on London market to-day.

One broker described the reaction as "frantic," adding "nobody knows where they are at the moment."

Several traders joined in the belief the world price, which will be fixed this afternoon, will show a wide advance.

CHINA TENSE.

SHANGHAI, April 25 (A.P.). — President Roosevelt's additional boost of United States silver prices brought further tension to-day to China's fiscal and economic affairs which are based on silver.

Although a slight advance of the Mexican dollar against United States currency was the only immediate outward indication of the effect of Roosevelt's move, financial circles expected this trend would be sharply accentuated momentarily.

MEXICO UNEASY.

MEXICO, D.F., April 25 (A.P.). — Banking and commercial circles today said the continued rise of world silver price in response to the increase in the domestic price in the United States will force the Mexican Government to take immediate steps to protect its monetary policies. If the price of silver goes above 73 or 74 cents an ounce, the "silver point" of the Mexican peso will be reached and it will become profitable to export coins for commercial uses. (The world price of silver yesterday was quoted at 71¾ cents an ounce.)

MADRIGAL SINGERS TO GIVE CONCERT

Muriel Donnellan and Dr. Harvey Doney Will be Assisting Artists.

"The Madrigal Singers" are very fortunate in their choice of assisting artists, and this year's combination promises to be one of the most popular ever brought to Peterborough. Muriel Donnellan is well-known for her beautiful solo work on the harp, and will charm the audience next Wednesday with two groups of compositions that will bring out all the possibilities of her lovely instrument. Miss Donnellan is harpist of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, and also with the well-known Rex Battle Concert Orchestra at the Royal York Hotel.

Harvey Doney is conceded by musicians to have one of the finest voices in this country, and a dramatic sense that colors every song he sings with vivid and arresting interpretation. Dr. Doney is a Doctor of Medicine, and his many admirers sometimes regret that the operatic stage has lost a potential star of very high calibre. He will sing two groups of songs of contrasting style, and his dynamic and delightful personality will retain the interest of his hearers to the last. These distinguished artists, together with the famous Peterborough choir of women's voices, promise an evening of rare enjoyment next Wednesday evening.

MR. WOODSWORTH'S PREDICTION

According to Rev. J. S. Woodsworth, Dominion leader of the C.C.F. movement the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation party will hold the balance of power after the coming Federal election and that the next appeal to the country thereafter will see the Socialist party swept into office.

The wish is father to the thought in these prophecies, The Examiner submits, for nothing in the history of the C.C.F. justifies the assertion that the movement will make sufficient headway in this year's election to give it the position predicted by Mr. Woodsworth.

The boast that the C.C.F. now forms the official opposition in two provinces is of course technically true, but it must be remembered that both in British Columbia and Saskatchewan this opposition consists of a mere handful of members, while in the landslide that leveled the Henry administration in Ontario out of office only one C.C.F. member was elected in the whole province. There are no indications that the party has even a precarious foothold in Quebec and its standing in the Maritimes is only slightly better so that it is difficult to see where the gains evidently expected by Mr. Woodsworth are to be realized. Certainly not in the east, while provincial results in the western provinces afford little scope for C.C.F. optimism.

Certainly most Canadians would be loth to see a condition develop that would leave the Socialist forces holding the balance of power, if such a situation would mean political log-rolling, bargaining and intrigue, with little progress possible and with stability of government out of the question.

REMOVING THE RED TAPE

The Federal Government is to be commended not only for its advertising campaign in the United States to secure more tourist traffic but for its evident desire to make entrance into Canada more convenient for our American visitors.

The less red tape there is at the border, the more favorable will be the tourist's first impression of Canada and the more anxious will he be to return to this country in other years.

The change in regulations in regard to visitors who enter Canada for a protracted stay, as announced by Hon. R. C. Matthews, Minister of National Revenue will therefore be generally appreciated.

Up to the present time tourists who came into Canada for a visit of our ninety days and up to six months were called upon to obtain the bond of a guarantee company at the port of entry and others who at first planned to stay less than ninety days and after decided to extend their visit, had to go to the trouble of visiting the nearest collector and furnish a bond in order to obtain an extension.

These rules have all been wiped out and this year neither bond nor deposit will be asked for from motoring tourists no matter how long they stay in Canada up to six months.

The delay and expense at the borders and the inconvenience formerly caused tourists who changed their minds after entering Canada and decided to prolong their visit are eliminated and the result should be most satisfactory to the visitors who are our greatest asset, that is, those Americans who spend the whole season in our midst.

BAD LEADERSHIP

It is not surprising to learn that the relief camp riot in Vancouver is the result of the activities of Communistic agitators who inspired the strike and were responsible for the silly demonstration on Monday that led to the reading of the Riot Act.

As The Examiner has frequently pointed out these Red agents are not interested in improving conditions among the unemployed, they simply seek to use victims of the depression as an instrument to cause trouble for what the Communists delight to call the "Capitalistic" class.

The more havoc they can stir up, the more damage they can cause to be done, the better satisfied are they; that the cause they advocate cannot fail to get their dupes into serious trouble does not bother these glib-tongued agitators in the least and it looks like as if they may continue to egg the Vancouver relief camp strikers on until the militia will have to be called out and possibly until bullets from military rifles bring a tragic end to the futile demonstration.

It is unfortunate in the extreme that some of the men in the camps have been victimized by such false leadership—because if they persist in accepting the advice of the Red trouble-makers there can only be one culmination.

Here in our own province we have another example of this kind of agitator. The relief strike in Crowland Township is the consequence of foolish leadership exemplified at its worst by the silly action of the strikers in sending their children to Toronto to stage demonstrations.

If they had proper consideration for the welfare of their little ones they would leave them in school, instead of letting them be exploited in a stupid gesture that can do nothing to improve conditions.

A SPLENDID MINING YEAR

Recent figures as to Canadian mining production in 1934 show that only in two other years, 1929 and 1930 was the total output exceeded.

A surprising feature was that although the prices for base metals were low throughout the year the production of these metals was the greatest in the history of Canada.

The output of nickel was larger than that of 1929, the previous peak year, while the production of lead exceeded the 1928 record and there was more copper and zinc produced than in 1930 which was the best previous year in the output of these metals.

In the platinum group the same percentage of gains is recorded, the total production being were in excess of any other year.

Altogether Canada's total mineral production last year reached the huge total of $277,500,000 as against $221,500,000 the previous year and thus achieved the enviable position of the third largest annual total ever recorded in this country.

While gold producers paid more attention to low grade ore than usual, the amount of actual gold produced was in exeeess of the 1933, and of course, by reason of the higher prices of gold, the value of the year's production reached a new high level at $102,-500,000 which was $17,500,000 more than the total during 1933.

As operations in the current year have been well maintained, there is reason to look for another new record in 1935.

AT THEIR OWN RISK

It is important that owners and drivers of motor vehicles, and those who ride sometimes in other people's cars, should understand quite definitely the new situation as to passenger liability that exists by reason of the Ontario Legislature's amendment to the Highway Traffic Act.

As the law stands to-day the owner or driver of an automobile—with the exception of vehicles operated for hire—is not liable in the civil courts "for any loss or damage resulting from bodily injury to, or the death of, any person being carried in, or upon, or enalighting from such motor,ering, or getting on to, or vehicle."

In other words, the passenger rides at his, or her, own risk, whether the hitch-hiker picked up on the highway at his earnest solicitation or the friend driven home after a bridge game. The owner or driver cannot be sued by a passenger who suffers injury through an accident, nor by the heirs if a passenger should be killed. Of course the law does not free him from full responsibility i n the criminal courts if an accident occurs through his negligence.

Undoubtedly there will be cases where hardship is worked by this release from financial liability. But we think that on the whole it is a good law. Everybody's sense of fairness and justice has been offended by judgments secured against kind-hearted — perhaps soft-hearted is a better expression—motorists in behalf of solicitous strangers, and in many cases the insurance companies carrying these risks have had reason to suspect collusion and fraud. Now we know precisely where we stand.—Ottawa Journal.

A TUNNEL AND A ROOM.

There were two matters of political expenditure, or proposed expenditure, mentioned in the closing hours of the Dominion House of Commons and in the Ontario Legislature which must have caught the public eye. One was the proposed tunnel between Toronto waterfront and the Island, and the other was the Hon. A. W. Roebuck's "Green Boudoir."

There should be general approval of the Liberal opposition to the proposed $1,000,000 Dominion grant toward the Toronto tunnel. We cannot see what conceivable national interest is served by such an enterprise. This is purely a civic improvement, and if Toronto wants it Toronto should pay for it, even if the excuse be made that it would serve an airport. There has been no desperate need for anyone to get over to the Island in a hurry since the Maple Leafs quit playing ball there, and we think it isn't worth a million dollars of federal money to enable the people of Toronto to travel across in a stuffy, crowded tunnel in preference to enjoying the balmy breezes from the deck of a ferryboat. There are surely other projects that Toronto could think of which would more justify a million dollar grant.

Then there was the information tabled in the Ontario Legislature as to the redecoration and refurnishing of the Attorney-General's office. The cost is $985.26. The carpet cost $484, the drapes $204 and the blinds $278.

With all respect to the Ontario Government, this expenditure contrasts violently with their program of economy which has resulted in many poorly paid employees losing their jobs. We'd like to see what sort of carpet cost all that monty, and what sort of drapes and blinds cost nearly $500. These are not the furnishings one would expect to find in a lawyer's office. That sort of thing may be all right for an exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition, but for a workaday office, especially when the gospel of Spartan economy is being preached by its incumbent, most emphatically no. The only place where we would expect to encounter such luxury anywhere within Government property is in the home of the King's representative, Lieutenant-Governor Herbert A. Bruce, and the Government is definitely down on that.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENTS

According to Toronto advisers the "No Help Wanted" sign is being displayed at Queen's Park; in other words party workers looking for a government job are being warned off.

How those Vancouver rebel camp strikers have to better their lot by causing thousands of dollars of damage to the property of merchants is something that even the strike leaders probably could not explain.

50,000 People turned out to see Babe Ruth's New York debut as a National Leaguer. The veteran will have to put on a better show, however, than he did on that occasion if he expects to attract such crowds throughout the season.

If Premier Hepburn really believes that Mr. Ferguson has caused all the agitation in Great Britain over the cancellation of the Quebec power purchase contract he is putting high estimate upon the influence exerted by Canada's High Commissioner.

France has called 120,000 young conscripts to the colors for training and thus the dove of peace in Europe gets a few more feathers knocked off.

Mr. Bennett and Mr. King are leading the two old parties, but it is Mr. Stevens who is getting most of the publicity these days—especially on the editorial page.

Premier Hepburn is going in for onion growing on a large scale, and in that respect at least should he a man after Eccles Gott's heart. The Essex member prides himself upon knowing his onions.

Capt. Innes says that government should keep out of business. Nevertheless, the fact remains that the pressure of public opinion is driving governments more and more into business.

CAPITALISM OF FASCISM

Mr. Editor,

Dear Sir,—I would like space in your paper to point out a few of the many inconsistencies in the propaganda of the C.C.F. leaders.

Norman Thomas, Socialist party leader of the United States spoke at a rally held by the C.C.F. in Massey Hall, Toronto on Saturday night, April 20.

In his speech he dubbed the "N.R.A." or the New Deal which ever you care to call it, Government by Big Business for Big Business and he declared that in every clash between Big Business and Liberal forces the former always won. He went on to point out that the U.S.A. has no Socialism under the New Deal, it is simply State Capitalism, further on he takes the pains to point out that it is nothing but the "Capitalism of Fascism." But according to Mr. Irvine, C.C.F. M.P., Roosevelt has merely adopted the proposals of the C.C.F. Irvine writes as follows: Indeed the practical steps proposed (i.e. by the C.C.F. members of Parliament) as a beginning have since been adopted by the New President of the United States (political servants of Capitalism, page 11). When we sum this up there is only one possible conclusion we can arrive at from the two statements above and that is that the C.C.F. is not Socialism but Capitalism streaked with Fascism or as Thomas calls it the Capitalism of Fascism. It's only a C.C.F. politician that could arrive at any other conclusion from the facts that are here.

A short while ago we had Mayor Simpson from Toronto or should I have said Comrade Jimmy Simpson speak here in Peterborough. Simpson used the Ontario Hydro as an example of Socialism when well greased and running in high gear. And yet we see this same Simpson who was lauding it only a few weeks ago as a marvellous example of Socialist enterprise supporting a resolution urging prosecution in Hydro situation. The recent Hydro exposure has proven that Hydro is a capitalist monopoly and that this plundering and racketeering has been going on for years. If nothing else comes out of this Hydro exposure it will at least show the workers that Simpson is nothing other than a vulgar demogog. A few weeks ago Dr. Lorna Cotton made a declaration that all the unemployed of Peterborough were looking for was a bigger ham in their baskets.

Last Saturday at the C.C.F. convention we find Dr. Cotton introducing a resolution condemning the Hepburn administration in general and particularly mentioning the callousness and indifference to the suffering of the workers and their families. Here we have Dr. Cotton accusing the Hepburn government of something she, herself is guilty of, that is ignoring the daily needs of the workers and unemployed.

We can also recall that Dr. Cotton made the statement that there was no capitalist class in Canada and therefore no need of a class struggle on the part of the workers to better themselves. It's pretty hard to imagine a Socialist making a statement like this with a straight face. Well Dr. Cotton if there is no capitalist class in Canada who is it, or maybe I should say what is it that is driving the masses deeper into poverty ,misery and enslavement daily. Or better still who or what is stopping the C.C.F. from setting up their cream separator state and seeing that the workers do get the cream in their milk!

The tragic part of the C.C.F. according to their leaders is that they can do nothing till they get complete power and Mr. Woodsworth claims that this does not look possible for at least 15 years. Now the point is what are these people going to do during these 15 years? If they sit back and do nothing like the C.C.F propagates it will be a cemetery these people need and not a Socialist state.

The C.C.F. leadership may think that putting an objective 15 years in the future excuses them from taking an active part in trying to get immediate concessions for the toiling masses. But it does not, the fact is that to justify themselves and prove their own sincerity before the masses they are forced to do so. The leaders of the C.C.F. want to remember that the workers real worry to-day is the bread and butter they need and are not getting. It's not the Socialism that is 15 years away that will look after itself when the time comes.

J. Rosemann.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Physical therapy comprises all those methods which have to do with external application of heat and cold or of manipulation. In other words, it comprises treatment with water, hot water bags, electric pads, electric heat, such as diathermy, galvanic electricity, faradic electricity, hyperpyrexia, massage and therapeutic exercise. It is a form of treatment that has long been neglected by the medical profession and is taking an increased spurt of late years. Hardly any hospital can be considered well equipped unless it has a good physiotherapy department.

Of the many form of treatment for arthritis, the use of diathermy is, in my opinion, the most effective. It is painless in application. It does the most important thing which the arthritic patient wants—gets rid of the pain, therefore improves the morale and the mental outlook, increases the possibility of activity, and to that extent is actually curative. It has been said that diathermy does not actually cure a case of arthritis, but if it does all the things that I have listed, it goes very far in that direction.

What Diathermy Is

Diathermy is a form of electrical current which is applied by the contact of two electrodes on the skin. It generates a current which produces heat in the tissues through which the current passes. In this way it has a great advantage over the external application of heat in the form of water, hot water bags, electric pads, etc., because these simply warm up the superficial skin. It is true that they bring changes in the blood vessels so that there is a congestion of the part and a carrying away of poisons, but this, diathermy does also and, as I have just said, it has the tremendous advantage that it generates heat, not on the surface, but in the tissues through which it passes. If you have a pain in your toe, for instance, which is due to an inflammation of the joint, the application of an electrode to the sole and to the arch of your foot will cause heat to be produced in the bone and tendons which are actually inflamed. This is obviously better than surface heat.

Associated Treatments

To receive the full benefit from diathermy, there must be associated massage and othopedic treatment. Massage is important because it develops the muscles around the joints and tends to break up adhesions. It also nips the possibility of stiffness or ankyiosis of the joint in its early stages.

Diathermy, associated with massage and orthopedic treatment, actually will cause the disappearance of exudates in the early stage of arthritis. It may not be expected to cause the disappearance of bony overgrowths in the late stage, but even at this time it can be depended upon to relieve pain, at least temporarily, and generally for long periods of time.

OF COURSE WOMEN THINK DIFFERENTLY FROM MEN

I have heard men say that women reason differently from men.

I have heard women deny this bitterly, at length, as if such a remark were a personal insult.

But why should women object to so obvious a truth?

(We will assume, just for the sake of the argument, that when a man says a woman does not reason as a man does, he does not mean she is inferior in reasoning power to a man.)....Of course, he DOES mean that. He means that women are devious and willful and wishful in their mental processes. He means that a woman cannot take a collection of facts and reach a mathematical conclusion from them, but that a man can, and usually does, imitate an adding machine in the precision of his thought....But he doesn't SAY that. All he says is that women do not THINK as men do—and women immediately object.)

But why do not women admit proudly that they do not think as men do?

After all, a man is not a woman and a woman is not a man. They are of the same human race, yes, but they are of different sex, and, being different in that way, they differ in what they take from life and what they give to it. Why shouldn't they be different in their thinking?

Their brains are also materially different, too. I think if the anatomists were as clever as they would like to be, they could take a tiny shred of a woman's brain and identify it precisely as being female; and do the same for a man's brain. ....Then why so much fuss and offended pride over the thinking processes of man and woman, and why should we talk of "superiority" or inferiority" when the difference is in kind and not in degree?

One more remark: It is no great compliment when a man says of some woman: "She thinks like a man"....Usually this means that the clever woman has been agreeing with the man, without thinking at all.

WHEN WOMEN LOST THE VOTE

On this date (April 25) in 1849 Lord Elgin, then governor general, went down to the Parliament House in Montreal and gave the royal assent to a number of bills which had been passed by the Parliament of the Province of Canada. Among them was a bill creating a new franchise, which is of historical importance, since by it women proprietors in Lower Canada were deprived of the franchise which they had enjoyed from the granting of autonomy in 1792.

Some historians assert that the deletion of the women was premeditated; others say that it was merely a mistake of the drafter of the bill who made it read "male", instead of "person" as in the previous act. No matter who was responsible the result has been important. Long after the effects of the rioting which followed that day of assent (when the loyalist mob), incensed at the passage of the rebellion losses bill, burned the Parliament House and so robbed Montreal of the seat of government) passed, the effects of that day's anti-feminist legislation persists to this day.

The Legislature of Lower Canada and later of Quebec has been adamant against any giving of the vote to women in provincial elections, though, when qualified, they enjoy it in certain municipalities, and, thanks to federal legislation, are able to vote on equality with males in federal elections. Year after year a bill is introduced in the Assembly to give the vote to women; year after year it is defeated, though the majority against it is dwindling each time and there are people who believe that some of these days the concession will be made and women again have a voice in provincial affairs.

Before 1849 the women were quite active in elections. At one very close election in Three Rivers the casting vote (it was then open voting) was given by the mother of the successful candidate. And there are stories of how the women of the Papineau and deSalaberry families campaigned and voted for the men of their kin who were seeking political honors.

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

ACADIA

(Formerly name of Nova Scotia)

The original of the name Acadia, by which the province of Nova Scotia once was known, is in dispute to this day. Some authorities held that it comes from Acadie, common as the ending of the Micmac place-names, and that the early French settlers, hearing this termination so frequently, chose it as the name of the country.

Others point out that while the name La Cadie was first used in De Monts' commission in 1603, before that date an "r" invariably appeared in the name. In Gastaldi's map of 1548 it is called Lacardia. The fact that the Micmac dialect has no letter "r" would certainly seem to be absolute evidence against Micmac origin. In the account of the voyage taken in 1603 Champlain always uses "Arcadie."

The form "Acadie" seems to have become established in 1604 and still is used affectionately by those who originate from Nova Scotia.

FEAST OF PASSOVER OVER AT SUNDOWN

Local Jewish Community Holding Special Services During Past 8 Days.

The Feast of the Passover, which has been celebrated with special religious services by the local Jewish Community during the past eight days, draws to a close at sundown to-night.

Commemorating the exodus of the Israelites from Egypt, the observance began with Sedar services in Synagogues throughout the Jewish world at sunset eight days ago. In every Jewish home the Sedar service has been traditionally observed.

In the local synagogue special services have been conducted throughout the special period of observance by Rabbi A. Fine, and an appeal was launched for donations to the United Palestine Fund, and also for the Lord and Lady Bessborough Cancer Fund.

Rabbi Fine, expressed the opinion that the annual Feast of the Passover has special significance this year in view of the fact that there has been a large return of Jews to Palestine from Europe, almost comparable to the exodus of the Jewish people from Egypt to Palestine centuries ago.

Following usual custom at such services, special prayers were offered for the health of their Majesties King George and Queen Mary and other members of the Royal family.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, April 25 (A.P.). — With silver prices spurting to 15-year peaks, mining issues to-day led the stock market in a sharp advance. Although scattered soft spots appeared in the profit-taking flurries, the list as a whole, held around the best levels of the session.

Cerro de Pasco and U.S. Smelting showed gains of around 5 points each, and Eastman Kodak was up as much. Others, 1 to 2 higher, included American Smelting, Howe Sound, Kennecott, Anaconda, American Can, American Telephone, Liggett and Myers 'B' and Douglas Aircraft. At the same time Coca-Cola dropped 3, and National Distillers, Schenley and National Biscuit were off 1 to 2. The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 1,500,000 shares, the largest volume since last February.

GENERAL LIST IN INDUSTRIALS REMAINS SOFT

Smelters and International Nickel Only Issues to Show Gains.

BEVERAGES WEAK.

TORONTO, April 25 (C.P.)—The two big metal stocks, Consolidated Smelters and International Nickel, again usurped the trading facilities of the Toronto industrial market to-day and these were almost alone in holding an upward course, supported by the strength of silver. Smelters advanced more than 10 points. Over the board sentiment favored the down side with weakness predominating in the beverage, oil, steel and food shares.

Nickel registered a gain of about half a point and Smelters, after touching 163, eased back under profit-taking to 160 to close about 10½ points above Wednesday. Brazilian, C.P.R., and Ford "A" lost fractions.

In the liquors losses at the close were no worse than ⅝ for Walkers Common and Distillers Seagrams. Brewery stocks also eased down to show small recessions for Canada Bud, Canada Malting and Brewing Common.

The only strong spots in the steel group were Page Hersey, and Massey Harris, losses appearing for Canadian Car Preferred, Steel of Canada, General Electric Preferred and National Steel Car.

SILVER FLOW SENDS MINE ISSUES HIGH

White Metal Stocks Jump Forward on Advance in World Silver Advance.

1,600,000 VOLUME.

TORONTO, April 25 (C.P.) — Silver stock sales flowed all over the mining board to-day like a flood of molten metal, swelling volume to the 1,800,000 mark, the heaviest turnover since last mid-summer. Prices of the white metal stocks shot ahead on the impetus given by a jump of about 4 to 5 cents in the world price for bar metal. Base metal stocks pace along at a slower job but showed a collection of substantial gains at the close. The golds were neglected.

Buying of the silver stocks was at a feverish rate from the opening. Eldorado moved up 2.53, Nipissing to 2.86, Castle to 1.25, Bear to 52½ and Premier to 1.80. The close was a little under these prices with Eldorado holding a net gain of about 30 cents, Castle 10¼ cents and Nipissing 5 cents.

Mining Corporation, Pend Oreille, Sherritt Gordon, Sudbury Basin, Noranda, Falconbridge and Base Metals Corporation were all up for the day. Noranda added 1.50, Base Metals Corp., 14 and Hudson Bay 15.

Modest gains were noted for Lake Shore Gold, Pioneer and Dome while Bralorne and Teck Hughes sold down.

NATIONS LINE UP BEHIND AUSTRIA

Six of Nine Interested Powers Accept Terms to Guarantee Her Independence.

GERMANY STALLS.

PARIS, April 25 (A.P.). — The general terms of a convention to preserve Austria's independence have been accepted by six of the nine interested Powers, it was learned to-day as France and Italy prepared to issue invitations to the Danubian Conference at Rome in June.

The text of the convention was said already to have been submitted to the interested governments.

Hungary and Poland were understood to have adhered "only in principle," while Germany was reported to have requested additional information concerning the meaning of the "non-interference" clauses to which the signatories would subscribe.

Conclusion of the Franco-Soviet Mutual Assistance Pact, which is certain to have an important bearing on the Danubian Conference, is said in informed circles to be in sight.

Russia's objections to the slowness of League of Nations procedure in the case of flagrant aggression is believed to have been removed by a compromise text which has been submitted to the Council of People's Commissars in Moscow.

The revised text, instead of reading the "two Powers shall await a meeting of the Council before acting," merely stipulates that the "two parties shall lay the case before the Council."

40,000 PILGRIMS GREET CARDINAL

Papal Delegate Pacelli Will Officiate at Famous Grotto Shrine.

PRAYERS FOR PEACE.

LOUDRES, France, April 25.—(A.P.)—Forty thousand pilgrims from the world over welcomed Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli when the papal legate arrived at the famous grotto shrine here today to participate in the three-days' prayers for peace. After two days of rain, today dawned clear and warm making the cardinal's entrance into the city under hundreds of triumphal arches a colorful spectacle.

Huge crowds gathered early at the famous grotto where the 140 masses will be said beside the church erected in honor of the apparition of the virgin. By Sunday, when Cardinal Pacelli will say the concluding mass, it is expected the pilgrims will number 100,000.

The peace supplications mark the close of the Catholic "Jubilee of the Redemption," which began with the holy year proclaimed by Pope Pius XI in 19033 to commemorate the nineteenth century after the death of Christ.

The pilgrimage of peace brought delegations from Canada and other principal countries of the world to the grotto where Saint Bernadette Sourbirous, a young shepherdess, in 1858 reported the apparitions of the virgin.

TWO CANADIAN PLAYS FEATURE FESTIVAL FINAL

Critic Lauds Toronto Drama Satirzing Drunken Caesar.

Event's Future Assured.

OTTAWA, April 25.—(CP).—Finals of the Dominion drama festival will continue to-night with presentation of three plays, two by Ontario groups and one by the Embassy Players of Vancouver. The last two in the series of four plays by Canadian authors were presented last night.

Hope that the festival might develop into a National Canadian Theatre was expressed last night by Lady Tupper, chairman of the Regional committee for Manitoba, who said also that if it were decided to move the venue of the finals she had been assured every facility would be offered for their staging at Winnipeg. Lady Tupper introduced adjudicator Allan Wade.

The mighty Julius Caesar was seen last night in a one-act satire by Marjorie Price of Toronto, bawling for his wife to cure an alcoholic headache caused by wine the seductive Cleopatra gave him in her unsuccessful efforts to enslave him.

Mr. Wade praised the staging of Miss Price's piece, presented by the Playmakers' Club of Toronto, but criticized the acting, finding the lines inaudible in spots and recited rather than acted in others.

Dickens' Production

Miss Price's play followed performance of a Dickens' dramatization by K. W. Edge of Toronto, presented by the Dickens Fellowship of the same city. The production "To the Dead Man," is based on parts of "Lazy Tour of Two Idle Apprentices" and concerns the strange dream of a young man staying at a Doncaster Inn and being forced to share a room with a corpse which comes to life in his sleep-fogged imagination and turns out to be a suitor for the hand of his sweetheart.

Mr. Wade described the production as a "very, very interesting dramatic experiment," but felt the eerie, unnatural atmosphere should have been sustained more thoroughly.

Sordid horror chilled the audience in production of "Vindication" by the Halifax Theatre Arts Guild. The play, dealing with the misery and strain of a family waiting for the hanging in a nearby jail yard of one of its members, is by Leonard J. Hines and Frank King.

Tone, Pace Lacking

Mr. Wade expressed belief the director, H. Leslie Pigott should have "planted" more firmly in the minds of the cast the meaning of their parts so that they could have brought out what the presentation lacked in "tone, pace and the use of pauses." He said the actors showed themselves full of talent and added: "I felt, however, that if only I could have had half an hour with them what a good show we could get."

To-night the Cobourg, Ont., Dramatic Club will do "Smoke Screens," by Harold Brighouse as the opening. This will be followed by the trial scene from George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan," presented by the Vancouver group, and "St. Simeon Stylites," by the London Community Drama Guild. The play is by F. Sladen-Smith.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

BEVERAGE FIRM SEEKING $4,000

Roy Logan Enters Counterclaim for $7000 in High Court Action.

WOODMEN CASE.

Hearing of the $4,000 suit against Roy Logan of Peterborough by Consolidated Beverages of Toronto and Logan's counterclaim for $7,000, began late yesterday afternoon before Mr. Justice Hugh Kelly at the Supreme Court sitting here. Justice Kelly reserved his decision when the action of the Canadian Woodmen of the World against the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company came to an unexpectedly sudden conclusion during the afternoon.

The Consolidated Beverages firm, represented by G. H. Lovatt of Jennings & Clute, Toronto, is seeking $4,009.49 as a sum owing them from Logan as a result of Logan's association with the firm as distributor of their beverages in the Peterborough district since 1932. The firm claims to have advanced to Logan in the form of merchandise, equipment and credits a total of $26,054.30. Of that debit, according to the claim, $14,991.79 has been returned by way of credits on returnable equipment, merchandise, and $7,053.02 has been returned in cash, leaving a debit of $4,009.49.

W. J. Arthur Pair is representing Logan. The chief defence claim is that Logan's association with Consolidated Beverages, formerly Kuntz Beverages, was that of an agent employed by the firm, not as a purchaser of the firm's products. The Logan counterclaim of $7,000 includes $2,000 for "good will" enjoyed by the defendant in the soft drink business here before his connection with the plaintiffs, $1,500 for costs of advertising and promotion, $2,640 for wages and $2,040 damages for loss of expected future income.

First Witness.

William Forsythe, Toronto, general manager of Consolidated Beverages, was called to the box before court was adjourned for the day. Examined by Mr. Lovatt, he related that Logan, a personal friend of his, approached him seeking employment in 1931. He said he told him at that time that the only possibility would be by way of naming him distributor of the company's products for the Peterborough district. Many letters passed between them, he said. "There were many discussions. All were with the one idea. When could Logan get started."

An arrangement was reached in April, 1932, Forsythe continued. Logan had been given a price list regarding the Consolidated Beverages products, the prices f.o.b. Toronto, he said. As he was starting without capital, Logan was extended credits totalling about $1,200 in order that he might get things under way, the witness stated.

Logan went to Toronto and reported to the company that he could not get through the winter of 1932 without further financing, Forsythe testified. Although the total of the credits advanced to him had then reached $1,700, it was agreed to let his account go to $2,000, he stated.

"At the end of our fiscal year, October 31, 1933, his account stood at $4,000. We told Logan that things had gone too far. We explained that he would have to give some security. An assignment of his book debts was made."

The court adjourned at that point in the evidence.

Suit Concluded

The Woodmen of the World suit against the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company had been continued to a conclusion earlier in the afternoon. The insurance organization was seeking to recover a total of $4,309.93 alleged to have been lost and expended as a result of the embezzlements of one of their employees bonded with the Guaranty Company.

Claire Jarvis one of the leading figures in the Woodmen of the World organization, was questioned by G. N. Gordon, K.C., plaintiffs' solicitor, regarding the prosecution of the defaulting employee, Pasquale De Lisio, in Montreal, and the defence of a subsequent damage action against the company by De Lisio after his acquittal. He stated that, in accepting the suggestion of Jonathan Robinson, a Montreal lawyer, that the action be defended, the firm believed Robinson to be the solicitor and to be acting as the representative of the Guaranty Company.

Cross-examined by T. N. Phelan, K.C., defendant lawyer, Jarvis denied definite knowledge of a shortage in De Lisio's accounts previous to the occasion on which a shortage was first revealed to the Guaranty Company. He refused to confirm the suggestion that he had sanctioned the transfer of a $3,000 overdraft piled up by De Lisio from Montreal to the company's head office in London, Ontario.

Asks Amendment

Phelan then sought permission of Justice Kelly to amend his defence to include the claim that the bond had been voided by the plaintiffs' knowledge of default on De Lisio's part previous to 1931, regarding which no report was made to the Guaranty Company. Justice Kelly gave no decision on the request.

At the conclusion of the evidence of Jarvis, the third witness in the trial, Gordon announced completion of his case. Phelan stated the defence was content to rest without the production of further evidence. Arguments of the two lawyers were then heard and Justice Kelly reserved his decision.

A motion for an order dismissing the plaintiff's action with costs in regard to a suit by Cholmondley Strickland of Toronto against Carl A. Case, a resident of Texas, was denied. Justice Kelly ruled that the plaintiff be penalized but that the case be set down for trial at the approaching sittings in Cobourg or Lindsay.

The action is for recovery of the title to the Wantasa Inn property at McCraken's Landing from Case who obtained it through a foreclosure some time ago. J. W. Stevenson, acting for Strickland, sponsored the motion, complaining that the plaintiff had failed to comply with a court order that the case be set down for trial at the present sitting.

Sudbury Man Was To Receive $150 For Burning Summer Camp At Long Lake

SUDBURY, Ont., April 25.—(CP).—Angus Young, Sudbury, who last week refused to take the witness stand against his friend, Hillery Boivin chadged with arson to-day testfied he and Boivin had entered into an agreement whereby he was to burn the Boivin lumber camp at Long Lake, for which he was to be paid $150 out of the insurance money.

As a result of this testimony, Boivin was committed for trial by Magistrate J. S. McKessock and subsequently before Judge Edmond Proulx in Chambers elected trial before a Judge and jury. Boivin was released on bail of $4,000.

Young had last week refused to take the stand against his friend and Crown Attorney E. D. Wilkins, K.C., had asked for an adjournment of the preliminary hearing.

Last week Young was committed for trial on a charge of setitng fire to the Boivin camp at Long Lake Feb. 19.

Young was alleged to have given Constable E. W. Keen a full confession April 8 and to-day was asked by J. J. J. O'Connor, counsel for Boivin: "Did you tell them because you thought you were framed."

"No, but that's the reason I'm telling now," said Young.

LINDSAY PLANS BOARD OF TRADE

Public Meeting to be Called at Early Date to Organize.

JASPER LACOMBE DIES.

LINDSAY, April 25 (Examiner Correspondence).—The death occurred yesterday at the House of Refuge of an inmate well known throughout the Midland District in the person of Jasper Lacombe. The deceased, who was afflicted with blindness, was a former resident of Peterborough, and was a familiar figure some years ago on the city market, where he played a tin flute every Saturday. He lived for a time near Downer's Corners before coming to Lindsay. The late Mr. Lacombe was born in Quebec Province and was a Catholic in religion.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the celebration of the Twelfth of July in Lindsay this year. Committees are busy at work and lodges are expected from as far west as Hamilton and from Huntsville in the north.

Efforts are being made to organize a board of trade in Lindsay. The town has been without an organization of this kind for many years. A public meeting will be called at an early date.

Kinsmen Take Leave Of Valuable Member

At their dinner meeting at Empress Hotel last evening members of the Kinsmen Club took leave of one of their most active members, in the person of Robert Lundy chairman of the program committee who is shortly moving to Oshawa.

President J. K. Sheehy, who occupied the chair, referred in terms of highest appreciation to Mr. Lundy's services in the club, and while regretting his removal from the city, extended to him the good wishes of the club membership for success in his new sphere of activity.

Mr. Lundy, as wire chief in the district office of the Bell Telephone Company, is to assume his new duties as plant wire chief at Oshawa on May 1. He is a member of the Telephone Pioneers of Canada, having served for over twenty-one years with the company.

There was a good attendance at the meeting, and among the guests was included Ross Graham of the Kingston club.

A brief address in line with the Kinsmen National Peace Objective was given by H. H. P. Johnston, and the suggestion was afterwards made by Mr. Lundy that at future meetings such topic might well provide the subject of discussion or debate.

President Sheehy, Secretary Robert Stanley and Gordon Dobbin were named as official delegates to the Kinsmen District Convention, to be held in London on May 3.

QUINTS SHOWING STEADY ADVANCE

Dr. Dafoe Expects Marie, Sickest of Lot, to be Out on Monday.

PLAN GUARD COTTAGE.

CALLANDER, Ont., April 25.—(CP)—Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe said to-day he expected Marie, sickest of the Dionne quintuplets, would join her sisters for airing on the hospital veranda early next week. The babes all registered normal temperatures to-day and showed signs they were practically recovered from their head colds.

The children were still a "little food-shy" the doctor reported while Marie was still slightly sick. "She is fairly well now but we are taking no chances whatsoever," said Dr. Dafoe.

The doctor to-day revealed plans were being made to add a solarium to the front of the hospital. He said it would be constructed so it could be used as an indoor or outdoor room and serve as an isolation ward if the need developed. The solarium will also afford a glimpse at the children and at the same time not permit theb abes to be aware of the presence of the "peepers."

Other plans for improvements at the hospital include the construction of a bungalow for the police guards and a parking space near the hopsital to avoid congestion of traffic.

Through motor bus service is to be started between Canton and Hankow, China.

THIEVES ENTER TWO GARAGES

also believed from the check-up that some tires were stolen.

Across the street Poley and Wilson's garage had been similarly entered and stripped of tobacco, cigarettes and candy valued at $85 to $90. A little over a week ago the same garage was previously robbed of about fifty dollars in cash, it is learned.

Mr. Dawson thought it strange that thieves could have worked in the garage as they did without being detected by someone while in the act, as he stated he is in the habit of leaving the lights on all night and the place is almost "as light as day."

competing with many foreign countries and the Dominions. In order that the British farmer may get a higher price for these dairy by-products it was proposed a year ago that a quota should be established restricting imports from the Dominions and other countries.

The chairman of the British Milk Marketing Board was sent last year to New Zealand to discuss the possibility of such restrictions. In a letter received here the chairman of the British Board has suggested that an Empire conference of dairy farmers would be very helpful.

Bonus to Producers.

It is suggested that the proceeds from the proposed levy on dairy imports into Great Britain be distributed among the British farmers as a bonus on their production. We have been in correspondence for months with the other Dominions about this matter.

Mr. Plunkett, chairman of the Australian Dairy Produce Board, is in England at present to deal with this question. I have asked him to consult with Mr. Baxter, the chairman of the British Board, and if he thinks it advisable it was suggested that he issue a call from London for an Empire conference.

If the British levy is put into effect as it has been proposed it will be more than is actually necessary, as the number of dairy farmers in Great Britain is quite small as compared with the number in Canada and the other Dominions, whose exports would have to pay this levy. It would seem that a considerably smaller levy should be recommended, and this is one of the subjects that would be discussed at the proposed conference.

Blow To Canadian Cheese.

Such a levy would be a serious blow to the cheese industry of Canada which has been declining rapidly for a number of years. It would probably divert a lot of milk from our cheese factories to the creameries, and bring about an increased surplus of butter here."

Mr. Cowan said that two-thirds of Canada's output of cheese is exported. Last year's price was only ten cents a pound and if a British levy cut the returns to the Canadian producer to eight cents a pound, obviously it would impose a serious loss of revenue to this branch of the Canadian dairy industry.

Lesson From the War.

Expressing a personal opinion to The Examiner to-day, Mr. Cowan remarked that it was surprising how British sentiment had swung within a comparatively few years from the long established free trade policy to the present protective and pooling systems, which have created entirely new and constructive conditions for the British dairy farmer.

Behind the Old Country's attitude toward its primary producers, Mr. Cowan said, was probably a lesson impressed on the British people during the war. The menace of the airplane to their seaborne commerce and to their supplies of foodstuffs, indicated the necessity of developing their domestic production of food commodities, and thereby decrease the country's dependence on foreign supplies in any emergency that might occur by becoming more self-sustaining.

being headed "Sermon by an ex-Religious."

The claim of the defence blasphemy could not be alleged except where Christ of Christianity as a whole was attacked under the English common law was dismissed by the court. His lordship quoted a textbook on libel and slander to show "It is the malicious intent to insult the religious feelings of others by profanely scoffing at all they hold sacred, which deserves and receives punishment." He also named a number of cases in the English courts as jurisprudence for his judgment.

"Is the language used calculated and intended to insult the feelings and the deepest religious convictions of the great majority of persons amongst whom we live?" he asked, quoting from a case in Canadian law.

"If so, they are not to be tolerated and we must not do things that are outrageous to the general feeling of propriety among the persons amongst whom we live."

Quoting from the published placard, Judge Perrault declared the language used was "offensive and injurious to Roman Catholics and of such a nature that they could lead to a breach of the peace."

He said the English common law relative to blasphemous libel has greatly changed with the centuries and doctrine and jurisprudence have attached themselves rather to the intention of the author and to the terms used in the writing rather than to the actual subject treated.

"It may be well understood," he told the crowded courtroom, "that there is no question here of religious doctrine but solely of a legal question, to wit: The application of article 198 of the criminal code."

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why external remedies as applied to sore and painful Piles are only local in effect and do not reach to true circulatory cause?

Why Piles may "come back" even after a first removal by cutting?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts lifeless?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for itching, bleeding or protruding Piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt, known as HEM-ROID and sold with your money back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by relieving congested circulation and helps to heal and restore the sore surfaces.

HEM-ROID is so successful in even the most stubborn cases that Mcdermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store and other good druggists advise every sufferer to get a bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets to-day—take them as directed—then if not completely satisfied with results — your money back.

CITY OF LONDON DONS GALA GARB FOR THE JUBILEE

Public Monuments on Line of Royal Procession Are Scrubbed, Polished.

SEATS HIDE CHURCHES.

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 25 (C.P. Cable)—London is rapidly completing her gala dress for the silver jubilee of the King's accession to the throne.

All public monuments on the route of the Royal procession for the great thanksgiving service at St. Paul's Cathedral on May 6 are undergoing an exceptional scrubbing and polishing. The great cross above the dome of St. Paul's has been given a new gilt coating, as have the "pineapples" adorning the cathedral's western tower.

That extraordinary monument marking the site of temple bar, where the King will receive the "city" sword from the Lord Mayor, has had a thorough washing down although it is beyond the ability of anyone to make this memorial beautiful or even intelligible.

Many Features Hidden

Unfortunately for some of the visitors who may not have seen London before, is the fact in the general overhaul many of London's most attractive features have been temporarily obliterated. The great Gothic pile of the law courts, for instance, is well nigh hidden behind the stands erected for spectators, as are the two churches of St. Clement's and St. Mary's, standing picturesquely like islands in the middle of the Strand.

If the seats are taken as eagerly as the promoters anticipate, both churches however will reap more in ticket money than perhaps in a year's offertories

The Mall, that gracious processional way from Buckingham Palace, has the appearance of something like Wembley Stadium with the tiers of seats. Several clubs in Pall Mall offer members a seat at the window with breakfast or luncheon for five guineas apiece—about $25. But 15 guineas—$75—without refreshments is quoted for "window accommodation for four or five" in St. Paul's Churchyard, where the arrival of their Royalties and the accompanying ceremonies may be viewed.

SITS BY FIRE WITH SHAWL, CAT IMPERSONATING DEAD WOMAN

Accused Pretended Aunt Was Alive to Collect Her Annuity

HE OBTAINED $1,775

A story of an aged woman who had been dead six months being impersonated by another in order that money could be obtained under a will was told at Marylebone police court recently.

A nephew of a beneficiary under the will, Wilfred Benshaw Graeme, 46, confectioner, of Hamstel Rd., Southchurch, Southend-on-Sea, and Mrs. Jennie Elizabeth Larkin, 52, of Barthlomew Rd., Kentish Town, were charged with obtaining $1,775 by false pretences from the National Provincial Bank, stealing, or obtaining by fraud $500 from the bank; and with conspiring with others, between September, 1933, and March, 1935, to obtain money from the bank by fraud.

G. D. Roberts, prosecuting for the bank, who are the executors under the will, said it was alleged that Graeme and Larkin, in order to defraud the bank, pretended that Mrs. Elizabeth Constantine was living in the autumn of 1933, whereas she died in February, 1933.

The Substitute

They actually went to the length, he said, of putting forward an old woman as Mrs. Constantine.

They got the woman to fix her mark to a certain document and by that deception obtained from the bank $2,375, which had been left to Mrs. Constantine by a man named Overall.

Mr. Overall had taken an interest in Mrs. Constantine, an elderly widow in poor circumstances, and had given her sums of money. When he died he bequeathed her an annuity and a sum of $500. In fact, Mrs. Constantine had predeceased her benefactor by six months.

The bank made efforts to trace Mrs. Constantine. Graeme received a letter from the bank and he replied that his aunt was too ill to answer correspondence.

In December, 1933, a representative of the solicitors went to an address at Worthing to get Mrs. Constantine's receipt for the legacy, and to get her consent to a suggestion by Graeme that she should receive a capital sum instead of a annuity.

The Old Woman By the Fire

"They were admitted to the house by Graeme," said counsel. "Graeme said, 'My aunt is very seedy to-day, but she is just well enough to make her mark.'

"There was an old woman sitting by the fire wearing a white cap on her head and with a black cat at her feet. Graeme said, 'This is my aunt.'

"The woman had the position explained to her by the solicitor and was given a document to sign. She made her mark, and as a result two sums of $1,925 and $500 were handed to Graeme on behalf of Mrs. Constantine.

Graeme was arrested, continued Mr. Roberts, and he made a statement admitting his guilt. It was stated that he got in touch with Mrs. Larkin and asked her to make up as the old woman and impersonate her, but she refused to do that and said that she could produce the necessary old woman who had a slight resemblance to Mrs. Constantine.

PLAN TREASURE HUNT ON BOTTOM OF OCEAN

To Salvage Gold, Silver From Vessels Sunk Off the Irish Coast

Cork.—A great hunt for sunken treasure around the coasts of Great Britain and Ireland is to be organized during the next few months.

A message from Genoa said that the salvage company whose ship, the Artiglio, salved $5,000,000 worth of gold from the liner Egypt, had made important contracts with European companies.

The first attempt will probably be made on the hulk of the steamer Lyra, which was sunk in November, 1917, with a large cargo of aluminum and other metals.

Two salvage ships, the Artiglio and the Arpioni, spent weeks off the south coast of Ireland a year ago. Divers made many descents, and several wrecks were located.

One was that of the Harrison liner, Spectator, which was torpedoed in 1917. Great secrecy about their plans was maintained by the Italians, but it was believed that the wreck of the Luisitania was not far from the Spectator.

The sea-bed off Cork is littered with dozens of wrecks, and millions of pounds' worth of gold, silver, copper, and other valuables are in them.

The new contracts mark the most ambitious attempt ever made to recover these vast stores of sunken wealth.

Plans are being made for raising some of the ships; others will be cut open at the bottom of the sea.

"Peter Pan Won't Be Lonely," says Woman Taking Him Home

Barnstaple.—Peter Pan, a donkey which has been at Barnstaple (N. Devon) Poor Law Institution for nearly 50 years, is to retire.

It was stated at a meeting of the Guardians' committee that Miss O. Chichester had offered a sanctuary for the animal.

In her letter she pointed out that she had another donkey, "so that Peter Pan would not be lonely."

GIRL IS TO BRING UP WORLD'S RICHEST MAN

Grandson of Nizam of Hyderabad To Be "Englishman"

Warkworth.—Miss Elinor Lamb, a young Englishwoman from Warkworth, Northumberland, has been chosen to be governess of a boy who will one day be the richest man in the world.

She has been selected by a special board, appointed by the Nizam of Hyderabad, to bring up his grandson as an English boy.

This boy is the son and heir of the Crown Prince of Hyderabad, who four years ago married the beautiful daughter of the last Sultan of Turkey and Caliph of Islam. The ex-Caliph lives at Nice.

In Hyderabad, where she will go with the young boy, she will live in a palace in a lake. She will be guarded night and day by armed sentries.

She will be treated as the lady of the household. Military honors will be given her.

SICK WOMAN STARVES FOR HER DOG FRIEND

Dog Does the Shopping—No License Brings the Police

Blackpool.—An invalid woman, who was stated to have starved herself to provide food and a license for a cross-bred dog which did all her shopping and ran errands for her, was summoned at police court for keeping the dog without a license.

A local solicitor defended her for nothing, a canine association offered to pay any fine, and when the summons was dismissed on payment of costs the chief constable paid them.

Miss Kathleen Alma Hutchinson was stated to be a young woman who was injured three years ago in a road accident. She had never left her home since.

"Her dog does the shopping," said her solicitor. "Miss Hutchinson puts a note of her requirements in a bag, and sends the dog to the shop for the goods."

The chief constable said that when inquiries were made at the house there was no fire, and Miss Hutchinson kept herself warm by wrapping in a blanket. She was practically a skeleton.

She had since purchased the license out of her rent money.

Miss Hutchinson said:

"He is a wonderful dog, a cross between a spaniel and a collie, and I do not know what I should do without him.

"I have practically gone without food for as long as six weeks so that he should have the best that he deserves."

BEATS BROADWAY

Woman Leaves Legacy For Lights After Son's Fatal Accident

London.—The most lighted street in the world is Prince Consort Rd., a short wide street running behind the Royal Albert Hall.

A young man was killed by a horse-carriage in Prince Consort Rd. nearly fifty years ago.

The coroner told the mother that the accident had been partly due to the bad lighting in the road.

When she died the mother left money to the local parish so that the road should be endowed with lamps every few yards on each side.

COUNTESS SMUGGLES FROCKS FROM PARIS

Mother of Two Forced to Work—Arrested on First Trip

London.—A fine of $5,000 was imposed at Westminster court on a French countess for evading customs duties.

She admitted that she had brought the clothes to sell in this country on a commission basis, on which she was to receive five per cent.

Walter Frampton, defending, said: "This lady is the daughter of very distinguished parents, but, like many distinguished and titled parents, they have fallen in circumstances.

"The father held positions under the French government, but he has nothing now but a small pension, and he has a son a confirmed invalid.

"The countess married in 1920 and her husband has suffered severely in the matter of finances.

"He was a bookseller, but, owing to the depression in that trade, he lost his employment and for two or three years has been out of work. There are two children, a boy of 13, and a girl of ten.

"The countess found she was compelled to seek work herself. In March she obtained a post with Madame Franck, a Russian, who had a dressmaking business in Paris."

Madame Franck sent the countess to England. She told her what she was to do, and gave her a list of people whom she might see at a well-known west end hotel.

The countess was only given her fare and she was told that she must pay her own expenses out of any sale. She only earned by her efforts in that direction $12. That was all she got out of it.

"Madame Franck, having landed this lady in this position, has disappeared," said Mr. Frampton.

DOG FIGHT BRINGS DROWNING FOR TWO

Woman Pulled Into Thames, Her Rescuer Fails

London.—A dog-fight was the cause of an extraordinary double tragedy at Barnes, S.W., recently.

A woman who attempted to stop her dog from fighting was dragged by the infuriated animal into the Thames and drowned, and her fate was shared by a boy of 15 who had pluckily dived to the rescue.

The victims were: Mrs. Powell, aged 40, of Elm Bank-mansions, Barnes; Phillip Downs, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Downs, of First Ave., Mortlake.

Mrs. Powell was taking an evening stroll with her Airedale terrier when it became embroiled with a Cairn terrier in charge of Miss Kitson, of the Terrace, Barnes.

The animals fought their way to the edge of the bank, where they tumbled into the water, and Mrs. Powell, who was holding her dog by the collar, fell in after them. The dogs regained the bank, but Mrs. Powell was swept away from the bank and was helpless to save herself.

Miss Kitson, whose legs and hands had been badly bitten by the dogs, also fell in. She scrambled out and raised the alarm, and Phillip Downs, who happened to be passing, dived in without a moment's hesitation.

In her struggle for life Mrs. Powell caught hold of the boy, whose strength failed, and both went under.

Chester.—The ex-king of Siam, who abdicated on March 2 and is now known as Prajadhipok, Prince of Sukhodaya, has decided to live in England, and has bought Hangmoor, Virginia Water, Surrey, a house standing in 15 acres.

THE ODDEST JOB IN THE WORLD

That's what Peggy Robertshaw and C. Davies, of Liverpool, call their daily 12-mile walk in a new pair of shoes. They are shoe-testers. After the day's window shopping or just strolling, a policeman checks the pedometer and they become happy bed-testers; 3,000 miles a year!

WIDOW HANGS HERSELF WITH FIRST GIFT TO DEAD HUSBAND

Went to Honeymoon Suite—Wrote Dead Man Love Letter

"GONE 44 WEEKS"

Brighton.—A white silk scarf, a gorgeous Spanish shawl, and a faded cluster of white lilies—these pathetic relics placed in the Brighton mortuary bear mute testimony to a woman's fatal grief for the husband who killed himself less than a year ago.

Beside them lies the body, still clothed in mourning black, of Mrs. Helen Kempthorne, the tragic 28-years-old widow found hanging from the bathroom door of her suite in a fashionable sea-front hotel here.

In that hotel Mr. and Mrs. Kempthorne spent their honeymoon. The white silk scarf, by which she was found hanging, was her first gift to her husband. The multicolored shawl of heavy silk, which she had draped like a shroud around her, was his first present to her.

The faded lilies, pinned across her bosom, were bought from the same shop and were the same variety as those which she had placed on her husband's grave last May.

Financial Worry

H. W. Kempthorne, the husband, a well-known Sussex dog breeder, committed suicide at his home in Preston Rd., Brighton, following financial worries.

Her last act was to write a long love-letter to her dead husband recalling their great love. "It is 44 weeks since you went," one passage ran. "I have often made up my mind to join you. Now I am decided."

"She had her motor car painted black outside and white inside—in half-mourning, she said, for her husband," a friend stated.

Another friend told how recently she was dancing in the hotel in a beautiful evening dress. She was a very good dancer and did two tangos.

"Then, without any explanation, she disappeared from the ballroom, and when she came back half an hour later she had taken off the evening dress and was completely dressed in black.

SHAKE-UP IN POLICE SEEN—11 SUSPENDED

Called From Bed and Beats on Bookmaker Dealings

London.—Eleven sergeants and one police constable of the Metropolitan Police are suspended by Scotland Yard on charges of corruption in their dealings with bookmakers.

A secret board of inquiry is investigating.

Almost all the suspended officers are members of H Division—the headquarters of which is at Arbour Sq., Whitechapel, E.—and are serving at Lemon St. station.

This is the first occasion on which such a large number of senior officers have been suspended at the same time, although in 1929, 15 police constables at Marlborough St. were in the suspended list.

The present inquiry, ordered by Lord Trenchard, is probably the most remarkable ever held at Scotland Yard, because many of the men were taken from their "beats" or their beds to attend an all-night investigation of charges made against them.

MAN DIVORCES WIFE BUT DIDN'T TELL HER

Girls Impersonated Wife in Court—Husband Goes to Jail

Paris.—A wife twice impersonated by young women and divorced without her knowledge; a husband ruminating in his prison cell on the tangle into which a "divorce specialist" has led him.

They are the principals in a strange divorce drama revealed to a Paris court.

Several months ago Francois Tonchet decided to divorce his wife, but lacked the courage to tell her so.

The "divorce specialist" came to his aid with a plan which worked perfectly—for a time. It was arranged that a young woman should stay at the wife's house so as to intercept the court summons ordering her to return to her husband.

This was accomplished, and the matter went to court, where the wife was impersonated by a second young woman and the decree was granted.

A few weeks later Tonchet married again. But, by this time his first wife got to hear of the affair, and her actions have resulted in Tonchet going to prison for six months, with the prospect of facing a charge of bigamy when he is released.

His "divorce specialist," who is thought to have left the country, was sentenced in his absence to 13 months' imprisonment.

POPULATION DECLINE THREATENS BRITAIN

Fewer Babies, Infant Mortality, Suicides, Reduces Gain of Longer Life

London.—Fewer British babies are being born than ever before. Seven years hence there will be more deaths than births.

In 1967 the population of these islands will be 2,000,000 fewer than now—unless something unforeseen happens.

The decline in births is especially marked in middle-class homes.

There is a rapid increase in the number of old people. The average age of the population is increasing. We are living longer than did our forefathers.

One hundred and nine centenarians died in 1932; ninety-four were women.

Twenty-five per cent. more men than women died.

Overcrowding and lack of sunshine are killing babies in the industrial towns of northern England.

Cancer and maternal mortality are increasing.

Suicide fashions are changing; the number of suicides is increasing, owing to the use of narcotic and other pain-destroying drugs.

Nineteen of twenty-three other countries which completed population records for 1932 showed increases. France's poulation will begin to decline next year. Germany's in 1946, the United States' in 1960.

COUNCIL INTERRUPTED

The London county council meeting was recently briefly interrupted by a man in the public gallery, who shouted some unintelligible remark about the silver jubilee and threw a bundle of leaflets into the council chamber before being ejected.

OUR BULLETS KILLED BRITONS SAYS VICKERS STOCK-HOLDER

Urged to Treat Armament Critics "With Contempt They Deserve"

IS "NOT A CHARITY"

London.—Shareholders of Vickers Ltd. figured in dramatic scenes at the company's annual general meeting recently, when a battery of questions regarding armament activities was fired at the chairman, General Sir Herbert Lawrence. At one point Major Marston reminded the meeting that at Gallipoli, where both he and the chairman had served, British soldiers were killed by bullets manufactured by their own company.

"I want a reassurance that that will not occur again," said Major Marston.

Later, when Miss Eleanor Rathbone, M.P., was expressing the view that the annual meeting was the only opportunity for shareholders to obtain accurate information, another shareholder shouted: "Why don't you sell your shares?"

Finally there was a sharp passage of arms between two members of the House of Lords.

The Earl of Listowel had obtained an admission from the chairman that a copy of evidence given before the McKinnon-Wood inquiry in 1918 would be available for the new armaments commission.

Refused Information

Afterwards, in moving the vote of thanks, the Earl of Dudley made a direct reference to the questions regarding arms raised by Lord Listowel and other Labor peers in the House of Lords and elsewhere.

"In view of the commission now sitting, I hope we shall treat them with the contempt they deserve," he exclaimed.

"Nothing could possibly be wrong with Vickers so long as a man like Sir Herbert Lawrence is at our head.

"What we have to remember is that this is a business and not a government department or a philanthropic institution."

Other shareholders wanted to know the proportion between Vickers armaments and ordinary commercial production and the extent and activities of subsidiary companies abroad; and Miss Vera Brittain and several others demanded that a statement should be issued dispelling doubts that have arisen as the result of disclosures at the United States' Senate inquiry.

But none of the shareholders received much satisfaction from the chairman, who, "in view of the pending inquiry in this country," considered it inappropriate to give information which later would be presented to the commission.

Clergy Sells Out

"As the shareholders know," he said, "profits during the last fifteen years have been meagre."

Two disclosures, however, he did make. "At Sheffield," he announced, "the production of commercial goods and armaments is in the rough proportion of 70 to 30."

And elsewhere, he admitted, the proportion is 50-50.

The only other announcement was made by a priest, who attended the meeting specially to state that the clergy pensions institution had sold its holding in the company following last year's general meeting.

"They've lost a good investment," commented the chairman.

FLOOD OF MOLASSES

London.—While a large truck was travelling along the Great North Road, North Finchley, N., recently, the valve at the back was wrenched off, 2,000 gallons of molasses flowed down the road. Traffic was held up for over an hour.

SENTIMENT TRIUMPHS IN BIG DONKEY WAR

80-Year-Old Continues to Hold Sands Franchise

London.—Ramsgate's Battle of the Donkeys ended in victory for 80-year-old John Todd, the donkeyman.

For two hours the town council discussed Todd's new offer for the famous donkey pitch on the Ramsgate sands.

The members' job was not easy.

Against John's first offer of $250 for the first year, $275 for the second, and $300 for the third, his nephew had bid a straight $650 a year for a three-year permit.

This proposal led to a free fight in the council chamber between rival donkeymen supporters. In the end the meeting broke up in disorder and all Ramsgate began taking sides.

A thousand ratepayers signed a petition in John's favor. . . . The old man was called before the council. He put his case and nephew Todd withdrew his $650 offer.

An the old man will go on for another three years taking thousands of young holiday - makers donkey riding on Ramsgate sands.

USED SUICIDE THREATS TO WIN WOMEN'S LOVE

Brilliant Colonial Office Don Juan Finally Took Too Much

London.—An extraordinary story of two previous attempts at suicide to attract the attention of a woman with whom he was in love, and of desperate telephone calls from Paris threatening to kill himself because the woman had not met him there, was told at the Westminster inquest on Desmond Charles Joseph McSweeney, aged 31, a high colonial office official, of Kilburn Priory, Kilburn, N.W.

McSweeney died in Charing Cross hospital from the effects of an overdose of dial (a drug of the barbituric group). The coroner described him as "as exhibitionist—a man who wanted to attract attention and get sympathy to himself."

Mrs. Phyllis Elizabeth McSweeney of Kildare Gardens, Bayswater, S.W., said she had divorced McSweeney and the decree would have been made absolute in April. He was hoping to marry another girl.

Mr. Oddie: "Was there any suicide in the family?" "Yes, his mother committed suicide."

Miss Margaret R. Davies of Romney St., Westminster, a friend of McSweeney since last August, said that during the week before last he was in a nursing home for colitis for a few days and afterwards appeared to be suffering from depression. On Friday, Feb. 22, he went to Paris to see a woman friend, and while there telephoned to her, giving her the impression he was going to commit suicide.

Failed to Turn Up

Mr. Oddie: "Did he say why?" "Because his friend had not turned up."

Miss Davies said she was alarmed and went to Paris in the company of a woman friend and brought McSweeney back on Sunday, Feb. 24.

On the following day she had luncheon with him and he seemed rather better. She left him about 9 p.m., but about half an hour later he rang up and his mood seemed such that she thought she had better go back to his club. He then told her he had taken 24 tablets of dial and she took him to hospital.

Dr. Lawrence Jacobs of Maida Vale, W., said he attended McSweeney in March and June of last year for two attempts at suicide by taking narcotic drugs.

Mr. Oddie: "He admitted it?" "He did not admit suicide intent."

"He took a large enough dose to be unconscious and so alarm his relatives?" "Yes, but not complete unconsciousness, just a stupor."

"To attract attention?" "Yes, in each case the attention of a particular woman."

Dr. Jacobs added that McSweeney had bouts of drinking pretty heavily under any mental strain.

ARMS AND DRUG RACKETEERS BASE ACTIVITIES AT ANTWERP

Both League and Government Orders Openly Flouted By Merchants of Death

DRUGS IN PEACE

Antwerp.—Antwerp has become one of the great centres of the international arms racket. During the Greek revolt many thousands of pounds' worth of arms and munitions were consigned from this port to Crete for the rebels.

A high officer of the Belgian customs and excise department said how the League of Nations and individual governments are being openly flouted by gun and munition runners who are backed by big business, and use Antwerp as a collecting centre for illicit consignments of arms.

"We are absolutely powerless to prevent them," he said.

10,000 Men Needed

"To break up this international racketeering we should need 10,000 men in every port doing nothing but inspecting the scores of thousands of consignments of merchandise which pass through the quays every week."

One of the men who have been engaged in arranging supplies of arms for the Greek rebels is now wanted by the Antwerp police. He is a Jew from the Baltic states who has failed to register as an alien. He has been suspected of being engaged in the drug traffic, and is typical of those who are causing so much concern to the port authorities.

The customs officer said that in many instances those who are engaged in gun running are also cocaine and opium smugglers.

Revert to Drugs

When the drug business is slack, and rebellion, or a small war, breaks out they turn to the arms racket. When this business is exhausted they revert to drugs.

Machine-gun parts have been consigned as "sewing machines," or simply as "machinery."

"The international agreements respecting arms exports are evaded quite easily," said the customs officer.

"It is necessary to obtain a license to export arms or war material from Belgium to Paraguay, Bolivia, Arabia, Georgia, Armenia, Persia, Algeria, Tripoli, the Union of South Africa and some neighboring islands.

"With these exceptions arms can be sent from here to any country in the world freely. Moreover, the export license system itself can be evaded.

"For example, some time ago a consignment of arms for Brazil came through the Antwerp customs from a town in Belgium. The declaration forms were all in order, and there was no reason for holding them up.

"Those arms found their way to Chaco front. There was trouble about it, but the customs were powerless to do anything. The arms were consigned to Brazil quite properly, and then diverted to Chaco illegally. Had we held up that consignment we should have been liable to pay damages.

Search Impossible

"Furthermore, by international agreement we cannot interfere with arms in transit. Provided the usual declaration papers are in order, we have no right to interfere, so that arms may be sent here for transhipment, and we have no control over them.

"If arms are taken to pieces and packed as machinery it is difficult for our people to detect them.

"If we could search every corner of these docks to-day we might find hundreds, or even thousands, of cases of arms, or armament parts, disguised as sewing machines or just as machinery in transit.

"But such a search could not be made with our present staff."

TEMPLE OF HEAVEN NOW A RACE TRACK

Peiping Wanted Tourists — Find Use For Historic Plot

Peiping. — The famous Temple of Heaven here is being turned into a track for horse racing.

The mayor of Peiping inspected the grounds, filled with cedar trees, which surround the Temple and Altar of Heaven, and decided that it would make a good race track.

The object of this innovation is to attract tourists to the city.

The Temple of Heaven is one of the best-known buildings in China. When its use as a temple was discontinued, a part of the temple grounds became a place of execution for criminals.

TOILS 30 YEARS UNDER OLD DEATH SENTENCE

Hanging Date Never Arrived For Negro Slayer

Lansing. — For 30 years William Quinn, 51-year-old negro, has been held in the Kansas state prison under a sentence of death on the gallows. Now he knows he will never hang.

Following his conviction for murder in Wyandotte county in 1905 it was stipulated that he work a year at hard labor before his execution. He went to work in the prison coal mine.

The execution date arrived and Governor Edward W. Hock chose not to sign the death warrant. Later on the legislature abolished capital punishment. Quinn continued to work at hard labor.

In the intervening years the convict learned to toot a horn and won himself a place in the prison band.

The present legislature re-established the death penalty for murder, but even such action will not result in the horn-tooting negro's march to the scaffold. The law is not retroactive.

SPY'S TEETH CAVITIES HID PRIZED SECRETS

Pretty Woman Dentist Confesses She "Filled" With Plans, Photos

Paris.—The revelation that hollow teeth had been used to hide microscopic photographs of secret documents and plans stolen from the French war office was made here recently.

Mlle. Riva Davidovici, a beautiful young Roumanian woman dentist, disclosed the secret at the resumed trial of 34 people accused of espionage against France.

"Mlle. Docteur," as the judge called her, said that her function in the spy gang was to fill cavities in the teeth of Mrs. Marjorie Switz, the American daughter of an English taxicab driver, and one of the chief accused, with temporary stoppings containing microscopic photographs of the stolen plans.

Mme. Salaman, another dentist, also accused of being a member of the gang, had, according to Mlle. Davidovici, filled the teeth of Mlle. Mermet, who is alleged to have been the photographic expert of the gang.

The women's teeth had proved highly successful caches for the photographs, and it was only the confession of Mrs. Switz, long after her capture, that led to their discovery.

M. Millice, an official of the French air ministry, described how, by means of a letter of recommendation, he had been tricked into showing Gordon Switz, Marjorie's husband, plans of the latest French aeroplanes and machine-guns.

It is expected that the Switzes, on whose confession the prosecution has relied mainly for its evidence, will be released at the end of the trial, the sixteen months they have already spent in prison being deemed sufficient punishment.

MAROONED ON TROPIC ROCK FAMISHED COLONY EAT RATS

Four Starve, Drown or Die of Disease Before Succor Arrives

COMPANY IS SUED

Paris.—How starvation, disease and that Old Devil Sea took the lives of four out of the eight French colonists left on the volcanic island of Saint Paul, off the coast of Madagascar, was revealed in court here when over $2,000 was awarded one of the survivors—a woman who gave birth to a baby during the nine-month ordeal under the boiling tropical sun.

Widows of the victims received about $2,300 while men survivors got $700 each.

The trouble began when a French company established a lobster fishing industry on the sun-scorched rock, with a canning plant capable of handling 28,000 lobsters a day.

The depression, combined with a fire which destroyed the food stores, ended the project, and the steamer Austral was sent to bring back the workmen to France.

Six men and a married couple were left behind, although the woman was an expectant mother. The men were to take care of what was left of the factory, and the ship was to return to the island with food in three months.

Three pigs, four rabbits, eight goats, a little barley, some dried beans, some preserved vegetables, tinned food, and four bottles of wine comprised their reserve of food.

There is no vegetation on the island. The party ate penguins and even rats to ward off starvation.

Men began to die from scurvy.

One man kept a diary. In it he wrote:

"Victor Le Brunou sighed his last at 7 p.m. He was unable to see clearly for several minutes before the end. He asked us to help him on to a chair. We did so. His eyes wandered unseeingly. We saw it was the end.

"Then he gasped, and his wife started to weep. He could still hear us, however, for sounds escaped his lips and tears dropped from his eyes. He succeeded in pronouncing two words which we could hardly understand. They were 'Not yet!' He did not wish to die. He wanted to live to go on board the Austral."

The infant which was born in these terrible surroundings survived only two months. One man in desperation set out in a rowboat and was never seen again.

When finally the Austral anchored off the island, months too late, they found three men and a woman, half-crazy and in a state of extreme emaciation.

They could not speak. They merely pointed to a row of graves.

THOUGH HOUSE AFIRE GOES ON WITH SALE

Inspector Is Startled in Midst of Negotiations

Seattle, Wash.—Fire Inspector John Reid drove into a service station near Vaughn, Wash., and asked the attendant for a new fan belt.

The mechanic promptly put down a bucket of water he was carrying to his house in back of the station, got a piece of string, measured the fan belt with the string, went back and got a new fan belt, found it was too big, went back and got another fan belt and began fitting it in.

Then, just as he had nearly completed the job, he turned to Reid and said: "I'm sorry, mister, but this will have to wait. My house is on fire!"

Fire Inspector Reid, startled, followed him to the house, from which flames were billowing. Together the two men put out the blaze.

The attendant explained later that he "hated to lose a sale."

WIDOW WITH PENSION FINDS 'DEAD' HUSBAND

Soldier Loses Memory—Turns Up From India

Cambridge.—A 70-year-old woman told a dramatic story recently of how the husband whom she had mourned as dead since the war, and whose name is on the memorial of the parish church, returned to her during the week-end.

She is Mrs. Edith Edwards of Fulbourn, and since her husband was reported missing in India after the armistice she has received a widow's pension of $8.75 a week from the military authorities.

"I was sitting quietly at home when there came a knock on the door," Mrs. Edwards explained. "I opened it and found my sister-in-law, who said, 'Here's brother Bill, Edith.'

"There, standing at her side, was my William. You can imagine what a shock it was just to open the door and find him there after all these years.

"He suffered from loss of memory in India and is complaining of his head and does not remember much of what happened."

Mrs. C. Holland, the sister, living at Cambridge, never believed that her brother was dead.

"I have been dreaming about him lately," she said, "and I was able to describe all the clothes he was wearing before I met him. I had seen him coming back and knew my little dog would not let him in. That is exactly what happened."

TEXAS JUSTICE, WIFE ARE SLAIN BY 20-YEAR SON

Youth Confesses Crime After Nine Hours of Grilling.

"REVENGE" MURDER.

Shoots Self in Arm Then Tells Story of Battle With Highwaymen.

AUSTIN, Tex., April 25.—(AP)—Charged with the murder of his parents, Howard Pierson, 20-year-old son of William Pierson, associate justice of the Texas supreme court, was reported today by officers to have admitted the crime.

Deputy Sheriff Sam Rogers quoted the former University of Texas student as saying he had lured his parents out on a lonely road and shot them because he wanted "revenge." Rogers said the youth refused to explain what he meant by "revenge."

Justice Pierson and Mrs. Pierson were shot and killed last night while they were driving about 15 miles west of here. Howard, who had been wounded in the arm, first reported they were killed by two highwaymen who opened fire after he and his father attempted to resist them.

Sheriff Lee Allen, who filed the complaint against the youth, said the case, including the motive, was cleared and that he had at his disposal a witness who knew of plans for the double slaying before it occurred.

Out On Scenic Drive

After deputy sheriffs announced he had confessed, Pierson told newspapermen he shot his parents to death late yesterday on a country road about 15 miles from Austin where he had lured them on the protext of viewing a scenic drive.

First he shot his mother, he said, then his father, then he sent a bullet through the head of each "to make sure they were dead."

Next he shot himself in the left arm, concealed his father's watch and purse, his own purse, the .38 calibre revolver and a pasteboard box containing eight discharged cartridges in bushes several miles away, and returned to Austin with a story two robbers had perpetrated the crime.

Subsequently, after nine hours grilling, he led officers to the place where he had hidden the watch, purses, pistol and box, all of which were recovered.

by LISBETH

Soft, sheer fabrics fashion the formal frocks for spring and summer, replacing the velvets, satins and crepes, and even putting the popular taffeta in the shade. The latter has, however, merely transferred the seat of its activities, not abandoned them, for it is the material of which many of the smartest of the daytime costumes are made, coats as well as dresses and suits.

Ruffles and airy puffs are the details of many of these "party" dresses, or slim, clinging lines. The more youthful version is shown, left, in a frock of black and white mousseline de soie, with red velvet ribbon sash and a big red velvet poppy at the waistline in front. A matching red velvet purse with a jeweled clasp, a three-strand string of pearls and a pearl and rhinestone bracelet are the accessories worn with this dress.

Flower Printed Chiffon

The dinner dress at right is a flower printed black chiffon over a pink slip. The flowers are cut out and appliqued to a black net yoke. The belt of black velvet ribbon with a loop and two ends is caught by a jeweled buckle.

The two hats shown center are top, a shallow model of black onion skin straw with a rolled brim jutting forward like the prow of a boat. It is trimmed with a band and chou of black velvet ribbons. Notice the diamond and sapphire bar pin which holds the wide, crisp collar of the costume.

Navy blue Milan, a soft cuff of blue silk, a bouquet of velvet flowers and a veil tied at the back make the clever little hat shown below. It is a Lilly Dache model.

Most of the spring millinery is forward looking, with brims and trimming at the front.

3 WITCHCRAFT VICTIMS DIE

(CP) Two women and two men were held on murder charges to-day following the deaths of three brothers as the result of the alleged practice of witchcraft for the cure of influenza. Police claim the two couples induced the three brothers to submit to strange rites, including submersion in a river at midnight. the three brothers died of pneumonia.

JACKET COSTUME FOR LATE SPRING

Spring Fashions Reflect the Pleasant Influence in Nature.

Spring fashions reflect the peasant influence, but not in a too accurate sense. Fullness is used effectively, below shoulder yokes back and front, with a suggestion of gathered flounce at the back of the skirt above the kneeline. The resulting flattery is most satisfactory. Waistline, hips and shoulder look twice as slim by comparison.

Soft crepes, rough or smooth, can be dressy or not-so-dressy. It all depends on the degree of lingerie touches you crave. The simplest frock becomes quite a formal affair with a few dashes of lace and pleatings. You can add or subtract this confectionery according to your need — but even the most sedate spring frock needs a frivolous touch here and there. It's just the spirit of the season, and there isn't a thing you can do about it. Except enjoy it immensely.

Our English cousins would say that anything smart is 'swish.' Well you have to "swish" to be smart in Canada this spring. Why? Taffeta, of course. Than which there is no whicher! There is such a wide choice, you simply can't escape at least one version. Plain, striped, plaid checks, changeable, warp prints and so on and on. There are suits, jacket frocks, day time dresses. In fact, you might say, it's smart if it's taffeta.

Spring suits just about hold the centre of the stage at the moment, but sooner or later you will realize that spring sunshine is hinting about summer. Then you will need a bit less weight and warmth. The jacket costume is the answer. You preserve your suit silhouette smartly, and can discard your jacket with perfect ease when Old Sol gets really in earnest. For instance, a checked, striped or gayly printed top frock with dark skirt and matching jacket completes a very satisfactory costume. Minus the jacket you are still very sure of your chic.

McINTYRE—PRESTON.

KEENE, April 25.— (Examiner Correspondence.)— A very pretty Easter wedding took place at the Presbyterian Manse, Keene, Ont., Monday, April 22, when Ethel Maude, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. On their return Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre will reside at Norwich.

Block War Honor On Irish Graves

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, April 25 (C.P.)—County Clare board has refused a request by the Free State office of public works to allow memorial headstones bearing British regimental badges to be erected over the graves of ex-servicemen buried in the county.

Sean Hayes, a member of the board, said they had no grievances against any Irishmen who fought in the great war, because such men were led to believe they were fighting for the freedom of small nations including their own. They would like to honor such men, he said, but in doing so, objected to "any imperialistic symbol as these men were exploited by the British Empire." The other members of the board, governing body for cemeteries in the county, concurred.

Capt. V. E. Vesper, from the office of public works, unsuccessfully endeavored to persuade the board to change its mind. He said it was proposed to erect over every grave, not already marked by a private memorial, a headstone conforming with the standard design adopted by the war graves commission. The headstone would bear the regimental badge and particulars, together with a religious emblem if desired. The standard type had been erected all over the world, he said. In the Free State, he had dealt with 550 cemeteries and with one exception all had agreed.

Junior Farmers Will Receive Their Pigs on Saturday.

SHOW AT EXHIBITION.

Twenty boys who have joined this year's pig club, one of the junior farmer projects promoted by A. D. Runions, will receive their pigs on Saturday afternoon at Canada Packers plant.

This is "distribution day" for the junior farmers, each of whom is undertaking an investment in two pigs which they will take care of and exhibit in a special competition at the Peterborough Exhibition. This has been one of the minor features of the Exhibition for a number of years, designed to encourage a better breed of swine in this district and aso to demonstrate by experience the proper feedings of pigs.

Mr. Runions told The Examiner to-day that entries are still open for the four junior clubs which have been organized here. The Shorthorn calf club will form an exhibit at the Exhibition in August; the Holstein calf club will show at Norwood, and the foal club at Lakefield.

Farmers Need Rain

"Farmers in this section are beginning to feel the need of rain," Mr. Runions said. "The fall wheat isn't looking as well as everybody had hoped. It came through the winter in fairly good condition, with every promise of being a good crop, but there has been considerable damage done by the frosts during the Spring weeks.

The wheat in this locality looks better than in most places between here and London, but it may not turn out more than a fifty per cent. crop. Rain right now would be a great help. I saw some particularly good fields of wheat west of Strathroy. They were the best I saw in a recent trip to Western Ontario."

Museum Dedicated To Memory Of Twain

HANNIBAL, Mo., April 25 (A.P.).—Hannibal, itself a Mark Twain museum with its Cardiff hill, its cave, Jackson's Island and the Mississippi, to-day dedicated a museum to the memory of the humorist-philosopher.

Picking up the story of the life of the author, whose restless, impudent boyhood here needs no better museum than the town itself, the building contains more than 1,000 momentos of his career. A wheel from a river steamboat, on which he was the pilot, is among them.

Copies of early Hannibal newspapers, on which he was employed, recall how the 11-year-old Sammy hated school, made his mother promise to send him no more, and found employment as a printer's apprentice.

WEED ADVISERS OF THE COUNTY HEAR INSPECTOR

John D. McLeod of Toronto Addresses Township Weed Inspectors.

ONLY GRASSES TOLERATED.

Did Not Have Same Trouble With Weeds Along Roads Before Auto Came.

The golden rod, floral glory of the autumn countryside, has been proscribed as a noxious weed, John D. McLeod of Toronto, assistant director of the crops, seeds and weeds branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, told the weed inspectors of the county in a conference yesterday in the office of A. D. Runions, local representative of the Department.

Reeve Sam Buck of Asphodel, chairman, and Reeve W. A. Anderson of the Agricultural Committee of the county council, were present at the meeting which was adjourned at the lunch hour for an afternoon session.

The golden rod, the daisy and the other hardy flowering plants of the rural roadside have no merit in the weed inspectors' scheme of things, and Mr. McLeod's informal talk was simply a new appeal to the local inspectors to carry on the war of extermination more vigorously than ever this year.

Only the grasses are tolerated in the ideal of weedless husbandry, and in some communities road foremen and weed inspectors co-operate to plant grass seed along the roads as a means of combatting the weed menace. An inspector in Brighton Township turned his flock of fifty sheep into a side road where their close cropping proved the effectiveness of a natural method of attacking weeds that were once common in the days before the automobile put an end to highway pastures.

"We didn't have the same trouble with the weeds along the roads before the automobile came," Mr. McLeod said.

"I think we should discontue using the words weed inspector, and make it 'weed adviser.' The inspector's duty is to save trouble and not make trouble, and I think most people understand that to-day. He should be welcome to give advice and not orders. He should have good judgment, courtesy and common sense, and should of course have a thorough knowledge of all the weed seeds. Knowledge commands respect.

If we can get rid of the weeds on the roadsides, we are eliminating the source from which they are now blown on to adjoining farm lands. No weeds from fence to fence should be the ideal for every inspector to keep before him, and he should have the co-operation of everyone in the community."

Mr. McLeod said that some owners of threshing mills, fanning mills and seed cleaning plants were careless in their disposal of the weed seeds which remained in their machines. One thresher dumped the weed seeds from his mill on the side of the road, causing a little difficulty which the local inspector had to adjust as a warning to others. New legislation provided for the licensing of threshermen, and if they flagrantly failed to assist in the work of weed extermination their licenses could be revoked.

MILLBROOK MEETING APPROVES REV. G. E. EASTON APPOINTMENT

Report of M. and M. Committee Important Feature of Afternoon Session.

PLAN SPECIAL SERVICES.

MILLBROOK, April 25. (Examiner Correspondence).—Rev. S. A. Kemp, of Havelock, president of the Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church, occupied the chair at the regular session of ministers and lay delegates held in St. Andrew's church, Millbrook, on Tuesday, April 23, beginning at 9.30 a.m.

Important business occupied the full time of the morning and afternoon sessions, and among other items the call to the Rev. George S. Easton, M.A., of North Bay, to become the pastor of Trinity United Church, Peterborough, after June 30 of this year, was passed on, following detailed discussion, to the Settlement Committee of the conference for final action. The Bay of Quinte Conference convenes in St. Andrew's United Church, Peterborough, May 28 to June 2, of the current year.

An important feature of the afternoon session, which began at 2.30 with Rev. J. S. Ferguson of Keene, offering the opening prayer, was the presentation of the report of the M. and M. committee, Rev. A. E. Moorhouse chairman, making an explanatory outline of the meeting Presbytery of chairman and leaders, with the chairmen of the M. and M. fund of the five central conferences, which met in the Metropolitan church, Toronto, on April 9. The situation in connection with this fund, particularly from the financial viewpoint, was fully gone over, and as a result certain arrangements were agreed upon among these being the decision to observe the tenth anniversary of Church Union throughout the Dominion of Canada in a fitting manner, with thanksgiving as the dominant note, and a program being prepared to that end.

Services Requested

Special services in every church are requested for Sunday, June 9, and on June 10, in Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, a mass meeting will be held, which will be broadcast, and for which application must be made at an early date if reservations are required. This, however, will be but the beginning and not the end of the celebration, and the M. and M. finances making a supreme effort imperative, a thankoffering of $258,000 will be asked from the entire church over Canada. The several Presbyteries will carry on each, being asked to try and make the thankoffering fund 18 per cent of the givings for last year, same to be paid on June 9 if possible.

A booklet covering the blessings resulting from Union, and other relative material, is to be supplied to each minister that ready and correct information may be available for all congregations. Envelopes are also to be supplied for this special thankoffering fund, and Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies are to be asked to participate. The amount allocated to the Peterborough Presbytery is $2,762, and the report of the M. and M. committee, presented through its secretary, Rev. R. C. Miller, of Bridgenorth, was adopted clause by clause; they were as follows:

1.—We most heartily concur in the allocations suggested by the Conference M. and M. Committee at Toronto, on April 9, that we accept as the amount for the Presbytery for our thankoffering $2,762.

2.—That this amount be allocated as follows: Apsley, $15; Bethany, $60; Bridgenorth, $60; Cavan, $50; Frazerville $60; Hastings and Westwood, $110; Havelock, $70; Hiawatha, $15; Keene, $85; Lakefield, $160; Millbrook, $70; Norwood, $140; George Street, Peterborough, $470; Knox Church, $115; Mark Street, $70; St. Andrew's $470; St. James, $180; Trinity, $450; Pontypool, $15; Springville, $50; Warsaw, $50; Wesley, $25.

3.—That a letter be sent out immediately by the Presbytery to every charge with the signatures of the officers of the Presbytery to encourage the congregations to heartily support our recommendations, calling attention to the June 9 celebration, and to the special meeting in Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, on June 10, and encouraging them to respond generously to the thankoffering appeal, and the amount suggested.

4.—We as a Presbytery concur in the dates suggested by the Conference Executive for our autumn meeting of the Presbytery, and that we have a set hour for the address of the President, or his representative, on the theme, "The Significance of the Tenth Anniversary of Church Union."

Fellowship Visitation

5.—That this Presbytery send out deputations consisting of one minister and one layman to carry out a fellowship visitation of every charge, the details to be worked out by the M. and M. Committee and the Executive of the Presbytery, and to include the tenth anniversary celebration campaign on every charge for Christian Stewardship, missionary education, and a widened use of the duplex envelope.,

6.—As a Presbytery we support the proposed two-day Conference celebrations of the tenth anniversary of Church Union to be held at Belleville October 22-23.

7.—We again urge that all M. and M. treasurers send in whatever money they have on hand for this fund regularly—monthly if at all possible—and we urge the ministers to see that this is done.

8.—We suggest that the following groups be formed in our Presbytery for M. and M. purposes: 1—Millbrook, Bethany, Pontypool, Cavan, George Street, Peterborough; 2—Frazerville, Springville, Trinity and St. Andrew's, Peterborough; 3—Bridgenorth, Apsley, Wesley, Lakefield, Knox, and Mark Street, Peterborough; 4—Keene, Hastings and Westwood, Norwood, Warsaw, Havelock, St. James, Peterborough.

Lay delegates to Conference included: Apsley, S. Carr; Bethany, Ernest Beer; Bridgenorth, G. McIlmoyle; Cavan, Bruch Sharpe; Frazerville, Edmund Dawson; Hastings, Westwood, S. C. Warr; Havelock, Lucas Bradley; Keene, J. S. Henderson; Lakefield, A. E. Higgins; Millbrook, Wesley Brown; Norwood, J. G. Keefer; Peterborough, George Street, A. Stewart; Knox, A. McKenzie; Mark Street, Ernest Lillico; St. Andrew's, M. McNabb; St. James' J. H. Spence; Trinity, R. J. Kidd; Pontypool, Melville La Thangue; Warsaw, G. Garbutt; Wesley, John Harrison; Springville, M. Johnston; the extra six appointed were, George Street, H. G. Walker, W. H. Girven; St. Andrew's, G. Evans; Trinity, Osborne Smith; Norwood, William Forsyth; St. James', E. Kitney. Alternates: R. F. Downey, Dr. Middleton, Dr. Moir, W. Morrison, E. R. Wilson, J. H. Porter, Lakefield.

The Revs. A. E. Moorhouse, C. D. Daniel, E. M. Cooke, and Messrs. Morrison and Johnston was the committee named by the chair for the purpose of drafting the committees from the Presbytery for the Conference in May. The application for a change in pastoral relationships made by Rev. Frank Wootton was forwarded to the Settlement Committee for approval, on motion of Revs. J. E. J. Millyard and A. E. Moorhuse.

The Property Committee presented the request from Apsley for permission to lease a part of the parsonage property for use as a tennis court, and on motion this was granted. Rev. Dr. McLean and Alexander Stewart were elected to represent the Presbytery on the Conference Settlement Committee Reporting for the Pastoral Relations Committee Rev. Mr. McDonald of Knox Church brought in a recommendation which was carried: That we are pleased to hear a number of the ministers applying for entrance into the United Church so long as many of our own men are without any settled pastoral charge. The secretary, Rev. W. R. Archer of Lakefield, read one of such letters that had been received explanatory of the resolution brought in by the committee. The secretary also read a letter from Rev. Dr. T. Albert Moore, relative to any resolutions or memorials to be sent on to Conference from the Presbytery, and Rev. Dr. McLean and H. G. Walker were appointed a committee to deal with this matter.

The secretary was instructed to send a letter of condolence from the Presbytery to Mrs. H. W. L. Mahood who was recently bereaved through the death of her husband, the late Rev. Dr. Mahood, for some years past an active worker in the United Church at Peterborough, and outside points.

The committee on evangelism reported through Rev E. M. Cooke, recommending support of the movement for a Rural Life Sunday, with special services, an exchange of pulpits, and the use of a special program which may be procured from Rev. Manson Doyle, of the Department of Education, Toronto. This resolution was adopted. The executive was given power to act for the Presbytery in any emergent business which might arise between the present date and Conference; the Rev. C. D. Daniel was appointed chairman of the committee to deal with the question of further concessions to sectarian schools, the other members being Rev. E. M. Cook, Rev. J. S. Ferguson, M. Johnston and A. Stewart, same to report to the Presbytery at its June meeting.

The invitation to hold the June organization meeting at Round Lake, three miles north and east of Havelock, was accepted, and the next meeting of the Presbytery will be at 3.15 p.m. at St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, before conference opens its sessions on Tuesday, May 28, or at the call of the chair should need arise for any gathering previous to that date.

The Brotherhood Committee reported on the request from the Conference Committee asking a levy of one-half of one percent from ministers and one percent from congregations, to provide an insurance fund from which reimbursement in case of sickness in a minister's family might be made after deducting the first $25 from the bill; also in cases where the minimum salary has not been received to reimburse the minister as far as possible; brought in a resolution which was carried stating that there should be no obligation to be assessed for this fund, but that members should be free to use their best discretion in the matter. Any moneys received are remitted through the Presbytery treasurer to the similar officer of the Conference.

Those in attendance at the Presbytery sessions were: Rev. W. R. Archer, G. E. Garbutt, Lakefield; W. H. Girvin, R. F. Downey, Rev. W. McDonald, J. E. Morrison, Rev. C. D. Daniel, A. Stewart, Rev. A. H. Going, Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, W. G. [illegible], W. R. F. Wade, Inspector Clapp, Rev. Dr. McLean, J. S. Henderson, Rev. F. M. Wootton, J. H. Spence, Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, of Peterborough; Rev. A. S. Cleland, Norwood; Wesley Brown, A. L. Sisco, Millbrook; Rev. R. W. Patton, Bethany; Rev. S. S. Miller, Bridgenorth; G. Walker, Peterborough; Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, Warsaw; G. McIlmoyle, Lakefield; Rev. H. P. L. Seymour, Melville Johnston, Springville; Rev. E. M. Cook, Frazerville; Rev. J. R. Trumpour, Cavan, Rev. E. M. Joblin, Wesley.

The Woman's Association of St. Andrew's church served dinner in the basement at the noon hour, and before Presbytery was dismissed with the blessing pronounced by Rev. Dr. McLean, a hearty vote of thanks to the pastor, the church officials, and all others niterested, was passed and endorsed with warm applause.

Magistrate's Court

"Give me a break, please. This is the summer time and I don't like being in gaol in the summer. Let me go and I'll leave this town and not come back for at least a year."

Such was the vain plea which a transient made to Magistrate E. A. Gee before whom he appeared this morning on a charge of drunkenness. The defendant, who described himself as Archie Fortune, not only received the option of a $10.00 fine, or ten days, but was treated to a stern lecture by the cadi, who deplored the fact that unemployed men could find money to spend on intoxicating liquor.

George Rogers, another transient who was not only drunk but begging, according to Chief Constables Newhall, was similarly dealt with by the bench.

"You will have some place in which to eat and sleep for the next ten days at least," the Magistrate remarked, "and when you get out you would be well advised to seek some employment and get back to living like decent human beings."

William Jones of Toronto, who was described in court as "a cheque artist," was remanded for a week when he pleaded "not guilty" to a charge of vagrancy.

Find $100,000 In Rusty Safe

LEEDS, England, April 25 (C. P.)—The will of a woman who died leaving $35,000 largely in small house property, and then after her death was found to have hidden $100,000 in notes in an old rusty safe in her cellar was disputed at Leeds Assizes.

The judge said she must have been a thoroughly unpleasant mother to say the least of it. She bullied her children and was cruel and sent them out to work at a very early age, taking all their wages from them and giving them very little back. But however that might be, she could leave her property to whoever she pleased.

Y'S MEN PLAN CIRCUS MAY 3

Circus and Gymnastic Display Be Given Brock Street Gardens.

START WITH PARADE.

Brock Street Summer Gardens is to open the season with a circus and gymnastic display to be held on May 3 under auspices of the Y's Men's Club. The event, for which elaborate preparations are now being made is to raise funds for assisting with the boys' work at the local Y.M.C.A.

The nature of the service rendered by the Y's Men's organization—which is one of four service clubs in the city, includes the provision of Y.M.C.A. memberships and equipment to a number of boys who are unable to raise the modest fees required.

The big program is to start with a street parade at 7.15 p.m., on the third of next month, and in soliciting a generous measure of public support for the effort of the Y's Men give the assurance of an interesting, instructive, and entertaining program.

A prize has been donated to the club, consisting of a Lorie ladies' baguette wrist watch, now on display in the show window at Knox jewelry store. It is to be awarded to the young lady selling the largest number of tickets. Those assisting the club are: the Misses Kathleen Cooney, Isabel Duffus, Mabel Ferguson, Ola Gillespie, Mary Grady, Mary Kingsbury, Ivy James, Dorothy Louden, Armene McCarthy, Jean Nicholls, Helen Pearson, Alma Seymour, Grace Simpson, Ada Spenceley, Sophie Yeotes.

NURSES RALLY AT HAMILTON

Dr. V. Ross Gives Interesting Comparison of Conditions To-day and 25 Years Ago.

ONCE WITCHCRAFT.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 25.—(C P)—An interesting comparison of conditions in the medical and nursing world today and 25 years ago was presented to the delegates attending the 10th annual meeting of the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario here this morning by Dr. Victor Ross, president of the Hamilton Academy of Medicine.

Sketching the progress of medicine, Dr. Ross reminded them the profession had developed from witchcraft which was a practise for profit by unscrupulous people on the credulity of others. Unfortunately, he remarked, they had not quite eradicated this yet.

Speaking of the improvement in the profession and the type of women now engaged in it, Dr. Ross said the work done by the nursing sisters in military hospitals during the war would ever remain a monument to the profession.

Welcomed By Mayor

The nurses received a civic welcome from Mayor Herbert Wilton and greeting from Rev. J. S. McCowell, director of hospital in Hamilton diocese.

Miss Marjorie Buck of Simcoe, president, and in her address stated the standing committees of the association had accomplished a tremendous piece of work last year. The advancement of standards of nursing and the maintenance of honor, kindliness and dignity of the profession, were objects of the association.

Since the survey made of the Canadian nursing profession in 1930, problems had increased and the situation regarding nursing had become worse.

Membership said Convenor Edna Moore, was 2,146, an increase over last year. The report of Miss E. M. McKee showed important legislation was enacted last year concerning the nursing profession. Miss Ethel Johns, editor of the Canadian Nurse, addressed the convention at noon today.

Weddings

TWOMEY—MASTERSON.

A prettty wedding took place at seven o'clock this morning at the Church of the Sacred Heart, when Helen Lorraine Masterson, R.N., eldest daughter of Mr. J. C. Masterson of Park Street, became the bride of Mr. Michael Joseph Twomey, only son of Mrs. Twomey, of 477 Rubidge Street, and the late Mr. Michael Twomey. The marriage was solemnized by the Rev. J. T. Masterson, D.D., brother of the bride.

Mr. J. Armstrong, organist and choir leader, played the wedding music and Miss Minnie Allen sang during the progress of the Nuptial Mass.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely gown of pink triple sheer crepe trimmed with Spanish lace. Her three-quarter length jacket of white velvet had puffed sleeves and a Queen Anne collar and her hat of white velvet was finished with a little nose veil. She wore white slippers and white lace mittens and carried a bouquet of red Premier roses, white carnations and maidenhair fern. Her only ornament was a white gold pendant, the gift of the bridegroom.

The bridesmaid, Miss Rita McMurray, R.N., was frocked in triple sheer blue crepe, with a hat of white pineapple straw and white accessories. She carried a bouquet of roses, carnations, and maidenhair fern.

Mr. John Carroll acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at Hooper's Palm Rooms, and Mr. and Mrs. Twomey left later on the noon train for a trip to Toronto and Rochester, N.Y., after which they will live at 477 Rubidge Street.

The bride travelled in a swagger suit of skipper blue, with grey hat and grey accessories.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bridesmaid was a pendant and ring, set with peridots, and to the groomsman a fountain pen.

PRINTED FROCKS ARE VERY SMART

Just Any Old Print Will Not Do—Must Check Up on What is New.

FAVOR SMALL PATTERNS.

There was a day when Paris relegated printed frocks to the unpredictable caprices of the Canadian Woman. Them days are gone forever! Printed frocks are recognized and greeted with hurrahs here, there, and everywhere right now. And, we hope, forever. Just the same, there are prints and prints. Just any old print won't do. You have to check up on What's New now and then to go into print as last-minute news. Spring prints favor small patterns, closely spaced. Whether the ground is light or dark, the print must add a staccato note and accent the whole. Jabots and frill fronts pick up the very best in smart prints, and resort to solid color to emphasize the point. For instance, a dash of beige and turquoise on a brown background. The result? Beige trimming, of course. Green, red and white on black. Then what. White pleated jabot or collar. And sleeve trimming, too, to make it complete. You can quite cheerfully ruin the whole business by wearing a predominantly brown print with a black coat, and vice versa.

Stop, Look and Listen before you buy your print frock. You're just bound to buy one, because anyone who could ignore such allure is simply not worth bothering about. But do buy sensibly. Remember, you're going to wear it under your spring coat.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

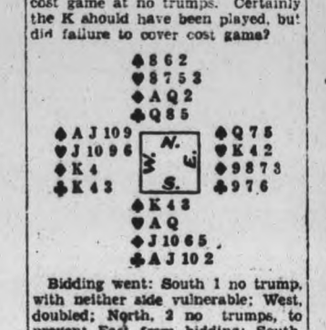
COVERING AN HONOR WITH AN HONOR

An army officer stationed at Fort Ethan Allen complains that partner's failure to cover the 10 of diamonds with West's useless K cost game at no trumps. Certainly the K should have been played, but did failure to cover cost game?



Bidding went: South 1 no trump, with neither side vulnerable; West, doubled; North, 2 no trumps, to prevent East from bidding; South, 3 no trumps.

The opening lead was the J of spades. East covered with his Q to show partner where that honor was. South's K won the trick, with ability to go game very much in doubt.

If you want an opponent to cover an honor, lead the next lower one. As South hoped West would not cover with the K of diamonds, the declarer did not lead his J. He led his 10 and West did not cover, thinking that East might win with the J. Another lead of the suit picked up the missing K. Then the last spade South prudently discarded his Q of hearts, to avoid loss of another trick in case West held the missing K. The 6 of hearts was led. East played his K, but the declarer held the ace, with another good diamond and 3 established clubs, so he went game.

East's complaint is that the way South played the hand he would have had to lose a diamond to East, had West forced the declarer to waste 2 honors on a single diamond trick, by covering the 10 with the K. That is very true had South been foolish enough to play the hand in the same manner had he held a loser in diamonds.

If the K of diamonds had covered the declarer could have discarded his low diamond, instead of the Q of hearts. Holding a high diamond in dummy, South could then enter dummy to take his heart finesse. As the cards happened to lie, the heart finesse would have won. One spade trick, 2 heart tricks and 3 club tricks, would have given South game. The only difference would have been that West's failure to cover enabled South to win an added diamond trick instead of winning an added heart trick.

You can't fool me Now on the question of— FLOOR WAX

I KNOW I can't buy as fine a wax for less—nor a better wax for more—

THAT'S WHY I ALWAYS BUY HAWES'!

NOW I buy floor wax on the same basis as everything else on my household list. I buy on VALUE and SERVICE—not on price. I've had enough of ordinary waxes—they have proved to be cheap in price only—and really cost more in the long run. When I used ordinary wax I used more wax and could never get my floors to look right. I now buy HAWES', the better quality wax, which keeps my floors well polished and well protected with less work, and at lower cost. HAWES' is the true standard of value in floor wax—it is needless extravagance to pay more.

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Lenten Custard Cabbage Salad
Stewed Tomatoes
Maple Brown Bread
Stewed Fruit Tea

This brown bread served with stewed fruit is suggested as the dessert for the above menu. The brown bread would be nice for the children's lunch baskets if they carry their lunches to school. Or nut sandwiches can be made with it.

Today's Recipes

Lenten Custard—One can red salmon, two cups cooked rice, three eggs, two cups milk, specks of butter, one-half teaspoon salt. Break up salmon after removing skin and bony substance. Mix with rice and add to well-beaten eggs. Add milk and salt, then place dots of butter over the top with bread crumbs. Bake in moderate oven 350 degrees for one-half hour.

Maple Brown Bread—Three cups graham flour, one cup white flour one and one-half teaspoons soda, one teaspoon salt, two cups buttermilk or sour milk, one cup cream, one cup maple syrup. Mix dry ingredients, then add liquids, mixing thoroughly. Bake in moderate oven. Makes one large loaf or two small ones.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Hint for the Bride

The most satisfactory saucepan has an identation for pouring on either side of the edge. Then if you are dexterous with the left hand as well as the right the pouring may be done with either hand with satisfaction.

Eggless Salad Dressing

One tablespoon prepared mustard, two tablespoons sugar, three or four tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice, one cup evaporated milk, one cup salad oil. Mix mustard, sugar and vinegar. Add milk and blend well. Add salad oil a little at a time, beating constantly. Let stand an hour before using.

Portable Heater Useful

A portable oil heater which combines a smart appearance with good heating qualities is a fine thing to have about the home on chill early spring days. These heaters come with either one or two burners and humidifying features. They are especially good to use in bathrooms and children's rooms after the furnace has been allowed to relax its vigilance.

Delicious Duet

It was an Arab who first invented cheese by jogging a goat-skin full of milk on his dromedary's pack, and it was the sheiks of Arabia who first learned they could live on dates alone. The two make a delicious duet in any country, but Americans like them best in salad.

Nice Combination

Spring's pink rhubarb is delicious combined with sliced dates. Combine them for pie.

TIRED and IRRITABLE

Do you feel weak and nervous? Is your housework a burden? Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. M. A. Kelly of Woodstock, New Brunswick, says, "I was weak and rundown. A neighbor brought me your Vegetable Compound. It helped me so much that I am taking it now at the Change."

Get a bottle NOW. It may be just the medicine YOU need.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

In one of her recent screen hits, the beautiful Rosemary Ames was obliged to give her skin a number of milk baths in her role as a young, well-cared-for debutante. And Rosemary was so pleased with the softening and astringent effects that the milk had on her skin, that she determined to use this fluid on her face daily. She fills a little cup with fresh, sweet milk each day, and gently pats the liquid into her skin with her fingertips. She firmly believes that the milk helps greatly in keeping her skin soft, smooth and fine-textured.

Personally, I do not have a very high regard for the beautifying properties of externally administered milk, for it lacks the refreshing and stimulating qualities that the average astringent possesses. But an excellent face mask can be made of milk. Not liquid milk, but the powdered form of milk that is procurable in most drug stores. This mask bleaches and softens the skin, and helps to eradicate blackheads and refines the skin texture. It is also easy to administer.

Before applying a milk pack, cleanse your skin thoroughly with a pure, bland soap and tepid water, and then with a liquefying cleansing cream. After the cleansing, remove the cleansing cream with tissues, and smooth a rich nourishing cream over your face. Allow this cream to 'cema' on the skin for a few minutes, and then remove it with tepid water and a soft cloth. If your skin is extremely dry, you may allow a tiny film of the cream to remain on the skin around your eyes and mouth.

To prepare and administer this pack properly, procure a quantity of ordinary powdered milk from your local druggist. Then mix a heaping tablespoon of the powdered milk with enough cold water to form a smooth, creamy paste. If your skin is very oily, you may substitute a good skin tonic for the water. Apply the paste generously over your face and neck, and permit it to dry. When the pack is thoroughly dry, remove it with tepid water and a soft cloth. This mask will help greatly to bleach and lighten your skin, and will leave it clear, smooth and velvety.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Eyelashes

Jean: Apply a bit of plain vaseline or odorless castor oil to your lashes nightly before retiring. This will help to promote the growth and thickness of your lashes.

Reducing

Edith: The reducing course outlined in my "New Figure" booklet has indeed been proved a healthful and effective one. This course takes off about eight to ten pouds in two weeks, and includes reduction of the bust, waist, hipe, abdomen, buttocks and thighs.

The Young Mother

Has her health problems

Happy and fortunate is the bride
Who enters married life
In full health and vigor of mind and body.
Perhaps the importance of robust health
At the time of marriage is sometimes overlooked.
But the cares and worries of the household
And the tremendous strain of baby's coming
Demand an abundance of rich, red blood
And a healthy, buoyant nervous system.
Modern life and present financial stringencies
Tend to make the life of the woman in the home
More difficult and more nerve racking.
Dr. Chase's Nerve Food can be of very great benefit to you
Both before and after baby's coming.
By restoring health of body and mind
It will save you from the irritabilities
Which tend to destroy the happiness of the home.
It will restore hope and confidence
At a time when ill health lets you see only the dark side of things.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The homemaker who is furnishing floor coverings for a home this season or who is buying a new rug for some room in the house will find some changes in names and fashions that will be surprising, and of value for her to know. The most striking change is in the name of Persian rugs. A few days ago the edict of the Persian government went into effect whereby the name for these marvelous floor coverings became Iranian.

* * * * * * *

Once all oriental rugs came under the one inclusive term "Turkey carpets." This was because the ships which sailed to th Orient brought these rugs home to England from the ports of Turkey. Later Smyrna was the usual port to get them, and they, therefore, became Smyrna rugs, although the name "Turkey carpets" was not relinquished altogether.

* * * * * * *

From the time of this division in terms there has gradually been an increasing number of names given oriental floor-coverings, until today it would seem as if each tiny province or hamlet, nation or tribe, had the rugs made in them, or by them, given a descriptive name. Often there are several names by which a single rug may be called correctly. All this is rather baffling to the novice, and a bit bewildering to many better versed in rug nomenclature.

* * * * * * *

Another confusing element in rug names has entered into the maze of rug terminology. Names similar to those familiar in oriental rugs have become adapted with minor changes to machine reproductions of a high order known as American orientals. The purchase of rugs should keep these types of floor coverings in mind—genuine orientals, and American orientals, both excellent in their own field, but entirely different in their method of construction, and differing slightly in their names. Replica rugs, like replica pearls, can be fine and beautiful and each should be appreciated for what it is, and admired for it.

* * * * * * *

Ever since the first "Turkey carpets" came to Europe and England, copying them has been attempted. The exact stitch is used in rugs in these countries in the choice hand-knotted carpets and rugs. Close reproduction of some patterns has been expertly accomplished in this country, as mentioned.

* * * * * * *

To return to the change in name for Persian rugs to Iranian, it is interesting that the diversifications are being unified, rather than furthered. The ancient name for the entire territory of Persia was Iran, and all rugs nows made in the area are Iranian rugs and carpets. The government intends to prosper the making of fine Iranian rugs lest the wonderful unexcelled oriental carpets become a lost art. Such a thing would be a catastrophe, and the Iranian government does not intend it shall happen.

Revision Of Text Books In Ontario Schools Proposed

CHANGES LIKELY IN COMING YEAR O.E.A. INFORMED

New Chemistry and Geometry Among Schemes by Duncan McArthur.

OUTLINES PLANS.

Believes Study of English Should Be Revised in Public Schools.

TORONTO, April 25. — Announcing that there would be a new textbook in chemistry and a new one in geometry next year, Duncan McArthur, Deputy Minister of Education, told the secondary teacners, principals and professors who packed the West Hall of University College yesterday, that the time had come for undertaking a complete revision of the text-books. Gradually new texts would be supplied.

But, he said, there was a serious danger in the use of the authorized text, and that it was desirable that teachers escape from the "slavery" they have given in the past to authorized texts and be given more freedom of choice of material for teaching. It was destirable that they should be given an outline of the general field to be covered and be left to select their material, he declared.

Work was now being done on the revision of other text-books than the above. It was expected also that in another year material would be provided by the Department for the teaching of civics though it would not come in the form of a text.

Outlines Plans.

In connection with the proposed new course that would be introduced into the secondary arena in the future, the Deputy Minister told the College and Secondary Department of the Ontario Educational Association that its members should think largely in terms of a four-year course that would be capable of being divided into two units, the first complete in itself, yet laying an adequate foundation for the second. As far as the rural areas were concerned, the Department of Education would encourage good public schools under proper supervision and properly qualified teachers to conduct lower school work particularly for those not proceeding beyond lower school and would urge those taking more advanced work to attend High Schools or Collegiates, he said.

Two Vital Points.

In considering the content of the new high school course upon which the department had a completely open mind at present, and which should be such as to make it possible for a pupil to transfer from it at any future time he should desire to go on to university, Mr. McArthur said two things should be kept in mind: the point of view of social adjustment and citizenship as well as the need of intellectual development, and the fact that the majority of pupils who begin lower school work do not go on to the middle school.

It was presumably advantageous that there should be a central core of subjects both for the planned high school graduation diploma and the matriculation one. "In that central core there should be included a much more extensive study of the English language and literature than at present. As a condition necessary to the achievement of the best results in the study of English in the lower school there should be a revision of English in the public schools of the province," declared the Deputy-Minister.

Geography Changed.

Geography, history, one of the sciences, and one of the mathematics, preferably arithmetic, should be included in this central core of subjects, according to Mr. McArthur. "The position of geography should be changed materially. It should be made a background for history and literature and closely related to social science. We should also, I feel, include history, especially the modern history of our own country. And with it I would associate a fairly intensive examination of the institutions of government, federal, provincial, municipal and civics," he said.

He believed that on either side of the central core there should be subjects both practical and cultural. For the moment he would leave the question of Latin open, but he declared he was prepared to believe there should be training in a language other than English, a training that would be compulsory.

More Art, Music.

There should be a further development in art and music. "The time may not be far distant when there will be a course of study leading to a high school specialists' certificate in art and music," said the Deputy-Minister.

In regard to languages, he said: "The position of languages constitutes a definite problem. I question the wisdom in this province of spending several years in attempting to train boys and girls who do not proceed beyond high school to speak the French language. I think we have wasted time and effort in this respect in fruitless endeavor."

During the coming year several experiments would be conducted in presenting French in a different manner and this might also be extended to Latin. Less emphasis would be placed on formal grammar and pupils taught an understanding and perception of the French newspaper and possibly the French novel. Grammar would not be abandoned but made incidental to reading.

The Deputy-Minister suggested that the class of matriculation examination might soon disappear since the universities required honor matriculation for entrance standing. While there was a place for examination and formal test it did not follow that the type of departmental examination in the past was the best. "Insofar as we can eliminate that method of examination, to that extent shall we be likely to improve the teaching traditions of the province," he said.

Denied Cruelty In Irish Hunts

BELFAST, April 25 (C.P.) — That a stag was "cruelly" forced to swim four miles across Belfast Lough when chased by a local hunt was alleged in the Northern Ireland parliament by a member, on a question of privilege, but the Parliamentary Secretary of the ministry of home affairs, G. B. Hanna, K. C., said he had had no information on the matter except what he saw in the newspapers.

He said, however, that he had been informed by those acquainted with the habits of stags that it was not unusual for these animals in their wild state voluntarily to swim great distances, and he was not prepared to accept the suggestion that any cruelty was caused.

Chicago Cubs Lack One Pitcher To Keep Them In Race

Depend On Rookies For Aid

Chicago Fans Will Miss Banished Messrs. Pat Malone and Guy Bush.

PAIR WON 32 VICTORIES.

WITH ONE more pitcher, the Cubs could be respected as a National League pennant contender. Without him, it's a guess where the team will finish in a league where seven or eight ball games divide the sheep from the goats. That Manager Charley (Mandolin) Grimm is going to miss the banished Messrs. Pat Malone and Guy Bush, with their 32 victories as of 1934, might go without saying but for the Cubs fans who will miss them when they gather, and say plenty.

Not a single Ed. Reulbach or Mordecai Brown popped up during training camp season to declare himself the Moses of the Cubs. As it stands, the pitching staff must be accepted as Root, French (southpaw from the Pirates), Warneke, Lee, Carleton (from the Cards), Henshaw, Joiner and whatever else may be expected of such rookies as Bryant, Kowalik, Casey and Coleman.

THE SIX who were major leaguers last year—Root, French, Warneke, Lee, Carleton and Joiner—won 67 games. The Cardinals won the flag with 95 victories. It can be seen from those figures that Charley is expecting a lot from his rookie pitchers. The odds are against. The Cub machine has been patched up here and there in important spots. Grimm himself isn't sure whether he'll play first base all season or place the station in the hands of Phil Cavaretta, a young man who achieved some fame in the dear old game of rounders at Reading, Pa., last year.

Lindstrom, from the Pirates, taking the far-turn stewardship, happens to be a person who may or may not have a good year there. Bill Herman is back at second and Bill Jurges at short, leaving the utility work up to English and Hack. In the outfield the face of old Hoss Stephenson is missing. But Frank Demaree, Kiki Cuyler, Chuck Klein and George Stinback appear to be an adequate outfield. Angie Galan, an infielder Manager Grimm is making over, is the fifth outfielder. He was very hot with the bat during training.

BEHIND THE plate is Gabby Hartnett, who is no longer in the spring chicken class, and Rookies O'Dea, Goebel and Walter Stephenson, who must be regarded innocent until proven guilty. In this end of the press box the opinion is held that the Cubs have gone back this year. Unless another pitcher is found, or one of the rookies takes off his disguise and reveals himself as Papa Bear, the Cubs are not going to scratch pay dirt.

ERNIE WOLFF HEADS LOCAL HOCKEY CLUB

Same Officers as Last Year Returned, Although Offices Shifted.

Ernie Wolff was elected president of the Peterborough Hockey Club at the annual meeting held last evening in the Chamber of Commerce. With one exception, the same officers that acted last year were returned but the offices were shifted around considerably. Over 40 followers of hockey attended the meeting, but with the election of officers the only item of business, the session was short.

President Charlie Curtis opened the meeting with the suggestion that the same officers as last year should be returned in some capacity or other—owing to the club's success the past year—unless the meeting felt otherwise. There was some discussion as to cutting down the executive this coming year.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Ernie Wolff, who was secretary last year; first vice-president, Bob Cotton; second vice-president, Harley Weir; secretary, Charlie Curtis, who was was president last year; treasurer, Fred Scates. None of these men received any opposition.

It was moved and carried that these officers add to the executive this year as they see fit. Mr. Wolff thanked the meeting for his election, spoke confidently of the future of the club if continued cooperation is assured, and promised to work hard for the club and also for the Junior City Hockey League next winter. He threw the meeting open for suggestions or criticisms but there was no response.

Eddie Wright told the gathering that Roy Covert of Belleville, intermediate hockey player, would start work here Monday, and that Red Geddes, Toronto right-winger, would be here shortly.

CHICAGO HOSE SHOWS THREAT TO THE LEADERS

Pitcher Whitehead Limits Detroit to Three Hits and Tigers Lose 10-4.

INDIANS WIN AGAIN.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, SR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

A year ago Chicago White Sox, rebuilt at a considerable expense, looked as if they might go somewhere and finished instead at the bottom of the American League. This spring, as the popular choice for the celler berth, they have begun to make threatening gestures at the leaders, particularly the champion Detroit Tigers.

With a combination of heavy hitting by veterans and rookies alike plus a couple of excellent mound performances by the 'freshman' right hander, John Whitehead. The Pale Hose have taken four out of five decisions from Detroit so far for a total record of five victories in eight starts.

White head, who made his big league debut last week by limiting the champions to six hits, cut that figure in half yesterday to win 10-4. One of the blows was Bill Rogel's homer and another a triple by Mickey Cochrane, both in the second inning when the Tigers scored all their runs. As backing the rookie got two homers by Zeke Bonura, one each by Al Simmons and Vernon Washington and 11 other assorted blows that enabled the Sox to come from far behind to win.

In contrast to Whitehead's easy triumph, Fay Thomas, a 'recruit' with a good bit of previous major league experience, turned in a four-hit game for the Browns and lost it 3-2 to Cleveland when he forced in the odd run in the ninth with his seventh walk. The triumph, their fifth in six starts, kept the Indians in second place ahead of Chicago.

The third American League contest saw Washington, with Bob Burke tossing a steady game, edge out the Athletics 3-2 despite Jimmie Foxx's third home run of the year. The league leading Red Sox and New York Yankees were rained out.

Another outstanding rookie flinger, Darrell (Cy) Blanton of Pittsburgh backed up a great opening performance when he struck out 11 Cincinnati batsmen and allowed only six hits to earn the Pirates a 5-2 victory with the aid of a four-run rally in the eighth. In his first start Blanton shut out the Cardinals with one hit.

4-1 Win for Dodgers

Fine pitching also marked the other National League contests. Van Mungo pitched the Dodgers to a 4-1 triumph over the Phillies, allowing only four hits and whiffing nine. Hal Schumacher, the Giants' big right hander, improved upon that performance by limiting the Ruth-less Braves to three hits, losing a shutout by Les Mallon's ninth inning homer and knocking in one run himself. The Babe failed to start because of a slight cold and struck out later in a brief appearance as a pinch batsman. Lon Warneke rang up his third straight triumph for the Cubs, going 10 innings to beat the Cards 7-6 when Dizzy Dean was nicked for three hits in the extra frame.

CHURCH SOFTBALL LEAGUE WILL OPEN SCHEDULE ON MONDAY NEXT

23 Teams Have Entered Loop to Date While Several Others Considering.

WEEK'S SCHEDULE DRAWN.

The Church Softball League will open with a juvenile game Monday evening at six at Queen Mary School, St. Paul's playing St. John's. The usual opening-game ceremonies will be observed with members of the Ministerial Association, Boys' Work Board and City Softball League taking part. To date, 23 teams have signified intention of entering the league while several others are considering it. The final date for entries has been extended to Monday, April 29th. St. Luke's, St. Andrew's, Knox and Trinity will be communicated with in the meantime.

A week's schedule has been drawn up with the teams already entered participating. Monday, St. Paul's Juveniles play St. John's at six in Queen Mary School grounds; Tuesday, Trinity Seniors meet Murray Street at King Edward Park, St. James play Trinity Juniors at Queen Mary, and Park Street play All Saints' Midgets at Queen Mary; Wednesday, Mark Street Juveniles and Murray Street meet at Queen Mary, while St. John's Midgets play St. James at King Edward Park. Rest of the schedule will be drawn later. The grounds problem is handicapping the committee. No games can be listed for the Oval till the ground is declared fit by the groundkeeper.

A more explicit definition of 5A was given for a junior team. A player's membership in an Athletic Association, tennis, badminton or dramatic club of any church does not in itself entitle him to play for that church. Chairman Len Agnew presided at the meeting to draw up the first part of the schedule with Whitty Thirnbeck, Harry Marsh, Don Lewis and Secretary Don Charlton and other members of the executive committee, present.

Definite entries were received from Mark Street, Knox, St. Paul's, George Street and Trinity in the senior section; St. James, All Saints, George Street, Trinity and Knox in the junior division; St. Paul's, Marl Street; St. John's, George Street, St. James, All Saints and Murray Street in the juvenile class; and George Street, Park Street, St. James, St. John's and All Saints in the midget section.

ORIOLES CLICK FIVE CIRCUITS OFF F. COLEMAN

Newark Bears Cop Third Straight by Nine Inning Splurge.

WINGS BEAT CHIEFS.

(By The Associated Press)

If the theory that the teams that win the close games are the ones which are in the pennant fight at the finish holds true through the current International League season, Newark Bears appeared to be headed right for the top again.

The Bears already have taken the lead by that method, winning six of their eight games, five by one-run margins, and losing only one close decision. In the past three days they have pulled as many games out of the fire with ninth inning rallies, turning back Buffalo, 4-3, in the series opener yesterday.

But for an adverse "break" Newark might have won that game more decisively. Bill Herschberger, who already had belted one home run, came up with Ernie Koy on first and the score tied in the ninth and tried it again. He succeeded in knocking the ball out of the park but it struck a wire and bounced back in, going for a double that drove in the winning run. Ollie Carnegie of the Bisons also hit for the circuit.

The slugging Baltimore Orioles trailed along into second place a half game behind Newark by administering an 11-2 shellacking to Toronto that dropped the Leafs to third place. The Orioles smacked five more homers, including "Pooch" Puccinnelli's seventh of the year, to bring their nine-game total to 23.

On the other side of the picture, Albany and Rochester got the benefit of steady hurling to win a pair of mound duels from Montreal and Syracuse respectively by 3-1 scores. Maywood Blecher, 20-year-old Rochester hurler, limited the Stars to seven hits and scored the first run off Hy Vandenburg, who gave only six blows but gave them at costly moments. Jimmy Carithers of Albany was steady in the clinches although the Royals outhit the Senators, 9-7. A pair of Montreal errors gave the Senators a two-run lead in the first which never was overcome.

Birthday Greetings

(By The Canadian Press)

TO LEWIS ROBERT (Hack) Wilson, outfielder of Albany's International baseball team. He was born in Elmwood, City, Pa., 35 years ago to-morrow. With the Chicago Cubs in 1930 he hit 56 homers. Back in the International circuit he has played a fine game and looks good for another season.

Blind Golfer

Keep your eye on the ball, the first rule of golf is one C. F. Russell, above, cannot follow. He is blind. Despite that fact, he plays a par 63 course in from 75 to 80 strokes possession an excellent swing, perfect touch and a fine sense of direction. He learned to play before he became blind. A caddie assists him by towing him over the course, pointing out the traps and the distances and Russell takes his strokes in turn, apparently oblivious to the darkness around him.

ALBERTANS WIN BASKET HONORS FOR 12TH TIME

Edmonton Grads Trim Windsor Alumnae to Annex Dominion Honors.

SCORE IS 44-31.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 26. — (CP).—The Canadian women's senior basketball championship accounted for once more, J. Percy Page's Edmonton Grads entrained here early to-day for Toronto on the first lap of their journey home after experiencing what their coach termed "the toughest series yet" in defence of their national title.

Another chapter was completed in the team's remarkable record last night when the Albertans defeated Windsor-Walkerville Alumnae, 44-31, to gain the Canadian crown for the 12th consecutive time.

It was the third straight victory for the Grads over their eastern rivals, the first game ending 34-30 and the second game, Monday, finishing 58-31. Last night's contest, while lacking the sustained sparkle of the two previous fixtures, was the roughest of the three, 29 personal fouls being called, 16 of which went to the losers.

From a basketball standpoint, play was ragged, marked particularly by the sprawling and spilling tactics of Alumnae players. The losers repeatedly threw themselves on the ball in their effort to break up the short, speedy passing attacks of the Grads.

The winners led 15-8 at the end of the first quarter, 25-13 at half-time and 32-19 when the third session terminated. Each team scored 12 points in the final quarter.

Stamping herself as one of the best feminine basketballers in Canada, Willa Hyttenrauch gave a tireless display to top all point-getters. Playing the entire 40 minutes and never sparing herself, the slim Alumnae forward potted five field goals and counted five out of seven foul shots for a total of 15.

Leads Scorers.

Doris Neale, chunky Grad guard, led her teammates in the point-column with six field goals for a total of 12, while Capt. Margaret MacBurney and tall Noel MacDonald garnered 10 points apiece. Miss MacDonald had 12 free throws, six of which scored on.

JUNIOR BOYS' CRICKET CLUB FORMED IN CITY

CAMPAIGN IS UNDER WAY TO DEVELOP BOYS

F. G. Mann Sponsors Move For Choir Boys of St. John's Church.

CRICKET PROSPECTS.

Summer is coming and the local cricketers are getting ready for action. The Peterborough club is entering upon its 126th season as at present organized, but there are definite record of the game here back to the 1850's. They have every hope for a successful season and expect few changes in the constitution of the team; Don Mitchell is out of the city and Rev. E. G. Worrall and R. Mawhood are doubtful. However, there are some newcomers available and the junior members of last year's team are naturally expected to show improvement as the resut of practice and experience.

As usual, there has been difficulty in getting out-of-town fixtures owing to the city's isolation, in a cricket sense, but negotiations are still pending with several clubs and it is expected that a full program will be arranged.

Early Matches

May 4—Trinity College School, Port Hope, at Port Hope.
May 6—Practice match.
May 11—Grove School at Lakefield.
May 18—Whitaker's C. C. (provisional).
May 24—County championship match.
May 25—Trinity College School, the Oval.
June 8—Grove School, the Oval.
June 15—Toronto Beaches, the Oval.
June 22—Toronto Beaches, in Toronto.

The first practice will take place at the Oval on Saturday next, April 27, when all players are asked to be on hand.

The Whitaker's C.C. are keen and enthusiastic; they have already been practising and are anxious to get down to business. The team will be much the same as last year and with the experience gained they have reason to hope for a good year.

The following are the executive: President, G. Monkman; Secretary and Treasurer, H. A. Radford; Captain, J. Wild; Vice-Captain, A. Hamilton; Grounds and Equipment, H. Spencer; Entertainment, F. C. Roberts., and early matches have been arranged as follows: May 4, Grove School at Lakefield; May 6, Practice match; May 18, Peterborough C.C.; June 8, Toronto Beaches here; and July 13, Beaches in Toronto; and other matches are in view.

Enter County Championships

The county have again entered the county championship, and the first match will be played on May 24.

The P.C.C., with the consent of the W.C.C., will make the necessary arrangements for the county matches, and Whitaker's will release such of their players as may be selected for the county team, and are satisfied to leave the selection in the hands of the committee suggested by the P.C.C., viz., Messrs. Miles Hamilton C. H. Ireson and R. N. Stuart.

Form Junior Club

A most encouraging feature is the formation of a boys' club in the city. This has been organized by F. G. Mann, organist of St. John's Church, for his boy choristers. This is in line with the definite campaign which has been entered into throughout the Dominion to develop Junior cricket, with a view to Canada taking her rightful place with all the other dominions in the Empire.

As The Globe states on its editorial page on April 26: "Elder cricketers will be pleased by the movement to have the grand old English game of cricket made popular in every schoolyard in Canada. A generation or two ago cricket was played on most school grounds and the boys who were playing it then are the men who to-day would like to see youthful cricketers in action from coast to coast. This would be a great thing for the future of the country."

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two.

DAY BY DAY

(By G. J. F.)

Annual meeting of the Men's City Softball League will be held at eight bells tonight in Duffus', following an executive session at seven there. Election of officers, team entries and plans for the season will comprise the business at the general meeting. Everyone interested is invited. There has been some talk of cutting down the price of the entry fee in the loop this year and that's an excellent idea, if it can be worked. A clip of ten bucks smack off the bat is a bit heavy these times and some prospective sponsors would sooner sink part of that into equipment, no doubt. The matter will probably be discussed this evening.

• • • • • •

The Hockey Club held its annual meeting in the Chamber of Commerce yester gloaming and cleaned up business pronto. All they had to do was elect officers. A big turnout of interested fellows was on hand. Charlie Curtis wouldn't stand again for the presidency but agreed to be secretary and was elected. Last year's secretary, Ernie Wolff, was elected president. Bob Cotton was returned as first vice-prexy, and Harley Weir went in as second vice when Pete King wouldn't stand. Fred Scates was re-elected treasurer. These officers will add to the executive as they see fit.

• • • • • • •

Well, that's the layout. As we've been advocating the return of these officers this year, no need to say we're glad they will act again—even though they've swapped positions somewhat. Managers, no doubt, will again be Eddie Wright of the intermediates and Frank Buckland of the juniors. Some, if not all, of the other executive members of last season, will be asked to act again—and will do so, we hope. We had a fine Hockey Club slate of officers and executive members in 1934-35 and things look promising for an equally successful one next winter. Eddie Wright has Covert of Belleville and Geddes of Toronto lined up, so next season's intermediates should be okay. Don't worry about the juniors, either.

• • • • • •

City Baseball League holds its annual reorganization meeting at seven bells this twilight in Duffus', and everyone interested should drop around. Bantam, juvenile and junior team entries will be as welcome as payday. Efforts will be made to put this loop back on the upgrade this summer but it will take a few hefty pushes at the start. All last year's teams and any new ones should be represented tonight. And we'd like to see some of the older and more influential baseball men around town on hand to help out with suggestions. President Jack Deannard is hopeful of a better season than last and we are confident his hopes will be realized.

Church Softball League leads the parade this year, starting to play Monday night with a juvenile game between St. Paul's and St. John's at six at Queen Mary School. Usual opening ceermonies will be observed. So far, 23 teams have joined and several others are expected before the closing, date, April 29th. First part of the schedule is drawn up and published elsewhere today. This is a mighty fine softball circuit and always a huge affair. When you get two dozen or more teams in one loop—well, by golly, you've got something! Between 250 and 300 boys will get into the game from the last of April till the first of July.

Some snappy cage play has been dished up the first three days this week in connection with the Boys' Hobby Show at the 'Y'. Johnston's and Clark's squads qualified for the finals in the intermediate section and it will be settled with a 40-minute encounter at 7.30 this e'en in the 'Y' gym. The junior section finalists, Gillespie's and Weir's outfits, clash up there tonight at 8.30 o'clock for the title. There is a number of other athletic competitions being run off, too, and all will finish up this week-end at the two-day Hobby Show.

Waterloo Cubs, bantam finalists last year in the O.B.A.A., are reported drilling hard for their sudden-death playoff game with the local King Edward School team in Waterloo May 24th. The '34 title will be settled on this date since Toronto Columbus Boys—the real champs—were tossed out late last fall for using an overage player. The O.B.A.A. didn't find out about this ineligible player till his age came out over a rugby squabble. Seems he had been using a younger brother's certificate several years, but a rival player who had gone to school with him knew the lad's right age. The O.B.A.A. promptly tossed out the team—and rightly so.

An Oshawa dispatch says: "Many of the fans are of the opinion that the locals have a good chance of copping the C.O.B.L. title providing the hurling department holds up in the face of such slugging teams as Knotty Lee's Peterborough squad and the evergreen Kingston Ponies. At least five experienced hurlers are lined up now in Lefty Innis and Lefty Wills, Walter Knox, Chuck Mathews and Doxy Ogden. The squad is well fortified at every other position with the possible exception of shortstop, where the departure of Red Hollingsworth has left a big gap to fill. Should the hurlers come through as expected, a heavy hitting line should be able to punch out enough runs to carry the Dominion Brewers over the rough spots. The locals will take plenty of time this season to get into shape in order to guard against the unfortunate occurrence of last year when the players were practically ruined through sore arms at the start of the season."

Bill Carey May Join Garden's Opposition

NEW YORK, April 25 (A.P.).—William F. Carey, who succeeded Tex Rickard as president of Madison Square Garden and resigned during last year's reorganization, has been asked to accept the presidency of the new Twentieth Century Sporting Club, now the Garden's foremost rival in the boxing promotion field.

Mike Jacobs, one of Rickard's earliest associates, said yesterday that in the permanent structure of the club, which he formed, he sought not only Carey as an officer, but several other prominent New York business men.

Carey said he would consider the matter for a week before announcing his decision.

OTTAWA, April 25 (C.P.) — The Byng trophy, awarded annually to the National Hockey League player who best combines sportsmanship and ability, may be given permanently to Frank Boucher of New York Rangers who has won it seven years out of 11.

Lady Byng, wife of a former governor-general and donor of the trophy, has written a letter to Col. L. W. O'Connor at Government House here, suggesting Boucher be given the cup permanently. Her suggestion has been forwarded to Frank Calder, president of the N.H.L.

Since it was donated in 1925, the Byng trophy has been won twice by Frank Nighbor, poke-check artist who played centre for Ottawa Senators; once by Billy Burch of New York Americans and once by Joe Primeau of Toronto Maple Leafs. Boucher has won it seven times.

THOUSANDS ROAR FEALTY TO KING AT CUP FIXTURE

Riding and Shooting King's Private Pastimes, But His Attendance at Popular Soccer Finals Makes Stirring Scene.

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 25 (C.P.)—Undoubtedly the most exhilarating and unique spectacle ever to be offered of a monarch joining with his people in a common pastime is when King George attends the English Soccer Cup Final at Wembley.

The sea of eager faces rises tier after tier, to the number of 90,000 or more. The Roman amphitheatre in the days of the Neros surely never presented so great a scene as will Wembley Stadium Saturday, April 27 when West Bromwich Albion and Sheffield Wednesday meet in the Jubilee year final for the coveted cup.

Led by a band of the Guards the mighty assembly beguiles the time of waiting with community singing. "Abide With Me," is sung by the ten-thousands decorously. A few minutes before the kick-off is due, a great roar of welcome heralds the arrival of the King. Every cloth cap (you don't go to a soccer final in any other headgear) is removed, and the throng joins to a man in the National Anthem.

There is another great burst of loyal appreciation as his Majesty, clad in long ulster, goes out upon the ground and shakes hands with each member of both teams. Then the King withdraws to the grand stand, whence he watches the great tussle for the cup with unflagging interest. Such a sight as Wembley presents at "The Final" can never be copied out of Great Britain.

King's Personal Pastimes

Riding and shooting have always been the favorite pastimes of His Majesty whenever he is able to assume the role of a private person. With a sporting gun the King, in his prime, was perhaps the finest shot ever to tread the moors. His happiest days were when he could join a party of "guns" on the invitation of an old friend such as the Earl of Derby or the Duke of Devonshire.

Over a long course of years the King has been a regular attendant at such classic racing fixtures as the Derby, the Oaks, and the Grand National. It would hardly be correct to assert that he has betrayed the same fondness for the turf as his father, the late King Edward.

The truth is King George prefers riding a horse himself to watching the performances of a cluster of thoroughbreds. It has been a common early morning spectacle, when the Court is at Buckingham Palace, to observe the King taking a pre-breakfast canter in Rotten Row, and when at Windsor he is often in the saddle before his guests are astir.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!
By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Number 595

I figured Gene would win at Augusta, and I pulled for him. According to my way of rating players he should win. He's a better swinger than 99 per cent of the field.

I wanted Sarazen to win because it's good for the game. Golfers generally try to copy the technique of champions. Winning one championship doesn't mean that the player has a good swing. Those who fail to repeat haven't a sound technique, yet others try to imitate them while they are title holders. Invariably the bad features instead of the good are copied.

Gene's technique is absolutely sound in every department. His build keeps him from being noted as a graceful swinger, yet the same swing made by a tall fellow would be something for the critics to rave over. He is entitled to a place among the great masters of the game.

Warne's Present Cup For Southend League

Warne Brothers, jewellers, have donated a trophy for annual competition in the Southend Softball League. The loop officers express appreciation. This league's schedule will open May 7th, Tuesday. Closing date for entries will be next Monday, April 29th, when a meeting will be held at 8.00 p.m. in All Saints' Clubhouse. Teams wishing to enter should have a representative at this meeting.

As some of the Church League softball players participate also in the Southend League, the executive of the latter circuit (at Jim Charlton's suggestion) has decided to co-operate with the Church League in drawing up the schedule, in order to avoid as much as possible conflicting playing dates.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

By McDONALD FEADER

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance with all the world at her feet, is loved by the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu. She despises her mother, Anica, but is fond of her father, Girtza. Marcu tempts Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him. Just as Girtza notices Consuelo's ring, which she tells him she has stolen, the sheriff appears. He proceeds to haul the gypsies into court but Consuelo is no longer wearing the ring. When the judge's wife and another woman search her, Consuelo fights them savagely. Meanwhile Marcu comes into the courtroom and announces he bought the ring. The town jeweler is summoned and admits selling Marcu the ring for $12.60. When the merchant declares it isn't worth even a dollar, Consuelo is furious.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 10

With a look of bewilderment, the sheriff unlocked the handcuffs. Mechanically Marcu rubbed his wrists and pocketed the ring. His face and arms were bleeding and he wiped them on his shirt. His dark eyes were upon the floor. His broad shoulders drooped. The spirit seemed to have gone out of him for the moment.

"All right, you gypsies, you get the best of it this time. Now get out of here! If I ever catch the pack of you within the bounds of this town again I'll run you out in such a way you won't forget! Do you understand? Now get out of here as fast as you can, the whole damn tribe of you!"

"We'll do that all right," snarled Girtza and, taking the sobbing girl up in his arms, went down the aisle.

Marcu followed and the two gypsies picked up the wheel of the van.

The crowd parted sullenly to let them pass. The outcome had not been to their liking and out of futile resentment someone kicked the wheel. It clattered to the floor and, as one of the men stooped to recover it, a booted foot kicked him. A laugh arose. The gypsy regained his balance and his hand went to his belt. Marcu sprang to his side.

"Listen, fool," he said in Romanay, "don't start anything now! Get out of here before something more happens!" He turned his dark eyes on the crowd. "Let this man alone!"

For a minute they drew back.

The two gypsies got the wheel down the steps and headed down the street, before Marcu turned arrogantly and followed after them.

Some of the rowdies of the town began to whisper together. The words "tar and feathers" were repeated several times. The sheriff appeared in the anteroom and the talk stopped. The men dispersed.

The gypsies hurried down the street. Marcu caught up with Girtza, who still carried the girl in his arms.

"We had better get out of here quick," he said.

"Yes, thanks to you!" Girtza growled. He called to the men to hasten with the wheel, but the wheel was cumbersome to roll and it slowed them down.

As they approached the edge of town, one of the group of men who had been on the court house steps was lounging against a tree.

"Where are you going?"

"What is that to you?" Marcu returned.

"Don't get so cocky," sneered the fellow, blocking the path. "I just want to know where you're going, that's all."

Marcu saw one of the other villagers hurrying toward them. He spoke to Girtza.

"Get back to the camp as fast as you can and get that wheel on. I'll delay this dog and catch up with you later."

"What's that you're saying to him?" the man demanded.

"My business!" Marcu faced him. "Why didn't you hold 'em?" he asked.

"Oh, yah? Let's get 'em now. Get out of the way!" he said to Marcu.

Marcu's fist crashed to the man's jaw for answer. The fellow staggered back. Then the two sprang for him. A rough scuffle ensued. Marcu counting the time it would take Girtza to get back to the wagon. Out of the corner of his eye he caught sight of four more men hurrying down the road, carrying something. His quick eyes took in the long pole that one held on his shoulder. Marcu's lips drew together, his eyes narrowed, his nostrils expanded. He sprang back from the two and then closed in, sending one sprawling to the ground. As the other made for him, he drew his knife from the belt.

"Now you keep back, white dog, or I run you through!"

The fellow paused. His companion lay groaning on the ground. Then he saws the others coming toward them.

"Hey, you guy," he shouted, "drop that and come on!"

The cry was misunderetood. The four did not drop their burden. They increased their pace with the shout, 'Hold him, we're coming!"

"You better put that knife away, gypsy!"

"Listen, dog," sneered Marcu, "I can throw this knife fifty feet without missing a hair. Now you stay where you are or I prove what I say! The men were coming closer. He raised the knife threateningly and then darted toward the bush. He glanced back as he ran. They were coming after him. He turned from the cow path and pushed his way through the tangled willows as noiselessly as a panther. He could hear their shouts behind him.

Panting and out of breath, he reached the camp. The axle cap of the wheel was being screwed in place. At his command the gypsies crowded into the wagons and were off.

Wildly they raced across the clearing ,plunged through the willows and forded the brook. Not once did they come within sight of the main road. The old wagons had been pulled across open country many a time and did not fail them now. And this running away was not new. More than one town had run them out, shotgun or rifle bullets kicking up the dust behind them. Hence they kept away from the main road and traveled fast, and it was well that they did.

Back at the town the judge had no more than finished his lunch when he heard the story of the gysy fight. He cared very little for the bunch that brought the tale and fervently hoped that the gypsies were out of his reach, for he wanted nothing more to do with them. However, it was forced upon him, for later on in the afternoon his nap was disturbed by the insistent knocking of the sheriff and Mr. Dakis. Dakis was sobbing, his small face red with excitement and grief.

"I didn't have on mine glasses," he moaned. "I am a very big fool. Oo! Oi!"

"Well, Mr. Dakis, have you lost your glasses?" It was a useless question, for the heavy spectacles were on the nose of the little man, his eyes sadly out of proportion through the thick lenses.

"No, no, but mama had put them away. She told me I didn't need glasses—that it was all in my mind!"

"Come, come, what's the matter with you?"

"The ring, the ring!" Dakis wrung his hands in dismay.

"Well, you saw the ring, didn't you?"

"Yes, ye, but mama had mine glasses!"

The judge turned to the sheriff.

"He told me the ring was real," George explained. "He couldn't see it very well and handed the gypsy a real ring instead of a fake one. He forgot that he put the real diamond in the showcase for over the fair and it's a darn shame. I knowed that ring was real all the time, but, my Lord, you'd think he'd knowed his own business."

Dakis again began exclaiming:

"But I couldn't see it, I told you. I couldn't see it. When the gypsy he says, I want that ring, I had a gun in my hand and an idea in my noodle and I think I'm such a smart one so I sell him the ring and I boast to mama what new thoughts has did for me—Oi, and now look what new thoughts had did me for! It has cost me t'ree t'ousand dollars and it's not in the mind eider. Oi, I'm a ruined man! Why did mama hid my glasses!" He buried his face in his hands and moaned.

Well, Mr. Dakis, I can't see that there's much we can do about it. After all, you sold the gypsy the ring and in the bargain gave him a receipt. You had your chance to get it back, but even then you thought the joke was on the gypsy. I guess you'll have to put it down to loss and be more careful next time. If George is willing, he can start out with a couple of men after the gypsies and get the ring back from them if he can."

"I hurt me leg, judge, and you know I ain't riding no horses for a while yet—" Perhaps the sheriff was just as willing as the judge was to be through with the gypsies.

So it was that nothing was done about the ring. And Marcu carried it carelessly, little dreaming that the jeweler made a mistake. What did it matter now, anyway? The stone had lost its vibrant beauty for him. It was just a "hunk of glass," worthless, except for the memory it held within it.

Ask Your Doctor First, Mother

Before You Give Your Child an Unknown Remedy to Take

According to any doctor you may ask, there is one duty every mother owes her child. The duty of asking him before giving her child an unknown remedy to take.

Yet, unthinkingly, every day mothers violate this simple rule. Take the advice of unqualified persons — instead of their doctors' — on remedies for their children.

If they knew what the scientists know, they would never take the chance.

Doctors Say PHILLIPS' For Your Child

When it comes to the very frequently used "milk of magnesia," authorities stand solidly together.

Ask your own doctor about this. For over 50 years, doctors, whose life work it is to study the safety and quality of drugs that go into the home, have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia for your child."

For "Phillips'" is the result of over a half century of continuous laboratory experiment. And is rated among the finest products that science knows in its field, the kind of product your child deserves.

So Always Say "Phillips'" when you buy. And see that your child gets what you ask for — Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Do this for your own peace of mind.

Also in Tablet Form:

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

The lunar as well as the mutual aspects of this day seem to indicate a rather conflicting state of affairs, both business and private some friction, deception in connection with papers, correspondence or agreements. Those whose birthday it is may look for a very lively and interesting year in private as well as business affairs, although it may pay well to be alert to fraud, trickery, intrigue and inharmony.

Prof. Approves Frank Professionalism Against Current Athletic 'Hypocrisy'

PITTSBURGH, April 25. (CP) A future in which collegiate football teams as a matter of course will be composed of "professional performers, college trained and sponsored" is the frank forecast of Dr. Francis D. Tyson, who classes amateurism as "a piece of snobbery."

Dr. Tyson, economics professor and member of the University of Pittsburg Athletic council, told 1,000 physical education teachers last night frank professionalism should be substituted for the existing athletic "hypocrisy" in the country's colleges.

"Amateurism in sport in the United States is really a piece of snobbery outp of place in a democracy" Dr Tyson said before the American Physical Education Association. Amateurism is a hangover from the British aristocratic tradition."

He asked if it were not quite inconsistent "to praise students for working their way through college by waiting on fraternity table, which they often do badly, and blame them for earning a little money by playing football, which they do very well."

TWO ARE NAMED IN BALDWIN CASE

Young Men Who Became Friends in Prison Blamed For Murder.

INQUEST ADJOURNED.

COATICOOK, Que., April 25. — (CP). Two young men who became acquainted with each other in the Windsor, Vermont, penitentiary, today faced charges of murder in connection with the death of Willis Keith Baldwin, 78, former Liberal Member of Parliament and prominent in business and lumbering circles in the eastern townships of Quebec.

Interrupted so the coroner and witnesses might attend the double funeral of Mr. Baldwin and his wife who died at Richmond, Va., while enroute home from Daytona, where she had been critically ill, a coroners inquest here yesterday held Lucien "Red" Morin of Barnston, Que., and Kenneth Brown of Milton, Vt., criminally responsible for Mr. Baldwin's death. Warrants charging murder were then signed by Coroner Leonidas Bachand of Sherbrooke.

Morin testified at length during the inquest. He had known Brown well in the Windsor penitentiary where they worked in a cobbler's shop, he said.

Brands Testimony False

ST. ALBANS, Vt., April 24 (CP)—Kenneth Brown, 30, wanted in connection with the slaying of an aged Canadian storekeeper ,to-day branded as false testimony given yesterday at a coroner's inquest at Coaticook, Que., by Lucien O. Morin, 26, of Barnston, Que.

The principal witness at the inquest into Willis K. Baldwin's death, Morin testified he and Brown had planned to rob Baldwin; that the actual robbery was to be performed by Brown alone, and the spoils divided between the two. Brown is held in $5,000 bail here on an automobile charge.

Poet Knight Ill, Gets U. S. Legacy

BRIGHTON, England, April 25 (C.P.)—Sir William Watson, last of the noted Victorian poets and almost forgotten now, has been bequeathed $5,000 by Albert Whitin, a citizen of the United States, whom the poet met only once. Each of Sir William's daughters, Rhona and Geraldine, were left $2,500.

Sir William Watson, stricken in health, and with a small government pension and the proceeds of a $15,000 fund raised by famous literary men to help him, says he is not interested in money. "My husband has only recently returned from a nursing home," Lady Watson told a reporter at their house at Rottingdean. "He has heart trouble. Although he has expressed no interest in the money left to him it will be extremely useful.

"We first heard of Mr. Whitin when we were living in Westmoreland. Lady Crewe's sister in her will left him some signed first editions of my husband's works. Mr. Whitin wrote saying how much he admired the poetry, but Sir William did not reply as he never answers letters. But I did. Three years later, in 1927, Mr. Whitin, an elderly white-haired man, came to see us.

"He stayed half an hour and although we had had more letters we did not see him again. Each Christmas he would send the girls presents.

Kidnap Victim Pleads For Gangster's Life

JEFFERSON CITY.—Miss Mary McElroy pleaded with Governor Guy B. Park to-day to spare the life of Walter H. McGee, leader of the gang that kidnapped her for $30,000 ransom nearly two years ago. Virtually all legal avenues of escaping the gallows had been closed to McGee when the 26-year-old daughter of H. F. McElroy, city manager of Kansas City, visited the Governor—in behalf, she said, of both kidnapper and victim.

WANT COMPLETE CONTROL.

Guardian Chairman Reveals Plans Under Way For Tourist Restaurant.

NORTH BAY, Ont., April 26.—(CP)—Religious sisters, members of the order of the Grey Nuns of the Pembroke diocese, will take over nursing duties to the Dionne quintuplets June 1, Judge J. A. Valin, chairman of the board of guardians, announced today. The Red Cross nurses at the Dafoe hospital will complete their work soon after the babies are a year old of May 28.

The Ontario Red Cross has maintained the nursing staff and borne other expenses since the five baby girls were born.

Asked To Be Relieved

The judge, living in retirement here, said Madame Louise de Kiriline, head nurse at the little outpost, had asked to be freed of her duties. Yvonne Leroux, her assistant and first nurse on duty the morning of the multiple birth at the Dionne farm home May 28, will also leave the hospital at the end of May. Pat Mullins who has relieved the other two nurses consistently, will be no longer connected with the staff.

For months the nurses have lived with the babies. They recall the trying times when the infants were so often near death and were kept alive only by means of incubators.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe and visiting specialists have commended the work of the nurses, who in addition

STEAMER CALLS FOR ASSISTANCE

British Craft Wires Stern Badly Crushed in Heavy Ice Field.

OFF NEWFOUNDLAND.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 26.—(C. P. Cable). Her stem badly damaged in a heavy ice field 150 miles off Newfoundland, the English steamer Titania reported she needed immediate assistance from an icebreaker to-day. The sealing ship Imogene, commanded by Captain Wes Kean, was rushing under full steam towards the scene from this port.

The message received indicated the ice-locked Titania, 4,900 tons, had been seriously damaged in other parts of the hull and probably could only be assisted by an ice breaker.

It was estimated the Imogene would require from 12 to 15 hours to reach the scene.

Owned by W. A. Souter and Company of Newcastle, Eng., the Titania was on a westward crossing from her home port.

The Titania's plight recalled less than two weeks have elapsed since the 23rd anniversary of the Titanic disaster 550 miles off Halifax. When the liner sank after striking an iceberg, 1,490 lives were lost.

A United States' cutter, carrying on annual patrol duty inaugurated for the ice-infested waters by International agreement as a result of the Titanic tragedy, was believed to be in the general vicinity of the Titania.

Ice off Newfoundland this spring already is believed to have cost a heavy toll. Days ago hope was abandoned for 25 fishermen aboard the Newfoundland schooner Alsatian, feared to have been crushed in ice, and shipping men believed the same fate overtook the long missing Gloucester schooner Arthur D. Story, with her men aboard.

30 Crew Aboard.

NEW YORK, April 26.—(C.P.)—Marine circles here reported the Titania ordinarily carries a crew of 30 hands and no passengers. After discharging cargo at Alfred Que. the ship was to proceed to New York, where it was due about May 9.

A Fire Bird

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., April 26. (CP).—It was a fire bird, not a firebug that fired the home of Mrs. Mabel Gallagher of Council Bluffs. Fire Chief J. N. Cochran said the blaze was started by a sparrow carrying a lighted cigaret into its nest in the attic.

MAXVILLE FIRE LEAVES ENTIRE BLOCK IN RUINS

Town's Three Largest Stores Are Razed and Two Churches Damaged.

$70,000 DAMAGE.

MAXVILLE, Ont., April 26 (CP)—An entire business block in this town of 900 inhabitants lay in ruins to-day as property owners counted damage estimated at $70,000 and volunteer fire fighters continued wearily to watch smouldering debris.

Three stores, largest in the town, were totally destroyed and two churches were damaged as flames spread from building to building. Firemen, handicapped by scanty equipment and shortage of water which had to be pumped from wells, struggled for more than two hours before they had the blaze under control.

Heaviest loss was suffered a destruction of the Smillie and McDiarmid general store. The owners calculated the damage at $40,000. Flames also destroyed the printing shop of J. W. Weegar, causing $5,000 loss; G. H. McGougall's grain and feed storehouse valued at $5,000, and several smaller buildings.

Sparks set fire to the steeple of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the Roman Catholic Church, and the Burton business block. Damage to the three buildings was estimated at $20,000.

Firemen William Guindon prevented spread of the flames from the steeple of St. Andrew's Church to the roof by climbing over a horizontally placed ladder from the belfry and spraying water from a hose on the roof.

A strong west wind helped spread the flames, but Fireman George Cline protected buildings across the Main Street, only 20 feet wide, by standing behind a large sheet of metal and throwing pails of water over the fronts of buildings. ... ...

The only casualty was Councillor C. Villeneuve, a fireman, who burned both hands painfully while working at the pumps.

Cause of the fire was not determined. Maxville is 53 miles southeast of Ottawa on the Cornwall-Plantagenet Highway.

SHERIFF, AIDES OUSTING FAMILY CHASED BY MOB

Police Ordered to Arrest East Windsor Leaders Are Unable to Do So.

NEED 30 OFFICERS.

Chief Appeals to Mayor, But Necessary Force is Not Available.

EAST WINDSOR, Ont., April 26. A mob of unemployed manhandled and forcibly ejected Sheriff Charles G. Fletcher and his two assistants from the home of Dmitro Dutka, as the sheriff attempted to carry out an eviction order at noon to-day. No one was injured.

As soon as the law officers had been hurried from the house, the mob, among which were a large number of children, stood guard over the dwelling to prevent further eviction efforts.

Need 30 Police

Sheriff Fletcher, who declared it would require about 30 officers to enforce the eviction order, conferred with Crown Attorney James S. Allan, after which it was said charges would be laid against the leaders in the assault.

Constable William Langlois of the East Windsor Police Department was asked to arrest the leaders of the crowd, but was unable to do so.

When the sheriff and his men arrived on the scene today they found the Dutka home locked. Dutka was coaxed into opening the door, and Sheriff Fletcher forced his way into the house.

This was a signal for the mob to rush the house, grab the three officers and unceremoniously usher them into the street. During the melee a window was broken.

Three Postponements.

Three previous attempts had been made to move the family, each time the eviction being postponed because of pleas from the family. Dutka, whose wife has just returned from the hospital, where she underwent an operation, said he would be willing to move if another house could be found. He would not allow his sick wife to be thrown into the street, however, he said.

Mayor Ted Fontaine said the city was not prepared to offer the number of men deemed necessary to enforce the order, while Police Chief Maisonville declared the job was too large a one for his department to handle.

Urge Haunted House Be Searched For Girl

NEW YORK, April 26 (A.P.). — Charles Neidman said to-day he had requested Pennsylvania State Police to search the Mechanics Grove (Pa.) "haunted house" for possible traces of his daughter, Ruth, who disappeared seven months ago in Philadelphia.

Neidman said he had asked police aid in the belief his daughter, Ruth, 16-year-old High School girl, might have been abducted to the home of Dr. H. E. Zimmerly, where earlier this week police found the bones of a young woman thought to be the missing Mrs. Gladys Lawson of Calvert, Md.

Police said Mrs. Lawson disappeared after an operation at Zimmerly's home-hospital.

Charges with performing illegal operations and with dealing with narcotics, Zimmerly is now in the Lancaster County Jail.

Penniless

TORONTO, April 26 (CP) — The Evening Telegram in a copyright story by Phyllis Griffiths to-day says James Joseph Muir, 75-year-old son of Alexander Muir, Toronto schoolmaster who wrote "The Maple Leaf Forever," is penniless and living in a city hostel.

The aged man has been on relief for six weeks, says The Telegram, "in a city whose citizens contributed nearly $25,000 for the erection of the Alexander Muir Gardens, opened last year opposite Mount Pleasant Cemetery."

The newspaper says Muir's identity was discovered by three women who, walking in the cemetery yesterday, were asked by the white-haired man to direct him to the Alexander Muir plot. He told them who he was and, sitting on the edge of the monument beside his father's grave, broke down and sobbed.

LONE CROWLAND STRIKER STARTS BACK TO WORK

Thirty-four Provincial Police Stand Guard Prepared for Trouble.

CROWD WATCHES QUIETLY.

Rumors Spread Leaders of Crowd May Possibly be Deported.

CROWLAND, Ont., April 26 (CP) —The first break in the ranks of Crowland relief strikers came this afternoon when Adam Wakunick took up a spade and went to work in the sewer ditch project while 34 police stood guard about him.

There was no demonstration from the several hundred strikers and sympathizers. The crowd had been warned by Inspector Chris, Airey of the Provincial Police there must be no noise.

Asking Too Much

Before he went to work Wakunick told bystanders he was in sympathy with the strikers, but that Frank Haslam, strike leader, was asking too much.

Wakunick said previously he was neutral but he decided to return to work after Haslam told him a neutral was "worse than a scab."

Wakunick has received no relief since the strike started. Before that he was on relief three months. He has a wife and four children. He said he believed others would join him at work.

Subdued Gathering

It was a quieter crowd—and a smaller one—which greeted the squad of 34 police as they arrived at Beatrice street to protect any desiring to work on the sewer project, abandoned April 2.

Beyond a brief burst of songs by a few children the crowd contented itself with a murmuring sort of watchfulness.

While smoke from a nearby factory cast a yellowish cloud over the road, Inspector Airey led his detachment of Provincial and local police to the shallow ditch called the sewer project.

Following yesterday's procedure, police lined either bank of the

Drunken Drivers Get Suspended Sentence

Following the precedent which he established here earlier in the week, Magistrate A. E. Gee, of Lindsay, was again disposed towards leniency when he sentenced Albert Armstrong of Havelock to one year's suspended sentence, and ordered him to pay court costs, after he pleaded guilty to being intoxicated while in charge of a car. Defendant appeared to-day charged on the information of Provincial Constable D. Silvester.

According to Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., the two cases disposed of by Magistrate Gee here this week, are he first in a period of about seven years in which persons convicted of being drunk in charge of a motor vehicle have escaped imprisonment.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in dealing with such cases has never given drunken drivers any option of suspended sentence, but has adhered rigidly to the rule that upon conviction offenders must take a minimum of seven days' imprisonment

THIRD MAN WOUNDED.

Police Hunt Supper Guest Known to Have Jumped Through Window.

HOLLYWOOD, April 26 (A.P.. — Mysterious shootings that brought death to a movie style creator and his chauffeur and possibly fatal injuries to another in the film capital during the night were reported as murder and suicide to-day by sheriff's officers.

O. H. Cloud, sheriff's deputy in charge of the case, said Paul Ivar Wharton, 25-year-old designer of clothes for film actresses, was shot by William Howard, 35, former navy ensign and later Wharton's chauffeur.

Cloud said Howard later shot and probably fatally wounded Henry E. Bolte, 38, law instructor at the University of California at Los Angeles. After injuring Bolte, Cloud said Howard shot and killed himself.

The slaying of Wharton was the tragic climax of a supper attended by two guests in his Hollywood apartment studio. The other shootings occurred later in an apartment several blocks away.

Violent Dispute.

Cloud said the sheriff's office was convinced the shootings were motivated by financial differences involving the three men and a violent quarrel concerning money that Wharton and Bolte owed Howard preceded the shootings.

'Our investigation has established that a man we know only as C. M. McDermott was the third person in the room at the time Wharton was slain,' Cloud said. "We believe he was not involved in the shootings, but other officers now are looking for him in the belief he can clear up minor details pertaining to the tragedy."

Cloud said McDermott leaped from Wharton's apartment after three shots had been fired. The deputy said the fan's fall was broken by shrubbery, and investigators later found a brown hat and a piece of white shirt.

Shot In the Back

Bolte rushed to a receiving hospital and reported near death, told police he was unlocking his apartment door when a man whom he did not know shot him in the back.

As he fell, he said he heard another shot and saw the man, later identified as Howard, slump to the Pilgrims From Many Lands Crowd Area Round Grotto at Lourdes.

72 HOURS OF PRAYERS.

LOURDES, France, April 26 (AP) Fervent hymns of peace, taken up by 50,000 throats, re-echoed in the mountains fringing this picturesque town to-day as priest and prelate ascended the altar to lead the three-day supplications for good will among nations.

During the night-long supplications, a vast throng of pilgrims packed the open space outside the Grotto where Saint Bernadette reported the apparation of the virgin.

Many of the thousands of faithful who have flocked here from all parts of the world for the ceremonies marking the close of the holy year slept on the ground outside the Grotto.

It is estimated 200,000 will have joined in the supplications at the shrine before the Tridiuum closes.

The 72-hours of continual prayer opened at 4 p.m. yesterday in the presence of Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, personal legate of Pope Pius. Sixty nigh church dignataries from distant parts of the world as well as members of noble European families, including former Empress Zita of Austria and the Archduke Otto were on hand to welcome the papal secretary of state.

The procession of masses, 14 in all, will be brought to a close Sunday night with an allocution to be broadcast by the Pope from Vatican City.

Boy's Description

BENNETT GIVEN WARM GREETING LONDON STATION

States If He Had Any intention of Retiring He Would Have Stated So Before.

RESTFUL VOYAGE.

LONDON, April 26.—(C P Cable). —A representative of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald welcomed Premier R. B. Bennett on his arrival at Paddington Station this afternoon. Mr. Bennett shook hands with a small party of Canadians who had also came out to greet him, remarked that he seemed all the better for his voyage, and left forthwith for Claridge's hotel.

Rumors he intended retiring were dismissed with the remark: "Ask yourself whether I should make such an announcement here or in Canada. If I had had anything in my mind I should of course have said it before I left."

No Election Date Yet

The Premier was amused by the suggestion he had already fixed September for a general election. "If I knew the date I should be willing to tell you," he added with a laugh.

"It is always a pleasure to set foot ashore in England and doubly so this time when I bear a message to the King of your country and mine, a message of loyalty and devotion. "It is particularly pleasurable to arrive in Plymouth, where the First

RENEW SEARCH FOR LOST CHILD BY LARGE POSSE

Six Year Old Boy Has Been Missing Since Five O'clock Thursday.

CANAL DRAINED.

Small Pet Dog Leads Searchers to the Water's Edge.

The disappearance of little Jack McMillan, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril H. McMillan, who has been missing for twenty-two hours at the time of going to press, is presenting local authorities with a baffling problem.

On the assumption that child had been drowned in the Trent Canal a rescue squad worked for two hours up to midnight dragging the canal in the vicinity of Maria Street Bridge where the boy was last reported to have been seen, and where his pet dog "Buddy" a black and tan pomeranian directed the rescuers.

This morning at daybreak the rescue squad resumed the search for the missing boy, and Trent Canal officials gave orders for the canal to be drained on a quarter mile section between Lock 20, at the entrance to Little Lake north as far as the Lift Locks.

At considerable trouble the canal was drained, but without success, and the search for the boy was taken up with renewed energy in other directions.

City police who are lending their full cooperation in the search intimated early this afternoon that they were getting in touch with a Toronto broadcasting station to have a description of the missing child announced over the air. The aid of Boy Scouts has also been enlisted, and a thorough search of the district is to be undertaken.

The child who was visiting with his grandmother, Mrs. M. W. Porter, 309 Rogers street at the time of his disappearance, was presumed to have been drowned in the Trent Canal. The assumption was based on a strong clue provided by "Buddy," a tiny black and tan pomeranian dog owned by Mrs. Porter, who led searchers to the east bank of the canal at Maria street bridge.

So persistent was Jack's little four-footed companion in directing searchers to the canal that authorities ordered that a quarter-mile section of the canal from Lock 20 at the entrance to Little Lake north as far as the Life Locks, be drained of water in an effort to recover the body of the child.

Difficult Task.

Lock 20 is the winter base for tugs, scows and other equipment, and lowering of water levels involved a considerable amount of work. Eight employees of the Trent Canal working under the direction of James P. McGrath, canal superintendent, started at daybreak and preparatory operations included removal of the Tug "Katchiwano"; a coal scow; a gate lifter; dump scow; as well as a large boom and Tenders to be Called for 20,000 New Mattresses For Jobless.

GOV'T PAY 90 P.C.

Malnutrition Not General, But Children Need Extra Supplies Premier Finds.

TORONTO, April 26.—(CP) — A 90-per cent Ontario government contribution towards purchase of new mattresses and an increase in food allowances was the promise Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn left with relief recipients after a visit to their homes.

Unemployed had protested relief schedules were inadequate and yesterday Premier Hepburn, with several of his cabinet ministers, made a personal inspection of relief recipients' homes.

On his return he said new measures for the benefit of unemployed and their families will be put into effect immediately.

Officials of the National Unemployed Council and the Ontario Workers' Association who led a hunger march to Queen's Park shortly before the close of the legislature session charged malnutrition existed amongst unemployed. It was these charges which prompted Premier Hepburn's personal inspection.

Tenders for Mattresses

The premier said public tenders for the supply of 20,000 mattresses to the unemployed will be called immediately. He expressed the opinion malnutrition did not exist in a general way among unemployed. He said, however, that it was "Quite evident the food vouchers are not sufficient to provide the variety of food necessary for growing children."

The premier's inspection tour took in the territory from Scarboro township on the east to Long Branch on the west.

WEEKLY LIVESTOCK REVIEW

TORONTO, April 26. — (CP) — Heavy runs in the last three days of trading on the Toronto Livestock market this week weakened the cattle division and wiped out most of a 15 to 25-cent gain made opening day. Hogs lost 20 cents, sheep were slightly lower while calves and lambs were firm.

The heavy runs on the cattle division also slowed trading for the latter half of the week and some 300 head were unsold at the close. American buyers took about 800 cattle, including weighty steers of good and choice quality, choice handyweight butchers and fed calves. A few choice quality, choice handyweight butchers and fed calves. A few choice 1260-pound steers sold at $8.80, the highest price here since July, 1930. Most of the choice weighty steers sold at $7.25 to $7.85 with mediums down to $5.50. Butcher cattle sold mostly at $5.25 to $6.25 with choice up to $6.50 and $6.65. One high of $7.25 was made. A few common steers and heifers sold as low as $4.25. Cowsopened strong at $4.50 to $5.25 for choice but close with tops generally at $4.75. Plai ngrades sold down to $2.50 and a few canners brought $1.75 to $1.50.

Good, light butcher bulls changed hands at $3.40 to $4.25 with two at $4.75. Bologna bulls went at $3.00 to $3.25. Fed calves ranged from $6.75 to $7.50 for choice with one at $8.00 and mediums at $5.50 to $6.50 cwt. Light stockers of common to medium quality sold at $4.00 to $4.85 with a few good feeders at $5.00 to $5.75. Good milkers and springers were a shade stronger at $45 to $60 with plain slow at $30 to $35 each.

Calves were firm under a light run of 1,800 head. Choice vealers sold at $7.00 to $7.50 with occasional tops at $8.00 cwt. Common to medium calves, which made up the bulk of the supply, sold between $3.00 and $3.50 cwt.

Hogs, also under a light run, dropped 20 cents Monday and sold at the lower level for the balance of the week. Bacons closed at $8.00 f.o.b., $8.35 off truck and $8.75 off car. Selects brought the usual $1.00 premium while sows were held at a discount of $2.50 to $3.00 below the off car price.

Sheep and lamb receipts of 3,400 head included 2,600 western feedlot supplies and a few hundred Ontario-fed westerns. At $7.80 for the bulk of good lambs and $6.80 to $6.50 for medium, the price was steady. Two cars of choice westerns sold Monday at $7.25 cwt. The few spring lambs offered sold lower at $3.00 to $7.00 each. Warm weather weakened the sheep division. The close was at $1.00 to $3.50 cwt., according to quality.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Maximum breaks of about two cents a bushel in wheat prices accompanied clearing away of open accounts for the $6,000,000 Rosenbaum Grain Corporation.

Despite heavy selling that resulted from bankruptcy petitions of the Rosenbaum concern, and that caused grain values to be lower most of the day, stubborn resistance to price downturns became apparent, and rallies at times lifted quotations in numerous cases to above Tuesday's level. Strength of securities, together with forecasts of probable frost in Kansas and Nebraska, encouraged buying on setbacks of prices.

Wheat closed unsettled, ½c to 1¼c under Wednesday's finish; May 98c to 98¼c; corn, ¼c off to ¼c up, May 87¾c to 88c; oats at ½c decline to ¼c advance, and provisions varying from 7c loss to an equal gain.

Trade estimates were that a to-

MUCH WASTE LAND.

Province Spending Millions For Wood in U. S. Dean Howe Says.

"In the territory south of a line drawn from the middle of Bruce County through the southern section of Victoria, the middle of Peterborough, Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac, there are at least a half million acres of waste lands that are lying idle and unproductive, and that should be reforested," said C. D. Howe, dean of the Faculty of Forestry at the University of Toronto in an address to the Public Schools section of the Ontario Education.

Dean Howe discussed a subject which has on occasion been mentioned at sessions of the Peterborough County council, and more recently was advocated by Alderman Sloan, the reforesting of available lands in this county. He suggested that unemployed men might be engaged in a work that would ensure for the future a supply of hardwood that is rapidly becoming depleted.

"The people of the Ontario cities, villages and farms spend around $25,000,000 a year to heat their houses with coal. The greater portion of this is spent by the people ofsouthern Ontario, and in turn the greater portion of that money is exported to the United States.

"It goes chiefly to pay the wages of foreign labor. With proper care, rehabilitation and extension of our farm woodlot area a considerable portion of this great sum of money would be saved from export and expended in our own province."

"During this time the opportunity nearest at hand, right at our backdoor as it were, the method most logical and in the long run the cheapest method, has never been given serious consideration as a definite governmentally supported policy," he said. "I refer to the rehabilitation and the re-establishment of the farm woodlots.

"As I say, this enormous dram of money from the province for the purchase of coal for household heating and cooking purposes (I do not refer to the purchase of coal for power purposes) has been going on for fifty years. The amount of money sent out in any one year in-

ORILLIA FACES WORST CRISIS

Finance Committee Asks Mayor to Call Special Council Meeting.

TAX RATE 50 MILLS.

ORILLIA, April 26. — Dissatisfied with the present tax rate of 50 mills, Alderman J. C. Miller the chairman of the Finance Committee of the Town Council, has asked Mayor J. B. Johnston to call a special meeting of Council to reconsider the question.

"The town is facing the most serious financial crisis in its history, if the present rate stands," Alderman Miller said yesterday. "We are already at the limit of our borrowing powers, and the change in the school year will force more borrowing. The reduction in discount is certain to result in the taxes coming in more slowly. Besides, the levy for relief is not sufficient to meet the growing expenditures, especially as we are not going to get an extra mill from the Orillia Water ,Light and Power Commission this year as they have their hands full with the Munden plant.

"On March 15," Ald. Miller proceeded, "it was agreed at a meeting in committee of the whole that the rate should be 55.5 mills. This was unanimously confirmed at the April meeting, and I, as chairman of the Finance Committee, was authorized to promise the Royal Bank and the Department of Municipal Affairs that this would be the rate. Then on April 16 the rate was change to 50 mills, in direct violation of the promise I had made on the town's behalf."

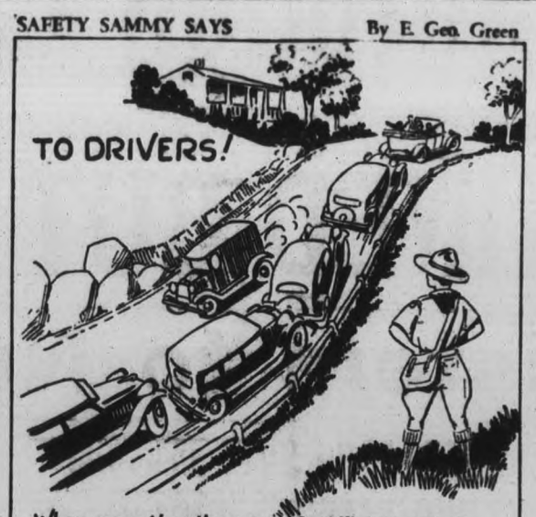
SAFETY SAMMY SAYS By E. Geo. Green



When mounting the crest of a hill never slow down suddenly simply to admire buildings or scenery. Not only do you hamper traffic behind you but you may cause accidents when drivers are "stepping on the gas" to climb the hill.

Climbing Beaver

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 26. (CP).—The report of a Canadian National Telegraphs despatcher on a line break near here has started an argument among naturalists. It told how two lads chased a beaver up a tree and had to cut the tree down, snapping the wire in the fall. The despatcher confirmed his report in spite of conentions beavers can't climb trees and even if they can, the boys could have climbed after the animal.

CALL WAS FORWARDED SETTLEMENT COMMITTEE

In reporting the meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery held in the Millbrook United Church on Tuesday an error was made in the item referring to the call of the Trinity Church board to Rev. G. E. Easton of North Bay. The Examiner quotes in its heading, "Millbrook meeting approves Rev. G. E. Easton's appointment." This is not so, the presbytery neither approved nor disapproved but merely sent the call forward to the settlement committee, simpliciter, in case Mr. Easton's transfer is affected.

Ontario To Collect Tax On Wine Sales

TORONTO, April 26.— (CP).— Taking advantage of authority granted under amendments to the Ontario Liquor Control Act passed at the recent Legislative session, the Ontario Government will collect a five per cent. tax on gross sales of all wineries in Ontario starting June 1.

The move was announced yesterday after agreement on the tax was reached at a conference between 36 wine manufacturers and Chairman E. G. Odette of the Ontario Liquor Board.

Sizes of bottles or containers in which Ontario-produced wines are sold will be standardized on the same date.

Each wine manufacturer is allowed one retail outlet. These, however, it was argued by the Liquor Control Board, are competitors to some degree with government stores. For this reason the tax was imposed.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 26. (CP).—A breath of spring blew into police court here when the court attendant called out the name: 'Obadiah Morningglory'. Mr. Morningglory, who gave his residence as in Toronto, was charged with drunkenness and the breath of spring was quickly snuffed when he was fined $10 and costs of $1.50.

FIND SHORTAGE OVER PROVINCE OF GOOD HOMES

Survey However Reveals Rentals Are Lower by 25 Per Cent.

APARTMENTS POPULAR.

Construction Generally Found Far Below That During 1929.

(By The Canadian Press)

With the approach of May Day—"Moving Day" to many Ontarians—a province-wide survey by the Canadians Press reveals a slight shortage of better-class houses and a demand for apartments. Rentals generally for six-room houses and five-room apartments are lower than in 1929 by 25 per cent or more.

Building plans are much the same as last year, but there are signs of improvement in some areas. Construction is far under that of 1929 and value of buildings is lower.

Pecular variation from the general situation was seen in North Bay, where house rentals are lower compared with 1929, but apartment rentals are higher. In some cities where families "double up" during the depression, an acute housing shortage is looked for as conditions return to normal.

Rents Down in Toronto

In Toronto, where rentals vary greatly according to location, realtors estimated present rents as much as 25 per cent. lower than in 1929. Some shortage of better-class houses was seen and there is a brisk demand for apartments. The building outlook is brighter, with more houses under construction now than at this time last year, but there is scarcely any comparison with extensive construction six years ago.

In Windsor only one per cent. of houses and five per cent. of apartment sare vacant. Six-room houses rent for $27.50 to $35, compared with $40 to $60 in 1929. Building was at a standstill last year, but prospects are fair this Spring.

Apartments are at a premium in Stratford, but there is no shortage of houses. Rents for both are about $12 under 1929 figures. Only four dwellings, costing $8,700, were built last year compared with 29 in 1929 costing $66,200. The building outlook is no brighter than in 1934.

"NO, NO, A THOUSAND TIMES NO"--SAYS MAE BUT HOOFER HUBBY WON'T BE LAUGHED OFF

"24-Year Silence Kept for Her," Says Frank Wallace, Veteran Trouper.

"STILL LOVES HER"

NEW YORK, April 26.—The New York Evening Journal in a copyright story said that an old-time trouper had admitted marrying Mae West April 11, 1911, in Milwaukee. The story added:

"The dance man is Frank Wallace, 42, of the team of Wallace and La May, under the management of Jack Cornell of the Strand Building, and he says he is still in love with La Belle West."

(Reports recently that Frank Wallace died two years ago were found to relate to another actor of the same name. The deceased Frank Wallace's relatives announced in New York that he had known Miss West, but had not been married to her).

The story continued that Wallace, a self-effacing paradox of the usual Forty-seventh street and Seventh avenue variety, sighed:

"What a girl! What a girl! What do I think of her?"

"If I had the money I would still be sending her flowers every week. There is still a soft spot in my heart for Mae, though I suppose she has long forgotten her old partner and husband."

This Wallace Is "Dark 'n' Handsome".

Wallace, the story added, is a slender, dark chap of medium height, who is proud of the silence he maintained for twenty-four years which he views as a gesture of his devotion to the "Belle of the Nineties." The Journal quoted Wallace as follows:

"I always had enough confidence in myself to make good in the profession, and when Mae started ahead I kept quiet and continued along my way.

"You know, Mae and I made a kid agreement that if either of us got to the top of the ladder, he would help the other. She didn't ask me; I never asked her and I never opened my mouth when she climbed ahead. She deserves all the success she earned."

Wallace related, in halting phrases, the Journal said, the kiddish romance that he says culminated in the marriage to Mae West and subsequently wound up in a sudden divorce in 1916 or 1917. He was asked:

'And who served the divorce papers?"

"None other than kid sister, Beverly West, the damsel who reported that 'There was nothing to the marriage report. It must have been two other people."

Began in Darkest Brooklyn

Conceding that Mae might effectively refute all this, the Journal said Frank told the story in the "sincere fashion of a guy who still loves an old sweetheart and is afraid of injuring her feelings." Wallace was quoted, regarding the romance, as follows:

"Back in 1909 I was playing a single at the Canarsie Music Hall in Brooklyn on the Fox circuit. Joe Leo, now a Fox executive, was the head of the circuit.

"One day after my performance, a swell-looking woman came around back stage and told me she had a daughter who was a comer. She had seen my act, she said, and thought I could help her kid.

"Well, she brought the kid in, and I want to tell you she was one classy little dame. The brunette youngster was Mae West. Her mother talked with a German accent.

"Mae was a sweet little kid, a brunette about 16. I took her mother up and we went into rehearsal—in the cellar of her Bushwick avenue home.

Her First Number: 'Lovin' Honey Man'.

"She worked hard. She did a song and dance, and the first song she did was 'Lovin' Honey Man.'

"She also sang the song, 'When My Marie Sings My Chiddee Biddee Bee', and also the song, 'Jealous,' which aided her climb."

"After a few weeks' rehearsal we went on the Fox circuit. Later we signed with Jacobs and Jermon, the burlesque producers. The show was the 'Sporting Widow' and we played the Columbia circuit, starting west to the circuit terminus at Omaha.

"We were playing at the Gaiety in Milwaukee when Mae and I decided to make it double. Ada Woods who worked with Gus Fox, was the bridesma'd.

"A newspaper woman in Milwaukee said we were two of the cleanest kids seen in that town in a long time. That was in April, 1911.

Mae Stars to Forge Up Front

"We got along swell for a year and were back in New York when Mae (who was good) was offered a single act contract at $350 a week. She asked my advice. I said: 'Take it. Go on up the ladder and good luck.' Then I went back to my single and I was doing a single until six years ago when Miss La May and I teamed up.

"I worked seven years at the Garden restaurant and at Fausts,' at Columbus Circle.

"Joe Moss, now of the Hollywood, took me from Fausts' to the Beaux Arts in Atlantic City in 1915.

"Mae and I got along very well. We were deeply in love. At least I was and still am. But she was kept traveling. We were only kids. I was a dance man. She liked to sing and dance. I liked Broadway She liked to travel and they kept her going, always breaking in new acts. She got better prospects and we just drifted apart. There was no part for me. I suppose there still isn't.

"In 1913 she came to me at Fausts'. That was the last time we met. She was breaking in an act with Harry Richman. She said she could make an arrangement for me to work double with him. I didn't want to leave the cabaret. So that was that.

Mae Offers Him 'Lift' in 1913

"Later Gus Sulke wanted me to work in London. They offered me 50 pounds a week.

"But I was only a kid and I didn't know English money. I thought my $65 a week was more and turned down the job."

Concluding, the story said that Wallace added that he still craves Mae and the only reason he has broken his long silence is the revelation of the old records in Milwaukee. He said:

"I still love Mae, God bless her, and I'm not going to do anything to embarrass her. She is everything they say she is."

Maybe Mae, Maybe Not

A photo taken in the Kregel photo parlors in Minneapolis, back in 1911, shows Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wallace (nee Mae West), then recently wed, and Mae's brother, at LEFT. Frank Wallace, Broadway hoofer, married Mae West in Milwaukee in 1911, and insists that the slim, peppy brunette bride he took then, and was divorced from in 1916 or 1917, is the same curved, blonde lady of the films today. Mae from Hollywood, says "No" to that question and many others connected with the story. So, maybe this group of merrymakers consorting with the man-in-the-moon are a couple of other "fellers".

Sow On Tweed Farm Has 3 Litters In Year

TWEED, April 26 (Examiner Correspondence).—Theodore Courneyea, who resides on Rural Route No. 4, in the Tweed district, reports that within exactly one year and two days, a sow on his farm has given birth to three litters of pigs. Eight little porkers saw the light of day a year ago, thirteen followed on October 5th, and fourteen more made their appearance on Easter Sunday, making a total of thirty-five. Only one pig in the three litters died. This is a remarkably fine record in hog-breeding and raising in this district.

Mr. R. Bevens of Elm Tree was brought to a Tweed physician after he had cut his foot badly with an axe. Several stitches were required to close the wound, and Mr. Bevens returned to his home, where he is improving following the accident.

A CHANCE TO HELP.

Residents of this district who wish to contribute to the King George V. Silver Jubilee Cancer Fund for Canada are invited to leave their donations with The Examiner, which will see that they are promptly forwarded to Lady Bessborough.

The raising of this fund to carry on a campaign against the ravages of cancer throughout the Dominion represents Canada's national commemoration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of King George's accession to the throne, and has been graciously approved by His Majesty.

All the proceeds will be spent in this country, and both because of the absolute necessity of doing everything possible to curb the dread disease and because of the desirability that the fund should be large enough to constitute an impressive demonstration of Canada's regard for the Empire's beloved King, it is to be hoped that there will be a liberal response in all parts of the Dominion.

Federal, provincial and in some cases municipal governments have made substantial grants toward the fund, but much depends upon the generosity of individuals, and they are therefore urged to subscribe liberally and quickly, inasmuch as the total fund is expected to be in the bank at Ottawa on May 5th, so that the information in regard to the total amount may be cabled to His Majesty on the following day, which is the actual anniversary of his accession.

This is really a case of "he gives twice who gives quickly."

THE ANNUAL MUDDLE.

Viewing with dismay the approach of daylight saving time in some Ontario cities and the inevitable confusion that will follow its arrival, the Kitchener News-Record is out with a plea that Government action should be taken to prevent this annual muddle.

"In our opinion," says Hon. W. D. Euler's paper "the situation calls for courageous action on the part of either the Provincial or the Federal Government. Definite uniformity either with daylight saving enforced everywhere in the province or Dominion, or with its introduction banned throughout the country, would be vastly better than the tolerance of the present confusion."

Most people will agree with the statement that a uniform system is better than the haphazard "summer time" schedule that exists in Ontario from the end of April until the close of September.

The trouble is that the thing is political dynamite, and no party which realizes the hostility of rural voters to messing about with the clocks would take a chance up advocating a provincial or federal adoption of the daylight saving time.

As for action prohibiting cities from adopting it on their own account, that course, while it might be popular politically on the concession lines, would not prove of much practical value.

More than one state across the border has tried to put a ban on the summer time scheme, but urban centres ignored the regulations, moved their clocks on an hour when the time came, and followed the "summer time" schedule as before, and there was nothing that the state could do about it.

TRY THIS ON YOURSELF.

Peterborough has a whole lot of people who pride themselves upon being good motor car drivers; as a matter of fact, we cannot offhand think of any person possessing a car who admits that he may not be in the top bracket in this respect.

Well, here is a chance for all motorists to do a little self-examining along this line to see whether or not they are as good as they imagined themselves to be.

Roy Caldwell, acting under the direction of Professor Chant of the University of Toronto, has prepared the following questionnaire. Study these questions closely and decide just what score you can conscientiously give yourself:

1.—Do you give all your attention to your car when you are driving?—10 marks.

2.—Do you always drive at a reasonable speed, giving due consideration to traffic, road and weather conditions?—10 marks.

3.—Do you always give the right of way to pedestrians, especially children and older people?—8 marks.

4.—Do you always keep to your own side of the road?—6 marks.

5.—Do you become excited when confronted with a sudden emergency?—6 marks.

6.—Do you have a tendency to insist on "the right of way"?—6 marks.

7.—Do you ever drive a car when you are not in full possession of all your faculties?—4 marks.

8.—Do you always keep your car in perfect mechanical condition?—6 marks.

9.—Are your brakes, lights and horn always in good condition?—8 marks.

10.—Do you drive with worn or defective tires?—4 marks.

11.—Do you keep your windshield wiper in good working order?—2 marks.

12.—Is your rear mirror properly placed?—2 marks.

13.—Do you slow down to 10 miles an hour before entering an intersection?—6 marks.

14.—Do you slow down to twenty miles per hour before crossing a railway track?—4 marks.

15.—Do you "cut in" when passing another car on the highway?—4 marks.

16.—Do you always enter the left lane of traffic before turning left?—4 marks.

17.—Do you always enter the right lane of traffic before turning right?—3 marks.

18.—Do you strictly observe all traffic rules, stop lights and signals?—8 marks.

These marks total one hundred, and Caldwell suggests that after you have added up your total score deduct ten for over-enthusiasm in your check, and that will give you your rating.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Mr. Hepburn's home county paper, the St. Thomas Times-Journal, views the charge made by the Premier that High Commissioner G. Howard Ferguson had fomented, for political reasons, the agitation in Great Britain over the cancellation of the Quebec power purchase contracts as a very serious charge to make against one of the most prominent officials of the Dominion of Canada.

"If Mr. Hepburn has anything to base his charge upon other than supposition, he should produce us evidence," says the Times-Journal, "and if Mr. Ferguson is unable to rebut that charge he should be recalled."

After all, it is a rather grave indictment of an official who is supposed to be out of politics, and whose duty is to represent all Canada at the heart of the Empire, to assert that for political advantage he would deliberately hurt the credit not only of one Canadian province but of the whole Dominion by stirring up resentment in the United Kingdom over the actions of the Ontario Government.

If there is any proof that Mr. Ferguson is guilty of the offense charged against him by Premier Hepburn, then undoubtedly he has shown himself unworthy of the high position he occupies.

On the other hand, unless Premier Hepburn can furnish proof of his assertion, it would seem imperative that he should lose no time in withdrawing his statement.

The St. Thomas paper is quite right in pointing out that this is not a matter that should be treated lightly; a premier of a Canadian province has preferred a serious charge against Canada's representative in the United Kingdom, and the thing cannot be allowed to rest there.

THIS THING OF GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS.

When on Monday of this week a delegation of Montreal bakers asked Premier Taschereau for a commission to fix minimum bread prices, Mr. Taschereau replied:

> "We are verging on governmental-state-control of everything. Yesterday it was control of milk; to-day it is control of bread. To-morrow, it will be control of meat. This means state control of everything—on a very, very socialistic basis."

Truly we have come a long way since the days when men believed the best Government is the Government which governs least. The party which gives that creed most lip service to-day does not let its left hand know what its right hand is doing. In its political literature and oratory it pays homage to individualism, but in Parliament it votes for collectivism. As a consequence, because all our political parties, influenced by a pubic pressure, stand for regulatory legislation, no business seems too small to escape the hand of Government. In addition, more than one-eighth of the population is dependent, either directly or indirectly, upon the Federal Government for its food, clothing and shelter, for its basic necessities of life.

It is little wonder then that there is to-day almost more government in business than there is business. While pioneer days remained only the hardiest souls survived under a laissez faire system. But those days passed forever with the close of the Great War, and business ceased to be successful in finding new markets in new sections of the world. It was then, when it became necessary to divide up what markets there were, that Governments were appealed to.

The tangled industrial business situation which exists on this continent to-day is derived from many sources, but the most important is the unsolved question of consumption. We can and do produce more than the purchasing power of the country will absorb. If Government has failed to solve this problem, a fair measure of its attempts to be a bulwark against chaos of the wildest kind is to be found in consideration of what Canada and most of this continent would resemble if, to-morrow, all relief, all regulation, all enforcement of law, all Government loans and financial assistance, all our departments here in Ottawa, should suddenly come to an abrupt full stop. A blessing? No person in the possession of his mental faculties would call it that.

The Journal is no friend of bureaucracy. It has spoken its thoughts on regulation many times. But between necessary regulation and no regulation we are emphatically opposed to industrial and business anarchy.

* * * *

Nor need we be too greatly alarmed over the new order. One of the laws of nature seems to be that things never turn out as well as we hope, nor as badly as we fear. Looking back over the years, or over the yellowing files of newspapers, we find that on many occasions within memory of the living starry-eyed reformers saw the dawn of a new world; with a corresponding number of dismayed conservatives seeing the end of everything. Yet the new world didn't come, nor the end of everything, either. The world went on as before.

All of us have a propensity for extreme language—for a high temperature of hope, or fear. When Lloyd George brought his budget to England, there was a loud cry of "socialism." Sir Charles Tupper, then our high commissioner in London, saw the Empire breaking up. When the first income tax measure was proposed for the United States, so great a mind as Joseph H. Choate called it "the communistic march." Yet no harm came to the Empire because of Lloyd George, nor to the United States because of the income tax.

The truth is that underlying the mass emotion of men, blazing through the headlines, there is a shrewd common sense which ultimately saves everything. It is the reason why government in business, whatever harm it may bring, will never be permitted to engulf us.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

While 35 provincial police are massed at Crowland to prevent strike riots, it would be interesting to know just who is guarding the spawning muskies in some sections of the province.

British millers complain that Canada is not selling her wheat at the world price, to which the obvious rejoinder is that under the subsidy system followed in many countries there is no such thing as a world price.

Premier Forbes of New Zealand declares that when Britain is at war his country is. That undoubtedly would be the view of the enemy as well.

Cobourg has decided to celebrate the royal jubilee so long as it does not cost the town anything. They must be observing thrift week down by the lake.

Anyway the sessions of the Ontario Educational Association this week have shown that there is no dearth of ideas among Ontario's teachers and school trustees.

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

ASHCROFT, BRITISH COLUMBIA

The natural gateway to the Cariboo country and the outfitting point to the Highland valley mining district, Ashcroft traces its origin to 1862, when C. F. Cornwall, later lieutenant-governor of the province, took up farming land near the present town.

He named it Ashcroft Manor, for a house of the Cornwall family in England. Later a roadhouse of sorts was built and it, too, made use of the word Ashcroft.

Actually, Ashcroft did not have its beginning as a town until the C.P.R. construction days, the townsite having been laid out in 1884.

Your Health

By Dr LOGAN CLENDENING

One form of arthritis which is likely to come on after middle age involves particularly the back. It may cause a great deal of pain, not only in the back itself, but by impingement on nerves of the abdomen, down the leg, and in the region of the sciatic nerve. This is a chronic disease which may last for several years. The pain eventually disappears, leaving a certain amount of stiffness of the spine.

People in this condition, however, may have the entire process lighted up again by an injury or by heavy lifting or a strain of the back. In a series of several thousand cases of lower-back pain, it was found that 30 per cent of them could be classified in this way.

The usual history of these cases is somewhat as follows: A person of about 50 will have a fall or strain the back while lifting. One patient that I know of, aged 54, dated her pain from day on which she was doing some aesthetic dancing. While I applaud the spirit of anyone 54 years old who does aesthetic dancing, I feel that a warning should be sounded against such enthusiasms.

Rest Important

The treatment is important because the patients lose a great deal of time with ineffective treatments. Nearly all of them have had their teeth or tonsils removed, light treatments, manipulations and massage by masseurs or osteopaths, without obtaining any relief. The proper treatment is rest, with support of the spine as on a fracture bed and immobility for several weeks.

In fact, this form of treatment is valuable for many cases of backache and sciatica. All too frequently patients believe that movement and exercise and manipulation will cure them when, as a matter of fact, these procedures really make them worse and the one outstanding and obvious thing, which is rest, is forgotten.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

H. C. R.: "(1) A neighbor of ours gave my father a cedar chest that belonged to a relative of theirs who has just died of a cancer of the nose. The neighbor is a particular person in matters of health and washed the chest with lysol and aired it a day before giving it to my father. Is there any danger of us getting cancer from this? (2) My father does not seem to believe in the existence of germs. He makes a salt water mouth wash when he gets up in the morning and uses his fingers to get the salt from the salt bowl. Is there any danger of us getting disease from this practice?"

Answer: (1) There is no danger of catching cancer either from an article or furniture or in any other way. Cancer is definitely not a contagious diseases. There is no instance out of the many thousand examples of people who have lived with, slept with, attended and handled cancer patients, or contagion occuring. On fact, many experimenters have attempted to remove cancer tissue and inject it into their own persons with the idea of producing cancer, but none ever has occurred. (2) I do not believe there is any danger in the practice which you speak of. Salt has some antiseptic power. While I do not approve of the practice as an ideal sanitary measure, I doubt whether it will cause any actual disease.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

I COULD BE PERFECT, BUT—

I know a lot about raising children properly....I have read dozens of books on the subject. I have done much thinging about it. I used to get rather good "marks" in school, so at least I have a good memory, regardless of what you may think of my intelligence.

So I know about children....I used to be one of them and I think I remember what it was like.

I know what they should eat.

I know how much sleep they should have.

I know how they should be treated.

I have a fairly accurate idea of what goes on in their minds and what they think of grown-ups. (I am not always sure of this, however.)

I know that what they say should be heard respectfully and that they should be treated with consideration.

I know that children like to know where they stand; they like a "no" to mean "yes."

I know that parents shouldn't fuss and nag.

They should treat their children as intelligent human beings.

They should not let small irritations trouble them.

They should always keep their promises.

They should be their children's friends.

Their homes should be quiet and restful and really HOME for the young people, where the truth can always be told and where the child will be happy and at ease.

In fact, I know a lot about what a parent should be and I know a lot more than I have set down here. If I tried to write all that I know about raising children it would fill a fat book and people would write me for advice and I would be a recognized expert on the subject.

BUT—

But my knowledge is far greater than my ability to perform. I know a lot, but I don't do a lot. I could be perfect, but you can ask any of my children if I AM....And I'd rather not be there when you ask.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Red Williams

THE PIONEERS OF A HUMAN TIDE

On this date (April 26) in 1871 an event took place at Fort Garry which had a determining result upon the future of the Canadian West. Prompted perhaps by the description of the Red River country taken back to Toronto and other Ontario points by men who had returned from Wolseley's military expedition in 1870 animated perhaps by that lust for pioneering which marked the Canadian of that period, a legacy from U.E.L. forebears, or, maybe, the instruments of an unseen hand directing our destiny, a party of young men from Ontario had set out from their native province to try their luck in the unknown West. They travelled by Chicago and St. Paul to Moorehead, Minn. There they built a raft and entrusted themselves on it to the raging waters of the Red River, then in spring flood. The voyage was quite an exciting one, but their raft carried them safely to Garry, where, in all probability, they found acquaintances among the men who had elected to stay in the West when the bulk of the Wolseley force returned home.

The names of these eight pioneers were: Clark, Dundas, Gerrond, Johnston, McDonald, McKinnon, Robertson and Savage. It is apparent from the names that a majority of them were of Scottish blood, quite fitting for successors of Scots who had been brought by Selkirk and for pioneers of the tide of humanity which was to follow them into the ocean-like tract of prairie and eventually occupy the country up and past the Rockies. It would be interesting if some one were to trace the later history of these eight pioneers from Ontario and ascertain how many went on the land and how many stayed on the Red River to become builders of the great Winnipeg of today.

Popular Astronomy

BY ANDREW JACK.

THE SKY IN APRIL

Three of our brightest planets, Venus, Mars and Jupiter may now be seen. We shall still have Venus for a few months in the western sky, but soon some constellations near her will be gone till next winter.

Early after dark, and along the western horizon from right to left are Venus, the constellation Orion, and Sirius of Canis Major low in the south-west. Right above the last is Procyon of Canis Minor. The Twins, Castor and Pollux are higher and more to the right, facing west and looking high. Looking south at 9 to 10 p.m. the constellation Leo is high up. The space between the Sickle of Leo and the Twins contains the faint constellation Cancer (a Crab) in which is the hazy star cluster called the Manger, or the Beehive, or in books Praesepe in Cancer. It is worth viewing with binoculars. Galiles saw 36 separate stars in it with his first telescope in 1620. With the finest instruments there are reckoned 300.

Below it and between Leo and Procyon, are six or seven small stars, the head of Hydra, more easily noticed.

Mars, the brightest object a little east of south at 10 p.m. is in the constellation Virgo. On Friday this planet and three near stars were in a line. Denebola above at the left end of Leo, then Gamma of Virgo with Mars very close below, and lowest Spica, the Alpha of Virgo.

Mars has in a few days moved a little out of line to the west, so it is now in apparent retrograde. Its true progress eastward among the fixed stars will be observed at some later date.

It is an hour or two later that Jupiter will be seen south east in the constellation Libra. In some clear weather recently the Alpha star of Libra was seen with glasses to have a small companion very close to it, and some other visual doubles were noticed.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, April 26 (A.P.). — While some of the mining issues lost their buoyancy to-day when the Treasury failed to meet another advance in world silver prices, they still formed the best group in the stock market. Elsewhere, there were a number of declines on profit-taking.

Silver King held a gain of more than 2 points, and American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Alaska Juneau, McIntyre, Porcupine, and Park Utah, although paring early advances, were fractionally to a point higher. American Telephone was an isolated firm spot, along with Amerada and Eastman Kodak. Coca Cola lost 4 points and United States Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Schenley, American Can and Celanese were moderately lower.

The late tone was irregular. Transfers approximated 1,300,000 shares.

THREE MILLION SHARES TRADED TORONTO MINES

Last Minute Profit-taking Trims Gains in Silver Issues.

BASE METALS HIGHER.

TORONTO, April 26. (CP). — Pressing close to the 3,000,000 mark volume on the mining section of the Toronto exchange exceeded that of any other session in more than a year. The silvers held the main interest and the floor of buying orders sent prices zooming upward until mid-afternoon when a rush to reap profits trimmed gains severely but they were well up for the day at the close. Base Metals closed higher on good volume and scattered gains against just as many recessions appeared in the gold group.

A new high world price for bar silver since October, 1922, kept up the boom in the white metal. From a top of 2.94 for Eldorado, the price shot down to 2.63 and then steadied around 2.73 for a net gain of 20 cents for the day. Castle touched a high of 1.33 before the break and the close at 1.24 was up only one cent. Bear lost all but a couple of cents of the day's gains and Nipissing.

A mild attack of weakness appeared in Bralorne, Teck Hughes, and Pioneer, Bralorne selling off to 7.25. In the secondary group lower prices ruled for McKenzie, McWatters, Macassa and Sylvanite. Gunnar was active and higher, though a big share of the day's gain was lost.

TORONTO GAINS EXCEED LOSSES

Oils and Liquors Higher at Close on Considerable Turnover.

BUYING IN BEVERAGES.

TORONTO, April 26 (C.P.). — Trading expanded on a firmer price tone this afternoon on the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange and the list closed with gains exceeding losses. Nickel and Smelters continued to dominate the market, both selling higher on heavy volume, while the turnover was considerable in the oils and liquors and these groups were also up at the close. A rumor that the U.S. would shortly lower the import tax on liquor brought in a lot of buying in the liquors.

Consolidated Smelters held strong till just before the close when it sold down. Nickel, around 27⅜ had a half point advance. Ford A was sold for a half point less and C.P.R. and Brazilian finished the session unchanged.

Substantial turnover in Walkers common resulted in a gain of only a quarter point. Distillers Seagrams advanced nearly a full point to close just under the 15 mark. Canadian Industrial Alcohol a paced along to close at 9⅝ for a gain of ⅜.

BENNETT GIVEN WARM GREETING

Canadian Division landed in 1914," he said.

The Premier said he hoped to be back in Canada for the reassembly of Parliament, May 20.

The improvement in economic conditions in Canada was gradual, but had been maintained for the last ten months. Canada was not in a position to afford large numbers of immigrants momentarily, but was looking forward with other Dominions to the day when conditions would warrant a vigorous immigration policy.

"The more one studies the European situation the more difficult it is to understand," he said. "Why countries which have just emerged from a terrible conflict should be thinking about another, is something people in our country find diffiult to appreciate. The action taken by the Motherland toward the peace of the world is approved in Canada which thinks more in terms of peace than offence."

The sole object of his visit, the Premier declared, was to attend the Jubilee celebrations.

"But of course," he added, "when people get together from overseas they naturally discuss their common problems. We shall talk over our difficulties but in an unofficial way, because no conference of Dominion Premiers is planned."

Memel Is Sore Point In European Troubles

LONDON, April 26 (A.P.). — Informed quarters said to-day Great Britain, France and Italy are planning to appeal to the League of Nations for action against Lithuania unless that country agrees to the recommendations contained in the powers' recent note regarding Memel.

The nations concerned are seeking a quick reply to the note, in which it was asserted German residents in Memel should be given their proper share in the Memel directorate but, thus far, Lithuania has not indicated when she will reply or what she will say.

United Church Presbyteries to Date Favor Women in Ministry.

EXECUTIVE MEETS.

TORONTO, April 26.—Authority for employment of Rev. J. King Gordon in connection with the work of the United Church of Canada was granted yesterday by the Executive of General Council at its annual meeting.

A number of resolutions from Presbyteries and communications from ministers and members of the United Church in various parts of the country were received, urging that the Executive take definite action in this direction. After careful consideration the following conclusions were reached:

"That, for one year only, Rev. J. King Gordon be appointed special lecturer in Christian ethics, to be available for service in the theological colleges and elsewhere, his duties to commence July 1, 1935. That he serve under the direction of a committee to be named by the subexecutive of General Council"

The vote on ordination of women proposals for co-operation with other Christian communions and the request of Winnipeg colleges for authority to make a financial appeal, were other matters dealt with by the executive, with the Moderator, Dr. Richard Roberts, presiding.

It was reported that voting in the Presbyteries on the question to open the ministry to women was not yet complete, but that 76 of 114 Presbyteries had made returns, more than fifty of them giving a majority in favor.

BITTER ARTICLE BY MACDONALD DRAWS ATTACK

Opposition Press Believes Rap at Germany Inopportune at Present.

MAY "HURT" PEACE.

LONDON, April 26 (AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's attack on Germany's foreign policy took political circles by surprise, but opposition parties to-day responded with protests.

George Lansbury, Labor leader and one-time colleague of MacDonald, led the Socialist and Liberal groups in deploring the Prime Minister's strictures in which he accused Germany of threatening the outlook for continued peace in Europe.

"These are days when he should be damping down instead of stimulating antagonisms," he said.

The News Chronicle, recording the Liberal view, said: "It was singularly inopportune to give official expression to such a controversial point of view at a critical and possibly decisive moment in the negotiations vital to the cause of peace."

The Telegraph praised MacDonald on the grounds that "peace is sometimes best served by absolute frankness." The Telegraph conceded, however, that "coming from the Prime Minister, with whom peace has always been a passion, the statement contains remarkable words."

German Reply

BERLIN, April 26 (AP) — Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's criticism of Germany for threatening European tranquility drew a retort from the Diplomtische Politische Korrespondenz to-day, that his own words increased "the difficulties of peace and disarmament negotiations."

The periodical, said to reflect Foreign Office views, added:

"It is a disappointing note that the British Prime Minister was unable to understand the position of the mentality of Germany, for he still expresses doubts of Germany's will to peace. . . . Germany never withdrew her offer to submit to every limitation of armaments to which other nations were ready to submit."

EX-KING GEORGE RECEIVES CALL

Former Grecian Ruler Said Seriously Considering Re-ascending Throne.

OUSTED IN 1923.

PARIS, April 26. (AP). — A report published in the Paris press to-day said former King George II of Greece has received an offer from Athens to re-ascend his throne which he is seriously considering.

George, who lost his crown after the defeat of the Greeks by the Turks in Asia Minor in 1923 and establishment of a military dictatorship in his kingdom, is now returning from a tour of India.

The report makes no mention of the conditions or manner of the rumored restoration but said the king would consult his advisers in London before making any plans.

Former King George was hailed by Royalists as he passed through Paris to-day en route to London but declined to comment on the report he was seriously considering an invitation to return to his throne.

Wait Election Outcome

The Royalists said their meeting in Paris was for the purpose of organizing plans for a restoration should Monarchists gain a majority in the Greek elections May 19.

"Royalists and former Government officials," said Arturo Cosmetatos, leader of the group, "met and talked over the political situation and laid plans to form a government such as Great Britain now has should the elections return a Royalist majority."

Captain Levidis, the former king's secretary, issued a flat denial of the reports that George had decided to return to Greece.

Nicolas Politis, Greek Minister to France, informed the French government there was a possibility of George's restoration after the May elections, but insisted no coup d'etat is contemplated by his supporters.

sewer. The inspector and township road foreman, Tom Disher, asked if anyone wished to work. The answer was "No," but not as vociferous as yesterday afternoon.

The procedure will be repeated again to-morrow. In fact Inspector Airey did not know to-day how long it would continue.

No Speeches, Back Talk

"Does anyone want to work" asked Disher from the top of a mound of hard clay excavated from the ditch weeks ago. "No speeches, no back-talk," said Inspector Airey. "If there's anyone wants to work, we'll protect them. If there's any disturbance, I shall clear the place. "You can sing if you want—no back talk, no blasphemy—as long as you behave, the street is yours. I congratulate you on your behaviour yesterday."

"Once again, Mr. Foreman ask if there is anyone wants to work," he said turning to Disher.

"I will," said Alfred Tedorovitch.

Disher went for a spade, but the man said he would be willing to work if he knew what he was working for.

"If anyone is afraid to step ahead, come and see me privately and tell me what he is afraid of," said Inspector Airey. "I will remove his fears."

"The man who doesn't want to work, I won't force to," he went on. "The man who does want to work, we will protect him."

The inspector concluded the police were simply in Crowland to keep peace and when they marched there must be no insults.

May Deport Leaders.

CROWLAND, Ont., April 26 (CP). —Rumors of possible deportation of leaders of Crowland relief strikers spread through the municipality to-day, following the visit of Inspector H. A. Hunt of the Federal Immigration Service, Niagara Falls, Ont.

Inspector Hunt has been looking over the Crowland situation, but whether any action was proposed could not be ascertained.

Frank Haslam, strike leader, is a Crowland resident but observers state there are many foreign-born persons in the strikers' ranks.

WHAT U.S. WORKS DRIVE WILL GIVE MAN ON RELIEF

WASHINGTON, April 26 (A.P.).— An administration official dropped some hints to-day on what the man on relief may expect from the $4.-880,000,000 United States works-relief drive President Roosevelt is organizing.

The hints:

There are now 2,500,000 families doing work, of one sort or another for the Federal relief they get. The aim is to provide these and 1,000,000 more to be taken off the "dole" with work relief in the new drive.

They will be paid, it was said, an "average" wage of $50 a month. In some southern sections where the cost of living and prevailing wages are called lower, they may get as little as $30 a month. In New York they may get $100 from some types of activity.

to their usual duties keep accurate record of the babies' daily progress. To visitors the babies look alike, but the nurses can name each at sight.

Many Changes.

Judge Valin revealed plans are under consideration to cope with the expected tourist influx during the warmer months. A new sun room where the children could be viewed without being disturbed, a parking area for cars, possibly a restaurant to accommodate visitors, a new shelter for police guards and an extension of the high wire fence surrounding the hospital, all are included in the plans, he said.

Alterations to the front of the hospital will provide a solarium. It is planned to have the room face the south, the wall on that side being entirely of glass.

Some arrangement will be made, Judge Valin stated, whereby visitors will be permitted to view the babes at certain periods of the day.

Parents Want Control

TORONTO, April 26.—(CP)—Leo Kervin, manager for Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, said today that although the quintuplets' parents would sooner have Roman Catholic sisters care for the babies they would not be satisfied until they have complete control of their five little daughters.

Announcement in North Bay by Judge J. A. Valin, chairman of the board of guardians, that a religious order would take over the nursing duties by the end of next month brought the statement from Kervin the parents for some time had sought replacement of the present staff.

Kervin was in Toronto today after conferring in Ottawa yesterday with Mrs. P. E. Marchand, president of the Federation des Femmes Canadiennes Francaises, with regard to the babies' welfare.

"The parents will not be satisfied until they get their rights and have their children to rear as they see fit," said Kervin. "They will insist on teachers for the quintuplets when the children are old enough."

Kervin said the Dionnes had been dissatisfied with Madame de Kiriline, head nurse, and had asked to have her replaced. He said if the parents gained full control of the children they would not replace Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe who has cared for the babies since birth.

TWO ARE SLAIN

floor. Howard was dead when detectives reached the scene.

Bolte, as far as police could learn, did not know the slain dress designer, Wharton. He weakly told police he had attended a banquet downtown earlier last night and had driven home with a student friend whose name police could not immediately learn.

Wharton, said to have fashioned clothes for some of the screen's leading acresses, was shot three times. He was killed presumably by one or two—or perhaps three—men in his apartment last night. They fled after the shooting. The designer's invalid foster mother reached the room as he fell dead.

Bolte told police he noticed a stranger near his apartment building as he drove up but paid no attention to him. He said he walked inside and was unlocking his door when he heard a noise, looking over his shoulder and "heard several shots."

Two of them struck him, one in the back and one in the neck.

Mistaken Identity?

Capt. Norris Stensland of the Sheriff's Bureau of Investigation said it appeared the shooting of Bolte may have been a case of mistaken identity.

Mrs. Wharton told officers she thought two men were with her son but that a third man whom she did not know appeared on the scene just after the shooting and hurriedly bolted out the door.

Stensland was inclined to believe Howard, who had been sought during the night in connection with the Wharton death, thought Bolte was this third unidentified man.

O.E.A. URGES BAN UPON CHILDREN IN BEER PARLORS

Lower Grants to Public Schools Expected to Save Province $1,500,000.

LATIN MAY BE DROPPED.

TORONTO, April 26. (CP). — Newly-named executives of the Ontario Educational Association today set about to coordinate varied opinions expressed by delegates to the organization's three-day convention here.

Meanwhile the Department of Education of the Ontario Government had before it concrete proposals put forward by educationists from all corners of the province for consideration.

Outstanding among these proposals were:

A request by separate school delegates for a larger share of corporation taxes countered by a resolution by the trustees' section expressing strong disapproval of the suggestion;

A demand from the public schools department for the Government to ban children—even when accomplished by parents—from beverage rooms;

A few committees continued in session to-day but most of the delegates had returned to their homes.

Modified Curriculum

The new executive also had before it the announcement by Duncan McArthur, Ontario Deputy Minister of Education, some revision of public school curricula was impending. What form that modification would take was not definitely stated but it was made clear a modification would be instituted towards providing boys and girls in senior public schools with a greater opportunity for testing out the subjects in which they were most interested and which would be most useful.

There was also the intimation from the deputy minister that latin might be discarded as a compulsory subject in high schools. The suggestion brought in its wake a flood of comment from all educational centres in the Dominion, mixed in character.

Most important of Mr. McArthur's announcements was that of an impending cut in government grants to public schools. The reduction, from 10 to 15 percent, would involve a saving of $1,500,000, the deputy minister announced.

RENEW SEARCH FOR LOST CHILD

a temporary bridge just below Lock 20.

Superintendent McGrath stated the normal depth of the water on the section of the canal to be drained is 7 feet 6 inches, and intimated that the water would be lowered sufficiently to give the rescue squad opportunity to recover the body of the child, presuming it to be in the canal, and to remove the water entirely if the need presented itself. In his experience he could not recall such extensive draining ever having been undertaken for such a purpose.

The frantic parents of the child assisted the rescue squad in their sad task, from the time the Fire Department responded under Chief George Gimblett at 10.10 p.m., and until they postponed the search around midnight. Again when operations were resumed at dawn, the parents of the boy were present, hoping against hope that the body might not be found in the canal, and trusting that word of the boy's recovery might come from some other source. They were not alone in their vigil—"Buddy," with true doglike devotion to his little master, was there also.

The Examiner learned from Miss Mona Jacob, an aunt of the boy, who had charge of the youngest child, Margaret McMillan, in the absence of the parents, that little Jack only returned to the city yesterday after spending the Easter holidays with his grandfather, Mr. Jacob, at Burleigh Falls. "To-night," she remarked, "he was to have attended a Father and Son banquet with his dad at St. James' Church."

Miss Jacob added that the boy accompanied his mother on a visit to Mrs. Porter early in the afternoon and remained at the Rogers Street house while his mother undertook some business in town. When she returned for the child around five o'clock, he was missing from home.

Annoyance at the child's absence gave way to alarm when he failed to show up some time later, and inquiries in the neighbourhood revealed that a child answering his description had been seen playing on the west bank of the canal at Maria Street Bridge. Another informant declared that she saw the child running down Rogers street towards the canal with the dog "Buddy" at his heels.

When the dog returned home alone searchers permitted him to lead them, and the trail ended on the east bank of the canal, where the little dog set up a persistent howl.

You will find many things in the Classified Ads of The Examiner.

SMOKE SCREENS DRAWS PRAISE

Cobourg Drama Courageously Done States Critic in Finals.

DIFFICULT UNDERTAKING.

OTTAWA, April 26 (C.P.).—Two teams from Toronto and one from Ottawa will provide to-night's Dominion drama festival fare, leaving half a dozen plays for presentation Saturday afternoon and evening.

Adjudicator Allan Wade last night praised highly presentations by the Vancouver Embassy Players of the trial scene from George Bernard Shaw's "Saint John" and the London Community Drama Guild's performance of "St. Simeon Stylites," by F. Sladen-Smith.

The adjudicator said the London group was "delightful" in its presentation of the story of St. Simeon, fifth century saint, who believed he must expiate his sins by sitting atop a high pillar outside Antioch.

The saint was perched on the column against a backdrop of robins-egg blue sky which darkened as the day wore on. St. Simeon, disgruntled at interruptions of his visitors, poured forth his wisdom and protest with energy to the amusement of the audience.

"Smoke Screens."

Mr. Wade credited the Cobourg, Ont., Dramatic Club with considerable courage in its presentation of "Smoke Screens," the story of a divorced mother's somewhat muddled love for her daughter. He said the subtlety of the play made it difficult to put across but added, "It was played in a straightforward and honest manner."

Col. H. C. Osborne, honorary director of the Festival, said no foundation existed for remarks which had appeared in a Toronto newspaper that scenery used by the Playmakers' Club of Toronto in Marjorie Price's "God Caesar" and in the Toronto Masquers' Club's presentation of "And So to Bed," which will be seen to-night was lavish and expensive.

He said the charge that the two clubs had spent considerable money on the sets they used in the regional competitions in order to force their way into the finals was untrue and that the scenery in fact had cost little.

The Toronto Hart House group which won the Bessborough Trophy, highest award of the Festival, last year, will play "His Widow's Husband," by Jacinto Benavente, tonight. The other plays will be the Ottawa Drama League's production of "Fantastic Flight," by Sidney Box. The Toronto Masquers "And So to Bed," is by J. B. Fagan.

where rentals average $44.50 compared with $3. in 1929, but the usual rent for houses is $27.50. Six houses were built in 1934 compared with 42 six years ago. There is no indication of improvement this year.

Sudbury reports a small shortage of dwellings, with rentals about $10 below 1929 and a decrease of 95 per cent in building compared with that year. Building outlook is much the same as last year.

Port Arthur has sufficient houses for the population. There were 34 houses, mostly small, built last year at a cost of $24,125. In 1929, 127 houses valued at $222,700 were built. Building outlook shows no improvement over last year.

In Fort William most of the many vacant houses need repairs. In 1934, 29 dwellings and no apartments were built, compared with 102 houses and three apartment buildings in 1929. Fewer building permits were issued this spring than in 1934.

Few Apartments

Kitchener reports a decided shortage of popular-priced houses and apartments. Rents are $8 to $15 lower compared with 1929, when there were 204 houses and two apartments built. Last years 38 houses and no apartments were constructed.

Galt has a few vacant old-type houses but modern dwellings are in demand. The apartment situation is normal. Rents generally are $10 under 1929 figures when 37 houses were built compared with six last year. Building prospects, however, are bright with a $300,000 program that includes public and private office buildings.

In St. Catharines there is a shortage of small houses and a surplus of large ones. Rents are down $10 from 1929. There were only 25 houses and apartments built last year compared with 131 in 1929. Building prospects are no brighter.

Shortage in Hamilton

Hamilton reports an acute shortage of good dwellings, with small houses most in demand. House and apartment rentals are $10 under 1929. Number and value of buildings constructed are far less, 499 houses valued at $1,-644,500 and 13 apartments valued at $435,000 in 1929 against 70 houses valued at $263,000 and no apartments in 1934. Construction in the early months of 1935 was more than twice that for the same period last year.

Although peterborough has no house scarcity there is a good demand for six-room houses and rents are $7 to $10 under 1929, when 59 houses were built valued at $160,000. In 1934, 14 houses were constructed valued at $85,000. An improvement is looked for this year.

In Welland there is a brisk demand for better type houses. House rents are $5 lower than six years ago and apartment rents $20 less. Four houses were built last year, compared with nine in 1929, and building this spring has been less than the same period in 1934.

St. Thomas has an over-supply of houses but not apartments. Rents are $10 under 1929, when 13 houses were built compared with only two last year. The present building outlook is slightly better.

Delightful Program Campbellford W.A.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 26. (Examiner Correspondence). — Mrs. Arthur Armour, president of the Woman's Association of St. John's United Church, occupied the chair at the regular meeting held on Thursday afternoon in the school hall. After general routine business, which closed with prayer, Mrs. Percy Morgan, convenor of the program committee took charge and provided a delightful afternoon's entertainment which included a piano duet by Mrs. Allan Watson and Master Donald Bennett, a most interesting talk on "Canadian Artists" by Mrs. Morley Petherick, a solo "When You Come Home" by Miss Helen Coxwell, accompanied by Mrs. A. G. Watson. The last number on the program was in the form of a spelling contest and created quite a lot of amusement; Mrs. Morgan acted as school teacher and read out certain sentences from a book and her pupils had to write them down—the scholar attaining the highest marks was awarded a beautiful box of pansies. This event was followed by a dainty lunch and the meeting adjourned.

THE MARKETS

tal of 5,000,000 bushels of grain futures of all kinds were liquidated for the Rosenbaum Corporation, not including big general selling from other sources that was indirectly brought about. Sharpest fluctuations and heaviest dealings yesterday took place early, following a return to business after 24 hours' stoppage while Rosenbaum legal difficulties were being adjusted.

Shortage of readily available supplies of corn accounted a good deal for relative strength of the corn and oats markets. Provisions took their cue largely from behavior of the corn market.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Butter prices eased again yesterday on the Montreal dairy and produce market, while other lines were unchanged. Number 1 regraded butter was quoted at 23¾c to 24 ca pound for carlots or less, with No. 1 fresh butter selling at 23¼c. Small lots to retailers brought 25c a pound for solids and 26c for prints. Receipts were 356 boxes.

The cheese market was unchanged at 11c to 11¼c a pound for current receipts, 11½c to 11¾c for fall make and 12½c to 12¾c for summers, all for No. 1 Ontarios. Receipts were 24 boxes.

Graded shipments in carlots or less of eggs sold for 19c to 19½c a dozen for A-large, 17c to 17½c for A-medium, 17c for B and 16c for C. A total of 1,213 cases was offered for sale.

Number 1 Green Mountain potatoes again brought 50c per 80-lb. bag for Quebec, 55c for New Brunswicks, and 58c for Prince Edward Islands.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 26. — Canada's wheat again found favor with foreign importers yesterday, enabling future prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to show independent strength against weakness in outside grain markets.

Values rallied from early-session ¾c declines to close ⅝c higher to unchanged; May at 87⅞c and July 88¾c. Trading returned to normal as the Chicago Board of Trade reopened after Wednesday's disturbing disclosure.

Foreign sales yesterday totalled 400,000 bushels, and followed Wednesday's 500,000-bushel exports. Purchases of moderate amounts of Canadian wheat were confirmed from Liverpool, a cargo of No. 1 Northern wheat fetching $1.00 a bushel there.

Another week of small Argentine wheat exports was forecast, only 2,750,000 bushels being listed to clear this week. This was slightly less than last week's shipments. Black Sea ports cleared 60,000 bushels this week, the first in some time.

Cash grains trading was quiet, featured only by the sale of a quantity of oats to the United Kingdom. Coarse grains futures finished strongly in sympathy with wheat.

Highly satisfactory results are being obtained, upwards of ninety per cent. of the eggs hatching in the hatcheries to which they are taken. It is reported that in Beaver Creek, Crowe Lake and some of the other nearby waters the number of maskinonge is increasing.

vested in the rehabilitation and extension of farm woodlots would go a long way toward if not complete the restoration of their productivity —and this without encroachment upon profitable agricultural soils. The province could hardly make a better investment in terms of future prosperity."

Wood Lots Deplorable

"Putting a moderate valuation on this hardwood lumber, we are safe in saying that at least $500,000 are sent from Ontario each year to the United States to buy hardwood lumber, chiefly of a kind that once grew abundantly in our southern counties," said the speaker. "As we have seen, money has been drained out of Ontario for fifty years to a foreign country to replace native woods. It has probably already cost as much or more than it would cost to restore the forests of valuable hardwoods to our own soils.

"Any plan for the restoration of farm woodlots would have at least two phases: iFrst, the improvement of those already existing so as not only to increase the amount of wood produced, but also to improve its quality as well, and secondly, the extension of the woodlot area by planting.

"While there are some notable exceptions in certain counties, the woodlots of Southern Ontario, as a whole, are in a deplorable condition from the standpoint of possible productivity. The usual procedure has been to select the more rapidly growing, the more thrifty and valuable trees for cutting and to leave standing the old, decrepit and less valuable trees."

Demonstration Lots

"For years the Ontario Forestry Branch has given advice to woodlot owners when sought by them, but only in the past decade has it taken the initiative and only in the past few years has that been vigorous. At present more than one hundred demonstration woodlots are scattered along the highways in Southern Ontario. Their object is to demonstrate to the owner and the public what may be done by applying forestry methods to the management of woodlots for continuous production. An officer of the Ontario Forestry Branch advises on improvement cuttings, thinnings and any planting that may need to be done.

"When you see one of the large signs indicating the presence of a demonstration woodlot, don't whiz by it at fifty miles an hour, but stop and look it over," said Dean Howe. "Even without any technical knowledge of forestry, you can learn much from it."

Dean Howe said that a region should be between 25 and 30 per cent under forest cover to keep a proper balance between evaporation, surface run-off and underground drainage. The average for 32 Ontario counties is barely 12 per cent.

Much Waste Land

"With the woodlands restored to their proper proportions, we would soon find an improvement in the flow of streams and in the maintenance of water in the wells and springs," he remarked. "This in itself would be worth striving for to say nothing of the great direct economic advantages in the rehabilitation of the woodlots.

"The restoration of our depleted woodlots is not a visionary scheme. It is a problem of practical statesmanship."

"Lumber from the western coast has competed very seriously with our own white pine and spruce lumber," he said. "Every indication points to the fact that the heavy stands and cheap logging chances in British Columbia will be exhausted in a comparatively few years. Then that province will cease to compete with our native lumber. Then white pine particularly will come into its own markets once again. We should prepare for that day by extensive planting and the adequate protection o fthe young stands of white pine already in existence.

Use Unemployed

"Here lies a very important economic problem in the restoration of pine forests particularly on our waste lands. Its solution would very materially increase the wealth of the province. How is the problem to be solved? I have a suggestion which I put forward with some diffidence because one is considered a complete pessimist and even unpatriotic if he so much as hints that our unemployed problem will not be all cleared up in the next few years. In spite of this I would respectfully submit that the unemployment problem, not in its present acute stage, but still a problem, may be with us for many years to come and that the best way to mitigate the distress would be in employment in public works, not by means of a dole.

"The restoration of our former pine areas and the care of existing forests could be logically made an unemployment project. The Department of National Defence has already demonstrated that relief labor can be successfully employed in planting trees. This, however, would not consume more than a month in the spring and possibly a month in the fall. At other times the men could be employed under proper direction in thinning out the less valuable trees that often crowd out the pine in young natural stands. The men could also be used in making roads and trails and in cleaning up the debris to make the forest more accessible to the fire fighting forces and to reduce the inflammability of the forest.

Weddings

DAVISON—PALMETIER.

TWEED, April 26 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Picton United Church was the scene of an interesting April wedding on Thursday evening, when Miss Hilda Marjorie Palmatier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Palmatier, Picton, became the bride of George Milton Davison, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Davison of Belleville. Rev. David Wren, pastor of the church, officiated, and Prof. F. E. Walden played the wedding music. The altar was banked with large baskets of snapdragons and daffodils.

Several hundred persons witnessed the ceremony.

GIRL GUIDES PLAN TO RAISE $100,000

For Maintenance and Extension of Guide Work in Ontario.

The Ontario Council of the Canadian Girl Guides proposed to raise an Endowment Fund of $100,000 for the maintenance and extension of Girl Guide work in Ontario.

No public campaign is being organized but subscriptions will be personally solicited by the Finance Committee, under the convenorship of Mrs. Ryland New, Oakville.

None of the monies collected will be used for campaign purposes as all travelling and other expenses incidental to the raising of the Fund will be met by the individual members of the Committee.

Mrs. G. A. Routledge, London, is the Provincial Commissioner for Ontario and is giving this project her whole-hearted support.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 26 (C.P. Cable)—Clement Richard Attlee, one of the foremost Labor party member in Parliament, and the veteran Arthur Henderson, former head of the party, in books published yesterday disclose Labor's policy for the future.

In "the will and the way to Socialism" Attlee foresees a socialized state. If Labor comes into office, he says, it will "socialize the Bank of England and the joint stock banks and such other financial institutions as may seem desirable."

The Socialist government would pass an enabling act "giving the state power to acquire all land, urban or rural at any time on a definite basis of compensation."

According to Attlee, the coal, gas and electric power industries are ripe for socialization. Workers would be represented on the directorate of a British iron and steel corporation "which would take over all undertakings manufacuring iron and steel products."

Labor would not seek to retain by force a dominion which desired to leave the commonwealth but would do everything possible to induce it to remain within a larger unity, he adds.

A Peace Act

In "Labor's will to peace," Henderson declares one early action of any future Labor government would be to pass "a peace act of parliament" which would bind the government to submit any dispute with any state to "one of the methods of peaceful settlement prescribed in the treaties to which we are a party, and never to resort to force in contravention of these treaties."

Refusal to accept a government's claim to be using force only in "self- defence" is one of the first duties of a good citizen, Mr. Henderson declares.

"This could be achieved by refusal to serve or to support the government in any way, either by military service, or in work of national importance, or in payment of taxes, if it were condemned by the League of Nations as an aggressor or became involved in war after refusing arbitration."

Wipe Out Village To Provide Power

MANCHESTER, April 25 (C.P.)—The great dam the foundation stone of which has been laid recently at Haweswater will result in altering the map of the English lake district. It will wipe out a village, a church, half a dozen farms and a road, and turn a wooded valley into a lake five miles long.

These are the striking features of Manchester Corporation's $50,000,000 scheme to provide water for the city and South-East Lancashire.

At the north end of Haweswater Valley the corporation has created a village of wood and concrete houses populated by 250 workmen. They have been here for five years blasting and boring through miles of rock and building an aqueduct to link up with the enormous 90-mile-long pipe-line into Manchester.

Beyond this village the dam, a quarter of a mile wide and more than 100 feet high, is to be built of concrete and steel—with a hollow core.

TEMPERANCE UNION HEARS BRIGHT TALK

Interestig Program at April Meeting of Local W. C. T. U.

The regular meeting of the W.C.T.U. took place yesterday afternoon in the Y.W.C.A. Green Room with a splendid attendance. Mrs. J. W. Kelly, presided over the meeting, which opened with a short worship period.

Business was quickly despatched and included the appointment of a nominating committee for the annual meeting in June. Upon motion of Mesdames Tyler and Allen, the personnel of this committee is as follows: Mesdemes J. H. Rowe, J. Fairbrother and J. E. Moore. Twenty-five dollars was also voted to the budget fund.

Continuing with the program proper, the scripture lesson chosen from Colossians 3 was read by Mrs. E. Lord and prayer was offered by Mrs. Fairbrother.

In keeping with the thought of the scripture, a beautiful sacred duet "Follow Me" was contributed by Mesdames Telford and Morphy, with Mrs. Tyler accompanying at the piano.

Graphically depicting the evils of alcohol was the reading "A terrible charge", given by Mrs. J. E. Moore, which was followed by a rousing temperance hymn. In a very interesting talk, Miss E. Might, outlined "Some thoughts on women as leaders", which came as a special appeal to this group of workers.

Some startling facts and figures concerning "Accidents" were disclosed in the Clip Sheet excercise of the month. This was capably led by Mrs. Bert Manning with many of the members taking part in the discussion. A few pertinent questions dealt with included "The increase in traffic accidents and the importance of educating both children and adults in "Safety First".

Proof that accidents occur more frequently where alcoholic beverages have been used, was seen in Chicago where automobile deaths have nearly trebled since the return of legalized beer. Since the opening of beverage rooms in Ontario, there has been a general protest at the increased hasards of the road. For example, in Toronto alone, this year, four times as many were killed as last year. Many facts were cited to show what means this active organization is taking to combat this highway menace. Chief among these is the work done by the field secretaries in educating school children along this line. Another helpful and interesting meeting was brought to a successful conclusion by the Mispah benediction.

DONATIONS MADE BY I.O.D.E. CHAPTER

Splendid Reports Read at April Meeting of 57th Regimental Chapter.

The regular meeting of the 57th Regimental Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in the Armouries yesterday afternoon with a large attendance. Regent Mrs. W. Gordon Hall presided, and after the opening ceremonies a period of silence was observed in honor of the late Mrs. B. Poole, who for over 21 years was an energetic and devoted member of the Chapter. Satisfactory reports were submitted by the secretary, Mrs. F. Miller, and the treasurer, Miss M. Rogers. The correspondence consisted of a number of letters of thanks for flowers and sympathy extended, also letters of thanks from Durham Chapter I.O.D.E. and United Empire Loyalist Chapter, Napanee, for Mrs. Hall's report of Provincial Convention and acting as their delegate. Letters from Provincial headquarters stressed by-laws of primary chapters, life membership, names of new chapters. Mrs. Sharpe for the hospital, sick and visiting committee reported 42 visits made at the hospital, and Mrs. R. G. Cottrell reported for the flower committee. Mrs. W. H. Ashby gave a report of the April group, and thanked all who had assisted with the evening bridge held at the home of Miss Ida Wesley. Receipts were $34.50. Mrs. C. Newman gave the report of the Red Cross Society. The services of the visiting housekeeper had been discontinued and the name of the family at Black Hawk sent to the nearest Red Cross centre at Port Arthur.

Donations were made to the Humane Society, Y.M.C.A., Endowment Fund, and fees to Local Council of Women. It was decided to purchase a new flag for the cemetery, also books on Empire study and I.O.D.E. post cards. Arrangement for the May group were left in the hands of the leaders, Mrs. Claire Stuart and Mrs. W. G. Howden. Mrs. Cottrell reported on the meeting called to make plans for the Jubilee celebration, and the members were asked to assemble at Victoria Park at 11 o'clock to assist in the event. Mrs. Cottrell also reported on assistance given in connection with the Warriors' Ball.

Delegates appointed to the Local Council of Women were Mrs. T. W. H. Young, Mrs. F. Miller, and Mrs. McWilliams. Announcement was made of the tea being held by the Local Council of Women on May 16 in the Y.M.C.A., and co-operation requested.

The educational secretary, Mrs. C. Newman, gave a very interesting paper on Captain Robert Anthony Eden, M.C., J.P., Parliamentary Under-Secretary and Lord Privy Seal.

Mrs. W. Gordon Hall gave an excellent report of the 15th annual meeting of the I.O.D.E. held at Hamilton on April 4 and 5.

The organizing secretary, Mrs. Ernst, reported 17 new chapters formed in Ontario, making a total of 293. A great amount of educational work is being done—$3,500.00 raised for the Endowment Fund, $38,125.93 spent in child welfare work. Chapters were urged to send in condensed reports to Echoes, to strike a budget for the year, to appoint an Empire study convenor, to study current events.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Hall for her comprehensive report and to Mrs. Newman for her paper. After singing the National Anthem tea was served by Mrs. W. H. Andrews and Mrs. D. Loomis.

The World's Most Idyllic Isle

On a Pacific islan d two miles long and one mile wide, the world's greatest eugenics experiment is taking place. Out of two races, a third race is being born. One hundred forty-six years ago a mutineer lookout man on the commandeered British ship Bounty set up a shout of "Land ho." Fletcher Christian, lieutenant in the navy of George III, led his men ashore on to the semi-tropical paradise that was named Pitcairn Island. There were nine Englishmen and twelve Tahitian women. From this group there have been 1,000 descendants, most of whom have migrated to other islands. The remaining 200 live an idyllic simple life close to nature on Pitcairn Island. They have become closely inbred throughout the years and everyone on the island is related and at least a cousin. The inbreeding has done no observable harm. A new white race is being evolved from the fusion of the white race and the polynesion. The offspring are healthy and happy folk, bright and intelligent. They speak a mixture of English and Tahitian. Head of the island's semi-communistic government is Parkin Christian (INSET ABOVE), great-grandson of the founder. These pictures were taken by the Templeton Crocker-American Museum Pacific expedition on the two-masted schooner Zaca. They show (TOP), three large row boats at the landing place in Bounty Bay. They are the common property of the community and are well filled when they go out to greet the seldom-anchored visiting mail ships. (LOWER RIGHT), women and children of the island sitting on benches near the town hall.

DATES BACK TO WOODEN WALKS

McWilliams & Co. an Old-time Business House.

OPENS NEW STORE.

The formal opening of McWilliams and Co.'s new store is scheduled for to-morrow, when the public are cordially invited to make a visit of inspection without any obligation whatever. These new premises in the old Cressman building, George street, west side, and four doors south of Hunter street, present a modernistic appearance, and are admirably adapted to the purpose for which they have been altered and renovated—the retailing of high class men's clothing and furnishings. The color scheme is white for ceilings, and deep cream for walls and woodwork, which, together with the handsome oak fittings, show cases, and cabinets, combine with a plentitude of glittering mirrors in offering an inviting and refreshing picture. The store's receding entrance and front are finished in silver aluminum, lined with black and surrounding of course, a wide and lofty expanse of plate glass.

A very creditable display of men's furnishings is housed in the front section of the store which widens out into a spacious and widely equipped department for men's clothing of style and quality.

While trading under the name of McWilliams and C., this business is really operated by Messrs. Keith and Cyril Lech of Wm. Lech & Sons, furriers. And the new store reflects considerable credit on the firm—for decorative effect, for up-to-date appintments and for the all-'round facilities it offers for acceptable service.

Ye Olde Days

The building vacated by McWilliams & Co. last Monday is one of the oldest stores on George street, having been erected in the very early days of wooden sidewalks and dirt roads, to say nothing of mud-holes. Within the memory of many present citizens it was operated for years by the late Col. Mills as a fur and hat store, he followed by McWilliams, engaging in the same business. William Lech & Sons took over the business in 1917, discontinuing furs in favor of men's furnishings in 1931, made store alterations in 1933 and converted the store into an exclusive men's wear shop, carrying complete lines of clothing and furnishings of a dependable character. And so, the history of McWilliams & Co.'s business since controlled by Mr. Lech & Sons has been one of continued expansion, until steady growth resulting from a "customer must be pleased" policy has forced them to locate in their present new premises.

Children Blamed For Firing Woods

It took eight men the greater part of Thursday morning to get under control, a fire which it is alleged was started in Burnham's Woods in Otonabee Township by children. The Examiner is informed.

The woods, located on Highway 7, a mile east of Downer's Corners, cover an area of 100 acres, and the fire comes as a climax to a great amount of trespassing that has been going on for some months past, it is stated.

While the owners of the woods are not anxious to close the woods to the general public, it is anticipated they might have to resort to such a course as an extreme measure, if people persist in causing the damage that has been done in the past.

During the winter months several trees were stolen to be used in homes as Christmas trees, while more recently a balsam tree was found that had been dug out by the roots and left to wither where it lay.

OUTLINE MADE OF PROGRAMME JUBILEE DAY

Suggested Program is Outlined by Special Committee For Celebration.

RADIO BROADCAST LATER.

Plans for Peterborough's observance of the Silver Jubilee of His Majesty King George V. were virtually completed at a meeting held by the executive committee under chairmanship of James Dutton in the Chamber of Commerce last evening.

The suggested program, which is to be staged on the morning of May 6 in Victoria Park includes provision for special music by the combined bands of Peterborough Rangers and the Salvation Army; and the singing of national songs by the combined choirs and school children of the city.

According to latest available information, the King is expected to deliver his Empire broadcast at some time between the hours of 12.30 and 2.05 p.m., which would probably follow after the conclusion of the outdoor program here, and would give everybody ample opportunity of listening in in their own homes or elsewhere.

Notwithstanding it is planned to erect radio amplifying equipment, probably under the arch of the Court House doorway, which has been loaned to the committee through the courtesy of the Canadian General Electric Company.

Other features of the Jubilee celebrations here will be the forwarding by cablegram to His Majesty the King of a message of loyalty and devotion on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough over the signature of Mayor Roland Denne, James Dutton, City Clerk S. R. Armstrong, and the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, as president of Peterborough Ministerial Association, have been named as a special committee to draft the wording of the message.

While arrangements have not been completed, it is hoped to have a beacon fire and firework display on the Bain property north of Armour Hill as a wind-up to the celebrations.

The following program, which is subject to final approval of the general committee, who are to consider it at a meeting on Monday evening next, is that which was drawn up by the executive:

Music by Bands or Orthiophone Broadcast.

Chairman's remarks—James Dutton.

CASH IN MAIL ILLEGAL.

MONTREAL, April 26 (C.P.). — Sending money through the mails is not only risky but also an illegal act, declared Mr. Justice G. Gordon MacKinnon in Superior Court. He dismissed the plea of J. E. Sigouin that a bill of Canada Flooring Company for $116.81 for goods sold and delivered had been paid.

Mr. Justice MacKinnon stated Sigouin was encouraging stealing by enclosing this sum, unregistered, in the mail where it could easily be detected.

Deputy Game Minister Proposes Plan to Save Deer

GIVE JOBLESS WORK CUTTING CEDAR BOUGHS

Taylor Claims Fodder Thus Provided Would Prevent 75 p.c. Winter Killing.

BAN "TROPHY" HUNTING.

Trout Conservation to be Aided by Early Closing Dates For Season.

TORONTO, April 26. — Anxious to preserve and increase the rapidly decreasing deer population of Ontario, D. J. Taylor, Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries, last night offered a solution which incidentally would prove of great assistance to the unemployed of the Province.

"I feel that we must put a stop to the shooting of does in Ontario if we intend to conserve the deer population of this Province," he declared at the monthly meeting of the Toronto Anglers' Association in Forester's Hall, on College Street.

The Deputy Minister announced that if next winter is a severe one he intends to see that the unemployed be given jobs cutting down cedar boughs in every deer area throughout the province. In this way, he believed, Ontario could preserve 75 per cent. of the deer that are now dying because of the deep snow and bitter winter weather.

The Deputy Minister severely criticized the present practice of some American and Canadian hunters, who merely go after moose for "trophies," and take out the head while leaving the entire carcass in the woods to spoil.

"We must put an immediate stop to this," he remarked. "I feel that nobody should be allowed to take out a head unless it is accompanied by the hind quarters. This change would probably mean the hiring of an additional guide and would provide additional employment."

The changes regarding the seasons for trout and bass fishing in Ontario were gone into by the speaker at some length.

Cut Season Short.

'Each fall we must ask Ontario fishermen to stop fishing for trout by the last day of August,' he continued. "This will not only be an aid to conservation, but it will give us an opportunity of distributing fingerlings and yearlings.'

Mr. Taylor explained that his department will this year hatch between six and eight million speckled trout alone, and expressed his personal regret that every one of these could not be carried over until the following year for distribution.

He described a "miniature fish pond and hatchery" which he has been operating in the basement of the Parliament Building. He told of the reserch work which is being carried on there by biologists in an endeavor to obtain a cheaper fish food which could be used to the advantage of the entire province.

With regard to the proposed changing of the trout season the speaker said that the only strong objections had come from Northern Ontario. Regardless of these objections, he believed that the necessary order-in-council would shortly be passed and it would also affect the northern part of the province in the same manner as it will shorten the season in the southern counties. Northern Ontario, he felt, should really be shortened for a full month in the fishing season because the trout were spawning there at an earlier date.

Longer Bass Season?

The bass season, which is also to be changed to forbid fishing before July 1, was also discussed by the deputy minister. He thought that it might be possible to extend the season for a month in order to compensate for the deferred lateness in the opening.

An entirely closed season for beaver and a further test period of two years for the raising of Hungarian partridge in Ontario were other achievements for which Mr. Taylor announced that he was fighting. He told of one Hungarian partridge farm in the province upon which $64,000 had already been spent, with the meagre result of an additional 100 birds raised in return.

All the employees, he explained, had been fired by the Hepburn government and the farm put in charge of a man who claimed to know how the birds should be raised. If, after a further period of two years, the Hungarian partridge situation in Ontario should not meet with any increased success then the deputy minister advocates turning over of the money to the raising of pheasants.

Serious trouble is threatening in Crowland township, Ont., between police and strikers. Demonstrations and clashes have taken place and provincial police were asked to quell disorders. The strikers sent 40 children in trucks to Toronto to parade around Queen's Park. They were received by Young Pioneers League. The children are seen here arriving in Toronto by truck, and getting their evening meal.

SCOUT TROOPS WELCOME HOME JOHN LANGLEY

Returns From International Jubilee Recently Held in Australia.

REPRESENTED CANADA.

Presenting a virile picture of radiant young Canadian manhood, a trim green - shirted, bare - kneed figure was last evening accorded a rousing reception by over one hundred of his fellow Scouts at a gathering fully representative of the various troops of Peterborough Boy Scout Association.

He was Scout John Langley of St. Luke's (Armour) Troop who was officially welcomed home upon his return from the International Scout Jamboree held in Australia in connection with the Melbourne Centenary celebrations after an absence of almost seven months.

The program staged in St. John's Parish Hall under the direction of Scoutmaster George Groombridge was attended by Assistant Provincial Commissioner Frank Irwin of Toronto; District Commissioner John T. Hornsby; H. C. Sootheran, past president and Lewis J Grant, secretary of the local Scout Association; Venerable Archdeacon Dr. R. C. Blagrave and other Scout officers.

Scout Langley fresh from his interesting trip to the Antipodes where he pow-wowed with the boys of many lands and talked with the Chief Scout and founder of the movement, was accompanied to the meeting by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon R. Langley and his two sisters. Mrs. Hornsby was also present, while another guest was the Reverend A. R. Holden of Bethany.

Welcomes Visitors

Following the opening "camp fire" ceremonies, Archdeacon Blagrave extended a warm welcome to the visitors and referred to the "great privilege" of having the representatives of practically all the city troops gathered in St. John's Parish Hall. Enlarging upon the benefit of such gatherings where the boys of various troops are able to rub shoulders, he said, it typified in principle the great International Scout Jamborees, which were designed to give the Boy Scouts of all nations fullest opportunity of developing all that was highest and best in them.

Recognizing that the purpose of the gathering was to do honor to Scout Langley as official representative of the Dominion of Canada at the Australian Jamboree, Archdeacon Blagrave felt that the link with inter-Imperial Scouting thus provided would be of invaluable benefit to Scouting in general in this city and district.

Scoutmaster Henry Noiles of St. Luke's (Armour) Troop, who claimed a specially close bond of friendship with the guest of honor, extended his personal congratulations to Scout Langley after which District Commissioner Hornsby expressed a welcome home on behalf of the local association.

"I extend to you as representative of this district our heartfelt thanks for having represented the Dominion of Canada in general and the city of Peterborough in particular in so worthy a manner," he said addressing Scout Langley.

Similar expressions of appreciation were also voiced by Commissioner Irwin on behalf of the Provincial Scout Association, after which Scout Langley briefly recounted a few of the highlights of the trip. In England, Australia and elsewhere, he stated, the reception accorded to the Scouts of the various nations was so warm-hearted and sincere, "that my eyes were really opened to the true meaning of Scout brotherhood."

MILLBROOK

CROKINOLE PARTY IS HELD BY Y.P.S.

St. Andrew's Society Guests of Grace Church Group.

MILLBROOK, April 26 (Examiner Correspondence) — The progressive crokinole party sponsored by the Young People's Society of Grace Presbyterian Church on Monday evening drew a large number of guests, among these being the sister society of St. Andrew's Church, which curtailed its regular program to one-half hour in order to be at the social gathering.

Prizes for high scoring went to Madeline McDowell and Elwood Fallis; and for low standing to Flossie Bothwell and H. Freelove. Home-made candy was served at the conclusion of play, and before the enjoyable evening was brought to a close.

At St. Andrew's Y.P.S. the citizenship convenor, Gordon Muspratt, took charge, issuing the call to worship and giving a constructive talk on "The Meaning of Good Citizenship." The business items included the notice that the Y.P.S. of George Street Church, Peterborough, will be guests of the local young people on May 13, when it is expected that an enjoyable and instructive program will fill out the evening.

Miss Mabel McCarthy, of Marmora and Miss Kathryn McCarthy, of Peterborough are spending the Easter vacation with their mother, Mrs. E. H. Barnes.

The annual thankoffering service of the Women's Auxiliary, Mission Circle and Band will be held in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday, April 28, at 10.30 a.m., when the pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco, will preach especially to these organizations, and the choir will have appropriate music. On Sunday, May 5, the Millbrook Lodge I.O.O.F., No. 308, will attend divine worship in a body at St. Andrew's, and it is expected that the recently-organized Citizen's Band will head the parade from the Lodge Hall to the church.

Eric Lefroy, of Toronto spent the Easter week-end with his mother, Mrs. A. B. Lefroy, and his uncle and aunt, Ex-warden W. T. and Miss Margaret Wood.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Harkness over Easter were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harkness and daughter, Betty, of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Bryant and son of Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Pitt moved last week into their new home recently purchased from the estate of the late Mrs. George Wallace.

Harold Fallis, of Toronto visited his mother and sister, Mrs. D. Fallis and Mrs. L. Fallis over the week-end.

Major L. J. Stewart and Captain D. R. Fowler and Mrs. Fowler attended the Warriors' Ball at Peterborough on Easter Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Raymes and the Misses K. G. and Gertrude Richards of Brighton spent the Easter week-end with Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Richards.

Allie Payne of Toronto spent Easter with his sister, Miss Ethel Payne.

TWELFTH BABY FOR DIONNES DUE IN JULY

Preparations for the Baby's Arrival Are Being Made at Callander.

MARRIED AT 15

CALLANDER, Ont., April 26 — Another baby will be born into the already crowded Dionne family sometime within the next three months, says the New York Mirror this week.

Mrs. Oliva Dionne, 26-year-old mother of the famous quintuplets, has already given birth to 11 children. The twelfth is expected in July and will be brought into the world by Dr. A. R. Dafoe, the simple country physician who attended Mrs. Dionne at the birth of the quintuplets.

Although there have been frequent rumors that Mrs. Dionne expected another child, they were always denied, and her recent vaudeville tour in the United States seemed to set the reports at rest. Nevertheless, preparations for the baby's arrival have been made.

Oliva Dionne and his wife, modest farmers in a remote section of Callander Township, were hurled into fame on the night of May 28, 1934, when they became the parents of five babies at one birth.

Medical science said that quintuplets do not live. As days passed and then weeks, and the five little girls grew stronger and larger the attention of the world became permanently fixed upon them. Now they are healthy, normal babies with the average chance of survival.

They live in a specially constructed hospital under Dr. Dafoe's care. The five tots have been made wards of the government and already have a bank account of $100,000, made up chiefly of gifts from all parts of the world.

Meanwhile, the Dionnes and their five older children remain in the four-room farmhouse across the road from the hospital, subsisting on government relief and a small allowance from the quintuplets' fund. Dionne is said to have given up his attempts to farm.

Married At 15.

Mrs. Dionne was married at 15 and had six children in rapid succession. When the quintuplets were born she was attended only by neighbor women until her condition became so alarming that Dr. Dafoe was summoned. He rushed through the night to the little farmhouse, and with the aid of kerosene lamps delivered the five babies. At one point he believed the mother to be dying and hurried out to summon a priest. Her condition was critical for some time after the birth.

Besides being quintuplets, the babies were born prematurely and it was necessary to rush incubators here from Chicago for them. Their first few days were spent in wash baskets beside the mother's bed, covered over with one blanket.

Now she is having the best of care. X-ray examinations have shown that there will be only one baby this time, however.

Seymour Institute Holds April Meeting at Home of Mrs. Archie McCullough.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 26.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The April meeting of the Seymour West Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. Archie McCullough recently. The reading material gathered since last meeting was reported and packed and sent to waiting people in the west. Anyone having more material is requested to keep it on hand as later another lot may be sent to an address in the Peace River District. The special prize for the School Fair was quite lengthly discussed and the matter left in the hands of a committee to be decided as soon as possible in order to give the teacher pupils to prepare. Some supplies for a First Aid Kit in one of the schools had been purchased. Some work was reported being done on the cemeteries, both having been thoroughly raked and seeded. Archie McCullough and Fred Rutherford donated the seed for Clark's the other was purchased. It was thought wise to appoint a lady from each section to report all the work done so that it might be entered in the cemetery book for future references. Mrs. Garnet Curle was appointed for West's. Donations were made: $1.00 from N. H. Thompson; $10 from Mrs. Mary McArthur of Seymour West.

The district executive meeting which will very probably be held at Codrington in the near future to prepare for the District Annual and other matters of interest was mentioned and discussed. Mrs. Macoun was appointed auditor instead of Miss Bernice Orser who is absent.

Following the business an excellent and well balanced program was put on. A reading, by Mrs. Douglas Rutherford; debate, "Resolved that an automobile is more use to a man than a wife", with Mrs. Fred Rutherford and Mrs. Robert McCullough on the affirmative and Maggie Waddell and Reta Longmuir on the negative, proved very amusing. The judges, Mrs. Charles Macoun, Mrs. Howard Clark, Mrs. Ernest Fairman decided in favor of the negative. Mrs. Charles Macoun gave a very complete paper on "Keeping the Institute Alive." Following the national anthem a contest, "A search for Easter eggs" was enjoyed, the winner being Mrs. Ray McCullough.

GRANT—THOMPSON.

The marriage took place at half past six o'clock last night, at the parsonage of George Street United Church, of Myra Eleanor Beatrice Thompson, youngest daughter of Mrs. R. H. Thompson, of Warsaw, and the late Mr. Thompson, to Mr. Chester Grant, son of Mrs. A. Grant of George street, and the late Mr. Grant. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. E. J. Millyard.

The bride wore her travelling ensemble of navy blue wool crepe, with blue hat and matching accessories and corsage bouquet of roses and sweet peas.

Attendants were Miss Lillian Stone and Mr. Elias Thompson of Warsaw, brother of the bride.

Miss Stone was in rose crepe, with a corsage bouquet of sweet peas and forget-me-nots.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. H. Davis of 642 Downie street. The table, centered by the bride's cake, was done with pink and white carnations and pink candles in silver holders. The rooms were decorated with pink and white streamers.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant left later by motor for a trip to Ottawa, after which they will live in Peterborough.

IN MEMORIAM.

TRUDE.—In ever loving memory of Violet Mae, beloved daughter of Harry Pearson, who passed away April 28, 1929.

She was called from this world of sorrow
Leaving sweet memories of love;
But her soul shall live on forever
In the beautiful world above.
Death cannot divide us from dear ones,
Nor sever the cords of love;
She is just resting sweetly in Jesus,
In that beautiful home above.

IMMORAL LIVES LED BY COUPLES

Live Unwed Because Fear of Losing Jobs in U. S. Civil Service.

BABSON CHARGES.

WASHINGTON, April 26 (A.P.).—Thousands young couples in the United States Government service are leading immoral lives because they fear marriage would imperil their jobs stirred a row to-day.

At the heart of the controversy was a proposal to repeal the marital status law. This requires that, where husband and wife are employed by Uncle Sam, one of them shall be dismissed, when forces are being cut.

Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Federal Employees, told the House Civil Service Committee he knew of nine couples living together outside the bonds of matrimony on account of the law.

"Babcock should be removed from office for slandering the women employed in the Federal service," retorted Rep. Cochran (D., Mo.), backer of the marital regulation.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

AN ASTONISHING SCORE

There are several important facts to be learned from the following deal and subsequent happenings, as will become evident as bidding and play are detailed. The first thing is the dubious nature of South's opening bid of two no trumps, lacking the major tenace in spades, the ace of his diamond suit and the A-K of clubs. While his cards do count seven probable tricks he misses three aces, also the Q of one aceless suit and the K of another similar suit. Such a call may turn out well. If so, however, one no trump will as well answer his purpose.

	♠ 9 8 7 6 3 2 ♥ None ♦ J 3 ♣ 8 7 6 4 3
♠ A Q 5 ♥ K J 9 8 7 6 3 ♦ 5 ♣ 10 2	N. W. E. S.	♠ 4 ♥ 5 4 2 ♦ A 9 8 7 6 4 ♣ A K 9
	♠ K J 10 ♥ A Q 10 ♦ K Q 10 2 ♣ Q J 5

West holds one of the four types of hands calling for a game bid over no trumps. His hearts must be worth many tricks at a suit call, but he may be unable to accomplish much played defensively, as no trumps may be run off in his very weak minor suits. West's overcall of four hearts was obligatory. North could not fail to overcall with four spades, considering his six, five, two distribution, his partner's opening bid of two and his own voidness of hearts, of course North bid four spades. Three quick tricks, three of partner's suit and a single spade, more than justified East's five hearts. South felt compelled to bid five spades, forcing six hearts from West. North wisely passed, to permit South to double and exterminate such rash opponents. South doubled, but the extermination process failed.

Neither side was vulnerable. Had opponents been vulnerable a double by East would have ruined the five-spade bid. The best possible defence would have garnered two trump tricks, two club tricks and a single diamond trick, with a ruff by West. That would have hurt East would have doubled six spades, had it been bid.

The opening lead was the six of spades. South's K fell before the ace. The K of clubs afforded easy entry to dummy. A trump was led through South. Declarer's J picked up South's 10. North showed out. Dummy ruffed a spade and led the last heart through South. He went up with his ace and led back his J of spades, only to lose to declarer's Q. Then West picked up the Q of hearts with his K. An established trump suit, no more spades, the aces of clubs and diamonds in dummy made the remainder of declarer's cards a spread for his small slam contract, an astonishing score against an opening bid of two no trumps. Had South dreamed of the result he never would have pushed opponents into a small slam contract

The King recuperates from serious illness in 1929

On November 11, 1928, ten years after the end of the great war, the King stood bareheaded before the Cenotaph in London in silent prayer for Britain's dead heroes.

A few days later he was ill with a slight cold. On November 22nd, a bulletin was issued from Buckingham Palace that the King was indisposed and would be unable to attend any official functions.

It was only then that the British people knew that King George was seriously ill. From that day until well on in February of the following year, the health of the King was in a state of uncertainty.

Suffering from a congestion of the lung, which necessitated an operation, the poison had permeated through his system and rendered him almost too weak to fight off the ravages of the disease.

It was during this period of illness that the people of the Empire showed their love for their King. Every day thousands of people waited at the gates of Buckingham Palace for bulletins; special prayer services were held to which literally millions of British subjects attended; the visitors' book at Buckingham Palace was filled every few days with notables from foreign lands calling to express their sympathy.

For the first time during her reign, Queen Mary took over for a few days the official duties of her husband. Later a special council was appointed.

But a strong desire to live, plus a constitution that had been carefully looked after in early life, spared the King and by Easter of 1929, he was able to appear in public again. Our picture today shows him in Queen Victoria's bath chair at Craigwell House, Bognor, where he rested during the period of convalescence. The publication of this picture in 1929 was the first real knowledge the people had that the King was recovering.

To-morrow: The King resumes his duties.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

The blonde and winsome Alice Faye, whose lovely warbling and graceful dancing have catapulted her into cinema stardom, takes very excellent care of her platinum blond tresses. Alice shampoos her hair quite frequently, for she claims that blonde hair cannot be permitted to become oily ever. Blonde hair must be soft and fluffy to be attractive, she says, and often, therefore, when she hasn't time for a regular shampoo, Alice uses a dry shampoo.

It's true that when a girl's hair is afflicted with excess oiliness she can't conceal its dankness very easily, and dank, greasy hair certainly isn't attractive. The only thing for a lass to do is to attempt to correct that excess oiliness, if her hair is thus afflicted. And until it is corrected, she must use some method of allaying the oiliness and of making her hair look more presentable.

For such girls the best in-between remedy is a dry shampoo. This type of shampoo is also useful to women who are susceptible to colds during the winter. An excellent dry shampoo for home use is cornmeal and salt shampoo. To prepare this mix one part or ordinary cornmeal [illegible] one tablespoonful of salt. Shake this mixture through your entire head of hair generously, and then massage it through your hair and over youur scalp with your fingertips. After the massaging, brush your hair vigorously with a long-bristled brush, in order to remove all of the mixture. Then part your hair at intervals, take a slightly dampened towel, and rub your scalp at each parting, in order to cleanse it.

Another dry shampoo that is simple to use is composed solely of egg whites. To prepare it, take the whites of two eggs and beat them to a stiff consistency. Then apply the egg whites to your hair, and massage your scalp well with your fingertips. After this massaging, permit the egg whites to dry thoroughly on the hair. When thoroughly dry, brush your hair briskly, in order to remove all the flakes of egg white. And as in the previous routine, part your hair and cleanse your scalp with a dampened cloth. This procedure will remove all accumulated dirt, dust and oil from your hair, and will leave it clean, soft and lustrous.

Hair

Marie: You will find an excellent dandruff remedy in my 'Beauty Culture' booklet. This booklet also gives the hot oil treatments for promoting hair growth and thickness, the salt water treatments for thin, falling hair, and advice on scalp massaging.

Buttermilk

Ruth: Buttermilk certainly isn't fattening, and a reducing individual may safely consume as many as two quarts of it daily.

Skin Peel

Joyce: If you are contemplating having your skin peeled, be sure that you have the work done by an expert only. Do not attempt to do the peeling yourself, as you may seriously injure your skin.

Reducing

Mrs. Cox: It is indeed possible to reduce the bust, abdomen and thighs after childbirth. Full information on such reducing is contained in my 'New Figure' booklet.

Complexion

June: Full information on eradicating pimples, blackheads, freckles and enlarged pores is contained in my 'Beauty Culture' booklet. This booklet also gives many excellent makeup hints, and advice on double chin reduction.

EDITOR'S NOTE: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphets on 'The New Figure' and 'Beauty Culture' write, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

Arabian Woman Finds Chicago Curles Too Tricky For Comfort In Veil-Wearing

CHICAGO, April 26. (CP).—It's all right for a woman to veil her face in Arabia, but in Chicago, Mrs. Helen Hanania contends, there are curbstones to consider.

She said the handkerchief she tied over her face got into her eyes and she stumbled every time she went out.

And so she told her husband, Moussa, she wouldn't wear it any more and when he didn't like it, she sued him for separate maintenance, she told Judge Francis Allegretti, yesterday.

"Do you," asked the court of Hanania, "expect her to ride a camel because it's an old Arabian custom?

"No," he replied. "She may take a street car."

Noting his willingness to compromise the court told Moussa and Helen to try to patch up their differences and return in a month.

Household Hints

Menu Hint

Dried Beef with Mushrooms
Baked Potatoes or Boiled Rice
Apple-Celery Salad Date Fondue
Coffee

Here is an unusual menu for you. And it will taste good, believe it or not. Apples are not so very good at this time of year, so you can use what you have on hand in a salad, combined with celery or cabbage and carrots.

Today's Recipes

Dried Beef With Mushrooms—Three tablespoons butter, one-fourth pound mushrooms, chopped; two hard cooked eggs, one-fourth pound shredded dried beef, two tablespoons flour, two cups rich milk. Melt butter, add chopped mushrooms and cook slowly until brown. Add dried beef, which has been rinsed in cold water. Heat thoroughly, stir in flour and blend. Add milk and cook until thickened. Just before serving add finely chopped eggs. Serve on toast.

Date Fondue—One cup milk, one cup stale bread crumbs, one tablespoon butter, 3 eggs yolks, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup sugar, one cup pasteurized dates, one-half teaspoon vanilla, three egg whites. Scald milk in a double boiler. Add bread crumbs, butter, beaten egg yolks, salt and sugar. Cook until mixture thickens. Cool. Add dates (cut) and vanilla and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites last. Pour into greased custard cups. Place cups in a pan of hot water and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until custard will not cling to a silver knife. Serve with lemon sauce. Six or eight servings.

Lamb stew with a good quantity of vegetables taken hot to the picnic grounds will not need to be thrown out for want of customers.

CHARMING AND SLIMMING

Matrons, you'll like this model. It's easy to wear. It has slenderizing points too, which you may appreciate, as the flattering collar and skirt lines. Prints or plain tub silks, pastel linens, shirting cottons, pique, seersucker, etc., are smart materials for this easily sewn model.

Style No. 3159 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material.
